The most noticeable effects of civilization in Makale were to be seen in the amusement quarter. The section consists of more than 200 native huts and contains hundreds of native women, and it is patrolled by Italian military police. Visits by soldiers are forbidden. But the dusky entertainers obviously have come upon prosperous days. Their native robes have given way to Japanese silk pajamas, and their frizzled ebony locks now glisten with European brilliantine instead of rancid butter. So far the real victors of the East African campaign appear to have been these swarthy belles and the Italian truck drivers whose monthly earnings average 5,000 lire—the pay of a colonel in the Italian Army.

In the mountains beyond Makale it was such rough going that I could make not more than ten miles an hour, but I felt rewarded when the last hairpin curve brought me to the top of Amba Alaji. From this pinnacle, captured by the Italians with heavy loss of life, I could look out over hundreds of miles of hills and valleys of a fruitful land as yet practically unexplored by white men.

The road to the military station in the Quoram Valley had just been completed, but in a valley at the edge of the Danakil Desert, the "Hellhole of Abyssiania," there was a new variety of bad road. A piece of highway partly finished the previous Spring had been flooded in the recent rainy season and after the whole surface had been washed away it was left as an almost impassable jumble of boulders. Laborers were working night and day to lay as much asphalt as possible before the next heavy rains.

British Revive Fight On New Divorce Laws

N. Y. Herald Tribune

LONDON, Sept. 18—A new burst of controversy over Great Britain's divorce laws finds church leaders attacking the new law broadening the grounds for divorce, while other groups map a drive for still further liberalization.

Demands that habitual drunkenness and life imprisonment be accepted as grounds for divorce are being heard. Not satisfied with the recent, revolutionary changes in British divorce laws, including admission of cruelty, desertion and insanity as ground for divorce, the Divorce Law Reform Union wants "additional facilities for reasonable and equitable divorce."

Leaders of the Church of England, refusing to accept the principles of the new divorce laws, are expected to challenge with still more vigor any campaign for further changes. Preparations are being made for handling the extraordinary rush of applicants for divorce which is expected when the new matrimonial causes act goes into effect next January.

Rejected 22,000 Petitions

Last year the courts rejected 22,000 formal petitions for divorce on grounds which, after January 1, will be acceptable. "The Liverpool Diocesan Review," edited by the Bishop of Liverpool, as a guide to the increase in divorces expected, says that "there are in this country not fewer than 150,000 men and women who are married but legally separated . . . divorced in all but name."

Out of this situation is awaited a calendar of divorce petitions that will make it necessary to provide additional court facilities. So far church leaders have flatly refused to accept as church practice any of the divorce reforms approved by the state. Fundamental church law on the question of marriage and divorce remains the same. Individual clergy are expected to interpret the new divorce laws differently, but on the whole it is expected that persons divorced under the new rules will not enjoy remarriage by the church nor admission to communion.

More than ever before, it is pointed out, individuals seeking divorce will have their choice between adherence to church laws or acceptance of the laws of the state as regards marriage or divorce.

Attacks on the new divorce laws continue. The Bishop of Ely, writing in his "Diocesan Gazette," believes the divorce act to be directly contrary to Christ's teachings. "It is beyond question that our Lord's explicit precepts are disregarded in this new act," he says.

Some support for the bill, on the other hand, is found through "The Liverpool Diocesan Review." Referring to "a wide social injustice which the act will tend to remedy," "The Review" says:

"There are in this country not fewer than 150,000 men and women who are married, but legally separated. They are divorced in all but name. Many of them form irregular unions and have families often as happy and united as those of legal marriages. But the children are heavily handicapped. They often are unaware until one parent dies that in the eyes of the law they are illegitimate. There are not less than 20,000 of them."

Defines Cruelty Provisions

A. P. Herbert, Member of Parliament, author of the new divorce act, returned to the controversy in a broadcast analysis of the provisions of the new bill. He argued that cruelty as a ground for divorce under the new act did not mean "Hollywood or Reno cruelty."

"Legal cruelty has been strictly defined by the English courts for a very long time as 'conduct of such a character as to have caused danger to life, limb or health (bodily or mental) so as to give rise to a reasonable apprehension of such danger,' he said.

"But danger to mental health does not rightly or wrongly include what the Americans know as mental cruelty. That is to say, no one will be able to get a divorce because a husband spends too much time fishing, or a wife become a film star, and so on."

New Italy Rises Out Of Disorder, Says US Observer

By HERBERT U. NELSON
Secretary National Association of US Real Estate Boards

The new Italy is rising swiftly from the ruins and disorder of the old. Driving through Rapallo, Florence and Venice, as Robert B. Whitaker, of Kenosha Wisconsin, and I did recently, we were conscious of this the moment we entered the country. In France, which we had just left, building is at a standstill except for a few projects carried on by the government. But when we left the French Riviera and crossed into northern Italy, we began at once to see hundreds of fine new homes going up, scores of fine apartment buildings being rushed to completion. And all of the work was being done with refreshing dash, good humor and spirit.

It is difficult to get good figures on the national volume of building. They are not published in readily accessible form, and officials seem cautious about giving out information. In Florence, a city of 300,000, more than 3,000 new family units were built last year and new construction is still going ahead. For the country as a whole, it is probable that about 140,000 new units were erected in 1936.

New Houses Have Red Tile Roofs

The new homes are built of brick, tile and stucco, in simple rectangular lines, with red tile roofs. The severe plainness of the walls often is relieved by painted frescos, usually done with stencils. This is cheap, but it gives pleasant color and variety. The apartment houses usually are four and five stories, built of reinforced concrete, and often with attractive little balconies for each apartment. The rooms are being built smaller than the former Italian custom. Central heating is installed in the newest construction. Three, four and five rooms are the most usual units. The floors are tiled and show many attractive patterns. In our climate such floors would no doubt seem cold, but here they appear quite suitable and do away with the need for expensive floor coverings.

In cities such as Genoa and Florence it is impressive to set entire blocks of ramshackle and unhealthy old apartments being torn down and replaced by fine new structures. Demolition is carried on by the government, which clears out the slums and arranges for compensation to the owners. New building is carried on almost entirely by private enterprise, which takes over the cleared land by purchase or lease and does the building. Loans are available for building at 4 per cent, running for terms as long as sixty years. Italy gives a twenty-five-year tax exemption on all new construction.

Factories Being Rebuilt

Many of Italy's factories are being rebuilt in the modern fashion with good light and air. In Genoa a huge rocky hill about 400 feet high and 1,000 feet long in the center of the city is being leveled and a new business section built. The project reminds me very much of a similar one carried out at Seattle a few years ago. Roads everywhere are being widened, straightened and improved, and often beautifully planted with trees and flowers. One fine highway of forty miles between Pisa and Florence does not have a single cross railroad, all crossings being by passes, and no pedestrians are allowed on it. This stretch is a motorist's paradise. New public buildings of all kinds are rising. We saw at least a half dozen new medical centers or clinics finely housed. Nowhere did we see any fiddling with useless make-work projects.

The big massive Italian type of furniture for homes is giving way to the simpler and lighter types common with us as the rooms in the homes and apartments grow smaller. This trend is credited to the Americans. The Americans in turn credit the modern styles to Europeans. So everybody should be happy. An American vice-consul told me that he lives in an eighteen-room apartment, with ceilings fifteen feet high, for which he is paying a rent of $500 a year. He is moving soon into an eight-room apartment, "American style," with small rooms and requiring only one servant, where the rent also is to be $500 a year. A good house servant receives about $7 a month, and this rate, which seems very low to us but high to Italians, is a factor in the trend toward smaller units.

Central Heating "Pretty Sketchy"

Construction in the new Italian housing is strong and attractive but lacks the refinements upon which Americans insist. While central heating is coming in, it is pretty sketchy in its arrangements. Insulation for walls and floors is not used except in the most luxurious homes. Exterior wall of brick or concrete tile get the plaster applied directly on the inside and outside without lathing. Interior planning seemed to me not so convient as ours. Gadgets are scarce.

Of great interest are the societies in Italian cities organized for the purpose of providing housing for the poor. Most of these date back forty years or so, when the movement started. Assistance for housing is thus a recognized form of philanthropy for all wealthy persons, just as hospitals and education are with us. The head of the master builders' group in Florence stated these societies have done much good and have made government assistance less necessary than would otherwise have been the case. In some cases the municipality donates land to such societies. Thus, with free land, exemption from taxes and remission of interest, good housing is supplied at rents of $4 and $5 a month for those in the lowest income group. The local societies consist of the most distinguished persons in the community, and this is good guaranty that funds are well expended and work is well done.

It would appear that the movement for better housing in our country needs just this type of local interest and support, which it now largely lacks, if good progress is to be made.

"BELIEVE IT OR NOT"---by Ripley

Music Hath Charms

Domenico Cimarosa was born in Aversa, Naples, in 1749, the son of a mason and a laundress. Between 1774 and 1787, he wrote no less than 49 grand operas, each of which was a brilliant success. He was honored by two great foreign sovereigns, Catherine II of Russia and Joseph of Austria. He returned to his native Naples in 1793 and resumed his successful operatic work. His activities finally displeased King Ferdinand of Naples, at whose order the maestro was seized and sentenced to death. Powerful interests interceded for the composer, and the King consented to commute the sentence to lifelong exile. Cimarosa died in exile in Venice, which was an Austrian possession at the time, in 1801. The populace has long suspected that he was poisoned by the orders of the Neapolitan government. The King repeated ly uttered his apprehension that Cimarosa's facile and prolific talent for entertainment would cause the Neapolitans to lose their military ability and manly virtues.

Accepted At Current Rates

Looking back across the long downward slant of his work, it is hard to imagine the blaze of glory that wrapped Kipling in the '90's. He dazzled critics and children alike. Every one quoted him. Each story, each verse he published rang the bell, and millions caught up and cherished the echo of every bold stroke. Wherefore he was stalked and harried, by editors and reporters, by enthusiasts and the curious and the autograph seeker. He showed Carey one letter he had received. The writer had enclosed a quarter, a blank page, and a stamped, addressed envelope. He had heard that Kipling now got twenty-five cents a word. Would he please, for the enclosed coin, forward just one word? Kip did. He wrote "Thanks" and mailed it back.—Harper's Magazine.

Russia Scraps Census, Calling It 'Defective'

MOSCOW, Sept. 26.—Charging that the national population census taken last January 6 was defective, the Sovnarkom (Council of People's Commissars) early this morning threw away the results of enormous statistical labir and ordered a new tabulation.

The order marks a probable all-time high point in self-criticism, even for the present phase of the Soviet Union's vigilant skepticism about all the works of those leaders who have recently been disgraced.

The brief statement issued by the Sovnarkom did not pin responsibility on any individual, but it is significant that the count was carried out under the supervision of the Central Statistical Bureau, whose chief, Ivan A. Kraval, recently was denounced as an enemy of the people, reports the New York Herald Tribune. The reformed bureau now has been ordered to carry out a new census on January 19, 1939.

The Sovnarkom statement said that "government instructions were not carried out in the census and statistical science was violated." No details were given of the methods used to invalidate the results of the attempt to count the noses of 172,000,000-odd Russians.

The results of the census had been eagerly awaited in Moscow in recent months. It was announced last spring that new machines had been invented by Soviet engineers for tabulation of their complicated figures. This was before Trotzkyism and treason had taken their toll of the Soviet Union's statisticians.

Envoy Credited With Union Of Reich And Italy

By SONIA TOMARA

N. Y. Herald Tribune

ROME, Sept. 25.—Ulrich von Hassel, German Ambassador at Rome, is credited here with bringing about the rapprochement between Germany and Italy which resulted in Premier Benito Mussolini's visit to Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler this week end.

One of Europe's ablest diplomats, Hassel has passed much time in Italy and is thoroughly familiar with Italy's literature, art and culture. He has won Mussolini's confidence.

After Hitler's unsuccessful visit to Italy in 1934, Hassel patiently sought an opportunity to inaugurate an era of good feeling between the two countries. This came when the League of Nations imposed sanctions on Italy and Germany stood by her.

It was the beginning of the development of trade between the two countries. While Italian troops advanced into Ethiopia, Hassel worked at his idea that Italy and Germany should stand together to defend Europe's culture against communism. The nucleus of the Rome-Berlin axis idea was formed in his mind and during the winter of 1936 he made frequent journeys from Rome to Berlin as an intermediary between the two dictators.

Efforts Are Successful

His efforts were successful in June of that year, when on Italy's advice Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg of Austria signed a peace compact with Germany. Hitler signified that he had given up his scheme of conquering Austria, and Mussolini recognized without saying so that friendship with Germany was more important for him than Austria's independence. Since then the Spanish civil war, which the two dictators pictured as an attempt of Soviet Russia to implant communism in Western Europe, cemented Italo-German sympathy into the Rome-Berlin axis and a virtual alliance.

Mussolini's son-in-law, Count Galeazzo Ciano, whom he had appointed as his Minister for Foreign Affairs, enthusiastically supported this alliance. The Germans were intelligent enough to give Ciano's wife, Edda Mussolini, in the summer of 1936, and himself in October of that year, a warm welcome, which caused them to favor Germany. Besides that, the failure of the League to recognize the Ethiopian conquest prompted Italy's friendship with Germany.

In December Hassel brought forward the idea of an official visit by Mussolini to Berlin. This idea was to mature slowly and the trip to be carefully prepared. During the winter and spring Il Duce had to visit Libya and to have meetings with the central European premiers. He had also to occupy himself with the Spanish conflict and to think of Italy's economic recovery after the Ethiopian war and sanctions.

Nations on Parallel Lines

Finally the date for the trip was set to coincide with the German military maneuvers after the end of the Nuremberg Nazi gathering. Europe's general atmosphere has changed so much since June, 1934, when the two leaders met for the first time, that the whole aspect of this second interview is bound to be quite different.

Germany and Italy at present are moving along parallel lines, the Italians like to point out. Their interests are called the same with regard to Russia and Spain, and to a certain extent in the Far East. Both countries are anxious to arrive at an agreement with Great Britain and to try to form a triangular accord which they hope will finally oblige France to give up her pact with the Soviets. Austria, for the moment, is left aside. Germany is convinced that this little state will sooner or later join her. Italy believes it impossible to defend Austria's independence by arms if the Austrian people eventually turn Nazi.

Access To Raw Materials

per cent of its imported foodstuffs from non-French countries.

The depression and deliberate measures to confine trade within empires have since lowered these percentages somewhat for both Britain and France, but not by more than about 10 per cent except in the case of French imports of foodstuffs. Belgium gets 3 per cent of its raw material imports from the Belgian Congo and a fraction of 1 per cent of its foodstuffs. Raw materials do not come mainly from colonies, these memoranda show. A complete list of major raw materials of which the world draws as much as half of its annual supply from colonial and mandated areas would hardly include half a dozen commodities. The most important of these would be rubber and tin.

International Control

These figures and others used by the Conference revealed that all modern industrial countries are "havenots" in some degree, and most of them to a very considerable degree, in the sense that they depend on imports from abroad for raw materials essential to the running of their factories and the feeding of their peoples. The real raw materials problem, so far as peacetime conditions are concerned, was summed up by one delegate as having two facets: one, the problem of obstacles to international exchange, which applies equally to other goods as well as raw materials, and the other certain difficulties raised for consuming countries by raw material control schemes and cartels of produces exercising monopoly powers. This latter question received considerable attention in the discussions, and there seemed to be a consensus of opinion in favor of some sort of international "control of control schemes"

It has often been pointed out that the ability of countries like Germany to get raw materials from abroad is limited by their ability to sell abroad, for they must acquire foreign exchange with which to pay for raw material imports. Thus obstacles to trade imposed by tariffs and quota schemes and monetary controls all over the world are the factors that most impede access to raw materials. For this reason much approval was shown for such efforts as those of Secretary Hull toward breaking down trade barriers as most important in the interest of peaceful change.

One major conclusion of the Conference, in the opinion of several American delegates, was that territorial transfer of any kind, whether in Europe or in Africa, is one of the least promising forms of peaceful change. Perhaps some slight territorial adjustments can be made, but for the most part readjustments will have to be sought in the direction of reducing obstacles to economic intercourse. As one delegate put it, not so much to change boundaries as to lessen the importance of boundaries should be the strategy of peaceful change.

However, the Conference registered a decided shift in the attitude toward colonies and those who possess them which has been more and more evident in recent years. Delegates from countries that have large colonial empires, as well as from those that do not, remarked that no longer can colonies be regarded as the private preserves of the countries that administer them. Not simply the interests of the metropolitan country (i. e., the colony-owning country) but the interests of the natives and the interests of the world at large must be taken into account in the formation of policy. Eventually, and this was stated especially by the British experts, one must expect colonies to "grow up" and achieve independence or dominion status.

Colonial Administration

In the meantime, colonial administration must be regarded as trusteeship, not as an opportunity for exploitation.

The experts on population problems agreed that serious maladjustments in the form of over-population and under-population exist in various parts of the earth. It came out clearly in the discussions that the apparently simple remedy of migration is much more complicated than in previous ages. Possibilities of migration depend on the economic situation of the world. Modern migrants cannot move without considerable capital to set them up in some productive occupation.

There was disagreement among the population experts as to how effective emigration may be as an aid to countries suffering from surplus population.

In the sessions on population, as well as in those on raw materials and colonies, when it came to concrete proposals for peaceful solution of the most pressing problems it was observed by more than one delegate that organized international cooperation is indispensable. The League of Nations may be in eclipse today, but when experts get together to find means other than war for meeting international problems they seem to propose more and more duties that need to be performed and can only be performed through a world organization. It was a striking thing about the Conference that nearly every member took for granted that the League must be strengthened and its powers extended if the world is to have peaceful evolutionary change rather than war.

Serious Shortage

molders, pattern-makers, electricians, etc. Here again, the government was able to draw off many finely trained craftsmen, who sooner or later would have returned to private industry.

Confronted by these conditions, and amid rising tides of increased production, American industry is valiantly striving to set its house in order. Emergency demands are forcing executives to realize that there is no miracle "way-out" to escape an actual or impending labor shortage.

The first step taken by many forward-looking companies was to find out how extensive the labor shortage was—and to ascertain how great a supply of skilled workmen existed, in latent form, in the ranks of the company itself.

Survey Made

One large corporation in the Middle West recently made a survey of all of its labor groups. All common labor fit for promotion to the ranks of semi-skilled workmen was classified. A similar classification was made in the semi-skilled group. Out of fifty jobs that needed to be filled in the skilled-labor group, forty were given to the best of the semi-skilled workmen. The members of the skilled-labor group also were classified according to their capability, age, length of service, physical condition, etc., to seek candidates for jobs as foremen.

Man-power inventories of this character have revealed the possibilities of re-training old employes in new processes. On the railroads and in the textile, petroleum and telephone industries, this procedure has been a valuable asset both to employer and employe.

In studying the labor shortage, a survey of the causes has been found to be important, whether the condition is attributable strictly to outside factors which the management cannot change or to conditions within the plant such as wages and hours. One corporation discovered that rigid regulations for hiring men only forty years old or younger was responsible for losing the services of many capable machinists mechanics and others beyond the forty-year limit. A change in this policy resulted in a substantial older group being inducted into service within a short time.

Rapidity of promotion also has been found to be an important element. Ambitious young men coming out of vocational or technical high schools naturally want to rise rapidly in private employment.

Wage Increase Scale

One large corporation whose sales activities cover the eastern half of the nation, recently instituted an unusual promotion policy. This company, which employs many hundreds of truck drivers, mechanics, machinists, carpenters, painters, garage repair men etc., has adopted automatic wage increases. A new employe is told that he must rise to the top pay rates within thirty months from the time he enters the service. If he does not earn this promotion he is dropped from the service. From those who earn their promotions, men are selected for supervisory jobs or for the sales force. While the policy has increased wages, company officials report that it has actually reduced costs and that the company has built up adequate reserves of skilled labor.

American industry is attacking the problem presented by the shortage of skilled labor with several points in its favor. Although the trend toward more automatic methods of production may partly overcome the shortage, at the same time, science and research are creating more and more highly specialized jobs. The wide expansion of machinery in the automobile industry in Detroit, for example, is creating a new class of skilled workmen. They are specialists, and their experience places them above the top ranks and pay rates of regular skilled craftsmen. Thus new incentives replace the old. Invention paves the way for the highest type of craftsmanship.

The students at technical, vocational and continuation schools are receiving a more thorough education with better equipment than ever before. The development of state-city financed schools in New England is an example.

WPA Funds a Help To Many Museums

N. Y. Times

WASHINGTON—WPA funds, on projects staffed by white-collar relief workers, have helped about fifty American museums to overcome the depression curtailment of activities, a House committee was recently informed. Before the WPA program was started many museums had valuable exhibits in storage. Money was lacking, in many instances, to place them on public inspection.

WPA workers have unpacked boxes, classified museum pieces and in many instances restored them to their original appearance. They have built exhibition cases, painted backgrounds and created artificial plants for exhibits settings. They have acted as guides and lecturers. WPA artists, sculptors and other craftsmen have created dioramas and prepared educational displays.

At the State Historical Society museum at Denver, WPA technicians have built dioramas which tell the pictorial story of transportation from the period of the Indian travois and the trapper's cart to the modern streamliners which speed across the prairies. For the Denver City Museum WPA craftsmen have restored a set of authentic Spanish Colonial rugs. The yarn in some of the rugs was raveled from the clothing the Indians stripped from Spanish soldiers who were slain in the battles of the exploration period.

WPA labor has built a museum at the Tuzegoot ruin, near Clarksdale, Ariz., to house one of the outstanding collections of American prehistoric relics. It has helped to restore Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh's boyhood home at Little Falls, Minn., now the Lindbergh Museum. At Berkeley, Calif., it is turning out a large number of exhibits for new museum buildings recently erected in sixteen national parks and monuments in the West.

During the present year about 3,000 Works Progress Administration workers have been assigned to museum projects.

"BELIEVE IT OR NOT"—by Ripley

Fancy! Hotel Man Denounces Tipping As Contemptible

SPOKANE, Wash., Sept. 17—That old Spanish custom, the gratuity ("tip" to you) drew a hearty blast today from—of all people—a hotel owner.

"Tipping is the most detestable, contemptible and embarrassing practice in the world," said Victor Dessert, Spokane hotel man and lifelong student of the practice—and, he added, it's as bad for the person receiving the tip as for the donor. You've all seen bell boys opening windows that didn't need to be opened," he said, "and closing doors which should be left alone. The boys are embarrassed waiting for tips and are trying to 'cover up' while they wait.

"I've watched it closely. The next time you dine, pay attention to your waitress. The ones who smile the sweetest and who flatter you the most collect the biggest tips. But they aren't usually the ones who give the best service. The result is bad for the service and the employes alike."

Mr. Dessert expressed himself at a meeting with social security officials seeking data on which to establish a base pay ratio for hotel and restaurant employes.

Efficiency

A self-styled reformer was watching a trench being dug by modern machine methods. He said to the superintendent:

"This machine has taken jobs from scores of men. Why don't you junk that machine and put one hundred men in that ditch with shovels?"

The superintendent promptly retorted: "Or better still, why not put a thousand men in there with teaspoons!"—Atlanta Two Bells.

Complete Course of
JAPANESE CONVERSATION GRAMMAR
By Mr. Oreste Vaccari and Mrs. Eako Vaccari

THE LONDON TIMES
LITERARY SUPPLEMENT
No. 1844, Saturday, June 5, 1937

....this new manual is practical and useful, and what Count Kabayama in his prefactory note calls its "human method" will make it acceptable to the growing number of English students of Japanese. When the student has mastered its sixty lessons he will have completed the equivalent of an ordinary Japanese school education and will be at home in the language and able to proceed to higher things.

A feature of the book is its transliteration with Chinese characters of every Japanese example rendered in English spelling so that the student is gradually familiarized with the appearance of the language as well as with its sound.

Studying Japanese with this Grammar Becomes a Real Pleasure

EXTRACTS FROM THE PREFACE

Written by Count Ayské Kabayama, chairman of the Kokusai Bunka Shinkokai (The Society for International Cultural Relations of Tokyo).

"Mr. and Mrs. Vaccari have brought out what I would like to regard as the most complete book to date for the study of Japanese, and have, thereby, provided an effective and practical guide toward a basic study of the Japanese nation and people ....The method introduced by the authors is not only scientific, but human....the particular of the language, fully treated with practical examples, have been regulated in each lesson according to the measure of a partial effort of the mind....The Japanese taught in the book has struck me as of the best commonly accepted diction today....The authors have introduced a new system of giving all the sentences in the book in Japanese characters and Roman transliteration with their respective English translation, an innovation most likely to prove very helpful....Mr. and Mrs. Vaccari have published a book of high merit and may be regarded as the initiators of a new system for teaching Japanese.

Soviets Have 55 Per Cent Of World's Oil Reserves

Times, London

At the recent meeting of the XVIIth International Geological Congress in Moscow the petroleum reserves of the U.S.S.R. were declared by Soviet geologists to be 3,877,000,000 tons, or nearly 55 per cent of the world total of 7,077,000,000 tons. This compares with 1,765,000,000 tons estimated for the United States, holder of the second largest reserves. Thus the U.S.S.R. and the United States together are said to hold nearly 80 per cent of the petroleum resources of the world, leaving only slightly more than 20 per cent to all other countries.

This knowledge stimulates the question: What are the possibilities of a recurrence of "dumping" of petroleum on world markets by the Soviets? Exports of petroleum from the U.S.S.R. just before 1933 reached proportions large enough to alarm international marketers. Although these exports have declined in recent years Soviet petroleum has always been regarded as a threat to world markets, and this recent announcement might serve to enhance apprehensions. But analysis of the ability of the Soviets to develop their vast petroleum reserves and produce in quantities beyond their own needs indicates that the chances of serious competition from Soviet petroleum in the near future are remote.

Until 1933 the Soviet nation was primarily an oil-exporting country. During the decade after the Revolution the demand for petroleum in the U.S.S.R. was small. The country was neither motorized nor industrialized. The first economic plan beginning in 1927-28 was mainly one of developing agriculture and light industries. At that time petroleum was relatively plentiful. Repair of the old wells, pipe-lines, and refineries and other equipment to a degree commensurate with domestic demand was a comparatively simply task. These conditions produced a surplus, and exports of all petroleums increased from 3,858,000 tons in 1929 to 6,117,000 tons in 1932, or by more than 53 per cent. It was this expansion which led to the widespread but erroneous belief that the Soviets could produce unlimited amounts of petroleum.

Change in Plan

At the beginning of the Second Five-Year Plan in 1932 a change of policy in Soviet planning took place. Instead of emphasis on agriculture and the light industries the new plan provided for concentration on heavy industry and the national defense. Such a program meant the rapid mechanization of a country nearly three times larger than the United States in area and with a population of more than 165,000,000 people. The role of petroleum in such a plan is obvious. Almost overnight the Soviet nation found that its attitude must be reversed. It could no longer export as in former years but had to increase the production of oil in proportion to the output of automotive units. This output, less than 75,000 in 1932, increased to more than 231,000 in 1936, or by 208 per cent. In the same time the production of crude oil increased from 21,500,000 tons to only 27,300,000 tons, or less than 27 per cent. Improvements in refining were far from compensating, because the production of motor fuel (benzine plus ligroin) increased from 2,881,000 tons to 4,258,000 tons, or only 45 per cent. Under these conditions a deficiency of petroleum developed, and exports of all petroleums decreased from 6,117,000 tons in 1932 to 2,633,000 tons in 1936, or by more than 56 er cent. At the same time exports of motor fuel decreased from 2,018,000 tons to 419,000 tons, or nearly 80 per cent. During 1936 petrol to the amount of 46,000 ton was imported for the first time during the history of Soviet petroleum.

It is this failure of the Soviet petroleum industry to keep apace with the automotive and other heavy industries which has caused the Central Executive Committee and the Council of People's Commissars to decree in 1937 that all economic organizations reduce the standards of consumption of oil fuel by not less than 12 per cent. For the same reason the delivery of motor fuel to motor-vehicles is practically on a rationing basis, and cash premiums are awarded in the army for the economical use of petroleum products.

Disappointing Results

Unsatisfactory results in the development of oilfields in new districts have been the cause of the present predicament of the Soviet petroleum industry. Fulfilment of the plan for heavy industry was based largely on the supposition that new fields would be discovered and developed to a point where they would be capable of yielding toward the end of the Second Five-Year Plan 25 per cent of the total production. As a matter of fact the share of production from new fields continued to be less than 3 per cent as late as 1934, and some of the fields counted on most heavily declined ominously. Despite the efforts made the proportion from new fields is still less than 5 per cent of the total.

The bulk of the crude petroleum produced in the U.S.S.R. has always come from the fields surrounding the Caucasus uplift between the Black and the Caspian Seas. Here the producing districts are the Azerbaidjan, on the western shore of the Caspian; the Northern Caucasus; the Azov-Black Sea, east of the Azov and northeast of the Black Sea; and the Georgian, in the Southern Caucasus. The fields of these districts produced 97 per cent of the total output in 1913 and still produce nearly 95 per cent of the total production in the U.S.S.R. The remaining crude oil produced comes from widely scattered fields in the European section of the Union, in the central Asian section, and in the Far East. At present about 2.6 per cent of the total output comes from fields on the western and southern slopes of the Urals; about 1.9 per cent from the central Asian fields in Uzbek and Tadjik; and less than 1 per cent from the Far East on the Island of Sakhalin.

The Soviet geologists claim that oil deposits are present in a great number of places in the broad belt from the Arctic Ocean along the western front of the Ural Mountains down to the Caspian Sea, in central Asia, and in Siberia. This claim is probably true, but the geological work, remarkable as it has been, has not led to an increase in production or increased reserves on the scale demanded. The problem is to develop these deposits. The responsibility for develement falls to drilling, and it is in this field that the Soviets are particularly inefficient. Their drilling speed averages less than 200 meters per month per drill compared with between 700 and 800 meters per month for the average American drill. Attempts to improve the speed by the "Stakhanoff" method of "piece-work" have usually led to increased accidents and poor well-completions. An additional hindrance to production is the low refining efficiency as measured by the percentage of petrol obtained from crude oil run to stills. In the United States more than 45 per cent of the crude run to stills results in petrol; in the Soviet Union less than 20 per cent petrol is obtained. So low an average recovery of petrol places an additional burden upon the productive branch of the industry.

Petroleum in the U.S.S.R. has enormous possibilities. But the present size of the industry is small when compared with that of the United States. The production of crude petroleum in the U.S.S.R. is about one-fifth and the output of petrol one-fifth that of the United States. In the United States there are in use roughly 26,000,000 automotive units, and the annual output of petrol exceeds 45,000,000 barrels. In the Soviet Union, not more than 800,000 automotive units are in use and the annual output of petrol does not exceed 30,000,000 barrels. Although the programs for industry and national defense in the Soviet Union are tremendous and the growth of automotive units impressive the country is far from being motorized. If the Soviet petroleum industry is having difficulty in satisfying the demands made upon it at this stage of industrial and automotive development, it is safe to say that an accumulation of petroleum surpluses for export is not likely for some time to come. Indeed the Soviets may find it increasingly difficult to satisfy their own requirements.

The undeniable weakness of the Soviet petroleum industry at the present time does not mean that it will always remain so, nor can achievement reached be treated lightly. Compared with attainments in other countries its efficiency is low. But real effort to improve the industry did not begin until five years ago with the inauguration of the Second Five-Year Plan. This considered, the record is admirable, if not high.

Jazzed Classics Spoils Tastes For Good Music

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Sept. 12—Current "clever dance arrangements" of classical airs are as "ludicrous as your lovely grandmother made up to look like a chorus girl," Dr. Nikolai Sokoloff asserted here today.

The former conductor of the Cleveland Symphony Orchestra, now Federal Director of Music, has been attending a meeting here of directors of the National Federation of Music Clubs.

"Classical music needs no dressing up", he continued. "Dance band arrangements of classical numbers will certainly not improve our consciousness of good music."

Mr. Sokoloff declared that classical music is definitely becoming more popular in this country and he added that it is no longer necessary for Americans to study music in Europe. "Millions in this country are yearning for fine music," he said. "Our federal musicals were attended by 69,000,000 during the last 18 months

"And people ask why the Government should sponsor music! They ask what music will do for a country. I ask what will literature do, what will intelligence do?"

Referring to memorials established in Memphis and St. Louis for the Negro, William Christopher Handy, author of the St. Louis "Blues," he said:

"If they want to build monuments for men who make music for the feet, that is very nice. I have yet to see many memorials to Walt Whitman, Emerson or the South's own John Powell of Virginia, one of our greatest contemporary composers."

College Study Widened To Fit Needs Of Today

CHICAGO, Sept. 13—Curricular changes, including simplification of new courses and study of labor, are engaging the interest of institutions of learning this fall.

Innovations range from a new method of approach to college studies at the University of Washington, to establishment by the University of Wisconsin of a permanent extension school to develop better labor leaders.

The University of Washington's plan calls for freshmen to study but one subject intensively. This fall, for example, it will be one language alone, rather than the usual four or five subjects. During the winter it will be economics, history or political science, and in the spring, geology, geography or mathematics. The group also will have a course in English composition and literature and in physical education and military science.

The course for workers at Wisconsin contains no provision for classes on the campus at Madison, site of the university, but instructors will be stationed at Milwaukee and others will visit outlying sections of the state. Wisconsin long has conducted institutes for workers in winter and has given a special course for them in summer.

Training adults for government careers will be the object of a department at New York University, in which the school will have the cooperation of city and state. It will specialize in such government services as old age pensions, insurance administration, and unemployment.

The University of Maryland is opening a course in radio technique. It will include writing for the radio as well as practice before the microphone.

At Princeton University, students of "achievement and promise" will be admitted without examinations from schools in the South, West and rural East. The number, however, will be limited—not more than 25. This change in policy makes it possible for Old Nassau to open its doors to capable boys from schools whose course to study, while satisfactory in other respects, are not specifically geared to meet college board requirements.

Wesleyan University at Middletown, Conn., and Hobart College at Geneva, N. Y., are offering war courses. Wesleyan University's announcement describes the course as "an attempt to give the student some factual acquaintance with practical efforts of men to restrain and terminate war." The course at Hobart is designed as a part of a program which makes a four-year study of citizenship a pre-requisite for a degree. It will survey the underlying causes of war.

Race Won By Dead Jockey

One of the most unusual accidents in racing annals occurred at Belmont Park on June 4, 1923, when a dead jockey actually won the race. A horse named "Sweet Kiss" won the steeplechase, ridden by Jockey F. Hayes, and neither judges nor spectators were aware that anything was wrong until the horse was returned to the winner's ring in front of the judges stand to be unsaddled. The jockey, still in a crouched position, was asked to dismount but did not move. Thinking he had fainted or been stunned, the excited fans lifted him from the saddle and it was then discovered that Hayes had died of heart failure just as the horse crossed the finish line.

Lisbon-New York Route Projected For Heavy Planes

Christian Science Monitor

NEW YORK, Sept. 14—Two round-trip flights a week between New York and Lisbon, Portugal, are planned by American Export Airlines as its initial trans-Atlantic schedule, it was revealed here today by James M. Eaton, vice-president.

The Air Transportation Company, a subsidiary of the Export Steamship Corporation, which also operates the American Export Lines in the freight and passenger trade, will begin operations with four large flying boats of 27.5 tons gross flying weight, Mr. Eaton said.

When traffic develops to the extent that expansion is necessary, American Export Airlines will more than double the size of its equipment by adding another fleet of seaplanes, probably of 60 tons gross flying weight, he added.

Permits to operate the line already have received approval of European authorities and are being considered in Washington, it was said.

As soon as the air line is in operation, the company expects to offer a coordinated steamship and air service from Lisbon. American Export Line already serves more than 100 ports in the Mediterranean area and others in the Black Sea.

Just the Difference

The film producer visited his oculist and complained of seeing spots before his eyes.

"Well," smiled the oculist: "there's nothing serious about that. We'll have you fixed up in no time at all. Why, thousands of people see spots before their eyes."

The film producer sighed.

"Yes, I knew that," he replied, "but mine are in technicolor."

Says Rome Planes Rule 'Inland Sea'

By HANSON W. BALDWIN

The airplane has diminished the value of surface men-of-war, particularly in "closed seas," and Italian aerial strength makes it possible for Italy to control the Mediterranean, General Giuseppe Valle, Italian Under-Secretary for Air, declares in an interview mailed to The New York Times from Rome.

The writer, recently in Europe, submitted a set of written questions to General Valle, administrative head of the Italian air forces, and second only to Premier Mussolini—who holds the portfolios for the air force, the army and the navy—in command of Italy's formidable flying fleet.

General Valle's written answers, together with a considerable amount of factual material on the achievements of Italian aviation to date, its present status and its accomplishments in Ethiopia, have now been received.

The general's claim that Italy now controls the Mediterranean from the air—with the "close collaboration" of the navy, he explained—was considered particularly significant in view of recent large-scale air, land and sea maneuvers around Sicily and in the light of a recent statement by General Valle in speaking on the Italian air estimates.

Stressed Strategic Shift

At that time he stressed the "radical change that has occurred in the strategical field assigned to our air arm" and said that the center of gravity had "clearly shifted from the Valley of the Po toward the Mediterranean, the Red Sea and the Indian Ocean."

This, he added, in explaining the air estimates, clarified the reasons for the strengthening of the air bases in Sicily, Sardinia, the Aegean Islands, Pantellaria—the little fortified dot of land between Sicily and Cape Bon—and Tobruk, Italian air base in Libya. Air divisions are now "able to pass in a few hours from one part of the Mediterranean to another," it was explained.

In the interview, received by mail, General Valle somewhat surprisingly "deprecated" the bombardment of cities as "indefensible." His opinion was regarded as particularly interesting in view of the late Italian General Douhet's theory that a crushing and overwhelming bombardment from the air of enemy military and industrial centers and cities would probably prove decisive and insure a war of short duration.

It had been thought that General Douhet's theory of air warfare still motivated Italian air strategy and that the "attaque brusquee" was a foregone conclusion in the next war.

But General Valle somewhat qualified his denunciation of the bombardment of cities by declaring that "We must remember that in modern war it is very difficult to define the exact line between military objectives and civil objectives." The efficacy of such air bombardment, he wrote, "depends upon the moral potentialities of the people made to suffer it."

Ground Troops Put First

General Valle, in amplifying his views on aerial warfare, seemed to depart farther from the Douhet theory when he indicated that he did not consider that wars could be won by aviation alone, but that planes, although of the utmost importance in modern war, were secondary to ground troops. He declared that the "effects of victory in the air—domination of the air—will be felt on the ground (or on the sea) in a real manner."

Material describing various Italian aerial maneuvers that he enclosed with his answers to this correspondent's questions further explained that flying fleets, properly handled, would "wear out the armed forces" and would also tend to destroy the morale of military and civilian populations.

Nevertheless, he said, wars are not likely to be won by aviation alone, but by the indirect aid of aviation to the land and sea forces. Such aid, however, he added, may be decisive, and it is inevitable that wars "will be settled more rapidly in favor of that nation with the best aviation.'"

The organization and strength of Italian aviation was discussed in some of the material sent by General Valle. He declared that up until May, 1937, Italian aviators held forty-seven out of a total of 106 officially recognized world's aviation records.

Italy's objective is 4,100 first-line planes in operating squadrons by 1941 (she has about 2,500 today), a total of 4,283 pilots on active duty by the same time (there are some 2,500 to 3,000 now), a total officer personnel, including ground forces, in the air corps of 7,670 by the year 1941, and an increase of non-commissioned officers to 12,647. Sixty new airports, most of them military, are now being constructed in Italy.

Italian military aviation is divided into four general forces: the air fleet, "consisting of ninety-three groups organized in a variable number of squadrons"; the army aviation service, "consisting of five flights of fifteen groups of observation squadrons"; the navy aviation service, "made up of a variable number of observation squadrons arranged in four commands," and the aviation for colonial defense.

The material sent by General Valle included a comprehensive statistical summary of the activities of aviation in the Ethiopian war, which "contributed materially to the decisive results." It was stated that approximately 500 planes had operated in East Africa.

Finds Arctic Camp Of 5 Lost In 1912

OSLO, Norway, Sept. 14—The last camp of five members of the German Polar Expedition headed by Lieutenant Schroeder-Stranz, who perished in 1912 in an attempt to measure the speed of a drifting ice floe, has been found on the shores of Dove Bay.

The discovery was made July 25 by Captain Amandus Wilhelmsen, master of the motor cutter Maud, who while on a fishing trip in the Svalbard district rowed ashore to look for a Summer harbor.

The German authorities today notified the Norwegian Government that there was no doubt the equipment Captain Wilhelmsen had brought back belonged to the Shroeder-Stranz expedition.

This included two binoculars, one long marine telescope, five oilskins with woolen lining, a pair of oars, remnants of a canvas boat, a sleeping bag with a German trade-mark, rifle cartridges, a revolver and cartridges, parts of a medicine chest and three letters, now illegible, carved on the root of a tree. The cloth crumbled away at the touch and the leather on the binoculars had been destroyed by age.

The expedition, which left Tromsoe in a Norwegian ship rechristened the Herz and Ernst to study meteorological, zoological and other conditions, consisted of fourteen Germans and five Norwegians.

After its arrival at Sorge Bay, Northeast Spitsbergen, Schroeder-Stranz, despite Norwegian experts' protests, forced the four Germans to join him in crossing a moving ice floe. It was intended that they be picked up by the expedition ship, but the five were never found.

'Sterilized' Gold

tion and the ideal of better business. The idea now appears to be to stabilize interest rates so that business will improve indefinitely.

Lastly, Washington can never tell how its actions will be interpreted. There are no mathematical formulae nor mechanical rules about business sentiment. So the simple formula of stepping on the gas when business slows down and putting on the brakes when it speeds up, is only a figure of speech.

The initial effect of the early week announcement action has been a drop in bill rates and the abandoment of the local banks' plan of raising call rates. The stock market has also risen, and U. S. Government bonds are up.

Confusion and Uncertainty

But there is already considerable opinion round the Street that these responses may be only temporary. There is a stubborn inarticulate feeling that interest rates will move downward despite the fact that the government is now evidently intent on sprucing up the market every time it looks weak and making money cheap every time it threatens to get scarce and tighter. Nobody now has any idea that the time will come when this policy will be abandoned, until and unless credit management as a general policy is abandoned: so the prospect looks like the meeting of an irresistible force with an immovable body.

A curiosity of the present situation is the apparently persistent reluctance of the banks to use the traditional rediscounting technique to ease their reserve needs. By its latest action, the Reserve Board has probably further entrenched this aversion, by not forcing the banks back into their old routines at the crucial moment when it could have been inconspicuously done. Thus the formal injection into the banking system of de-sterilized gold may have the effect of informally "sterilizing" the rediscount facilities of the Reserve system. The end of that would be that the banks, being averse to using the rediscount facilities when they were not afraid, would be doubly averse to doing so when they were afraid, namely, in the emergency for which these facilities would be most useful. In that day, therfore, the credit managers would have gained one new rescue technique and lost one old one. Much of the complexity of the new technique may factor down, in time of despair, into the simple formula, "le plus ca change, le plus c'est la meme chose." (the more the changes, the more it is the same thing).

In fact the very confusion, uncertainty, and contradiction involved in the new theory that the credit managers are to break any old rule and use any old reserves to meet emergencies, making up their policies and technique as they go along, may cause the business community to lose all confidence in the credit managers, and to follow its moods as it always has done and as it seems to be doing even now.

Alcatraz Revolt Quickly Crushed By Prison Guards

N. Y. Times

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 24—A convict attack on Warden James A. Johnston today disclosed a new rebellion in Alcatraz Prison, island fortress where the Federal Government keeps its most hardened criminals.

Burton Phillips, Kansas kidnapper and bank robber, slugged Warden Johnston from behind as he passed through the prison dining room after interviewing 100 convicts confined to their cells because of a strike.

Phillips' swinging fists injured the Warden before guards could intervene. The Warden was taken to the prison hospital, where Dr. George Hess reported no signs of skull fracture.

Warden Johnston telephoned to the Justice Department in Washington that he was not seriously hurt, X-ray plates showing that his skull was not fractured. He was removed to his home adjacent to the prison and, pending his return to duty, a subordinate was named acting warden.

Suppression Without Violence

The prison did not disclose what disciplinary measures, if any, had been taken against Phillips, who is serving a life sentence.

On Nov. 29, 1934, Phillips and Homer Binkley, both of Hutchinson, Kan., held up and robbed the Chandler National Bank at Lyons, Kan., of $2,090 and kidnapped Don Davis, assistant cashier, and W. W. Chandler. The two bankers were taken several miles into the country before being released unharmed.

Both Phillips and Hutchinson reformatory for bank robbery and had been paroled.

Justice Department officials expressed the belief that the newest Alcatraz explosion and been touched off by receipt of "grapevine" reports of last Sunday's uprising in Folsom prison and the resultant death there today of Warden Clarence Larkin.

Warden Johnston told the Justice Department that the situation had been brought under control without violence and without the use of firearms or tear gas. Alcatraz is heavily planted with remote control tear gas devices and other modern instruments for quelling riots.

Parleying With Mutineers

The prison announcement of the assault stated that 100 of the 300 convicts had struck earlier in the week, refusing to work. They were quickly confined to their cells.

Warden Johnston, noted for his discipline and his insistence upon anonymity as good medicine for bad men, had just interviewed the strikers in their cells and was passing through the dining room while the other convicts were at the noon meal.

Phillips arose from his seat and attacked the warden while other startled convicts looked on. Mr. Johnston was injured about the head and face.

The warden was quoted as saying that the strike probably was motivated by a mass desire for more privileges and more attention. Both are rare elements at Alcatraz.

Prisoners may talk among themselves only during a short recreation hour each day; they have no visitors and little or no entertainment. The so-called "big shots" are treated the same as the lowliest of the 300.

Capone Not in Rebellion

Alcatraz, a solid rock with twelve acres of surface, always has been a prison or a fortress. The Spanish fortified it in the eighteenth century and used it also for a prison. It is honeycombed with medieval stone cells.

For years it served as the army's disciplinary barracks. In August, 1934, the Government started using it as a prison for incorrigible Federal convicts. Alphonse ("Scarface") Capone, George ("Machine Gun") Kelly and an array of kidnappers were sent there among assorted murderers and bank robbers.

Prison officials said that Capone was not involved in today's affray.

In January, 1936, more than 100 convicts staged the first uprising. They refused to work. A dozen leaders were sent to the dreaded solitary confinement cells and the rebellion was quickly put down.

Several months ago, Rufe Persful, a convict, chopped off the fingers of his left hand in what Alcatraz investigators said was an exhibitionistic fit.

Warden Johnston at the time said that there had been many cases of convict exhibitionism throughout the country and that they resulted from the typical yearnings of imprisoned men to nourish their ego with attention.

Canada Borrowing Less And Lending More, Says Report

OTTAWA—A Government financial report discloses that Canada is borrowing less and lending more.

At the close of 1936, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported, British and foreign investments in Canada were $6,833,700,000, decline of $63,800,000 from the year before.

Canadian investments abroad, on the other hand, rose $16,600,000 from $1,639,900,000, in 1935 to $1,656,500,000 in 1936.

TThe most pronounced change was in United States investments in Canada which dropped more than $60,000,000 from $4,044,400,000 to $3,984,400,000. British money was decreased only slightly, from $2,729,300,000 to $2,725,100,000.

Canadian investments in the United States rose from $963,400,000 to $987,200,000. This more than compensated for a decrease in Canadian investments in Britain and other foreign countries.

Government securities attracted the largest share of foreign capital with a total of $1,638,700. Railways were next with $770,000,000. Wood and paper products companies attracted $465,000,000.

Cooperation Is Aim Of Russian Policy

By WALTER DURANTY

N. Y. Times

MOSCOW, Sept. 11.—Foreign Commissar Maxim M. Litvinoff's speech at the Nyon conference was not published in today's Moscow press, presumably, the the Izvestia correspondent hints, to give time for the Franco-British reaction to be appreciated. But today's Pravda editorial indicates that the viewpoint advanced by Mr. Litvinoff fundamentally expresses Soviet policy.

Pravda concludes:

"The U. S. S. R. can insure the inviolability of its own ships but has agreed to participate in the conference because—according to its steadfast policy of peace—it is prepared to cooperate in any measure that will insure the security of shipping in the Mediterranean."

Translated into plain English this must mean that considering the universal indignation caused here by the sinking of Soviet vessels the U. S. S. R. is prepared to insist on its own convoy system or other independent measures but would prefer to cooperate in international measures for protection or—if Britain balks at such a project—cooperate with France.

In this connection the speech of the French War Minister Edouard Daladier is prominently featured in today's Izvestia in which he declares that France will not allow non-intervention to be made a trap to put French communications with Africa under threat and to create a similar threat on the French southern frontier. The passage cabled from Paris concludes:

"In the life of a nation fully determined to maintain its prestige there come moments when it is necessary to say no."

M. Daladier's statement corresponds to the Soviet attitude exactly, and it is hoped here that it marks the stiffening of the French position toward the Spanish problem as a whole despite British tendencies—openly remarked at by Soviet correspondents in London—to reach an "amicable arrangement" with Germany and Italy. Should France, for instance, decide to abandon non-intervention and open her Spanish frontier there is little doubt that the step would be welcomed here—whatever London might feel—as giving an opportunity for more direct pressure upon Italy than possible under present circumstances.

As mentioned in previous dispatches, one of the obstacles of Franco-Soviet cooperation has been the belief—carefully fostered by interested parties in Paris and other European capitals—that the U. S. S. R. is seriously weakened by recent internal difficulties.

With the passage of time this belief seems to be fading, if one is to judge by the statement, in an interview in a Paris newspaper, by the French Minister of Public Health, Marc Rucart, who recently visited Russia. Asked what impressed him most in this country, M. Rucart replied:

"Undoubtedly the Soviet regime is a whole."

"BELIEVE IT OR NOT"---by Ripley

The One Woman Fort

During the Fredonian (Filibustering) Era in Texas history, General James W. Long left his wife in charge of the regiment manning the fort of Bolivar Point.

During the general's protracted absence, the soldiers gradually deserted the fort, suggesting that Mrs. Long go with them. She refused, saying "You may all leave me, and I may die, but when my husband returns, my bones will tell him that I was faithful to him."

Left alone for two years (1819-21) with her baby and a negro nurse, Mrs. Long was the entire garrison holding Fort Bolivar Point against besieging armies of Mexicans and Indians.

She fired the guns every night and morning, deceiving the enemy into believing that the Fort was still fully manned.

Spaniards Weary Of The Civil War

N.Y. Times

LONDON, Sept. 2—Now and then something happens to make us realize how sick and tired the Spaniards are of their civil war. The apparent joy with which the inhabitants of Santander greeted Generalissimo Francisco Franco's troops last week was one of those incidents. It did not mean that the people concerned were pro-Franco, for if the Government's hopes should be realized and some day they entered, let us say, Seville, they would be greeted just as joyously.

In any civil war only a small part of the population actually fights or cares desperately one way or the other which side wins. The average Spaniard is not any different from the average man in any country. He does not want to risk his life under circumstances of prolonged discomfort. His wife does not enjoy semi-starvation for herself and her children. Heroes and heroines are rarer in real life than one likes to think. It is easy to understand how any one who lived through the last four months in Santander would welcome "peace at any price."

An Extreme Example

That, however, is an extreme example, and any one who seeks to draw the conclusion that efforts at mediation might now be heeded or that there is any readiness to lay down arms on either side would be completely mistaken. There are enough people left who would rather die than surrender to keep things going for a long time to come, and those people are in the armies.

General Franco's successes in the North undoubtedly are misleading many outsiders into a belief that the end of the war is in sight. That is true of the English, so it is probably true of Americans, French and others. Yet it cannot be overemphasized that the war is going to be won or lost on the Castillian plateau, and the problem of taking Madrid becomes harder as time passes, not easier, Franco not only has not made any progress in that direction since February, but the Loyalists demonstrated considerable offensive power in July and have retained most of the ground they gained then.

Loyalist morale certainly remains high, and this writer can only repeat what he said nine months ago—that Franco and his Italian allies face the hardest task any army has tackled since the World War ended.

Order Maintained

As far as civilians on the Loyalist side are concerned, there are no signs of cracking up and public order is being maintained even in Catalonia. The Government apparently has postponed its showdown with the Anarchists. The food situation will doubtless again prove difficult this Winter, but certainly not as difficult as last year. Crops have been excellent and transportation is much improved. There is not that degree of tranquility and normalcy which observers on the Rebel side report, but it must be remembered that the Valencia Government represents all those people and parties ranging from Republicans to Anarchists and it cannot assume an iron-handed domination.

From the beginning of the war the Government's strength has been underestimated, and it is being underestimated right now. As a matter of fact, the Loyalists still feel certain they are going to win.

France Restored By Bonnet Decrees

By P. J. PHILIP

N.Y. Times

PARIS, Sept. 4.—Those emergency powers which the French Parliament granted to the Chautemps Cabinet in June after the Senate had refused them to Premier Blum and his Finance Minister, Vincent Auriol, have now expired and from the first of this month the machinery of democratic government in France has begun functioning normally again.

During that time the Cabinet has issued about a hundred different decrees, all aimed at stopping the financial disintegration which was pressing hard on the heels of the Blum Government and at stimulating financial and economic recovery. All these decrees will have to be ratified by Parliament later but that this will be done is certain, for by common consent it is admitted that the Chautemps Cabinet, and especially its Finance Minister, Georges Bonnet have worked well and satisfactorily along the lines set for them by the Senate.

Their instructions, or rather their self-imposed task, was to "take all possible measures aiming at repression of the attacks against the credit of the State, to suppress speculation against the currency, to aim for economic recovery, control prices, secure equilibrium of the budget and the treasury and maintain national defense without control of exchanges and of the gold reserves of the Bank of France."

The Budget Tackled

M. Bonnet's first task was to tackle the budget deficit which for this year threatened to amount to 8,000,000,000 francs. By increasing taxes and adjusting others applicable during the second six months of the year he has, he estimates, reduced that deficit by at least half and assured that next year there will be no deficit at all.

His next task was to secure economy and prevent the overburdened treasury from collapsing under the weight of claims made on it. Without entirely suppressing it, he set limits to the program of public works which had been dictated to the former Government by labor interests and set about establishing strict control of military and other expenditure, put order into the claims of local authorities against the treasury and, by the new railroad convention, has assured the treasury in the future against being raided to make up deficits which were unjustified.

These financial measures were in every case a necessary preliminary to the stimulation of economic recovery, which was the government's third task and to which M. Bonnet as Minister of National Economy as well as Finance has devoted his full attention. It was not any good balancing the budget on paper, he argued, unless the economic life of the country would assure a constant inflow of resources and give business a sense of security.

It is there, perhaps, that M. Bonnet's success has been most marked. During the two months he has been in office the bank rate has been twice reduced in accord with his policy of cheapening money, rentes have advanced by about 25 per cent, gold exports have been checked and there are signs that the gold flow may shortly start in the other direction.

Better Moral Feeling

As a consequence of these measures there has been considerable stiffening of the moral attitude of the country. Help has come from the outside in an enormous influx of foreign visitors and foreign money during these two months, but that windfall was only made possible by the quietening down of the spirit of unrest which marred last Summer. There is hope, too, now that the needed social reforms which M. Blum introduced have been absorbed into the French price structure, and adjustment of the franc to a relatively low level has made it possible for French production costs to keep balanced with world costs, that the vicious circle of higher prices and higher wages can be avoided.

In all that has been done the government has been careful not to use its full powers and not to try to do too much. It has intervened only where and when necessary and it is perhaps the most hopeful sign of its success that not only has it secured the full adherence of the Socialist members of the Cabinet but it has not aroused any violent opposition among the labor syndicates while it has undoubtedly given new assurance to capital and above all to industry.

Change Predicted In War Secretary

By CHARLES McLEAN

N. Y. Times

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—Well-informed persons who have taken cognizance of rumors that Secretary Woodring would relinquish control of the War Department to accept a post outside the United States, predicted today that these shifts would be made during the next few months:

Paul V. McNutt, High Commissioner to the Philippine Islands, will resign that position and return early next Spring to take the presidency of Indiana University.

Mr. Woodring will be named by President Roosevelt for the Philippine vacancy, else accept nomination for a diplomatic position in one of the American Embassies or Consulates, if Mr. Roosevelt decides to transfer a prominent diplomat to the Philippine post.

Louis A. Johnson, Assistant Secretary of War and former national commander of the American Legion, will be named Secretary of War.

Changes Unlikely Before 1938

These predicted changes are not expected to materialize before January at the earliest. Mr. McNutt, it is said, is to be chosen as president of Indiana University in January, and has informed officials, according to his associates, that he is eager to accept.

One reason for this eagerness is understood to be his desire to take an active part in the Senatorial race which will get under way by that time, as the Indiana Democratic "machine" moves to oppose the reelection of Senator Van Nuys. Mr. McNutt and Governor Townsend will have a large part in the selection of the candidate to oppose Senator Van Nuys.

It is also reported that Mr. McNutt, a former Governor of Indiana and also a past national commander of the American Legion, will himself be an active candidate for the Presidential nomination in 1940, and so would rather be back in the United States than in his present isolated position.

Leaders of the American Legion, which has been influential in the selection of War Department officers on many occasions since the World War, are known to have been dissatisfied with the choices for leadership of that department since the selection of Secretary Dern and Assistant Secretary Woodring in 1933.

J. M. Johnson Favored by Legion

At the time Mr. Roosevelt was selecting his Cabinet, Legion heads urged that J. Monroe Johnson of South Carolina be named Secretary. Mr. Dern was chosen by the President, however, and the story goes that the position of Assistant Secretary was indirectly offered to Mr. Johnson. Mr. Johnson never learned of the offer until after a prominent Senator, acting without authority from Mr. Johnson, declined it for him, it is said.

J. Monroe Johnson was later appointed Assistant Secretary of Commerce and is in charge of the Bureau of Air Commerce. He is a close friend of Louis Johnson and, in the event the latter is made Secretary of War, the South Carolinian is said by associates to be willing to transfer to the War Department as assistant.

After Secretay Dern died on August 28, 1936, Mr. Woodring became acting secretary. The law requires that the position be filled within thirty days, and on Sept. 25, from Hyde Park, President Roosevelt named Mr. Woodring Secretary.

He qualified the nomination, however, by saying that the selection was temporary, pointing out the legal requirement for filling the position.

Woodring's Elevation Urged

Friends of Mr. Woodring, it is known, informed Mr. Roosevelt that it was "not fair" to Mr. Woodring to continue as "temporary" Secretary, and on April 27 the President sent the nomination of Mr. Woodring to be Secretary of War to the Senate. He was confirmed on May 6.

After the death of Mr. Dern, Mr. McNutt, Louis Johnson and Ray Murphy, and other former national commanders of the Legion engaged in a campaign for the vacancy. They did not believe that Mr. Woodring would be elevated, it was reported. Mr. Johnson held out against accepting the Assistant Secretaryship but Messrs. McNutt and Murphy were reported willing to accept the "second" job.

Presidential advisers, it is known, finally agreed to recommend Mr. McNutt for the Philippine post, and Louis Johnson became Assistant Secretary of War.

It was known to Mr. Johnson's intimates and political advisers at the time, it is learned, that he accepted the position with an "understanding" that he would not remain for long in the secondary office.

"BELIEVE IT OR NOT"---by Ripley

The Merchant In Human Flesh

Landgrave Friedrich II of Hesse Cassel, (1720-1785), sold about 17,000 of his subjects to King George III of England for the purpose of putting down the Revolution of the 12 colonies in 1776. He received $51.15 per head. These sold souls were the famous "Hessians" of the American Revolutionary War.

The Landgrave received another $51.15 for every Hessian who died in action, while three wounded men counted as one dead. The Landgrave was annoyed over the fact that "his country's children," as he called them, did not die often enough to make it financially profitable for him.

The ruler, who had 113 illegitimate children of his own never saw his offspring for 39 years. He left a cash fortune equalling $60,000,000 in purchasing value of today, when he died.

Manxman Church

Iowa County boasts that it has the only Manx built church in America—The Laxey Church—built by settlers from the Isle of Man almost a century ago. Residents of the Isle of Man are known as "Manxmen." The small old church has been used for generations as a place of worship for the Manxmen and their descendants in Iowa County, and plans are now being formed to make it a show place of the locality, in memory of the hardy Manx emigrants who settled there.

Girls Encourage Red Troops On Shansi Front

By The Domei Tsushin Sha

YUANPINGCHEN, Oct. 20—Some 200 girls with bobbed hair were seen encouraging the Chinese Communist troops on the first lines of the Shansi front near Sinkowchen, some 90 kilometers north of Taiyuan.

While actively participating in the front-line operations, the "Red Girl Troops" are also said to be playing a highly effective role in encouraging the men soldiers to charge at the enemy front.

The Chinese forces including the Shansi Provincial army and the Communist troops have, however, started to retreat from the fortifications in Sinkowchen in the face of the violent pressure exerted by the Japanese forces from the north.

Smithsonian Institution

is so convincingly dark and deep that a woman who dropped her hat in the hole did not trouble the guard to retrieve it, though, in fact, it lay only two feet below the floor level.

All the exhibits, however, are but a tiny fraction of the enormous collections of objects, ranging from prehistoric skulls to wild flower sketches, connected with all branches of the natural sciences and most of the arts. The National Herbarium, for example, contains hundreds of thousands of pressed specimens of grasses, herbs, ferns and other plants. Such collections, running into many millions of specimens altogether, fill the laboratories and offices behind the scenes, where really the greater part of the Smithsonian Institution's work is done.

For the Smithsonian is very much more than a museum or a group of museums; it is an institution for the discovery and diffusion of learning. It has staffs of expert researchers and experimenters continually at work to extend the boundaries of knowledge about the material universe and corps of librarians and clerical workers exchanging this information with people all over the world.

The first secretary or administrator of the institution, Joseph Henry, discovered the law of electomagnetic induction which is involved in almost all electical invention.

Samuel P. Langley, the third secretary, was an astronomer and a student especially of heat radiation from the sun, but is more widely known for his important researches in aeronautics.

In recent years, under the directorship of the present secretary Dr. C. G. Abbot, the institution has carried along studies in which Dr. Langley was interested as to variations in solar temperatures and their possible effect on the weather. Each day pairs of observers at stations in Chile, in California, and in South-West Africa, take observations as to the heat of the sun. Then, by intricate computations, they calculate the temperature just outside the blanket of the earth's atmosphere. This "solar constant," rising and falling as has been found in a sunspot cycle of 25 2/3 months, may furnish a basis eventually for long-distance weather forecasting.

Another field of research is the preservation of American Indian lore, which had its beginnings with Maj. John Wesley Powell, who shortly after the Civil war led a party of six men in two boats down the Colorado River through the terrific rapids of the Grand Canyon. It has proceeded through classification of the many tribes to the printing of numerous legends in phonetic equivalents of the original languages and to the phonographic recording of Indian songs on the reservations.

All these and other researches led to the publication of the Smithsonian Reports, the Smithsonian Miscellaneous Collections, Bulletins and Proceedings of the National Museum and Bulletins of the Bureau of American Ethnology, which record the results of many kinds of researches into new fields of knowledge or preserve compilations of reference material.

In addition to this, the Smithsonian staff answers an average of 8000 letters a year from persons mostly seeking information on various subjects. Included are some contributing a useful observation or specimen and a number of "cranks." Most ask a specific question, which may take a few minutes or several hours of investigation to answer. One of the broadest requests received read:

"Dear Sirs:

"Will you please tell me how I can get the publications published by you on the following subjects: Geology, biology, botany, National Museum, American Ethnology, Indians, International Exchanges, National Zoological Park, Astrophysical Observatory and any other interesting subjects."

To have filled the order completely would have involved shifting several thousand volumes and pamphlets.

Eggs From China

egg yolk, and 59.5 cents per pound on dried albumen to equalize the cost of production in the United States. The present tariff rate on imports is shown at 27 cents per pound for dried egg products, 10 cents per dozen on shell eggs, and 11 cents a pound on frozen eggs.

A study of the standards of living and cost of egg production in China reveals that it is profitable for China to sell eggs in the United States at a price averaging from $1 to $2 per case of 30 dozen, while domestic eggs must bring a minimum of at least $4.50 per case to show a fair profit to the producer and maintain the quality of eggs produced in the United States, where fowls are groomed and cared for in the highest approved methods and where culture insures a certain weight of shell and color of yolk demanded to meet the epicurean taste, it is claimed.

The imported products which come in as dried and frozen eggs are said to be hidden in confections, baked goods, ice-cream and prepared flours, and the manufacturers who use them are low bidders for fresh domestic eggs at a higher price.

Socialists Seek Communist Allies In French Party

Christian Science Monitor

PARIS.—Strenuous efforts are being made by the Communists and a section of the Socialists to form a single party in France. If they should succeed, which is by no means certain, they will only be reverting to the position which existed after the World War, and which was broken by the scission at the famous Congress of Tours.

When the Communists then joined the Third Internationale, it was the Socialists who appeared to be dissidents; for the Communists, in a majority, took possession of the party organ L'Humanite, founded by Jean Jaures, and the whole of the political machinery.

Indeed, the Socialists, led by Leon Blum, were then regarded as mere opportunists, who had abandoned their revolutionary purpose. They had few followers and not even a successful newspaper. Little by little, however, by becoming a "respectable" party, they gained ground in the country, until they became more numerous than the Communists. In 1935 they won seats in the election, and came back as a compact party. In 1936 they returned the largest number of deputies at the polls, and with the Radicals formed a Front Populaire Government.

Impossible Situation

They were, nevertheless, in an impossible situation, for on their Right were the Radicals, who are an orthodox bourgeois party; and on their Left the Communists, on whose support, though no Communist consented to accept the responsibility of Ministerial office, they were absolutely dependent. They managed to frighten the French people, and therefore to bring about a financial collapse, without really doing more than effect a few reforms which any party might have effected in more favorable circumstances.

But though they did not even begin to put Socialist doctrines into practice their leadership of the Government made it impossible for them to suppress the Communist agitation which was conducted among the workers. The totally unnecessary strikes, sometimes accompanied by violence, were not declared for technical but for revolutionary reasons. The Government, in a dilemma, saw itself doomed to speedy failure or proletarian hostility. If it did not stop illegalities, France would be industrially and financially brought to the verge of bankruptcy. If it did, it would be denounced as the enemy of the workers by the holder Communists.

Communist Strategy

Now that the first Front Populaire experiment has been wrecked on the rock of finance, the tactics of the Communists are clear. They decline all responsibility for the "mismanagement" of the Socialists. They declare that the result is due to Socialist timidity, and would have been different if "structural reforms" had been attempted. They offer the Socialists an opportunity to make this thesis their own, to confess their mistakes, and to join the Communists in one large organization which will make a more determined attempt later on.

And the Socialists are inclined to believe that these are the right tactics to maintain the confidence and enthusiasm of their followers. Obviously, the Radicals, would then separate from them, and join up with the Moderates.

The two leaders of the Communist Party, Jacques Duclos and Maurice Thorez, both demand the "parti proletarien unique." They are extremely pressing and negotiations have been actively pursued.

Sale Prices

"Business is so quiet that we had better have a special sale," said the shoe merchant.

"All right," said the store manager, "what shall it be?"

"Well," said the boss, "take that line of $5 shoes and mark them down from $10 to $8.50."—Atlanta Two Bells.

Third Generation Rules Mellon Clan

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 3—Within the financial and industrial empire of the Mellons of Pittsburgh the occupant of one office carries the weight and authority of the head of the family and of the business. This is the presidency of the Mellon National Bank, key institution in the group.

The present occupant of this position, Richard King Mellon, will be no different in this respect from his three predecessors, his grandfather, Judge Thomas Mellon; his lately deceased uncle, Andrew W. Mellon, and his own father, Richard Beatty Mellon.

During the public career of Andrew W. Mellon as Secretary of the Treasury and Ambassador to London this rule was, by public acceptance, somewhat in abeyance. It was generally considered that where Andrew W. Mellon sat, there, for practical purposes, was the head of the Mellon table. Now the older tradition again obtains.

Counsel of Cousin

Of the third generation which held to the banking field as its first interest, Richard King Mellon is the oldest member. At 33 he becomes chief of the clan. As a mark of his popularity throughout Pittsburgh, the name "Young Dick," which was started to distinguish him from his father, has not been lost. In his responsibilities he will receive the counsel of his first cousin, Paul Mellon, eight years younger, the son of Andrew W. Mellon.

For some years before the death of his father in 1934, the present head of the bank was placed more and more in posts of importance. In this way he received invaluable training for the future now arrived.

His first work was as a messenger in the bank, a post which he took after leaving Princeton. He advanced successively through the grades until he was made assistant cashier in 1924. He became a vice president and director in 1929, succeeding to the presidency on the death of his father.

During these years he was receiving introductions to the boards of some of the great corporations of the country. Thus, he was trained while his elders still were in command.

The directorships he now holds, by a recent compilation, number thirty-four, among them many of the nation's greatest corporations.

In the public interest, Mr. Mellon serves as a trustee of the Carnegie Institue of Pittsburgh, under which are the Carnegie Museum, the art galleries, the technical schools, the library and other branches. He is in the same capacity for the Mellon Institute, the great Pittsburgh foundation established by his uncle and father as an aid to industrial research. He also has a special interest in the Carnegie Hero Fund, the meetings of which he attends whenever possible. He is also a trustee of the University of Pittsburgh, of which his uncle was a graduate.

All appeals for funds to carry on community philanthropies receive his support, as they have that of his family through the years. He serves as treasurer of the Tuberculosis League. He is a member of the East Liberty Presbyterian Church.

New World Swim Record

By The Domei Tsushin Sha

LONDON, Sept. 25—A new world record for the 150 yards backstroke was set up here today by Miss Ragnhild Hveger, of Denmark, who covered the distance in 1 min. 49 4-5 seconds.

The new time is one full second better than the old figure of 1 min. 50 8-10 seconds established by Miss Alice Bridge of America.

"BELIEVE IT OR NOT"---by Ripley

A Bootful of Wine

At a banquet in honor of the new crop of Mosel wine, the Lord of Ehrenbreitstein offered the estate of Bockelheim to any among his guests who could empty a particularly large riding boot full of wine in a single draft. Looking around among his terrified guests, the Lord noticed that Bos of Waldeck, one of the invited was missing. He was sent for immediately, and when he arrived, accepted the challenge and emptied the riding boot full of wine in a single breath. The estate was awarded to him.

When Bos was asked where he had been, he confessed he had gone outside to practice. During this practice, he admitted, he had emptied first one and then the other of his own riding boots filled with wine in a single draft by way of rehearsal.

Losing No Time

The hardware dealer's daughter threw her arms around the neck of the bridegroom-to-be.

"Oh, Walter," she said, "dad's going to give us a check for a present!"

"Good!" said Walter, "then we'll have the wedding at noon instead of 2 o'clock!"

"But, why dear?"

"The banks close at 3!"—Good Hardware.

Bouldin Becomes New Pastor Of Yokohama Church

The Rev. G. W. Bouldin, D.D., former missionary in Japan, has notified the Yokohama Union Church that he has accepted their call to become pastor of the church from January 1, 1938. The church voted to call him at a meeting several weeks ago, and the radio message was received yesterday by the Rev. H. V. E. Stegeman, D.D. church clerk. Dr. Bouldin succeeds the Rev. Harold W. Schenck, who recently resigned to accept the pastorate of the Dutch Reformed Church in Upper Montclair, New Jersey.

Dr. and Mrs. Bouldin came to Japan in 1906 as missionaries of the Southern Baptist Mission. For some years he was at the head of their school, Seinan Gakuin, in Fukuoka, and Mrs. Bouldin has served as head of their girls' school, Seinan Jokakuin, in Kokura. After resigning from the mission several years ago, they settled in their home in Gotemba, where they have long been prominent in the Ninooka summer community, and established an independent missionary work, of which a prominent feature was a food producers' cooperative. Dr. Bouldin also has served on the staff of the theological seminary formerly conducted by the northern and southern Baptists together in Tokyo, and more recently taught in Kanto Gakuin, Yokohama, as well as in other schools in the vicinity. Mrs. Bouldin at one time assisted at Soshin Jogakko in Yokohama.

The new pastor will be welcomed back to the community as a real asset to its cultural life. He is well-known as an accomplished Greek and Japanese scholar and student of Buddhism. He has been prominent in the united meetings held by various missions in Japan from time to time, and has been very highly respected.

In 1935 the Bouldins returned to the United States, where they have been active in church work in Alabama and Tenessee. Dr. Bouldin was pastor of two churches in Tenessee when he accepted the call to the Yokohama church.

Morning Post Ends 165-Year Career

N. Y. Times

LONDON, Sept. 30—With today's issue The Morning Post went out of existence after 165 years of continuous publication. "The empire's senior daily" has been absorbed by its more successful rival, The Daily Telegraph, after living through eight reigns and two World Wars.

It had kept its high standards but its circulation had dwindled to 100,000. Its financial loss in the past year was more than £40,000. Its doom became almost inevitable when The Daily Telegraph's owner, Lord Camrose, purchased it last July.

There were some hopes during the Summer that The Morning Post might change its name and reappear as an evening paper of a type that London sorely needs. Lord Camrose finally decided not to make the experiment.

The illusion of The Morning Post's survival will be maintained by the title of the combined newspaper "The Daily Telegraph and Morning Post," which will appear for the first time tomorrow. But to every newspaper man and every reader the old Morning Post was dead and would become nothing but a memory.

Scores of its employes were out of work although nearly half of its editorial staff, according to a statement by Lord Camrose, has been "invited" to join The Daily Telegraph. Among those re-employed are understood to be some of The Morning Post's most gifted foreign correspondents and editorial writers.

The Morning Post first appeared when George III was on the throne, but its great age was not its only distinction. Even in its declining days newspaper men generally regarded it as one of the most honest British dailies and one of the best written, even in the defense of lost causes.

It was the favorite of aristocrats and army colonels, but it was respected by thousands of others who had no patience with its diehard conservative views. Its editorials were usually free from the hypocrisy which afflicts some of its contemporaries and its news columns were clean and fair to the end.

"For a long time the Morning Post has fought a losing battle," wrote H. A. Gwynne, its editor for twenty-six years, in a valedictory published this morning. "In the fierce stress of present-day competition new readers have been difficult to get and advertising revenue has suffered accordingly. The high costs of production which a London daily newspaper must face today militate heavily against an organ whose appeal is necessarily a limited one."

There were no emotional good-byes when the staff went home. If the old Morning Post had any feelings about its death it was repressing them as a good army colonel should.

U.S. Asks For Bids

An official of the line said last night that all proposals calling for her return to service had been found unsatisfactory and that scrapping was considered the only feasible step. In the present scrap iron market the ship should bring between $1,250,000 and $2,000,000, he said.

The Leviathan was launched in Hamburg, Germany, by the Hamburg American Line, on April 3, 1913. She was named the Vaterland. With a length of 907 feet 6 inches and 54,500 gross tons she was then the world's largest liner. This distinction remained hers for only a few months, however, as the same line launched the 56,599-ton liner Bismarck, late renamed the Majestic, in June of the same year.

With the outbreak of the World War and the declaration of the Allied blockade, the American Government interned the Vaterlaand at Hoboken and there she remained until the United States entered the war.

The German crew of the ship remained aboard during her period of internment, and when the entry of the United States appeared certain they did their bit for their homeland by wrecking the ship's engines. The ship was prepared for service, however, and became the most important transport of the American army, carrying nearly 100,000 men, or about one-twentieth of the American Expeditionary Forces, to France.

Ship Idle After War

The Leviathan returned to a Hoboken pier after the war and lay idle until 1921, when the United States Shipping Board had her renovated at a cost of about $8,000,000. She then entered the transatlantic service as a passenger ship, operated by one of the several companies which the government set up in the commercial trade.

The Leviathan had carried nearly 250,000 passengers by 1929, when a group of shipping men headed by Paul W. Chapman bought the Government's line, which included the Leviathan and other tonnage. The company encountered financial difficulties in 1931 and the Government took back the property and transferred it to another group of shipping men, who included the International Mercantile Marine Company, the Dollar shipping interests and Kenneth Dr. Dawson, a Pacific Coast shipping man.

One condition of this sale was that the Leviathan should make seven round trips annually in the transatlantic service. It soon developed that she had lost her prestige, with new ships as competitors, and, after being laid up in 1933 and operated in 1934 at a loss estimated at $500,000, she was again retired, this time permanently.

The Government permitted her owners to retire her on condition that a new ship would be built as a replacement. The liners Manhattan and Washington had meanwhile entered service and proved popular and successful.

The United States Lines decided that a ship somewhat larger than those vessels would be a suitable successor to the Leviathan. The new ship is to be 55 feet longer and 6 feet broader than the Manhattan and Washington and her load draft displacement will exceed their gross tonnage by 9,711.

Mr. Kennedy said the Government had granted to the company a differential subsidy of 33 1-3 per cent of the cost of the new ship. The contract is the first to be awarded by the Maritime Commission under the provisions of the Merchant Marine Act of 1936.

Schacht To Guard Germans' Savings

By OTTO D. TOLISCHUS

N. Y. Times

BERLIN, Sept. 29—A warning against inflation was delivered by Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, still Economic Minister and Reichsbank president, today, in addressing 4,000 leading savings bank directors assembled at Essen for the first conference in four years.

The speech was a precise account of his stewardship in German economic and financial affairs during the last four years. Whether it was also his swan song remains to be seen. The last reports of the battle behind the scenes in the National Socialist regime are that Chancellor Adolf Hitler turned down the "hold for release" draft of the official announcement of Dr. Schacht's resignation as Economic Minister on the ground that nothing had been decided so far.

Dr. Schacht utilized today's occasion not only to defend his own policies and to point out their successes, but also to castigate those of his opponents among the National Socialist "brain trusters" who hold that "labor creates capital" and contend that his demand for a throttling of public expenditures is merely a throwback to "capitalistic and Masonic ideologies."

"Warnings to economize," he said, "are never popular. To spend is pleasanter than to save, and the places to spend money always are more numerous than those which have to provide the money."

Stresses Need for Savings

He emphasized the necessity for saving as the only means of providing capital for the creation and maintenance of the nation's productive machinery; and though he defended his borrowing policy for such extraordinary national efforts as rearmament, because to finance them from taxes alone would crush all individual initiative under their burden, he also turned against inflation advocates.

"There is another recipe," he said. "It is to print bank notes, as many as are needed. Swift price increases would be the result, with wage rises lagging behind. Such 'compulsory saving' we have had before and called it inflation.

"There are actually people in Germany who believe the bank note press has lost its terror because, thanks to foreign exchange control, its consequences cannot be read in the daily dollar quotation. It is difficult to discuss such naivete.

"This much is true: If somebody abstains from building a house, he can use the steel thus saved for casting cannon. But it is impossible to produce one single cannon from bank notes, for bank notes are paper and a cannon consists of steel.

"Furthermore, inflation deprives exchange goods of their calculation basis, and an economy that can no longer calculate but is delivered to accidents must fail. For one will hoard and another will starve and the whole production of goods will be halted, including arms production."

Sees Others Worse Off

He admitted that Germany had gone heavily into debt and that the interest and amortization of that debt would require many efforts. But he denied his policy had already thrown Germany into inflation, pointing out that while Germany's currency circulation increased 10 per cent over 1929, the average increase for Britain and France was 23 per cent and that in the United States was 42 per cent. He pointed out that while in Germany the wholesale price index had risen 2 per cent above last year's figure and the cost of living index had risen 1 per cent, the United States figures were 12 and 5 per cent respectively, and Britain's 19 and 4 per cent.

It must be assumed, however, that Dr. Schacht chuckled inwardly when citing these figures, for he did not take into consideration the devaluation of currencies and did not mention the fact that the German cost of living index was a purely artificial "workers' index" based on fixed paper prices for cheap and steadily deteriorating goods.

Nevertheless he insisted the debt was not excessive so far because, despite all the differences in national wealth, Germany's per capita debt still was lower than those of the United States and Britain.

Soviet Purge Takes 15 More Victims

MOSCOW, Oct. 24—Purge activities in the Soviet Union were still in progress today as tribunals in the Russky district and Tadjikistan reportedly sentenced fifteen to die on charges of sabotage.

Eight were meted out the death penalty in the Russky district, near Moscow, after the court found them guilty of damaging livestock on collective breeding farms as part of the Trotzkyist "wrecking" program. The remaining seven were charged with spoiling grain stores in the Tadjikistan area.

Buried in His 1,000th Grave

Joseph Stoklas was the official grave-digger of the little village of Heilgenblut, Jugoslavia, and he had looked forward with pride to digging his 1,000th grave. Three months ago, at the age of 77, Joseph's 999th grave was filled, and in keeping with the local custom of having one grave always in readiness, he immediately went to work on the next one. It was the day he had looked forward to for many years, never suspecting that he was actually digging his own grave, for as he threw the last spade-full of earth from the grave, Joseph dropped dead of apoplexy.

Egypt Achieving Self-Sufficiency, British Report

Christian Science Monitor

CAIRO.—Now almost entirely self-sufficing in matters of food, and soon to be so in regard to clothes, Egypt is gaining rapidly in economic strength.

This fact is revealed in a survey of present Egyptian conditions made for the Overseas Trade Department, London, by the Commercial Counsellor to the British Embassy here.

Factors in Egyptian economic stability outlined in the report include the increased industrialization of the country, the "excellent financial conditions," the recovery of foreign trade and the upward trend of cotton prices, the growing national thrift, and the improving condition of agriculture.

The last two years have seen the ever increasing importance of the Ministry of Commerce and Industry, founded in December, 1934, on account, the survey says, of widening industrial activities, increased need for labor laws, and expanding tourism. Measures tackled by the Ministry recently include reorganization of chambers of commerce, of working conditions and of trade unions.

The growing sense of thrift among small savers is held to be shown by statistics for the Post Office Savings Banks, where the number of current accounts rose from 200,000 in 1930 to 350,000 in 1936, and the balance to the credit of depositors increased during the same period by nearly four times.

New Iron Process To Aid Reich Army

By OTTO D. TOLISCHUS

N. Y. Times

BERLIN, Oct. 1—A new process of smelting low-grade iron ores, invented by two Germans but first successfully applied by an American in England, is now being developed here on a large scale to provide the German Army with its iron and steel in case of a future war and a new blockade.

The new process, for which worldwide patents are just becoming effective, is also the secret behind the Hermann Goering Reich Stock Company for Ore Mining and Iron Smelting, created by Colonel General Goering as an important part of the Four-Year Plan for raw material independence, which in turn is an essential part of the "Wehrwirtscraft" or military economy dominating German business today.

The formation of this company in competition with a large part of the private German steel industry undoubtedly is a further advance of the State in the field of private business and therewith a further step toward State capitalism.

Not Move for Nationalization

But contrary to the general interpretation, the Goering Company, which is developing into a mixed holding company under State leadersh'p but with private partners, is not supposed to nationalize the German steel industry or monopolize German iron one production.

It is to assure the German Army of a supply of steel in case of war by developing low-grade iron ore deposits, of which Germany has a considerable supply but to exp'oit which has proved too expensive heretofore.

With the aid of these ores Germany proposes to wipe out a good part of the handicap imposed by the Treaty of Versailles, which deprived her of 80 per cent of her rich iron ore deposits in Lorraine. She cannot hope to attain complete self-sufficiency, but she proposes nevertheless to raise the share of domestic iron in her total consumption from its present 16 per cent to at least 50.

Previous attempts to exploit low-grade ores by other processes raised the cost of smelting them to four times the cost of smelting high-grade imported ore.

Now the military is primarily concerned with the "strategy of raw materials" rather than with cost, and in a recent speech General Goering admitted that importing iron would be cheaper. But the heads of the Goering works are confident that once the'r plants get going—which will be in about two and one half years—they will be able to compete even in point of cost.

Inventors of the Process

That is where the new process comes in. It was invented by Dr. Max Paschke, Professor of Iron Smelting in the Mining Academy at Clausthal in Harz, with his co-worker, Dr. Eugen Peetz, and is known as the Paschke-Peetz acid-smelt'ng process.

The first to make this process a success practically was Hermann Alexander Brassert, an American citizen born in England of a well-known German mining family and who has made a name for himself in the American steel industry.

On the basis of this process he erected the big steel works at Corby, England, which, like the first Thomas steel plant in Britain, had to be built by a German concern with German workmen.

It has proved so successful in exploiting low-grade local Northamptonshire ores containing around only 30 per cent iron and high in sulphur, alumina, and other impurities that he has been entrusted with the construction of a second Thomas plant in South Wales, in addition to others in Turkey and India.

It was this success that prompted General Goering to entrust Brassert with the construction of the new iron smelting and steel plants of the Hermann Goering works.

Basis of This Success

This success, as Mr. Brassert explained to the correspondent today, rests on the fact that the new process produces a higher grade of steel at lower cost.

"At Corby we produce a pig iron of entirely different analysis than was formerly required and specified for the basic bessemer process, and a steel with properties impossible to attain through the latter process," he said. "This steel is therefore used in the production of both welded and seamless tubes of the highest quality.

"Furthermore, the economics of this process is exceedingly favorable as a large saving of fuel is involved and it enables 100 per cent of these cheap ores to be converted into steel on the spot, saving all the cost of transport."

The same principle, Mr. Brassert continued, will be applied to the large iron and steel works he is building for the Goering company on low-grade North German ore deposits.

This plant will be located in the Salzgitter district between Goslar and Brunswick and will consist at first of eight blast furnaces with coke ovens, steel works and rolling mills located on a main canal system affording water transportation for coal and the finished product.

According to officials of the Goering company, this plant is expected to produce approximately 1,000,000 tons of crude steel beginning about 1940, but additional plants will be built on dogger-ore deposits in South Germany, Baden and Upper Franconia. The latter ores, according to Mr. Brassert, are of a different nature from the North German ores and will require different methods.

In the twelve months between July, 1936, and June, 1937, Germany produced a record total of 19,415,000 tons of crude steel, almost half of which was reclaimed from scrap.

Fugitive Criminals Face Worldwide Net

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28.—The day is gone when escape to another country means immunity for criminals, J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, said yesterday.

Fugitives from justice now face a closely knit international "alliance" of 81 countries, including six possessions of the United States, he said. These countries exchange fingerprints and "wanted" circulars through which many criminals are brought to justice after eluding arrest for many years.

Closer cooperation between nations in exchanging information will be discussed by Deputy Commissioner S. T. Wood of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police here this week at the annual convention of the International Association for Identification.

Delegates also will hear a message from President Roosevelt and addresses by Attorney General Homer S. Cummings, Mr. Hoover, police officials and criminologists.

Sweden Plans To Spend $45,000,000 On Navy

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 2.—Plans for a bigger navy, which will be suggested to Parliament next year, include three cruisers, four torpedo boats, three coast defense ships, twelve motor torpedo boats and one convoy for submarines.

This program is expected to increase naval expenditures by $9,000,000 for each of the next five years. Two separate fleets are contemplated, one for the Baltic and the other for the west coast.

Recognition that Sweden is within reach of modern air fleets has led, meanwhile, to extensive air raid exercises.

Franc Drops To Low

high and low prices permitted by law.

The French stabilization fund exhausted itself in trying to hold the franc within that range, whereupon Premier Blum retired in favor of Premier Chautemps in June. The first act of Finance Minister Bonnet was to permit the franc to recede to .0384, the legal limits of fluctuation having been abolished. It was felt that the means could at least be found to hold the franc around .0384, were it was 2 per cent under the pre-depression parity.

But even that lower figure proved untenable, and now the franc has fallen a few points more than 1 cent since M. Bonnet took office. The franc currently is 50 per cent under its parity prior to the tripartite agreement of last year, and nearly 30 per cent under the level at which it was maintained immediately after the agreement was reached.

War Threat Factor

The immediate source of the latest phase of weakness in the franc was the threat of war in the Mediterranean early last month when Soviet Russia and Italy were exchanging acrimonious notes. The danger of a Mediterranean war appeared to die down after the Nyon agreement, but the weakness in the franc remained. The important factor in the franc's decline then became the widespread of less interest to Washington than the advancement of the latter's long-range policy of promoting world harmony by improving world trade.

From the standpoint of downright realism it is probable that the pre-election campaign inaugurated by Premier Joseph Lyons of Australia in that commonwealth last week has as much to do with the prospect of a reciprocal trade agreements as the several declarations which Foreign Ministry Anthony Eden made at Geneva a few days previously. On the face of things, there has been no material change in the situation of the exploratory negotiations going on between Washington and London, and until the several British dominions concerned in imperial preference have had an opportunity to sound out their own people and bring the latter around to a favorable view of the matter little in the way of practical results can be expected.

This, however, is not to underrate the importance of the Eden declarations. The latter plainly indicate that the British government has been brought around to the methods and discouragement over the outlook for French fiscal and economic recovery.

Foreign exchange circles have been greatly disappointed over the showing which the Chautemps Cabinet has made in curing the ills of the French economy. Severer measures were needed, it was felt, than M. Chautemps and M. Bonnet had been able to produce. The market was unable to derive much cheer from the inquiry which the Cabinet conducted into ways and means of increasing industrial production. French refugee capital has not seen any good reason why it should give up its foreign retreats and return home, and until repatriation of French capital does take place the franc, it is held here, must continue shaky. The market was unimpressed by the Ministerial declaration yesterday that the French financial situation was sound and the recent selling of the franc unjustified.

The sore plight of the franc made for a continuation of the hoarders' demand for gold in the London open market. The premium of the London gold price—a new high on the movement at price fixing time—and local banks were not in a position to bid for any of the $3,500,000 of gold on offer there for resale here.

Though spot francs were breaking badly, future francs showed some improvement in yesterday's dealings. The ninety day franc rallied to a discount of 19 points from one of 29 points on Friday. Futures quotations are nominal, however, for the French government has asked the Paris market to refrain from dealing in future francs.

The rest of the European list of currencies showed no significant changes yesterday. Sterling was 1-16 cent higher, while belgas rose ½ point and Swiss francs ¼ point. Guilders eased off ½ point to .5529½.

Mexico Is Divided On Social Policies

By FRANK L. KLUCKHOHN

N. Y. Times

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 25.—Recent developments indicate that the prime question in Mexico now is whether the regime of President Lazaro Cardenas can support the economic costs of its social revolution at the present advanced tempo.

A peaceful struggle has developed between revolutionary elements in the Government seeking to restrict the revolution to fewer fronts for practical reasons, and a rather emotional, strongly nationalist group which of late has succeeded in carrying the President along an increasingly extreme course. The battle at present appears to be one over tactics among loyal "revolutionaries," rather than one between conservatives and radicals.

Taking the lead in counseling the President to discontinue the current attack on foreign industry in order to assure financing for the key agrarian program is Francisco Castillo Najera, Mexican Ambassador to Washington. Backing him is Finance Secretary Eduardo Sarez.

Chief of what might be called the "Little Mexico," or strongly nationalist, group is Secretary of Communications Francisco Mujica. Ramon Beteta, the Under-Secretary of Foreign Affairs, is listed in this bloc which advocates continuance of the campaign to eliminate foreign capital in Mexico, whatever the cost.

The Shortage of Funds

Those seeking to confine the Government's primary activities to the land-division program point to a shortage of funds for current official expenses which has led to economies in almost every government department.

The Government's difficulties in obtaining funds even for the agrarian plan have become increasingly apparent for several months. The fact that the Government this week was unable to accede to the request of Washington that a 3 per cent surtax on Mexican imports be suspended, indicates how urgently the Administration needs cash. The statement of the Bank of Mexico shows that henceforth the Mexican revolution must live on what it takes in from month to month, if it is not to face inflation.

It seems to be the view of the group urging restriction of official moves that if Mexico can solve its agrarian program by placing farmers on communal lands under proper supervision, it can then take up the question of how foreign capital in Mexico should be regulated and what steps should be taken on the industrial and commercial "revolutionary" fronts.

Some of the minor figures in this group put it as follows: Despite frequent efforts for twenty-six years, Mexico has done little to solve the agrarian problem, and this current drive must succeed. If the land program is not properly financed by the Cardenas Government, which is tackling the problem on a nationwide scale, a collapse is likely to occur. This group apparently fears that either a financial collapse or inflation would aid those elements opposed to the Cardenas Government.

The Opposing View

The opposing bloc apparently holds that if Mexico is for Mexicans, as the Constitution of 1917 and the current Six-Year Plan assert, the drive to "Mexicanize" industry, both by squeezing foreign enterprises and by a tariff policy designed to offer absolute protection to local industries, must go on.

These officials take the view, as far as one can judge from their talk, that the current trade boom can be forced to provide for official financing. Their nationalist stand undoubtedly has a considerable public appeal.

This group has been encouraged by the fact that United States mineral purchases—chiefly of gold and silver—have pushed the prices of Mexico's chief export to extremely high levels. The fact that the world is paying high prices for petroleum, Mexico's second most important product, has also helped their campaign. And the fact that the United States has a President who does not want to meddle in Mexican affairs has been a factor not to be ignored.

Results of the "Little Mexico" policy, however, as far as an impartial observer can see, have been far from satisfactory. Official finances have been strained without favorable results and the United States policy toward Mexico has begun to stiffen. This change has come, perhaps, as much from fear of what a financial collapse in Mexico would mean as from concern over threats to United States commercial interest here.

"Go Slow" Arguments

On the other hand, the officials urging a slow-down of tempo can point out that until the nationalist industrial and commercial campaign was undertaken the Mexican land division program was advancing steadily, and with objection from only a minority group. Internal production, as well as trade, was booming, and government funds were available for schools, roads, irrigation dams and other productive undertakings. Mexico's foreign relations were the best in many decades.

Faced by the present poor financial situation and counseled by each of these two groups to adopt its views, President Cardenas must soon make a major decision. Much depends on how the petroleum problem, with all its ramifications, is settled in the near future, since it is the oil industry that has been chiefly under attack.

Mexico is the sixth best customer of the United States, and here are United States investments far greater than those in China. The decision of President Cardenas, therefore, cannot fail to be of prime importance north of the Rio Grande.

Rescued From Air By Priest's Shots

N.Y. Times

OLD ORCHARD, Me., Sept. 28—A newsreel photographer, here to take pictures in the air, was shot down to safety today by a marksman priest after a cluster of thirty balloons had carried the cameraman on an unscheduled and unwanted flight of thirteen miles, at altitudes ranging to 2,000 feet, over an alarmed countryside.

The cameraman, Al Mingalone of Pelham Manor, N.Y., was uninjured, despite a jarring landing in a cornfield but his clothing was drenched by a rainstorm that caught him as he dangled in mid-air. He was brought to earth by the Rev. James J. Mullen, pastor of St. Margaret's Church of Old Orchard, an expert marksman, who punctured several of the balloons with rifle bullets, thus reducing their lifting power.

Carried Aloft by Balloons

The thrilling flight began at the Old Orchard Country Club, where Mingalone and other Paramount News photographers have been taking pictures in the air while hopping over automobiles, trees and golfers by means of clusters of 4-foot balloons.

Mingalone had been experimenting with his camera and the balloons on the grounds of the country club, a quarter-inch anchor-rope keeping him stationery at an altitude of 40 feet.

"Haul me down," he cried to fellow cameramen on the ground. "We'll have to put on more balloons to keep me up here."

Three bags were filled with lighter-than-air gas and added to the cluster, making thirty in all. Up went the photographer once more. This time the additional lift and a strong northeast wind proved too great a strain on the anchor rope. There was a sharp crack. The anchor rope had snapped. Mingalone soared skyward, the wind blowing him in a southwesterly direction.

Father Mullen, who was among the spectators, and Philip Coolidge of Waltham, Mass., chief of the cameramen, leaped into an automobile and steered for Saco, in which direction the luckless cameraman appeared to be traveling. Coolidge, prepared for just such an emergency, carried a rifle.

Half way to Saco, the automobile pursuers saw Mingalone swaying 600 feet above them. The priest aimed at the balloons and fired two bags.

Simultaneously, a heavy shower broke, adding increasing woe to Mingalone who, by this time, had become entangled in the rope by which he was suspended from the ballons. In his vain effort to get out of the coils, he dropped his camera.

Pursued by Autos

The remaining twenty-eight balloons kept Mingalone aloft and the wind still continued to furnish the motive power, blowing him toward Biddeford. By this time the highway beneath him had become choked with excited motorists.

The camera man was still struggling to free himself from his coils as he passed over Biddeford. For a few minutes he disappeared from sight as trees obscured the view of Father Mullen and Coolidge. While they were trying to pick up his trail, a motorist shouted that he had seen the aeronaut in the southwest. Father Mullen and Coolidge rode back to Alfred and continued the chase.

A few minutes later, the balloonist was sighted over the Goulette farm in North Kennebunkport, only 200 feet up but drifting rapidly.

Father Mullen and Coolidge stopped their machine and ran into a cornfield, where the priest dropped on one knee. One more shot and another balloon in the cluster disappeared. A moment later, Mingalone settled down into the cornstalks.

The rescuers found him drenched and cold, still fighting the line which bound him to the ba' on cluster.

"I'm O.K.," he gasped. "But will you hurry and cut this rope before it cuts me in two?"

Nearly 200 persons cheered when rescued and rescuers returned to the country club.

"I'm glad," said the priest, "I could help you out of the fix. And I'll bet those balloons are now approaching the Pacific Ocean."

Minyalone enjoyed a round of bridge at the country club tonight and announced that he would resume his camera cranking tomorow.

Christine de Pisan, first champion of women's rights (1363-1430), after being widowed in 1389, wrote two poems a day dedicated to the memory of her husband for the remaining 41 years of her life—a total of 30,000 poems. Among the principles she advocated in the 14th century was "give girls equal schooling and an equal chance and they will be the equal of any male."

Candy Sales Blast Idea Of Decline With Repeal

ALBANY, Oct. 3.—The drop in candy sales which confectioners feared would result from the repeal of prohibition has not materialized, the New York State Liquor Authority reported today.

On the contrary, a survey conducted by the Authority reveals that consumption of candy has increased since repeal.

Before the return to legal downing of liquor, candy makers argued against the amendment on the grounds it would prove harmful to their businesses. Drinkers, they mourned, wouldn't eat candy.

The Authority's survey proves, however, that they were wrong.

Mrs. John S. Sheppard, a member of the Authority, contends that sales figures supplied by several prominent candy manufacturers for the years from 1930 to 1936 show conclusively that candy sales, like other "luxury" sales, are governed by general economic conditions rather than by dry or wet laws.

4 Economic Studies Urged For League

N. Y. Times

GENEVA, Sept. 25.—Stanley M. Bruce of Australia proposed today to the Economic Committee of the League of Nations Assembly that the League undertake four inquiries, including among the subjects "hot money" and how to avoid the slump that he fears is coming. The four subjects, as he gave them, are:

1. An inquiry into the methods whereby governments acting either nationally or internationally, could improve standards of living.

2. An inquiry into practical measures which might be employed for prevention or mitigation of depressions.

3. The question of agricultural credit, with special reference to reorientation of agriculture in Central and Eastern Europe.

4. An inquiry into present economic and financial tendencies likely to influence monetary systems in the future.

Under the last heading, Mr. Bruce said, reference was made especially to "problems raised by the movements of short-term capital, by transfers of capital due to the purchase securities on foreign markets for speculation purposes" and by the gold question.

Mr. Bruce would have the League's Financial Committee "examine the effect of any fall in the gold price." He added that "it would have a disastrous effect on commodity prices, but this might be only temporary and subsequent recovery might occur."

He asked that the Financial Committee make some pronouncement on the subject or "suggest some form of investigation that might contribute toward a steadying position." In the same inquiry he would include a study of equalization funds.

In regard to the inquiry on preventing a slump, Mr. Bruce explained that he did not mean a study of the whole question of economic cycles, but merely the collection of the information on what certain countries had done and were doing. He stressed public works as a means of forestalling a depression.

Arguing for the inquiry on means of improving living standards, he pointed to United States economic policy as being "wholly directed to the increase of wages." He held that this increase would be easier if it were undertaken simultaneously by other countries.

Film Trust Inquiry On In Los Angeles

LOS ANGELES—Investigation of charges by independent theater operators that film distributors as subsidiaries of major studios have violated anti-trust acts has begun here under the direction of Albert J. Law and Harold F. Collins, special assistants to the United States Attorney General.

"It is either a case for the Federal Grand Jury or the distributors and larger operators should be given a clean bill of health," explained Mr. Law, who said that the work should be ready for report by Jan. 1.

"The investigation is of film distribution in southern California, but there will be sweeping implications in our findings."

The independent operators complain that they have been unable to obtain first-run films as the result of asserted zoning and clearance regulations amounting to discrimination.

Quezon Bases Attack on Court On Roosevelt's

N. Y. Herald Tribune

MANILA, P. I., Oct. 2.—President Manuel Quezon tonight claimed the "right and duty" to arraign the Philippine judiciary at the bar of "public opinion," and credited President Roosevelt with creating in a similar manner a "wholesome effect" on United States courts.

Mr. Quezon asserted it was his official duty to criticize the courts "whenever, in my opinion, a denunciation of a wrongful act, even though it was performed in good faith, would be in the public interest."

Addressing the faculty and students of Santo Tomas University, Mr. Quezon pointed out that his oath of office required him to "do justice to every man."

"Justice shall be done to the poor and humble of this country," he said, "as long as I am President. I am determined to fight for the rights of everybody, rich and poor alike, but more particularly for those who have no money with which to pay expensive lawyers."

He cited various authorities on public criticism of court decisions, including former President Taft and President Roosevelt's "horse-and-buggy" statement concerning Supreme Court rulings on New Deal legislation.

Mr. Quezon said that, because of Mr. Roosevelt's "forceful and unwavering attacks, which in time gained the support of a large sector of the American press, the Supreme Court of the United States was forced to revise its views on these social questions until finally, when the controversy on the proposed Supreme Court reform was at its height, that court, in March and April of this year, started to promulgate decisions which, in effect, reversed its previous stand on many social legislations in which the Administration was deeply interested, notably the decision to sustain the Wagner labor act."

Mr. Quezon himself started an insular court controversy last month when he bitterly denounced a judicial decision exempting an employer from paying $500 compensation to a worker who died in the line of duty.

It developed that the case in question was still on appeal when Mr. Quezon delivered his angry outburst. The President wrote the Philippine Chief Justice that he had not known about the appeal, and asked that his remarks not influence the final decision.

Juan Nabon, prominent attorney, said Mr. Quezon's criticism had set back 100 years "the respect of our people for the courts of justice."

Mr. Quezon challenged his critics to impeach him.

Arab Plot In French Morocco Discovered

The Domei Tsushin Sha

CASABLANCA, French Morocco, Oct. 27—A vast plot to reconstitute the ancient Arab dominions, stretching from Mecca to the Atlantic, long the aim of Moroccan and Arab nationalists, has been disclosed by the French colonial police following the arrests of scores of Arab and Moroccan nationalists during last Monday's riots at Fez and Rabat, it was announced here today.

The disturbances, which broke out simultaneously, climaxed more than a month of unrest, which began in Meknes late last month when more than 10,000 Nationalists rebelled against French rule. Ten Moors were killed and more than 50 seriously wounded in the bloody rioting.

In Monday's demonstrations, four Moroccan Nationalists leaders, including Allalel Fassi, were arrested upon charges of conspiracy. The resurgence of the Moroccan Nationalist movement is directly related with the Pan-Islamic movement in Palestine, which in the past two months have cost Arabs more than 50 lives. The arrested leaders in French Morocco have also conspired with chiefs in Egypt and Syria to carry on the Pan-Islamic anti-British campaign, it is understood.

Leaders Prepare Mexican Women For Day Of Vote

MONTERREY, Mex.—With the recent speech of President Cardenas on the state of the nation, in which he declared that the Mexican woman must be given the franchise and initiated into her political and social duties, a strong impulse has been given to feminine leaders in the organization of Mexican women, says the Christian Science Monitor. They now see the day coming when the home, so long the sole sphere of influence of the Mexican woman, no longer encompasses her or her duties.

Senorita Argentina Blanco, one of the best-known woman organizers, is at present in Monterrey consolidating the Central State Association of Women and other allied associations in neighboring north Mexican states.

"Women will soon have the vote here, and they should know what to do with it, and what voting entails of study, preparation, responsibility, and privilege," she said in an interview. "Also, women must be educated along many other lines, and quickly too, for in Mexico the idea that the home was the only place for women persists to this day. As a matter of fact, the function of the home has changed, in that formerly it was a producing unit, and now it is a consuming unit. Women who used to make soap, candles, lard, preserves, and a hundred other articles for home consumption, now buy these things ready made."

Accordingly, Senorita Blanco is encouraging the formation of housewives' consumers' cooperatives in many Mexican villages. In some of these the women have exhibited ingenious activity—they have begun to produce soap in home cooperatives, simple household articles, and many other things, the making of which saves them money, and teaches them something of the interrelated economic and governmental system in which we live.

The Central State Associations of Women teach moral responsibility and protection of the home, home crafts, attention to personal appearance, Mexican history, theories of government, social movements.

"There are no 'isms' of any kind connected with the associations," said Senorita Blanco. "We are concerned with teaching the Mexican woman something of the world and her part in it, for active participation will be demanded of her soon."

New Stamp To Appear

"BELIEVE IT OR NOT"---by Ripley

Lake Pekin

Most people, even in the locality, think that Lake Pepin near Red Wing, Minnesota, is just a widening of the Mississippi River, but in reality it is a large lake—27 miles long with an average width of more than three miles. The Mississippi flows into the Lake at a point five miles below the city of Red Wing and out at Reeds, Minnesota, and forms a natural boundary between Minnesota and Wisconsin.

A Smart Boy

Little James Badger, 10-year-old son of O. B. Badger of Phillippy, Tennessee, was the marvel of a recent Cotton Carnival, demonstrating his keen ability to perform in spelling and arithmetic at the same time. He spelled words just as fast as his questioners could shoot them at him, and had his pencil flying on a pad of paper doing sums in multiplication, addition, subtraction and division at the same time. James also proved it was no memory stunt, because the words and problems were named by his audience at random.

World's Revolving Stage

at all. No agreement would be likely to be respected if the worst came to the worst. For what nation, any more than a person, could be expected to submit to defeat when it might be saved from it with a flame-thrower, an airplane or some poison gas? The obvious answer is that when a man is fighting with a determined enemy he will just as leave kick him in the face, bite off his ear, or commit other offenses prohibited by the rules of the late Marquis of Queensberry who tried in vain to make prize fighting a gentlemanly if not a ladylike sport.

War is not sport. It is a matter of aggression, self-defense; or mistaken ideas of who is right, like all quarrels. At one time wars were fought in chariots. Today in airplanes.

Germany Understands Slander

The American aborigines fought for scalps as in certain parts of the world they still fight for heads. Early American settlers did not resort to reprisals in kind. They had something worse than scalping to offer. To the Indians, the Pilgrim Fathers' blunderbusses were worse than the scalping knife.

Japan committed no atrocities in China, so the Chinese fabricated them for the waiting world. Having been through it themselves, they understand the slander in Germany and it will eventually be seen through elsewhere. If Japan had wished to, it could have cleared the Chinese out off their holes around Shanghai long ago—with gas. It was widely used in America during recent strikes, although only the innocuous tears gas.

Mystery Golfer Of United States Breaks Par By 5

N.Y. Times

PORT WASHINGTON, L. I., Sept. 29—The golfing prowess of the mysterious John Montague of California, the former La Verne Moore of upper New York State, which is believed by many people to be something of a myth, was proved once again at the North Hempstead Country Club today, where, playing in a friendly game with four other players, Montague carded a sensational 65, five strokes under par for the 6,265-yard layout.

Playing with the California Mystery Man were Grantland Rice, the sports columnist; Alex Morrisons, golfing teacher; Clarence Budington Kelland, and Dr. Leander Newman of the home club.

Montague, who had never seen this course before today, was never in trouble. He had five birdies and was putting for others all the way, instead of the customary pars.

His card of 32—33 was one stroke above the course record, which was set by Harry DeMeo, a professional, almost ten years ago. On this occasion DeMeo had eight birdies and was over par on two holes as he put together a 32-32-64.

A fairly large gallery turned out to see the play, once it was learned that Montague was out on the course, and they were not disappointed in what they saw. Montague did not seem to mind the spectators as much as was expected, and went about his business of licking par without much ado.

Today his driving was not as long as had been reported on other occasions, and in spite of the fact that his friends claim that he has played only five rounds of golf during the last year, his iron play and putting were marvelous to behold. He never took more than two putts on any hole, and dropped several putts of more than twenty feet, while rimming the cup on others of even greater length. He was 6 up on Morrison, who carded a 71. Rice and Dr. Newman had 80s. Kelland faltered on the second nine, turning in an 85.

Montague's card with par:

Par out .....4 3 4 4 5 3 4 5 3—35
Montague out...4 2 3 4 4 3 4 5 3—32
Par in .....4 4 3 5 4 4 4 3 4—35—70
Montague in ...4 3 2 4 4 4 4 3 4—33—65

German Adviser To Organization Of 1940 Olympic Games Arrives

Bringing with him the assurance of 61 National Olympic Committees to cooperate in every manner possible for the success of the 12th Olympic Games in Tokyo in 1940, Werner Klingeberg, technical adviser to the Tokyo Olympic Organizing Committee, arrived on the Chichibu Maru Friday from Germany.

Mr. Klingeberg's services were engaged by the O. O. C. last spring.

Mr. Klingeberg, who is still under 30, is a graduate of Berlin University. He majored in physical education. His office is to be in the South Manchuria Railway building, adjoining the headquarters of the O. O. C.

He issued the following statement upon his arrival Friday:

"For the first time in history, the modern Olympic Games, great festival of youth and art, will be held in Asia. This is the expression of a great international confidence and an appreciation of the contribution of Nippon towards the ideals of these Games, which were revived in 1894 by the late Baron Pierre de Coubertin.

61 Committees To Help

"Sixty-one National Olympic Committees, cooperating with the International Committee, are willing to assist the Organizing Committee of the XII Olympic Games to be held in Tokyo in 1940, and to win a new continent for the ideals of fairness, good sportsmanship and true amateurism. It is the sincere hope of the International Olympic Committee that these XII Olympic Games may be carried through by the entire nation of Nippon, which is known to the outside world as a stronghold of high human ideals, in such a way as to combine both an international spirit and the distinctive atmosphere of Japanese civilization.

"After having visited most of the secretariats following the June meeting of the IOC at Warsaw, I carry with me their wishes concerning the program and facilities based on the experiences made at the 1936 Games at Berlin.

"The current China incident has brought forth a variety of repercussions throughout the world and at present various unauthentic informations concerning the situation prevailing in China are finding their way freely. However, it is my firm belief that, with their indefatigable perseverance, the Japanese nation will eventually succeed in surmounting every difficulty in their way and will soon be devoting all of their energy to the preparations for the Olympic Games three years ahead. This will naturally evince to the world the real greatness of the Japanese as a nation, and will eventually serve as a factor to bring about a betterment of the present unfortunate situation.

Credit To People

"The Games of the XII Olympiad are given to the City of Tokyo but the credit for success will be course to Nippon and her people.

"According to the wishes of the International Olympic Committee, I shall be happy to offer my experiences as sport technical director of the XI Olympics 1936 at Berlin to the Organizing Committee for the XII Olympic Games, and to cooperate in facilitating international relations. I shall do this in the spirit of loyalty and service to the great ideals of these Olympic Games which this time call the youth of the world to Tokyo."

Notre Dame Wins From Drake, 21-0;

N.Y. Times

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Oct. 2.—Notre Dame swept to a 21-to-0 opening-game triumph today over the scrapping Bulldogs of Drake University. A crowd of 41,000 saw the Ramblers start fiftieth gridiron campaign.

Notre Dame threatened twice to get its first score of the season in the first period, but was forced to delay the pleasure until early in the second, when aerial raids failed. Just before the end of the opening period, an 18-yard pass from McCarthy to Zwers and a 14-yard gallop by McCormick put the ball on Drake's 5, from where McCarthy flipped a neat pass to McCormick for a touchdown. Puplis completed the job by place-kicking for the point. McCarthy unreeled the thriller of the day in the third session, smashing through Drake's left tackle and with blockers springing up in front of him racing 85 yards for a touchdown, after Kuharich had intercepted Pug Manders' pass on Notre Dame's 15.

A few minutes later McCarthy intercepted another of Manders' tosses, and after McCormick had reached pay dirt with a 13-yard jaunt around right end, Tonelli crashed through the Bulldog line for the last score. O'Reilly kicked for both extra points.

The Ramblers might have made a rout of it as the game Bulldogs weakened, but with eight hard games coming in successive weeks, Coach Elmer Layden seized the opportunity of looking at his second, third, fourth and fifth teams. Altogether, he watched fifty-three players, with most of them doing two and three minute hitches in the final quarter.

While the Notre Dame demonstration was hardly a masterpiece, it was adequate for an opening test. Drake threatened seriously only twice.

Wisconsin Victor As 31,000 Look On

N. Y. Times

MADISON, Wis., Oct. 2.—The University of Wisconsin reasserted its claim to State football supremacy today with a 12-to-0 victory over Marquette University, winner of the mythical title the last two years.

A crowd of 31,000, short of expectations because of gloomy weather, saw Coach Harry Stuhldreher's fast and deceptive backfield smother Marquette's aerial attack and hold the visitors to a net loss of one yard on running plays. Wisconsin's ground plays netted 270 yards.

Howie Weiss put the Badgers in scoring position near the end of the first with a 28-yard run to Marquette's 5. On third down Vince Gavre, reserve quarterback, dropped in the goal zone under several Marquette tacklers.

The Badgers opened their pass attack early in the fourth with two flashy forward and lateral combinations that carried the ball to Marquette's 14. From that point Gradisnik plunged over his right tackle for the second touchdown.

The line-up:

Wisconsin (12)		Marquette (0)
L.E	Benz	Anderson
L.T.	Doyle	Beitzinger

Reich Net Stars Score Sweep Over Japanese

The visiting German tennis luminaries, Baron Gottfried von Cramm, Henner Henkel and Miss Mary Luise Horn, won their matches impressively in their debut in this country Friday afternoon at the newly constructed courts at Koshien park, near Osaka.

Baron von Cramm, world's No. 2 ranking amateur player, defeated Jiro Yamagishi, Japan's No. 1 player, 6—4 and 6—3.

Henkel, the Baron's Davis Cup team's partner and third ranking player in the world, took the measure of Yasumine Kuramitsu, last year's singles champion of Japan, in three sets, 6—4, 1—6, 6—1.

Miss Horn Wins

Miss Horn, Germany's No. 1 woman player and considered eighth best in the world, took the measure of Miss Sadayo Toda, 6—2 and 6—0.

In a special exhibition doubles match immediately after the opening ceremonies at noon, Miss Horn and Mrs. Paul Fichter of Kobe defeated Miss Toda and Miss Toyoko Kimata, 6—3, 2—6, and 6—4.

Baron von Cramm gave the fans an opportunity to witness a perfect brand of tennis. Possessing everything that a great tennis player needs on the offensive, on top of this he has plenty of fighting spirit in his tennis to produce the highest peak in the game.

The Baron's drives packed plenty of speed and were accurately placed. His service was another strong factor in his game.

Yamagishi showed plenty of improvement in his play, following his recent tour to the United States and to Wimbledon, but as yet though he flashes great tennis at times, he is apt to fall heavily with a poor play. An example of this was von Cramm's scoring of match point in the second set on Yamagishi's doublefault.

Henkel's Service Good

Henkel's smashing service proved to be the fundamental factor for his victory over Kuramitsu. He also showed great speed in his attack and was so quick to shift his play with the least sign of betraying it that Kuramitsu found it difficult to prepare for his opponent's shot.

While the Japanese champion took the second set with the loss of only one game, Henkel bore down in the third set with his bullet-like service and took it 6—1 in the short time of 10 minutes.

"BELIEVE IT OR NOT"---by Ripley

All Is Vanity

Francis II (1768-1853), the last of the Roman German Emperors, abdicated the German throne in 1806 when Napoleon I organized the Rhenish German Confederacy, which left Francis with an empty title. After his abdication, Francis concentrated his attention upon his hereditary Empire of Austria, with the title of Francis I. He died an embittered and disappointed man and ordered the curious crowned skull erected over his tomb with the inscription "To these vain ornaments I prefer ashes" (death).

Reich Net Stars Forced To Limit By Japanese Pair

Baron Gottfried von Cramm and Henner Henkel, members of the Davis Cup tennis team and this year's champions of the United States, had the battle of their lives Sunday afternoon at the Koshien courts, near Osaka, in the second day's matches of the first of a series of German-Japanese competitions in this country following the arrival of the Reich net luminaries last week. They defeated Jiro Yamagishi, Japan's No. 1 ranking player, and Ryosuke Nunoi, former Davis Cupper, but only after a 2½ hours duel that went to five sets. The scores were: 6-3, 12-10, 6-8, 3-6 and 6-3.

By virtue of this victory, the Germans clinched the tourney by three matches to nil, having won the two singles on the opening day last Friday when Baron von Cramm bested Yamagishi and Henkel took the measure of Yasumine Kuramitsu. The results of the two remaining singles today will have no bearing on the outcome. Henkel is scheduled to take on Nunoi, which should be a great match despite the latter's long absence from the game, while Baron von Cramm will meet former Davis Cupper Harada.

Greatest Match Yet

The greatest tennis match yet played in Japan, even not excepting those of William Tilden and Ellsworth Vines, was the unanimous comment of the spectators that witnessed the exhibition Sunday. The acme of tennis perfection, speed, accuracy and beauty in the drives, volleying, smashing service, and excellent tactics at the net, was displayed by the competitors. Yamagishi, especially, whom the Baron says, has everything a tennis player needs and should rightfully be ranked within the first five players of the world, was in top form. His service was functioning brilliantly while his net play was most effective. There might have been a different story to relate had Nunoi been able to come through with all that he is capable of. As it was, long out of competition, he was somewhat slow on his feet, whereas speed is a fundamental prerequisite to good doubles play. And so it was a moral victory for the Japanese against the virtually best doubles team in the world.

Henkel, world's No. 3 ranking amateur player, was brilliant in his offensive play at the net. His smashing won a point again and again.

The match was a nip and tuck affair notwithstanding the effectiveness of the Baron and Henkel at the net because of the superb lobbing of the Japanese players. The result was that the fundamental factor for victory fell on the service. In this, the Germans proved superior. Nunoi found trouble getting his first service in an consequently was apt to doublefault on several occasions. This, needless to say, was a weak point in the Japanese pair's game and which the Germans made the most of.

Miss Horn Wins

Miss Mary Luise Horn, Germany's No. 1 woman player, defeated Miss Toyoko Kimata, 6-1 and 6-2, in a special exhibition match. She proved too strong for the Japanese player. When it is considered that Miss Horn is not classed with the first ten by many of the critics, though she is ranked eighth best by some, the weakness of the Japanese women in the game is clear from the result of this match.

The Reich stars will appear in an exhibition at Nagoya on Wednesday. The matches follow:

Mixed doubles: Dr. Heinrich Kleinschroth and Miss Horn versus Abe and Mrs. Narukawa.

Singles: Henkel versus Hisano; von Cramm and Yamagishi.

Doubles: von Cramm and Henkel versus Yamagishi and Nakano.

Washington Tops U.S.C. By 7-0

N. Y. Herald Tribune

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 2.—The Washington Huskies inaugurated a drive for their second successive Pacific Coast conference championship today with a hard-won 7-to-0 victory over the University of Southern California Trojans. The lads from the great Northwest struck with fury when a break in the form of a Trojan fumble presented itself in the first quarter and held off a belated aerial attack in the final moments to walk off with the Trojan scalp.

Early in the initial period, Ambrose Schindler, ace quarterback of U. S. C. fumbled the ball on a spinner play and Rich Worthington, Husky right tackle, fell on it. It took Washington seven plays, including two sharp passes, to get the ball down to the 1-yard line, where Jimmy Johnston, Husky halfback, crashed over for the touchdown.

Al Cruver, the fullback, who with many of his mates, helped set the Trojans back, 12 to 0, a year ago, place-kicked for the extra point.

Meiji Footballers Rout Y.C.A.C., 45-0

Meiji, last year's co-holders with Waseda of the Tokyo Inter-collegiate American Football League's championship, wallopped the Yokohama Country and Athletic Club, 45-0 at the club's field at Negishi Sunday afternoon.

The collegians outplayed the Yokohama eleven in all departments of the game, scoring almost at will.

Weak in the fundamentals of the game, the heavier Y. C. and A. C. line was torn open for big holes and the Meiji backs romped through for big gains.

When it was the Yokohama Club's ball, the collegians put up a stonewall defense. Their tackling proved too deadly for the Y. C. and A. C. ball toters.

Takeo Kunishige, Meiji's ace in the backfield, was the individual high point scorer with three touchdowns.

Armstrong Kayoes Sarron To Capture Featherweight Title

By The Domei Tsushin Sha

NEW YORK, Oct. 29—Henry Armstrong, tough and tiny Pacific Coast featherweight fighter, tonight gained undisputed possession of the world's featherweight crown by knocking out Peter Sarron, one-time title holder and N.B.A. champion, in the sixth round of a scheduled 15-round bout here.

Armstrong, whose career in the featherweight ranks is as sensational as Joe Louis' rise in the heavyweight division, has won 12 fights out of 14 bouts during the past two years. He hails from Los Angeles. Sarron is from Birmingham, Alabama.

Seijo Wins Women's Field Hockey Title

The Seijo girls' school won the women's field hockey championship of the ninth annual Meiji Shrine games Saturday afternoon at the Meiji Shrine grounds by defeating the Hagoromo school eleven 1-0, in their playoff of their scoreless tie on Saturday.

Members of the winning team were the Misses Hayakawa, Yamaguchi, Imaimizu, Fujikura, Sakamoto, Noguchi, Okawa, Mikaku, Saito, Ichibara and Oba.

Kyoto School Wins

The Kyoto Commercial School wrestlers won the middle school sumo championship in the ninth Meiji Shrine games Sunday at the sumo arena at the Outer Garden of the Meiji Shrine.

Tigers Increase Lead Over Giants

The Osaka Tigers increased their lead to a comfortable 7½ games lead over the Tokyo Giants in the near ending professional baseball league by downing the Tigers, 6-3, in Sunday's feature game at the Korakuen stadium at Suidobashi.

Yoshio (Kaiser) Tanaka, backstop of the Tigers who hails from Hawaii, smashed out a three bagger in the second inning to bring in two runs and then scored a moment later on a long fly to the outfield, and virtually spelled the finish for Pitcher Victor Starphin of the Giants, who had been assigned to pitch with the hope that he might win his sixteenth game this season. Narita replaced him in the fourth frame.

Pitcher Nishimura chucked the whole game for the Tigers and yielded eight hits. He weakened in the eighth and ninth when he allowed one run and two more markers respectively but his team-mates pulled him out a winner.

Pitcher Maruo of the Hankyu held the Senators to four hits but found himself the loser, 3-1, in the other number of the Korakuen doubleheader.

Over in the Kansai, the Dolfins nosed out the Lions, 4-3, while the Eagles blanked the Nagoya team, 3-0.

Temple Triumphs Over Florida, 7-6

N.Y. Times

PHILADELPHIA, Oct 8—Coming from behind in the last half, Temple defeated the University of Florida in a hard-fought game at the Owls' Stadium tonight, 7 to 6, before a chilled crowd of 10,000 persons.

Making their first appearance in history on Philadelphia soil, the 'Gators scored a touchdown in the second period after a drive of 47 yards, in which Captain Walter (Tiger) Mayberry and Ken Willis were the principal ground gainers.

Temple's Backs Click

This turned out to be a bad break for the Southerners, as Temple went 75 yards in four running plays to score early in the third period. A 31-yard dash by Vince Renzo, 11 through center by Mike Lukac and Renzo's 30-yard advance around right end were the main ingredients, Renzo going over near the sidelines.

Jonah Bowles made good in his placement, which turned out to be the winning margin.

The playing of Captain Mayberry was a feature. Time and again he made spectacular returns of punts, but was injured four minutes before the final whistle and was led off the field. During his fifty-six minutes his kicking and runing gave the Owls considerable annoyance. For Temple Renzo and Lukac did the best ground gaining.

Passes Yield Little Ground

Temple made twelve first downs to Florida's five and gained 296 yards from scrimmage to 151. The Owls completed only one pass out of six for no gain and Florida made nine yards on three completed passes in nine tries.

The line-up:

Ramblers Upset Minnesota, 7-6 In U.S. Football

(VIA MACKAY RADIO)

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 30—Excepting Dartmouth's 9 to 9 tie with Yale, major football ran more or less true to form throughout the country today. Only a few upsets marked the march of the favorites.

One of these unexpected victories was Notre Dame's 7 to 6 win over a heavily-favored Minnesota team. It was the second close one in succession for the Irish, who last week barely nosed out Navy, 9 to 7.

The Crimson Tide drowned a fighting Kentucky team, 41 to 0, and California's Golden Bears ripped through the Bruins of the University of California at Los Angeles, 27 to 14.

Arkansas, undefeated but tied by Texas Christian, continued its drive for the southwestern conference championship with a 26 to 13 win over the Texas Aggies.

In one of the East's blue ribbon games, Pitt's Panthers humbled Carnegie Tech, 25 to 14. Princeton, fallen from the seat of the mighty, lost another, Harvard winning 34 to 6.

In the Middle West, Michigan surprised a strong Illinois eleven with a 7 to 6 triumph. Nebraska, the power of the plains, had trouble with Indiana, but won, 7 to 0. Missouri eked out a 12 to 0 win over Iowa State. Purdue's Boilermakers downed Iowa, 13 to 0. Northwestern beat Wisconsin, 14 to 6.

Other Pacific Coast games saw scoreless ties between Southern California and Washington State, Oregon State and Stanford, and Alonzo Stagg's College of the Pacific machine and St. Mary's. Washington had no difficulty disposing of Idaho, 21 to 7.

In the South, Duke had a "breather" against smaller Washington and Lee, and downed the Generals, 42 to 0. Georgia Tech's powerful Engineers beat Vanderbilt, 14 to 0. Virginia beat William and Mary, 6 to 0, and Tulane downed Mississippi, 14 to 7.

Undefeated Lafayette thumped Franklin-Marshall, 14 to 0.

Clark To Retire As Regular At End Of Season

By RICHARD McCANN

San Francisco News

DETROIT, Sept. 17—Earl (Dutch) Clark doesn't want to become known as a Man Who Stayed Too Long. That's why the coach-quarterback of the Detroit Lions is going to retire as a regular player after this year. Such an idea on the Earl's part at this time might come as a shock to you in view of the fact that he is right at the peak of his brilliant career, is being hailed as the greatest player of today and the day before yesterday, and is showing no signs of slipping.

Certainly he didn't look like a man who ought to be given a pair of carpet slippers, a pipe, and a nice easy chair the other night when the Detroit Lions swamped the Cleveland Rams in their opening game of the National Football League season. But the Earl must know something that the man in the stands can't see. He's been having trouble with his feet of late, and now and then a charley horse takes him for a bucking ride, so the Earl must figure that his time is drawing nigh and he might just as well step down before he's knocked down.

Of course, the Earl is going to play every game—barring injury—but he won't go the full route as he has in the past. Twenty minutes was all he played against the Rams and he hopes to make it less and less as the season wears on, letting Indiana's Vernon Huffman do the quarterbacking.

Shows Some Common Sense

"It's a game for young men," the Earl told a friend the other day, "and I'm not young any more. I might just as well get out while I've got my senses—and my legs and arms."

Few athletes show such common sense. Of course, the second-raters can't very well quit when they start to go down the hill toward their athletic sunset. They must play to pay the bills. But the majority of big-time stars, with sheaves of money in storage, never know when the quittin's good and they wind up crippled or befuddled.

Jack Dempsey knew when his time had come . . . he knew it the morning after his second fight with Gene Tunney . . . he knew it when he opened his eyes and din't see anything . . . he knew it when his head throbbed for days—and nights.

"BELIEVE IT OR NOT"---by Ripley

The Oldest Lie Detector

The Well of Acadine near Siracusa, Sicily, has served as a lie detector since ancient times. Whenever a man's oath was suspected, the oath was written out in full upon a wooden board, which was dropped into this well. If the board floated, the oath was considered true. If it sank, the suspect was convicted as a perjurer, and his life was forfeit to the community.

Nebraska Halts Minnesota In Stirring Battle, 14 To 9

N. Y. Times

LINCOLN, Neb., Oct. 2.—Minnesota's dream of marching to its fourth successive national football championship exploded in an upset today that rocked the gridiron world.

In sun-baked Memorial Stadium before a capacity crowd of 36,000 frenzied spectators, Nebraska conquered the mighty Gophers, heretofore defeated only once since late in 1932. The score was 14 to 9.

The spectators, sweltering in midsummer heat, were bewildered as Minnesota was ground into defeat after losing only one in its thirty-three-game parade. The one blot on Minnesota's record was Northwestern's triumph in the mud and rain last year.

There were certain factors in favor of the inspired Cornhuskers today.

The first was that Major Lawrence (Biff) Jones, making his debut as a Nebraska coach, had dared to win. It was a gamble against what appeared to be overwhelming odds. Jones's teams have not lost an opening game at any of the four institutions where he has coached.

Then there were two costly Minnesota fumbles, which Nebraska quickly converted into touchdown maneuvers.

Minnesota made more first downs, gained more yards, attempted and completed more passes, and yet was able to score only 9 points, chiefly because the Cornhuskers played an astonishing defensive game with a line of seven veterans charging and blocking brilliantly.

The game was not without sadness for Nebraska. Eldon McIlravy, 20-year-old sophomore fullback from Tecumseh, Neb., was in serious condition tonight, suffering from a brain concussion and possible skull fracture as a result of a terrific pile-up of players in the third period.

Rudo Gmitro, Minnesota halfback, was carried from the field at the same time as McIlravy, suffering from what was first believed to be a broken back. Later, however, the injury was said to be not serious.

Minnesota Threatens Again

After Minnesota scored on the first nine plays of the game and in less than five minutes of play, it appeared as if the Gophers were off on another touchdown march. Andy Uram, fleet halfback who beat Nebraska a year ago with a 70-yard gallop in the last 60 seconds of play, had tossed a 15-yard pass to Vic Spadaccini, who snared the ball in the end zone for a touchdown. Uram's attempt to place-kick, however, was a failure.

Then, at the start of the second, came Minnesota's first disastrous fumble, which the Cornhuskers quickly converted. Johnny Howell, Nebraska's veteran quarterback, punted to Bill Matheny on Minnesota's 35-yard line but the ball bounced out of Matheny's hands and rolled to Minnesota's 24. There Charley Brock, who played a fine game at center, recovered for Nebraska.

After two line smashes, Howell tossed a 9-yard pass for a first down on Minnesota's 13. The Cornhuskers blasted to Minnesota's 4, then Howell smashed center for a touchdown. Lowell English placekicked the extra point.

After a scoreless third period Horace Bell, Minnesota's Negro guard, drove the Gophers into the lead. At the start of the fourth he booted a field goal from an angle on the 23-yard line to give the Gophers a 2-point margin.

Callahan Retrieves Ball

Then came Minnesota's second costly fumble. After the Cornhuskers had failed at passes, Bill Andreson punted to Harold Van Every, who bobbled the ball. Bill Calahan recovered for Nebraska.

The crowd was brought to its feet when Harris Andrews fired a 22-yard pass to Elmer Dohrmann, who caught the ball on Minnesota's 22. A second later Andrews hurled another pass, for 14 yards, to Callahan, who scampered 5 yards down the center for a score without a Gopher tackler near him. English again added the point, making the score Nebraska 14, Minnesota 9, and sending the crowd into a frenzy.

The Gophers then opened a desperate forward passing attack in an effort to turn defeat into victory in the remaining seconds, but the alert Cornhuskers were there to block and finally intercept one as the game ended.

It was the Cornhuskers' fourth victory in nineteen years of bitter rivalry with Minnesota.

The line-up:

Chicago Bears On Title Trail In Pro Football

Christian Science Monitor

CHICAGO, Oct. 11.—The Chicago Bears once again are prowling down the professional football championship trail.

The Bears, who took their last title in 1933 and since have seen the New York Giants, Detroit Lions and Green Bay Packers wearing the national professional league crown, won their third straight victory of the season yesterday, defeating the young Cleveland Rams, 20 to 2.

In three wins in as many starts, the Bears have scored 41 points on Green Bay's champion packers, the Pittsburgh Pirates and the Rams, and have had only four points scored on them. The Packers tallied on a safety in the Bears' opener of the year and the Rams could get only two points yesterday.

The Chicago eleven, owned and coached by George Halas, scored a touchdown and a field goal, the placement by the reliable Jack Manders, in the second period; added another three points through Mander's toe in the third and scored a touchdown in the final period on Ed Manske's pass interception and 53-yard scoring run. Beattie Feathers gave Cleveland its safety by accidentally stepping out of the end zone as he went back to punt in the final period.

Detroit's Lions won their third game in four starts by turning back the strong Pittsburgh Pirates, 7 to 3. The Lions marched 78 yards to come from behind and win as Ernie Caddel went the last two yards around end in the third period. Pittsburgh tallied in the second period on Armand Niccolai's 11-yard placement. The battle, played in Detroit, drew 16,000 spectators.

The Green Bay Packers, who started slowly this season and have lost two games, were under full steam as they rolled over Chicago's Cardinals 34 to 13, scoring in every period but the last and piling up 21 points in the second quarter. Clark Hinkle, Gantenbein, Scherer and Jankowski scored touchdowns for the titleholders, while Engebretsen and Hinkle each made field goals. A crowd of 18,500 saw the game, played in Milwaukee. Gaynell Tinsley, sensational rookie end, scored one Cardinal touchdown and caught six of the 11 completed Cardinal passes.

Philadelphia, after four defeats and one tie, broke into the win column with a 14-to-0 shutout of Washington's Redskins, who lacked scoring punch on several occasions. Some 15,000 fans saw Philadelphia score on a pass, Smukler to Hewitt, in the first, and were given a thrill when Harper intercepted an aerial and ran 20 yards for a touchdown in the final stanza. Sammy Baugh's passes for the Redskins were off line.

Girls Steal Show In Track Meet Of Shrine Games

The girl athletes stole the show in the first day's competition of the national track and field championships, of the ninth Meiji Shrine athletic games at the Meiji Shrine stadium Monday afternoon.

The outstanding performer was Miss Etsuko Komiya of the Yawata Higher Girls School who smashed the 10-year existing record of the late Miss Kinue Hitomi, Japan's first international woman track athlete, in the 100-meter run when she broke the tape in 12.4 seconds. Miss Hitomi's time in the fourth Shrine games in 1927 was 12.5 seconds.

Nip and Tuck Race

A strong finish won for Miss Komiya after a nip and tuck race with Miss Morita of the Tokai school and Miss Kubo of Sapporo. She was a member of the women's track team that participated in the 11th Olympic Games last year at Berlin.

Miss Fumi Kojima of the Chukyo Higher Girls School set a new record in the women's discus throw with a heave of 37.75 meters on her fourth throw to nose out Miss Minejima of the Women's Physical School team, whose best try was 36.67 meters.

While she did not establish a new record, Miss Toyoko Yoshino of Tokushima showed herself a coming star by winning the broad jump with the creditable performance of 5.40 meters. Miss Tsukumo Hayashi of Taiwan was a close second with 5.39 meters.

The three first runners to cross the goal line smashed the meet record in the marathon championship. Choshun Ryu of Keijo won in 2 hours 34 minutes 17 seconds. Toshio Kawaguchi of the Sakaide Young Men's club of Shikoku was second in 2 hours 35 minutes 7 seconds and Shigeru Kabazawa of Aomori third in 2 hours 35 minutes 28 seconds. Shinichi Nakamura of the Sakaide Young Men's club was fourth.

With Kitei Son, the 11th Olympic champion, Nan, who was third, and Suzuki, another Olympic contestant, a total of 50 runners competed in the marathon and it was a battle royal all the way through. Ryu, the titleholder, and Nakamura raced neck and neck on the outward course, doing it in one hour 16 minutes 4 seconds. Half way on the return course near the Daita bridge, Nakamura developed side pain and began to fall back. Kawaguchi then attempted to pull down Ryu's lead but the latter had too much stamina for him.

Record in High Jump

The other record of the day was smashed in the men's running high jump by Sanichi Okamoto of Manchuria and Manabu Hara of Meiji University who both cleared the bar at 1.95 meters. First place went to Okamoto.

One record was tied when Toyoji Aihara of the Post Office Life Insurance negotiated the 400-meter run in 49.3 seconds.

Kohei Musakoso of Chuo University, who placed fourth in the 5,000 and 10,000 meter runs at the Olympic Games last year, was expected to set a new record in the 5,000-meter run but he failed to negotiate it below 15 minutes. His winning time was 15 minutes 5 seconds. Gono of Nihon University was second in 15 minutes 39 seconds.

Tadashi Murakami of Waseda had no trouble winning the 110-meter hurdles in 14.9 seconds.

Asakura Wins

Masayuki Asakura of Bunrika University won the javelin throw with 57.04 meters.

Winner in the men's shotput was Yoshiro Kamishiro of Nihon University with 13.02 meters.

Kyoshi Adachi of Waseda took the pole vault clearing the bar at 4 meters. Takano of Taiwan was second with 3.90 meters.

Miss Miyoko Mitsui of the Women's Physical School won the 80 meter hurdles for women in 12.8 second.

Alibi

A lady complained to the local Postmaster of damage to a box of eggs sent by Parcel Post, and gave more than a broad hint that the postman was not so careful as he should have been. The following was his written explanation:

"I desire to emphatically repuddyiate the complainants suggestion of carelessness on my part, for it was only a few minutes after leaving the office I discovered that the juice was protruding from the parcel."—Post Office Magazine, London.

At Her Feet

She: "My, but I'm having a marvelous time! Men were at my feet practically all day, today!"

Her: "Really? And did you buy any of the shoes?"

Ishiguro Aids Waseda To Beat Keio Nine, 3-1

Pitcher Ishiguro of Waseda checked Keio to five hits to help his team score a 3-1 victory in the athletic competition of the ninth Meiji Shrine games at the Meiji Shrine stadium Monday afternoon.

Second Baseman Okada's triple in the eighth and a Texas Leaguer to right by Minamimura, both off Takagi, who had replaced Narita on the mound, scored two runs for Waseda in the eighth to break a 1-1 tie, both registered in the fourth inning.

Nebraska Checks Iowa State, 20-7 In Big 6 Game

N. Y. Times

AMES, Iowa, Oct. 9—Iowa State's battling Cyclones played mighty Nebraska on even terms for three periods today but two sudden, dramatic Cornhusker thrusts turned the tide and the conquerors of Minnesota scored a 20—7 victory in their first Big Six contest.

Slightly more than 10,000 persons saw the Cyclones carry the battle to their highly touted foes and push over a touchdown in the first five minutes. Iowa State offensive power faded a few minutes later, however, when Everett Kischer left the game with a bad shoulder injury.

Two Passes Successful

Kischer, a 152-pound youngster, shot two successful passes to Charles Heileman, halfback, and then charged through the big Nebraska line for the only Iowa State touchdown. He added the extra point from placement.

The Huskers struck late in the first period to tie the score. A deceptive end-around performance caught the Iowa State line by surprise as Paul Amen, Husker end, spurted into the open and dashed eighty yards for the first Nebraska touchdown. Dodd booted the point from placement.

Interference Forms Quickly

In the fourth period Plock, substitute halfback, misjudged an Iowa State punt and the ball bounded back to the Nebraska 25-yard line. Plock scampered back and grabbed the ball. Husker interference formed quickly and Plock sped through the entire Cyclone team for a touchdown.

Late in the period Iowa tried frantically to get a lateral under way. Richardson broke through and collared Medin's hurried toss and Nebraska had the ball on the 11-yard line. Andrews punched his way across for the final touchdown from the six-yard line. English made the point from placement.

The line-up:

Nebraska (20)	Iowa State (7)
L.E. Amen	Rushmore

Yamagishi Tops Henkel For Lone Japanese Victory

Jiro Yamagishi, Japan's No. 1 ranking tennis player, defeated Henner Henkel of the Davis Cup team and world's No. 3 ranking amateur player in the concluding matches of the first German-Japanese tournaments Monday afternoon at the Koshien courts. The scores were: 6-2, 0-6 and 8-6.

Henkel's powerful service carried him to the convincing victory in the second set. Yamagishi led 4-1 in the third set but Henkel put it on a 5-all basis, after which Yamagishi finally pulled through to win.

Baron Gottfried von Cramm defeated former Davis Cupper Harada, 6-3 and 6-2 in the other singles match to make the score 4-1 in favor of the German team. Harada put up a surprisingly good fight against the German star.

Dr. Heinrich Kleinschroth and Miss Mary Luise Horn beat former Davis Cupper Miki and Miss Toda in an exhibition mixed doubles match, 7-5 and 6-3.

The German stars will appear at the Denyen courts in their Tokyo exhibition on November 6, 7 and 8.

Purdue Sets Back Carnegie Tech, 7-0

N. Y. Times

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Oct. 9—A brother passing act, Cecil to Cody Isbell, and a 16-yard dash by Louis Brock of Stafford, Kan., brought Purdue a 7-to-0 triumph over Carnegie Tech today in the Boilermakers' homecoming football game, played before 20,000 spectators in a drizzling rain.

The score came in the third period after a first half in which neither side had threatened seriously. Cecil Isbell dropped back and flipped a pass to his brother, who was brought down after a 10-yard gain. Then Brock took the ball on a reverse and raced down the right sideline the remaining sixteen yards.

Only a stumble and a fall kept Carnegie Tech from a possible tie a few minutes later. Jerry Matelan of Pittsburgh, halfback, started from his 33, rounded his left end, sidestepped two or three tacklers and suddenly broke into the clear.

A lone Boilermaker was in pursuit. A Carnegie man took him out, but Matelan stumbled and fell. He was down on Purdue's 24 and there the Boilermakers held.

The stalwart Purdue line stood off another Tech thrust in the final period. A 12-yard dash by Ray Carnelly of Beaver Falls, Pa., and interference by Purdue on an attempted pass gave Tech the ball on the 4-yard line.

The Tartans had four downs to get the ball across, but the Purdue line would not give and the Boilermakers took the ball on their 1. Purdue kicked out of danger and from then until the final gun, play remained between the rival 30-yard lines.

The line-up:

Purdue (7)	Carnegie (0)
L.E. Botney	Striegel

Miss Itoda Wins 200-Meter Dash In Splendid Time

By LESLIE NAKASHIMA

The girls continued to steal the show Tuesday afternoon in the second day's events of the three-day national track and field championships of the ninth Meiji Shrine athletic games at the Meiji Shrine stadium. Their brilliant performance put hopes into the enthusiastic crowd present that Japan might get somewhere in the competition of the fair sex in the 12th Olympic Games here three years hence.

Miss Kiyoko Itoda, who works in the Sasagawa Spinning Company in Miye prefecture, won the 200-meter dash in the excellent time of 26 seconds flat, the best time made in this country since the late Miss Kinue Hitomi set her mark of 24.8 seconds in 1929. (But the latter time was made on a straightway, and Miss Itoda's performance yesterday around a turn in reality is pretty close to Miss Hitomi's record.

Battle Royal

The race was a battle royal between Miss Itoda and Miss Toyoko Yoshino of Tokushima, who on the previous day had sprung a sensation by winning the broad jump. The latter led up to the 150-meter mark but Miss Itoda, maintaining her beautiful stride, came through with a final spurt to win. Miss Yoshino's time was 26.5 seconds. Miss Kikumi Morita, a clubmate of Miss Itoda, was third in 27 seconds flat.

Miss Itoda's time in the semi-final was 26.4 seconds while Miss Yoshino won the other heat in 27 seconds. The former has the stride and form every sprinter needs and should be able to cut down her present time considerably.

The best race of the day was the women's 400-meter relay. It was the scintillating performance of Miss Etsuko Koyama, who on Monday had shattered the late Miss Hitomi's 10-year standing mark in the 100-meter dash, that won the event for the North Kyushu all-star team from Fukuoka and Saga prefectures. Miss Yoshiko Kondo, anchor runner for the Sugiyama Girls School of the Kinki district, was first to get the baton and was from four to five meters in the lead as she headed for the tape, a hundred meters away. But Miss Koyama, who is tall and well built for a Japanese girl, tore down the track and forged past the Sugiyama runner in a sensational finish. The time was 51.5 seconds. The Sugiyama team was clocked in 51.6 seconds. Third was the Hiroshima Prefectural Higher School team in 52.2 seconds.

Kyushu Girls Happy

It was the first time a North Kyushu girls' relay team had been sent to the Shrine games and weren't the four girls, Miss Fujie Yoshida, Misses Kimiko and Shizuko Mori, sisters, and Miss Koyama, happy? They were surrounded by cameramen and reporters after the race.

The Sasagawa Spinning Company's quartet of Misses Itoda, Morita, Terui and Ito, was a strong contender for the 400-meter relay but was disqualified in the semi-finals by dropping the baton.

In the other women's event for the day, Miss Koko Yada of Nagoya won the javelin throw with a heave of 38.30 meters. Miss Namie Shimizu of the Women's Physical School of Tokyo was second with 36.88 meters.

The only record of the day was set by Ishanji Omori of Meiji University who came from behind to win the 1,500 meter run in 4 minutes 2 seconds to smash the mark of 4 minutes 2.2 seconds set by Kiyoshi Nakamura of Waseda at the last Shrine games two years ago. Kazuo Nakamura of the Sendai railway bureau was second in 4 minutes 5.4 seconds.

Only other creditable performance in the men's events was Masao Yazawa's victory in the 100-meter dash in 10.6 seconds.

Imai Wins Steeplechase

Tetsuo Imai of the Keio Club led a field of eight runners and won the 3,000 meter steeplechase easily in 9 minutes 47.8 seconds. Yumiya Nishizawa, of Nagaoka city received the biggest hand, particularly from the girls school students. He finished last. Each lap saw him falling further behind the others but he never gave up.

Yukio Waga of North Japan, who had set a new record of 1.95 meters in the high jump for the young men's competition, cleared this height in the event for the decathlon for 998 points. The bar was raised to 2 meters, equivalent to 1,040 points, but Waga failed on three attempts. Had he cleared it, he would have been the first man ever to do so in the decathlon. So for this reason, the crowd was pulling for him all the way through.

Waga led with 3,622 points at the end of the first five events for the decathlon with Cho of Manchuria second with 3,554 points.

Kazuyoshi Okada of Manchuria took the hop, step and jump in the unimpressive distance of 15.07 meters. Furuta of the Yawata Mills was second with 14.68 meters.

Sumo Champions Pray At Meiji Shrine For Soldiers On Fronts

The four yokozuna, grand champions of Japanese wrestling or sumo, Tamanishiki, Musashiyama, Minanogawa and Futabayama, prayed at the Meiji Shrine Tuesday for the good fortune of the Japanese soldiers on the battle fronts in China.

Changing to their ceremonial attire, they went through the rites of the "dohyoiri" or formal entrance into the ring, in the open space in front of the sanctuary.

Michigan Beaten By Northwestern

EVANSTON, Ill., Oct. 9.—Michigan's dead-game Wolverines stopped Northwestern's vaunted land attack today, but their aerial defense faltered for one all-important second and the Wildcats fashioned a thrilling 7-to-0 triumph, to open their defense of the Big Ten gridiron championship.

The Wolverines, battling to regain their lost place in Big Ten football sunshine, gave 32,000 Northwestern supporters more than one breathless moment during the sixty minutes of savage battling, but their comeback had not progressed far enough to enable them to stop completely the determined defending champions.

A 15-yard touchdown pass by blond Don Heap to lanky Cleo Diehl in the third period sent them down to defeat after the Wildcats had blown one scoring opportunity.

Center Snatches Ball

Northwestern's touchdown followed what, a moment before, had appeared to be a break for Michigan. Don Siegel, husky Wolverine tackle, partly blocked a punt by Bernie Jefferson and Michigan took the ball on its own 37. Fred Trosko, Michigan's talented sophomore back, attempted a surprise forward pass—and Erwin Wegner, Wildcat center, reached up and snatched the ball on Michigan's 44.

Heap picked up 5 yards in two tries, then as the Wolverine forwards dug in, drifted to his right and drilled the finishing shot to Diehl, who grabbed the ball in the corner of the end zone, with Doug Farmer and Archie Kodros just too far away to do anything about it. Ryan finished the job by placekicking for the extra point.

Place Kick Goes Wide

Northwestern had worked the ball to Michigan's 4-yard line in the second quarter, but Ryan's place-kick attempt on fourth down with seconds of the half remaining sailed wide of the posts.

The Wolverines otherwise played the Wildcats at least even. They outgained the 1936 champions on the ground, 125 yards to 106, and in first downs were only one shy of matching Northwestern's total of ten.

Black Hair At 117

If you think you are an oldster at the age of 70 or there-abouts, you can feel like a youngster if you accept the philosophy of Mrs. Vincenta Verrarial of San Antonio, Texas, who just celebrated her 117th birthday, and whose hair has actually turned black again at that age. She still keeps busy daily sewing, knitting, quilting, and taking care of her large family—having reared 18 grandchildren besides her own family of 20. She walks gaily without assistance, eats every three hours, and with her fine sense of humor, she carries on a conversation with the jocular air of a school girl, and likes best to talk about her young son of 85 years, who lives in Laredo. Mrs. Verrarial was born in 1820 in Topo Grande, Nuevo Leon, (near Monterrey) Mexico, and has lived in the United States since the turn of the century.

Baseball Crowds Showed Big Gain In United States

N.Y. Times

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—Major league baseball attendance for the season just closed showed a 10 per cent increase over last year's figures and was within striking distance of all-time records.

Semi-official compilation yesterday by The Associated Press disclosed a grand total of 9,447,495 fans passed through the turnstiles of the sixteen American and National League clubs. This compared with an aggregate of 8,585,000 in 1936, thereby producing a total increase of 862,497.

The all-time "high" was reached in 1930, when the total attendance for the two major circuits reached 10,186,000.

The most striking feature of this year's showing is that the Detroit Tigers, second-place club in the American League, set the attendance pace, with a total of 1,181,000. This was a record for home-game attendance in the motor city and exceeded by nearly 40,000 the home-game figures for the world champion New York Yankees, hitherto the undisputed No. 1 drawing card.

The Yankees, however, helped Detroit set a new home mark. The New Yorkers, for the eleven games they played in the Tigers' park, helped draw 271,000 fans.

This year marks the tenth time since the World War that Yankee home-game attendance passed the million mark. The club's record was set in 1920, when attendance exceeded 1,250,000. This season it was 1,141,996.

American League attendance as a whole exceeded that in the National this year by more than 500,000. The Boston Red Sox was the only club in the junior circuit which failed to show an increase.

The Philadelphia Athletics, seventh-place club, showed the biggest percentage increase, with a jump from 250,000 to 435,000.

In the National League, where only half the eight clubs registered increases, the champion New York Giants and second-place Chicago Cubs came closest to the million mark with 991,097 and 950,000, respectively.

The Yankees and Giants drew most of the year's biggest crowds on the road.

Most Major League clubs guard their official attendance figures closely, preferring to give out only estimates, but the following comparative tabulation, for home games, is based upon authentic information:

National League

New York	991,097	850,000
Chicago	950,000	800,000

Philadelphia	250,000	260,000

Cincinnati	450,000	490,000
Total	4,416,501	4,150,000

American League

	1937	1936
New York	1,141,996	1,100,000
Detroit	1,181,000	1,020,000

Skating Committee Announces Program For Coming Year

The International Skating Club of Tokyo and Yokohama will hold its opening night for the winter season of 1937-8 at the Shibaura Skating Rink on Friday night, November the 5th commencing at 8 o'clock.

The Shibaura Rink, where the Club's skating evenings have been held for the past several years is to the East of Tamachi and Shinagawa Stations, and can be reached by tram from Fudanotsuji and by fast line from Tamachi Station and bus.

Owing to the general curtailment of social activities this year skating as an exercise and means of recreation for the combined communities of Tokyo and Yokohama bids fair to be more popular than ever.

November 5, 12, 19, 26
December 3, 10, 17
January 7, 14, 21

Senior season tickets at a cost of ¥10, will entitle the bearers to skate between the hours of eight and eleven. Junior members (under 17 years of age) will have the option of buying a junior ticket for ¥5 which will entitle them to skate from eight to ten. Fast skating or hockey will be permitted from ten thirty to eleven o'clock.

Minnesota Tops Indiana By 6-0 Before 45,000

N. Y. Times

MINNEAPOLIS, Oct. 9.—Minnesota's thoroughly deflated Golden Gophers squeezed out a 6-to-0 victory over Indiana today in a Big Ten game at Memorial Stadium that found Bo McMillin's scrappy squad failing in two last period attempts to pull the game out of the fire.

The final gun barked as a Hoosier pass fell incomplete on the Minnesota goal line. Indiana in the last of two mighty thrusts passed easily to the Minnesota nine for a first down. An end sweep lost four, there was a 5-yard penalty for too much time in the huddle and then the last desperate futile pitch.

Pass Just Fails to Click

Just a few minutes earlier a fourth down Hoosier pass from the 5-yard line had missed the intended receiver in the end zone by inches.

Those two spectacular drives packed all the Indiana scoring threats and four of the five Hoosier first downs came in the last few minutes, mainly through the accurate passing of Bill Anderson and Frank Filchock to Halfback Dale Tanner and Captain Jick Kenderdine, end. Ten of twenty-eight Indiana forwards were good.

Minnesota, presenting a makeshift line-up most of the way with a second team starting, got its margin in the second quarter principally through a bashy punt return by little Oudy Gmitro to the Indiana 20. Wilbur Moore took it over from the 9. Three other Minnesota scoring opportunities were bungles with a hard charging Hoosier line smearing the attack.

Uram Plays One Quarter

Minnesota's star back, Andy Uram, played only during the second quarter. After having figured in the touchdown drive, he hustled the kick-off back to the Indiana 43.

Gmitro, 157-pounder alternating at right half and quarterback, starred both on the offense and defense. He was one of the big reasons why Indiana's final splurge failed.

Minnesota (6)		Indiana (0)
L.E.	Reed	Kenderdine

Farr And Jacobs Reach Agreement

N.Y. Times

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—Tommy Farr, the Welsh heavyweight who gained fistic fame by going the limit with champion Joe Louis recently, has signed a contract in which Mike Jacobs will have first call on his services for the next five years, it was announced yesterday by the Twentieth Century Sporting Club.

Farr is scheduled to sail aboard the Cunard White Star liner Queen Mary today for home. The Welshman will spend the Christmas holidays in his native land and will make his first appearance under the new contract at Madison Square Garden on Jan. 21. His opponent may be the winner of Friday's bout between Nathan Mann of New Haven and Arturo Godoy of Chile.

There is also the possibility of a European fight for Farr, but any venture of this kind will have to have the sanction of Jacobs.

According to present plans, Farr will make an appearance in Miami sometime between Feb. 15 and 20, against an outstanding heavyweight yet to be selected.

Gains Issues Challenge

N.Y. Times

LONDON, Oct. 5—Larry Gains, Toronto Negro, today challenged Tommy Farr for the British Empire heavyweight title and declared he was willing to put up a side bet of £1,000 ($4,951).

Gains last night knocked out Charles Rutz, French heavyweight champion, in the second round of a bout at Earlscourt Stadium. Eight months ago in the same ring Farr could score only a decision over the Frenchman.

Gains said he was prepared to deposit the £1,000 with the British Board of Boxing Control as soon as Farr agrees to fight.

Penn State Tops Bucknell, 20-14 Before 11,000

N.Y. Times

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Oct. 9.—Penn State scored in the last minute of play to take a thrilling battle from Bucknell today before 11,000 fans on alumni home-coming day. The score was 20—14.

The Nittany Lions were forced to come from behind twice during the driving rain to score their second victory of the season. Bucknell had deadlocked the count with five minutes left to play and Marty Quick's placement put the Bisons ahead, 14—13.

After an exchange of kicks, Windy Wear carried Bill Lane's punt to the Bucknell 45. Wear, State's 135-pound quarterback, picked up seven yards on two plays and Tim Wible recovered John Patrick's fumble for the Lions on the Bison 34.

Wear went around left end, dodged several tacklers and cut back to reach the 7 after a run of twenty-seven yards. State was off-side but Wear advanced the ball seven yards to the Bucknell 4. A reverse, Wear to Patrick, registered the winning touchdown.

Ben Pollock, substitute guard, who was rushed into the game in the second quarter to kick the point after touchdown, was sent in again. His kick was good.

Frank Funair recovered Harry Harrison's fumble on the Bucknell 25 to start the Bisons' tying touchdown drive. George Klick, Funair and Lane carried to the 8, and when State held, Will Jones faded back and passed to Harry Wenner for the score. The line-up:

Lions Top Pirates On Long March, 7-3

DETROIT, Oct. 10.—A 78-yard march for a touchdown late in the third period enabled the Detroit Lions to come from behind and defeat the Pittsburgh Pirates, 7 to 3, in a National Football League battle before 16,000 spectators today. Ernie Caddel, fleet halfback, went over from the 2-yard line, racing around right end.

The Pirates tallied fifteen seconds before the first half ended when Armand Niccolai, substitute tackle, kicked an 11-yard field goal from placement from a difficult angle.

The victory was Detroit's third in four starts. It was the third setback for the Pirates in five games.

Detroit had a big margin in the statistics, making fourteen first downs to eight and gaining 230 yards to 153.

A Mess of Pottage

Among the curious coronation services rendered in lieu of rent for large land grants, none is more curious than that rendered to the King as rent for the parish of Addington, Surrey, England. This rent consists of a mess of pottage called diligrout, which the owner of Addington is obliged to serve to his King in a new earthen jar during the coronation. The tenure dates back to 1447, when the King of England granted Addington to the fifth earl of Shrewsbury. Diligrout consists of a mixture of almond milk, capon, sugar and spices.

The Social Weaver Bird

This bird (Philetaerus socius) of Africa builds gigantic mushroom-shaped nests, accommodating from 100-200 pairs. This compound nest is not unlike a gigantic umbrella, consisting of a great straw roof, and is entered from below.

Olympic Runner Helps Syracuse To 40-0 Victory

N. Y. Times

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Oct. 9.—With Marty Glickman, the Olympic sprinter, flashing 73 and 58 yard runs for touchdowns, Syracuse's much improved football team scored a 40-to-0 victory over St. Lawrence before 10,000 persons today.

The Orange, using forty-three players, showed two combinations capable of fine blocking and an ability to count through the air. In addition to Glickman's two sensational runs, Syracuse tallied twice in the final period on forward passes.

William Thomas, sophomore back, tossed 20 yards to Charlie Heer, who raced another 52 yards for a score, and a few minutes later Thomas heaved 25 yards to Adam Markowski, senior sub end, who made the catch on the goal line and fell over for a touchdown.

Baylock Goes 15 Yards

Glickman started Syracuse on its first scoring rush by running a St. Lawrence punt back ten yards to the visitors' 37. Vic Baylock, Orange fullback, smashed through for 15 yards on the first play. Glickman circled end for eight yards to reach the 8, where Baylock went inside his own right tackle for the initial score.

The first quarter also witnessed Glickman's first open field exhibition when he swept the Larries' left end and behind nice interference raced 73 yards. Syracuse threatened again in the second period but two long gains, one a forward pass good for 21 yards, were nullified by penalties.

Early in the third quarter, Baylock slanted off tackle, ran from his own 29 for 13 yards, lateraled to Glickman, who sprinted 58 yards down the sidelines for the third touchdown.

Byrnes Leads Drive

With Marty Byrnes leading the attack, St. Lawrence came back with several laterals to reach the Syracuse 36, where its passing attack failed. Byrnes's attempted place kick was short and the visitors did not threaten again.

The final period saw Coach Ossie Solemn's combination, with several substitutes in action, open the aerial attack featured by Thomas's two touchdown tosses. Another touchdown was set up when Benz of St. Lawrence touched Bruett's kick-off as it went into the end zone. He brought the ball out to the 6.

Clinton's punt from the end zone carried only to his 28, then Thomas tossed another forward to Balmer on weight Syracuse half-back, counted the visitors' 5. Harold Ruth lighted on an off-tackle drive.

The line-up:

M'Kechnie Signed As Reds' Manager

N.Y. Times

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—Wilkinsburg Bill McKechnie, one of the most highly regarded managers in major league baseball, last night severed his connection with the Boston Bees and signed a contract with general manager Warren Giles to pilot the Cincinnati Reds for the next two years.

McKechnie's successor at Boston will not be selected, according to Bob Quinn, president of Bees, for perhaps two weeks.

"I want to give the matter a good deal of thought," said Quinn last night in his room at the Hotel Commodore, where the conferences among Quinn, Giles and McKechnie led to the latter's signing.

But it may be stated on the best of authority that the popular Rabbit Maranville, now manager of the Montreal club of the International League, will not get the job.

Stengel Served Under Quinn

The best bet, also on good authority, is that Casey Stengel will be the Boston team's manager in 1938. Quinn admires Stengel's work. Stengel was pilot of the Dodgers when Quinn was general manager of the Brooklyn club before the latter went to Boston.

"Nobody has said a word to me," the popular Stengel declared last night when encountered in press headquarters of the Giants at the Hotel New Yorker. "If any consideration is to be given to me, I tell you honestly I know nothing about it now."

Stengel's statement fits the rapid developments in the Boston situation, Quinn did not know at 11 A.M. yesterday that he would be faced with the necessity of finding a new manager.

"He didn't know it and neither did I," said McKechnie. "And I'll tell you it was a hard decision to make, too. But they offered me money that I couldn't possibly refuse. A fellow has to consider his family, you know."

As to the financial angle, Giles had this to say:

"It's Mr. Crosley's money and I'm just trying to operate the club for him. But he told me: 'If McKechnie is as good as you say he is—get him!' So I got him."

Wanted Three-Year Tenure

It had been understood that McKechnie sought a three-year contract at a yearly salary of $20,000. Since he was given only a two-year document, there is ample reason to believe it calls for a total of at least $50,000.

Congratulations poured in on McKechnie from all sides when he made his appearance in press headquarters at 9 o'clock last night. Comment that a lot could be done with the Cincinnati Club brought a McKechnie grin and the dry reply:

"A lot will have to be done."

McKechnie left at midnight last night for his home in Wilkinsburg, Pa., and said he expected to go to Cincinnati some time next week, depending on just when the world series winds up.

Stengel said he contemplated no conference with Quinn.

How the 'Giant Killers' Celebrated

This is what happened after the opening game of the recent world series of New York which the Yankees took 8-1 from the Giants—Tony Lazzeri (left) who made the only home run of the game, and Joe DiMaggio, who hit sensationally, holding Lefty Gomez, pitching ace, on their shoulders in the Yankee dressing room.

Princeton Shifts Prove Effective

N. Y. Times

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct 12—Princeton's varsity, including four virtual newcomers, scored three late touchdowns against the secondstring combination in an hour and a half of scrimmage under actual game conditions which Coach Fritz Crisler staged on University Field today.

With Brud Harper, who assumed the varsity quarterback post for the first time, and Sophomore Bob Hinchman at right halfback leading the attack, the regulars kept the ball deep in enemy territory. However, it was not until the last half hour under the floodlights that the scoring came.

Fullback Bill Lynch went over twice, once on a brilliant 40-yard dash. A pass from Jim Salsich to Bob Bayer accounted for the last six points. Salsich's hurling, which also paved the way for the first two scores, was a highlight.

Jack White was in uniform, but confined his activities to calling the plays for the varsity and then stepping to the sidelines. Tom Mountain also was present but took no part on the contact work.

In addition to Hinchman and Harper, the newcomers to the varsity line-up were two sophomores, Bob Buerger at right tackle and the flashy Bob Van Lengen at left halfback. Coach Crisler made many substitutions and shifts.

The first hour was devoted to special drill, including blocking for the whole squad and passing for the backs and ends.

Begin Secret Practice

N. Y. Times

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Oct. 12.—After Head Coach Hank Hardwick had gone into a huddle with his aides and decided that unusual steps must be taken in preparing for the Harvard game in the Baltimore Stadium Saturday, secret practice, the first of the season, was ordered this afternoon and will probably be continued during the week.

More than anything else, the Navy fears Harvard's passing attack, led by Oakes, and much of the time this afternoon was given to defensive work against these plays put over by B Squad. The Navy's own attacking plays were also smoothed off.

Bill Ingram, ace halfback of last season, was not in practice, but the medical department holds out some hope that he may be available for Saturday's game. Lem Cooke, who has been showing fine form in all phases of the game, will take his place, with Charley Reimann as alternate running back.

Cooke was picked regardless of Ingram's injury. The significance of this is that the Navy intends to launch a driving attack from the first. Alan McFarland, who has gained moderately, but steadily, in every game, will be the other carrier. Frank Case and Bob Antrim complete the probable starting backfield.

Gen Decisions Mah In 10-Round Bout

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 2—Umio Gen, Korean flyweight from Tokyo, tonight gained a hard-earned decision over Ah Chu Mah, Chinese battler from Hermosillo, Mexico, in a fast and furious 10-round bout here.

Gen, now on a tour of the Pacific Coast, weighed 130 at the start of the bout, while Mah tipped the scales at 128.

Irish And Illini Fight To 0-0 Tie

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Oct. 9.—The Fighting Illini lived up to the glorious tradition of their name with the gridiron upset of the day by holding vaunted Notre Dame to a scoreless tie today in the first game between these teams in thirty-nine years.

There was everything of a surprising nature about the outcome of the battle before a crowd of 45,000. On form, the highly rated invaders from South Bend, Ind., were favored to win, and the result was a personal triumph for 56-year-old Robert Zupke, celebrating his twenty-fifth anniversary as coach at Illinois.

Each team made one serious threat to score in the first half and Illinois made another half-hearted one in the final quarter. In the first period Illinois marched 46 yards to Notre Dame's 14, where the Ramblers held, and Melvin Brewer was called into the game to attempt a place kick from the 21. The boot was short and low and dropped harmlessly in front of the goal posts.

In the second period Notre Dame drove 38 yards to the 12, where the alert Illinois secondary defense broke up three pass attempts.

In the fourth period Brewer attempted unsuccessfully another goal from the field for Illinois, this time from the 44. The ball landed in Captain Andy Puplis's arms on the 10.

With 60 seconds to go, the Irish opened with a bewildering forward-passing attack. Jack McCarthy fired the ball in all directions, hoping ing to find a receiver.

Time and again the Ramblers, frequently substituting teams, started drives, but each time the Green Illinois line held. Klemp and Captain Lowell Spurgeon of Illinois played a brilliant game, with Klemp charging in to break up interference or to knock down passes.

Spurgeon played an outstanding game for Illinois. After a week limping around on crutches because of an injured leg, he turned in an amazing performance.

Fullback Howie Carson, however, outgained him, reeling off 20 yards in six attempts, while Second-Stringer Louis Zontini topped the Notre Dame ball carriers by gaining 40 in eight. Spurgeon threw all of Illinois' passes and his alert defensive play kept the Ramblers' aerial attack from clicking.

Notre Dame outrushed the Illini, with a net yardage from scrimmage of 118 to 40, and compiled ten first downs to five.

The line-up:

Western Grid Reputation On Up Grade

By HOWARD JONES
Member All-American Board of Football

Football supremacy is heading westward again. It may not arrive this year, but early season results indicate that Pacific Coast teams are getting better and that one of them will soon stand out as the nation's tops. When Washington defeated Iowa in the first intersectional game that could give an indication of relative football strength, the resulting Husky 14-0 victory was not considered of great importance because it was not known yet whether or not the Iowans could be taken as truly representative of Middle Western football.

But when Southern California defeated Ohio States, 13-12, recently, the result means something, for the Buckeyes had already defeated Texas Christian and had completely smothered the vaunted attack of Purdue, which was rated in September as a principal Big Ten championship contender with Minnesota and Northwestern.

Coast Lost Prestige

Five or six years ago close football followers were willing to concede that Far West football had the edge on the rest of the country. Those were the days when Southern California was going 26 games without a defeat and only Michigan in the Big Ten was rated as likely opposition for mythical national championship rating.

Then came Stanford defeats in Rose Bowl post-season games by Columbia and Alabama and the rise of Minnesota to power in the Midwest. Other sections of the country all entered claims for the best in football teams and about the only thing one could be sure of was that Far Western gridiron supremacy was over.

Now the signs point to its coming back. Logical choice at this point in the season for the Western standard bearer is California, whose powerhouse eleven has just finished polishing off St. Mary's, Oregon State and Washington State by big scores. However, the Bears on successive Saturdays must meet Southern California, UCLA, Washington, Oregon and Stanford, and one or two of these foes may come up with a surprise, for upsets are already getting common in our part of the country.

Grew 4 Feet Overnight

Generally, the hard, dense plants are very slow in their growth. On the contrary, the softer their tissues the more rapidly they develop. Some plants are astonishing in this respect, and some of the softest ones grow so fast that they can actually perceive the growth.

In France, many years ago, experiments were conducted with bamboo and puff balls. The bamboo was found to grow as much as six inches in a single day, while the puff ball acquired as much bulk overnight as an animal does in ten years. The gigantic lycoperdon sprung from a seed so tiny that it is almost invisible, and between sundown and sunrise this fungus growth attained a diameter of 4 feet.

Williams' Power In Sturdy Group Of Seven Backs

By ALLISON DANZIG

N.Y. Times

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass., Oct. 6.—Charley Caldwell is one of the few football coaches in the East who has remained entrenched at the same post over the span of a decade. Coming to Williams in 1928, when he might easily have been mistaken for a member of his team, and after a brilliant playing career at Princeton, the youthful new occupant of the portfolio of pigskin pedagogy had a striking success from the start.

After a long period of depression and ebbing prestige, Williams enjoyed a revival that rekindled the enthusiasm extant on the campus in the days when Benny Boynton was the hottest thing in the college whirl with the exception of the Purple Cow. For four successive years the boys from the Berkshires carried off the Little Three championship and there was talk that Caldwell might be called back to his alma mater.

Hard Times Set In

But then hard times set in again. The material began to run thin, the boys were inclined to coast on their laurels and rely upon Caldwell's coaching to get them by, and Jack Blott checked in at Wesleyan with the Michigan system and Amherst blossomed out in double wing-backs under Lloyd Jordan.

In 1935 Williams came back with the finest team of Caldwell's regime, throwing a real scare into the Princeton invincibles of that year and yielding a total of only two touchdowns to the other seven opponents met. That made five Little Three titles for the Purple in eight years, and last Fall it would have been six had not Williams failed by the margin of a point to tie Amherst, with the result that the championship was split three ways.

The chances of Williams finishing at the top of the Little Three this year do not look particularly encouraging. The situation here is pretty much the same as at Amherst, with the line still an unknown quantity and most of the strength concentrated in the backfield.

Wesleyan Formidable Rival

On paper Wesleyan, with its heaviest team in years and three outstanding "big league" veterans in Daddario, Bottjer and Holzer, as well as greater reserve strength, looks to be the logical choice. But it is well to remember that Williams has been poison for the Cardinals crushing them 32 to 7 last Fall after they had beaten the Lord Jeffs.

Caldwell was far from satisfied with the showing of his team against Columbia, even though he thinks Lou Little's Lions are good enough probably to take Army, and rates Sid Luckman as one of the deadliest passers he has ever seen in action.

The Purple had not spent enough time with the pass to be in a position to show its hand through the air, for too much work in fundamentals and experimenting in the line has had to be done, so he was not concerned in this respect. It is the scrambled situation up forward that is worrying him and Whoops Snively, his line coach.

The ends are in good hands, just as they are at Amherst, but everywhere else in the line there is a question mark. With Noehren the only experienced center available, Peter McCarthy, 192-pound sophomore back, is being converted this week into a center, to supply more defensive strength, and he will start Saturday if his passing improves.

170-Pound Sophomore Guard

Jay and Harris, veteran guards, have been starting, but Head, a sophomore of 170 pounds, will probably oust one of them, and the 220-pound Baldinger, a senior newcomer who is learning fast and did the best job of the guards against Columbia, or Knowlton, a sophomore who reported late, is likely to win the other berth.

Palmer, veteran 190-pound right tackle, is entrenched in his position, but the other slot is wide open. The sophomore Frost, who impressed with his work against Columbia; Abberley and Silverthorne, each 190 pounds or over, are all in the fight.

Latvis and Phil Stearns are going strong again at the ends. The sophomore Wood, who looks good defensively, and Spang, a brother of Cornell's crack end, are the leading reserves. Woodruff and the sophomore Howard are the other centers and Woodruff would win the starting job if he had more weight.

Behind the line Caldwell has seven good backs. Captain Simmons, a fast, shifty and hardrunning back of 185 pounds, is as good a ball carrier, said his coach, as Williams can ever hope to get. He has been a standout for three years.

Stearns and King Backs

Douglas Stearns and King are also held in high regard, the former as a smart, dependable runner who hits hard, and the latter as a shrewd signal caller, excellent blocker and defensive back. Durrell, who weighs only 140 and whose height is against him on pass defense, completes the starting quartet.

Behind these there are Stradley, who was so brilliant as a sophomore; Seay and Cramer. The latter, a 180-pound sophomore, may win a starting berth in time, and Potter, another sophomore, shows a lot of promise. Bordon, a good blocker and savage tackler of 150 pounds; Nelligan and Kinney are other reserves. Stearns and King do the kicking, and do it well.

204 Crew Candidates Report At Princeton

N.Y. Times

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 4.—Fred Spuhn, recently appointed head coach of crew at Princeton, formally took over as Gordon Sikes' successor this afternoon along the shore of Lake Carnegie, with 204 aspiring Tiger oarsmen reporting for the initial practice of the year.

The turnout, one of the largest Fall squads of recent years, included candidates for four different crews, the varsity, varsity lightweights, and both the heavyweight and 150-pound freshman boats.

Headed by Captan Phil Le Boutillier of New York City, four members of last's first eight and five occupants of the 1936 jayvee shell formed the nucleus of the sixty-two varsity aspirants who checked in today.

Coach Spuhn lost little time in getting his charges on the water, for late in the afternoon six varsity eights took to the lake for an easy four-mile spin.

With thirty-seven 150-pounders on hand, Lightweight Coach Bill Bryan had five makeshift eights on the lake. Both freshman squads were dismissed after conditioning exercises ashore.

Navy Finish Routs Virginia, 40 To 13

N.Y. Times

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Oct. 9.—Winning from Virginia today by 40 to 13, with 21 of its points being scored in the final period, the Navy redeemed a poor start by a driving finishing attack led by Lem Cooke, who established himself as the Navy's outstanding back of the year.

With no score in the first quarter and the half ending even at 7—7, the Navy tallied a touchdown early in the third quarter, but an intercepted pass upon which Gillette sprinted 75 yards and a pass from Male to Gillette put the ball on the Navy's 4, so that Virginia only needed to convert on the touchdown to take the lead.

In this desperate situation the old Navy spirit surged forth. Antrim stopped Gillette as he reached the line, and Wood, Cooke and Powell swarmed in on Dinwiddie so that he lost a yard trying right end. Gillette lost another yard and Lee's pass was grounded over the line and the Navy took the ball on its 20, ending Virginia's sternest threat.

Cooke Sprints 21 Yards

Cooke quick-kicked to Virginia's 20 early in the last session and Powell intercepted Dinwiddie's forward on the latter's 35. The Navy lost 5 on off-side and McFarland punted behind the line. Lynch and Powell blocked Gillette's punt and on the second play Cooke sprinted around Virginia's left end for 21 yards and his third touchdown.

A second tally came when Lynch blocked Sharrott's punt and Gunderson fell on the ball behind the line, and a third when Whitehead also went around end for 8 yards and the final tally, the third in the period. Gunderson added two points and Whitehead another, both by placements.

Cooke passed to Fike for the Navy's first touchdown early in the second quarter and Male tossed to Gillette for Virginia's score a little later in the same period. In the third quarter Cooke tallied both of the touchdowns for the Navy and no points were added. Gillette again counted for Virginia, on a pass from Dinwiddie.

Navy Line Outstanding

Besides the running, passing and kicking of Cooke, the fine blocking and defensive work of Antrim and Franks and the defense of the Navy line, however, constituted, at every stage were points of satisfaction to the Navy contingent.

Virginia, as usual when playing the Navy in recent years, was always dangerous with its boldly planned and well-executed pass plays. The Navy had expected them, but was not entirely successful in stopping them.

Navy (40)		Virginia (13)
L.E.	Fike	Sergeant

Dengis Is Victor In Marathon

By LOUIS EFFRAT

N.Y. Times

PORT CHESTER, N. Y., Oct. 12.—Plodding along steadily for the full distance of 26 miles and 385 yards, Pat Dengis, 37-year-old airplane mechanic from Baltimore, won the thirteenth annual Port Chester marathon today, averaging better than six minutes a mile. He covered the course in 2:33:44.9 the fourth fastest marathon ever run here. It was his second victory in the event.

With seemingly effortless strides Dengis forged to the front at the ten-mile post and once in the van never fell behind. At the finish he was fully a mile ahead of the runner-up, Leslie Pawson, 32-year-old gardener from Pawtucket, R. I. The latter was timed in 2:39:35.

Behind Pawson trailed William Wilson of the Passon A.A. of Philadelphia, in 2:43:15, followed in turn by Augustus Johnson of Alexandria, Va., in 2:44:37, and Willie Pavo Wiklund of the Irish-American A.C., Newark, N. J., in 2:46.06.

Great Rally by Veteran

The "grand-old man" of marathon racing, Clarence DeMar, the Keene (N.H.) school teacher, who will be 50 years old on his next birthday, staged a great rally to finish seventh, less than two minutes behind the sixth man, Cecil R. Hill of Cambridge, Mass.

In all forty-nine faced the starter's gun. In the field were five former victors, including DeMar, Dengis, Pawson, Frank Lalla and Ellison (Tarzan) Brown, last year's winner. Brown, a full-blooded Narragansett Indian and a member of the 1936 American Olympic team as well as the winner of the Boston marathon last year, dropped out after seventeen miles.

Brown incidentally was among the early leaders. He set a bristling pace for the first five miles, during which he matched strides with Pawson and Paul Donato of the Roxbury (Mass.) Boys Club. But Brown dropped back after that and it was evident that he was not in the best of shape.

Moves Into the Lead

Dengis, content to jog along in fifth place for ten miles, came on with a rush and moved to the top of the pack, wih approximately sixteen miles to go. It wasn't long before he pulled away from Pawson and after another mile he had increased his advantage to almost 100 yards. At twelve miles the second man was virtually lost, a half-mile in the rear, with the third man out of sight. Dengis was all by himself at the eighteen-mile mark.

During the final six miles Wilson moved up rapidly to assure himself of third place. Johnson, Wilklund, Hill and DeMar also held their own in the final stages.

A Native of Wales

Dengis is a native of Wales, hailing from the same section of the country that produced Tommy Farr, heavyweight boxing star.

In six Port Chester attempts Dengis now boasts a remarkable record, including two firsts, two seconds and two fourths. He won the 1934 run in 2:31:30. Pawson triumphed in 1935 in 2:37:49, with Dengis second.

Today the team prize went to the United Shoe Machinery A.A. of Cambridge, Mass., which tallied the low total of 12 points. The Irish-American A.C. of Newark was second and the Passon A.A. third.

Princeton Made Profit In Sports

N.Y. Times

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 7.—Princeton University's intercollegiate sports program, providing for forty-two teams in fifteen branches of sport, was operated at a profit of $16,612 for the fiscal year ending last June 30, according to the annual financial report of the Princeton Athletic Association published today in The Alumni Weekly.

In a statement accompanying the report, Asa S. Bushnell, '21, graduate manager of Nassau athletics, points out that the current surplus marks the first time since 1930 that the association has successfully dodged a deficit for two consecutive years.

The 1936-37 surplus, while only a fifth as large as the 1935-36 surplus of $82,252, reduces the accumulated deficit of the association to $78,225, its lowest point since 1931 and far below the 1933 high of $185,471.

Toal revenue for the fiscal year amounted to $344,475, or $26,500 less than the preceding twelve months, with expenses totaling $327,862, $39,000 more than the 1936 figure. Expenditure for the improvement of the university's athletic facilities reached $40,500, $23,500 of which went for a new refrigeration system in the Hobey Baker Memorial Rink.

Gate receipts dropped $20,000 to $235,262. Although football brought in $49,000 less, it still topped the list of sport revenues with $290,020. Track trebled its income, producing $24,243, and baseball jumped appreciably to $5,966.

Columbia Intends No Line-Up Shifts

N.Y. Times

NEW YORK, Oct. 10—Intent on thoroughly familiarizing the Lions with the Army mode of play, Coach Lou Little again sent the Columbia varsity and reserves against the freshmen yesterday at Baker Field in preparation for the contest at West Point.

In a three-and-a-half-hour session, the last hour of which was staged under the floodlights, two varsity elevens alternated on attack and defense against the freshmen, who adhered to Army formations throughout. Coaches Ralph and George Furey and Frank Nobiletti, who scouted the Cadets last week, directed the operations of the freshmen, while Little, Herb Kopf and Sam Cordovano coached the varsity.

The Lions overwhelmed the yearlings both on offense and defense. Their passing attack, both lateral and forward, was especially devastating.

Receivers Break Away

Sid Luckman, Oscar Bonom and John McMahon did the throwing to Art Radvilas, John Siegal, Hub Schulze and Francis Sposato. While not much could be judged from dummy scrimmage, the frequency with which the pass receivers broke into the clear with the ball indicated that the aerial game would receive much attention from the Lions against Army.

The eleven that started against Williams last week very likely will start against the Cadets. The line-up follows: Ends, Radvilas and Siegal; tackles, Bateman and Wright; guards, Pistolas and Waldo; center, Hersey; quarterback, Sposato; halfbacks Luckman and Taylor; fullback, Bonom.

Sposato, a capable sophomore, who has taken the place of George Furey at quarterback, is the only man who did not play against Army last year, although three other sophomores are making strong bids for positions. They are Bernard Sweeney, guard from Little's home town, Leominster, Mass.; Bob Stoltz, fullback and, Vince Gutendorf, quarterback.

Rams in Dummy Scrimmage

While the Fordham first and second teams walked through formations in a dummy scrimmage against each other, Coach Jimmy Crowley ordered a scrimmage for the third team at Fordham Field yesterday afternoon.

An eleven composed of Yudikaitis and Mozzer, ends; Dul and Stanton, tackles; Carlesimo and Petroskas, guards; Plangemann, center; Krywicki, quarterback; Yuravich and Zarik, halfbacks, and Friedgen, fullback, scrimmaged Hugh Devore's cubs for the last half hour of a two-and-one-half-hour practice. The freshman line showed strength and repulsed most of the attacks. With the exception of the two tackles and Mozzer, the third team was composed wholly of sophomores.

In preparation for the Pittsburgh game on Oct. 16, as well as the Waynesburg contest at Randalls Island on Saturday, the first and second stringers worked on timing and individual blocking assignments in rehearsing all their ground and pass plays. A backfield of McKnight, Woitkoski, Granski and Hearn alternated with the sophomore quartet, Fortunato, Kazlo, Holovak and Principe, on offense and defense.

Woitkoski Passes Well

The veterans showed better forward passing form than the sophomores, with Woitkoski and Granski getting off some nice short tosses to the ends. Downfield laterals were added to nearly all pass plays.

For the second successive day Paul Berenzney worked at left tackle with the first line. Joe Bernard, senior right guard, who is just now recovering from a bad head cut received four weeks ago, was installed at right guard. The rest of the line had Wojciechowicz, center; Kochel, left guard; Babartsky, right tackle, and Jacunski and Druze, ends.

Coach Frank Wolf, Assistant Coach Mark Booth and twenty-five Waynesburg players will leave in two buses early today for New York. After a stop at Easton, Pa., tonight, they will arrive at the Capitol Hotel tomorrow night.

No Let-up for Beavers

There was no let-up yesterday in City College's preparation for the important contest with Albright College on Saturday, the Beavers going through a lengthy line scrimmage at Lewisohn Stadium. Coach Benny Friedman had the backs rehearsing several new plays while defensive tactics against a probable aerial attack also were stressed.

During the contact work, co-captain and guard Bill Silverman and reserve tackle William Burrell excelled. The latter probably will see action in the coming game.

The City College mentor, toward the close of the session, reminded his charges that Albright had been defeated only twice in the past two years and that last week it crushed Geneva by 20—0.

Ace Of Yankees Infield To Get Managerial Job

NEW YORK.—Acting on the belief that Tony Lazzeri has a chance to sign with a "major league club either as a coach or as assistant manager," the Yankees announced that they had given their veteran and star second baseman his unconditional release.

The release, which was granted in the form of a letter addressed to Lazzeri's home in Millbrae, Calif., stated that all the other clubs in the American and National Leagues had waived claim to his services, thereby leaving Tony free to make whatever connection he chooses and wishing him the best of luck.

What this connection might be, however, Business Manager Ed Barrow, who released copies of the letter to the press, said he was not at liberty to reveal, as the information he had received on Tony's chance to better himself had been given in "strict confidence."

Mentioned for Two Posts

Lazzeri, who left for his home in California Tuesday night, could not be reached to shed light on what the future holds for him. The ace of the Yankee infield, who startled his friends more than a month ago with the announcement he expected to retire from baseball this year if he made no managerial connections, has frequently been mentioned as a possible successor to Steve O'Neill in Cleveland or to Bill McKechnie with the Boston Bees following the latter's shift to the Reds.

Colonel Ruppert's letter, sent by air mail, follows:

My dear Tony:

We have received word from a reliable source that you have a chance to sign with a major league club either as a coach or as assistant manager. With this in mind, the New York club is hereby granting you your unconditional release. All American and National League clubs have waived claim to your services.

While we are taking this step with keen regret, we are doing it in keeping with the promise we made to you some time ago, in appreciation of your long and faithful service.

Wherever your future endeavors may lead, please believe that the best wishes of the Yankee organization and myself will follow you.

As soon as this letter reaches you, please wire acknowledgment.

With every good wish for your health and happiness of your family and yourself, I remain

Sincerely yours,
JACOB RUPPERT, President.

Starred In World Series

The Yankees' action came as a distinct surprise inasmuch as it had been felt that Tony, on the strength of his brilliant showing in the recent world series when he led both teams at bat with a mark of .400, had been induced to reconsider his decision and would consent to string along another year under Manager Joe McCarthy.

A veteran of six successful Yankee pennant campaigns and a vital factor in five world series triumphs, Lazzeri brings to a close a brilliant career in New York, spanning two of the greatest teams baseball has ever seen.

Born in San Francisco Dec. 6, 1904, Tony made his professional debut in 1922 with Salt Lake City, from which club he was purchased by the Yankees at the close of the 1925 season.

The following Spring he became the Yanks' regular second baseman and with Mark Koenig, obtained at the same time, formed a keystone combination that was to help the late Miller Huggins win his second group of three straight pennants, from 1926 to 1928, inclusive.

Costly Strikeout Recalled

Tony's first taste of world series warfare was a bitter one, for in the seventh game of the 1926 battle with the Cardinals old Grover Alexander, ambling from the bullpen as relief hurler, fanned Lazzeri in the seventh inning with the bases full.

But in the years that followed Tony made ample atonement. Developing into one of the game's shrewdest second basemen, he became almost automatically the man to take "charge" of the Yankee infield and played a prominent part in the grand slam series victories of 1927, 1928 and again in 1932.

This year he again gave evidences of slipping, and when in August he chipped a bone in his finger while catching a pop fly he announced this probably would be his last season as an active player and that he hoped to land a managerial job. Up to last Spring he had enjoyed a lifetime batting average in the majors of .297. His top mark was .354 in 1929. But this year he hit only .242.

His passing from the Yanks now leaves only Gehrig and Bill Dickey, who came in 1928, and Combs, now a coach, as survivors of the Huggins regime.

No Basketball for DiMaggio

Business Manager Barrow also revealed that the Yankees had put a definite ban on any plans Joe DiMaggio may have entertained for displaying his talents as a basketball player this Winter. Barrow pointed out the Yanks' "wonder player" has a weak knee and that the court game is entirely too hazardous.

Bears Score, 10-4, For Fourth In Row

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Oct. 6.—Newark's Bears, winners of the International League pennant by a 25½ game margin, defeated the Columbus Red Birds, 10 to 4, tonight for their fourth straight victory to capture the little world series, four games to three.

Losers of the first three games played on the New Jersey diamond, the Bears appeared almost certain to drop the series as the teams trekked west for the concluding contests, but they allowed the American Association champions a total of six runs in the four contests here and walked away with the laurels.

Thus the Bears maintained their record of never having lost a game away from home in the minor league classic, and captured their second title in as many starts. In 1932, they dropped two of three at home to Minneapolis, but swept the first three at the Millers' lot to win.

Invaders Hit Hard

Five Columbus hurlers, including the team's top quartet, were unable to halt a thirteen-hit barrage, the blows including four doubles, a triple and Gleeson's home run. Joe Beggs started on the hill for Newark, but gave way to Pat Page, recent acquisition from Kansas City, in the fourth as the Birds scored their first two runs

Page did a neat bit of relief hurling, allowing three hits the rest of the way. One was a home run by Johnny Rizzo, in the last inning.

Despite the loss of the first three games, the Bears showed greater power than the Birds. The Easterners collected 40 runs while the Birds were getting 22, 16 in the first three contests.

Charley Keller, Newark right fielder and the International League's leading batter, led the series in hitting with an average of .478, getting eleven safeties in twenty-three trips. Enos Slaughter, Red Bird outfielder and the association's top batsman, got only five hits in twenty-seven attempts for .185.

Macon Escapes Assault

The pitchers used by Columbus tonight, Potter, McGee, Macon, Chambers and Heusser, won sixty-four and lost only forty-two games during the regular season, but Macon, who faced and retired two batters, was the only one who escaped the Newark assault.

Potter was blasted from the hill in the third as the Bears scored their third run, and McGee took over. He stayed until the sixth when Macon came in to halt a three-run rally. Chambers pitched the next two, and Heusser finished.

Keller led the assault, scoring three runs, driving in three others, and getting three hits, two of them doubles, in four trips to the plate. Stein and Ankenman paced the Red Bird attack with two hits each, Stein getting a single and double and Ankenman beating out two infield rollers. Rizzo's homer in the final frame was the only other extra base hit for the Birds.

The defeat gave Columbus a record of two triumphs and two defeats in four little world series. Tonight's attendance was 3,875.

Major Upsets Feature Week's College Games

via Mackay Radio

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 6—Alabama's Crimson Tide rolled along today toward the 1937 national football championship, the only undefeated and untied major eleven in the United States.

Two stunning upsets dropped California and Nebraska out of the running.

Golden Bears Tied

Washington battled the Golden Bears to a scoreless tie at Berkeley. Lowly Kansas played a 13 to 13 tie with Nebraska. The Cornhuskers, conquerors of Minnesota, had previously been tied by Oklahoma.

Alabama scored its seventh consecutive victory, a 9 to 6 win over Tulane. The Greenies came closer to winning over the Tuscaloosa team than any of the others, but a field goal late in the game broke the 6 to 6 tie and preserved an untarnished record.

In the East, Yale and Pittsburgh continued along the path of the unbeaten. Each has been tied once. Yale had an easy time with Brown, winning 19 to 0.

Pittsburgh, playing Notre Dame in an intersectional invasion at South Bend, crushed the Irish, 21 to 6.

California's scoreless tie with Washington left Pacific Coast fans gasping. This year's edition of the Golden Bears has been touted as equal to the "wonder teams" of a decade ago. It has rolled up heavy scores against six opponents, and had its own goal line crossed but twice. The Huskies punctured the bubble today. Unable to come close to scoring, themselves, they dug in and defended their own territory and came away with the biggest "moral victory" in the Far West.

No less surprising to the Middle West was Nebraska's deadlock with Kansas. The latter has had an indifferent season, losing to Wichita Michigan State, while Nebraska, with one of the strongest teams in its history, had led off with a 14 to 9 win over Minnesota, and seemed headed for an unbeaten season.

Penn State Scores

Major Eastern games saw Penn State chalk up a 7 to 0 victory over Pennsylvania in one of the "traditionals" of the season. Harvard lost a close one, 6 to 7, to Army while the Navy hammered out a 13 to 6 victory over Columbia's strong defensive team.

Illinois retrieved some glory, lost last week in a defeat at Michigan's hands, scoring a surprising 6 to 0 victory over Northwestern. Indiana recorded a minor upset, defeating Ohio State, 10 to 0.

In the South, Duke crushed Wake Forest, 67 to 0. Except for a scoreless tie with Tennessee, Duke's record is clean. Mississippi won easily over George Washington, 27 to 6. Kentucky crushed South Carolina 27 to 7. Georgia Tech won a close one, 7 to 0, from Clemson.

Aerial Defenses Reshaped By Yale

N. Y. Times

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 13.—Yale today began preparations for the Cornell game Saturday in the Bowl. Every regular reported and the team had a signal drill in which moves designed to take advantage of Cornell's most vulnerable points were made.

No first string player displayed a sign of injury and Head Coach Ducky Pond tonight reiterated his plan of using against the Ithacans the exact alignment that subdued Army last Saturday. Even Bill Moody, reserve end, whose hand was split ten days ago, was in uniform and took light practice.

Pond said that the regulars would have strenuous practice tomorrow and Wednesday. He admitted his plans call for defensive work against Cornell plays as reported by the Yale scouting party and tried out today by the scrubs in a scrimmage against the varsity substitutes.

Pass Defense Flaws Shown

Yale's weakness against Army forward passes did not damage the Elis' cause because Cadet receivers fumbled. The defensive scheme for forwards was transformed today and the new system will be tested in two days of actual play.

In today's scrimmage Gil Humphrey ran the reserve backfield, which included Eddie Collins Jr., Bill Snavely, Bill Albinger, Don Henry and Sam Dils. In the line were Bill Stack, center; Hemingway, Wood and Caricciolo, guards; Willard, Taylor, Starbuck and MacQuiggan, tackles, and Dyess, Smith and Bromkley, ends.

Ithacans Work on Punts

N.Y. Times

ITHACA, N. Y., Oct. 13.—Coach Carl Snavely sent his Cornel gridiron players through practice in the rain today. They brushed up on phases of the game in which they showed flaws against Syracuse last Saturday so that these may be eliminated in the Yale contest.

Two punts were carried back against the Red for touchdowns on successive week-ends—by Jack White of Princeton and Marty Glickman of Syracuse—and Snavely has ordered much work on defending against such occurrences. Elliot Hooper was back kicking and the rest of the varsity squad ran down by fours to tackle freshman receivers.

Signals were rehearsed thoroughly and the lights burned late on the practice field as every detail was gone over. The varsity took the offensive through the latter part of a skirmish against the Cubs while the seconds were learning offensive and defensive tactics against Jim Tatum's "Yale" team.

Peck Shuns Hard Work

George Peck, who was thought to be out for the season with a chipped vertebra and who later admitted he was injured before the Princeton game, was out exercising but did not work hard. Neither did Captain Ted Hughes, center, who has had a bad knee. Snavely is not counting on either for service at the Yale Bowl.

College Body To Cut A.A.U. Power

CHICAGO, Oct. 18—The National Collegiate Athletic Association, seeking a show-down on an old controversy with the Amateur Athletic Union, petitioned today for adoption of an amendment giving colleges control of American Olympic teams in four sports—track, crew racing, swimming and wrestling.

The amendment, drafted by the executive committee of the N. C. A. A. and filed with Frederick Rubien, secretary of the American Olympic Association, by Major John Griffith, president of the college group, provides for reapportionment of representation on Olympic committees in those four sports. It will come up for action at the meeting of the Olympic association in Washington Nov. 17.

A. A. U. Now in Majority

Specifically, the amendment asks that three of the five members of the crew committee and five of nine members on the track, wrestling and swimming committees be college representatives. At present the A. A. U. control these sports with nine of the thirteen members on each committee.

Two-thirds of approximately 500 votes will be necessary for adoption of the amendment.

Chief among the arguments presented by the N. C. A. A. for adoption of the amendment is its contention that 99 per cent of the athletes, points won and championships earned in the Olympic Games have been provided by the colleges and that the colleges financed these teams.

Griffith Explains Stand

"We do not seek control of the Olympic committee," said Major Griffith. "We only desire to protect ourselves against the wrong sort of of man being placed in charge of the teams which we develop and finance for Olympic competition.

"We are unconcerned over whether these men are A.A.U. representatives or college men; we are concerned only whether they are the proper type men to represent American colleges and be in charge of American college athletes."

The colleges contend that thirty years ago, when athletic clubs were the most important factor in amateur athletics, there was reason for A.A.U. control. They insist that now, however, with 30,000,000 boys and girls enrolled in various educational institutions equipped to promote athletics, the situation is changed.

Simultaneously with announcement of the N.C.A.A.'s action it became known that the Southern Pacific Association of the A.A.U. has asked that the national body surrender control of Olympic teams to the colleges.

BOSTON, Oct. 12.—Gil Dobie's Boston College Eagles and Glenn Warner's Huskies from Temple University fought to a scoreless tie at Fenway Park before a crowd of 27,500 today. The Eagles put up so stubborn a defense that their goal line was never really threatened, although the Bostonians got a break in the second quarter when a Berrier to Lukac to Kovacewicz combination of forward pass and lateral, which carried the ball to Boston's 5-yard line was lost because a Warner player had been offside.

The Eagles had three scoring chances, but were held for downs on Temple's 18, 30 and 3. In the second half the Eagles made two drives of more than 50 yards. On their second journey they reached the three on fourth down, but the chance to win the game by means of a field goal was disregarded, and then the final Boston running play was smothered.

The two lines were evenly matched, although at times the Eagles made good gains on a well developed short side play which was successful until the final drive to the Temple goal line.

Tackling Is Fierce

Neither team showed a finished forward passing game, but all the way through the tackling was of November fierceness. The feature of the game was the kicking of Di Natale of Boston College and Kovacewicz and Baker of Temple. All three got away several kicks of 55 yards or better, measured from the line of scrimmage, but the down field work, even under these long drives, was uniformly good.

Although the Eagles won the toss and took advantage of the strong wind, they were soon on the defensive. The playing zone was quickly shifted when Jivelekian dropped Kovacewicz's punt which was made immediately after Temple had received the kick-off. Mooney recovered for Warner's team at midfield.

Temple gained little and Kovacewicz twice punted to the Eagles' 3, where DiNatale made fine kicks when standing in his own end zone. At the end of the period, DiNatale with the ball on the Eagles' 20, made a magnificent boot of 83 yards to within 12 yards of Temple's goal.

Kovacewicz was then pressed when he punted and the Eagles received the ball only 31 yards from the visitors' goal. Just at the end of the period DiNatale completed a short forward pass on the 20.

However, when the teams changed ends two Eagle forwards failed and Temple took the ball on downs. There was no other scoring threat in the first half, although at the finish of the third period Temple made a midfield gain of nearly 40 yards on eight plays, the last of which was on Baker's forward pass to Berrier, who could not break free.

Both Teams Are Offside

Earlier, with the ball on the Eagles' 40, Berrier passed to Lukac, who in turn lateraled to Kovacewicz, the latter racing to the Eagles' 5, but this play, the feature of the first half, was called back because both teams had been offside.

In the second half Baker replaced Kovacewicz in the Temple backfield and did the kicking. Short midfield advances by the Pennsylvanians marked the action until the Eagles got under way after seven minutes of play. A 25-yard run by DiNatale put B. C. across the middle of the field. The Boston quarterback was free except for Mike Lukac, playing safety. Lukac jumped for DiNatale and just caught his foot. Bismark then completed a forward pass, but the advance ended with Temple taking the ball on downs after the Eagles had marched more than 50 yards.

Shortly after the start of the final period the Eagles got the ball on their own 45 and Horsfal, Guinea and Bismark plowed along for three successive first downs. On the journey Flynn recovered the ball on a Bismark fumble. After a first down on the 7-yard line one short forward was completed, but Temple for the third time braced and took the ball on downs only 3 yards from its goal line.

DETROIT, Oct. 17—The Detroit Lions romped to their fourth victory this season today by swamping the Brooklyn Dodgers, 30 to 0. [illegible] their best attack of the season, the Lions had no difficulty in completely routing the team coached by their former mentor, Cecil (Policy) Clark, as 21,000 looked on.

Vernon Huffman, former Indiana star, made one of the longest runs in the history of professional football when he intercepted a pass thrown by Reno Nori on the Lions goal line and raced 100 yards for a score in third period.

Long runs also figured in other tallies. In the first period Ernie Caddel, on a reverse play, ran 47 yards for a touchdown.

Monahan Kicks Field Goal

Early in the second quarter Regis Monahan, substitute guard, place-kicked a field goal from the Dodger 20. Later in the same session Detroit staged a long march that was climaxed when Bill Shepherd crashed over from the 4. Charles Hanneman, substitute end, scored the third touchdown near the end of the second period on a 50-yard end-around play.

Brooklyn had its only scoring chance when it carried a sustained attack to the Detroit 7 in the third quarter.

Lions Gain More Ground

Only the splendid kicking of Ralph Kercheval kept the Dodgers from suffering further humiliation. Kercheval got off one great punt of 70 yards and exceeded 55 with several others.

The Lions confined almost all of their efforts to the ground. They gained 270 yards by rushing, in contrast to 50 by the Dodgers.

Except for their third period bid, the Dodgers never threatened. Completely balked on the ground, they tried unsuccessfully to pass to a score, attempting 23 aerials and completing nine for 81 yards.

The victory left Detroit as the runner-up for the National League's Western division title, but Brooklyn dropped from a tie for second place to third in the East.

The Singing Lake

The Lagoon of Batticaloa presents one of the most exotic phenomena of any tropical body of water. At nightfall the lagoon begins to hum, the song growing clearer as the night advances. On moonlight nights the song of the lake increases in intensity and is like a great army singing in the depth. No other body of water in the world can compare with it. There is no clear explanation of this phenomenon.

Cornell Routs Princeton In 2d Half, 20-7

By J. P. ABRAMSON

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 9—The Big Red of Cornell is on a long-awaited campaign of vengeance, wreaking tribute for past indignities. Slaughtered by Princeton three straight years, the sensational football team from Ithaca ran over the men from Nassau, 20 to 7, before 40,000 in Palmer Stadium today in their twenty-sixth meeting.

Disguised in white, the Cornellians were a happy revelation to thousands upon thousands of their loyal alumni from the metropolitan area who stormed into this mid-Jersey college town to see for themselves if this new team of theirs was as all-powerful as it seemed to be after the stunning triumph over Colgate.

They had to wait until the second half this bleak, chilly afternoon to see Cornell assert its tremendous mastery. Bottled up deep in their own territory by the spirited play of an inexperienced Princeton team that had four sophomore in the line, Cornell roused itself to a scoring march of fifty-three yards after intercepting a pass early in the second quarter, missed the point after touchdown and yielded the lead within four minutes to the home team on Jack White's thrilling 50-yard scoring return of a punt and Eddie Givens' successful conversion.

Ithacans Take Command

And so Princeton, with little on the attacking side except its swift punt catchers, who were an unending source of danger, led the heralded Cornell eleven by a point going into the second half. But here the Ithacans took complete command. They rolled up and down the field almost at will. Their line mopped up the earnest, yet outclassed Tiger forwards; their blockers roared down the field ahead of the ball-carriers and mowed down the secondary; they slammed off the tackles and whipped around the ends with precise attacking thrusts, overpowering, hoodwinking and outrunning the Princeton foe.

Yet, Princeton may consider it did an adequate job under the circumstances in holding this Cornell powerhouse to one touchdown in each of the last two quarters. The touchdown that was decisive came in the first five minutes of the third period on an eighty-eight-yard run from scrimmage in which George Peck, on a first down play, swept outside Princeton's right tackle, cut back through the middle behind three blockers, tore loose from two tacklers at midfield and tossed a lateral to omnipresent White Baker, sophomore wonder, who went the rest of the way down the east sideline in a hair-raising run.

Cornel kept storming goalward the rest of the day, stalling on the 22, 19 and 19-yard lines through the gritty defense of the harried Princeton team. Then the Red force intercepted a desperation pass and marched twenty-six yards to its last score in the last two minutes as Ted Rose, the fullback, rammed over on a half spin buck from the 1-yard line. He added both Cornell points after touchdown.

Reds To Pay Pilot $25,000 And Bonus

CINCINNATI, Oct. 14—Bill McKechnie today signed a two-year contract as manager of the National League's last-place Reds and, with a guarantee of $25,000 annually plus a bonus, became, officials said, the third highest-paid skipper in the majors.

"But I am no miracle man," warned the genial Pennsylvanian, asserting he had turned down two "better offers" in order to affiliate with Warren Giles, Reds' general manager and his friend for fifteen years.

Giles introduced McKechnie to city officials, club directors and newspaper men at a luncheon. He said he felt the contract figure should be made public "because of certain statements by people who think they know it all."

Conditions of Bonus

He did not explain further but declared a $5,000 bonus would be paid annually to the new manager should the Reds' 1938 home attendance maintain the club average of 450,000 or the club finish in the first division.

Giles said he knew of only two other team pilots receiving a larger salary—Bill Terry of the Giants at $40,000 a year and Joe McCarthy of the Yanks, who yesterday signed a three-year contract at $35,000 annually.

"It will take a cyclone to keep Bill from getting $30,000 a year," said Giles.

"And," responded McKechnie, "it may take more than a cyclone to make the Reds pennant winners. Don't expect it. I won't predict it. I'll merely say that we'll finish higher than the Reds did this year."

Confidence in Traynor Voiced

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 14—Harold J. (Pie) Traynor, an old Buccaneer himself, will guide the Pirate brig again next year. President William E. Benswanger of the Steel City's baseball club announced today Traynor had signed a contract to manage the National League team in 1938.

Traynor was one of the best third basemen in the big leagues as a Pittsburgh player from 1920 until his retirement from active play two years ago. He said when he was 35 and he succeeded George Gibson as manager in June, 1934, that he would "keep on plugging until I bring a pennant winner to Pittsburgh." He still has to achieve that ambition.

The mild-mannered man who got his nickname because of a boyhood fondness for apple pie brought his club home in fifth place that season and landed fourth in 1935 and 1936. The team finished third this year.

Fans generally agreed that the long string of victories chalked up by the Bucs late in the season virtually clinched Traynor's job.

"The owners of the Pittsburgh club have the fullest confidence in Traynor and believe that, everything considered, he has done a very creditable job," Benswanger said.

German Net Stars To Participate In All-Japan Tourney

Special to The Japan Times

Yanks' Pilot Signs At $35,000 A Year

By JOHN DREBINGER

Setting what both parties to the transaction doubtless hope will be an admirable example for their ball players next Spring, Marse Joe McCarthy, head man of the world champion Yankees, and his employer, Colonel Jacob Ruppert, lost little time yesterday coming to terms on a new contract to take the place of the one that expired this season.

They conferred a few minutes after which Ed Barrow, business manager of the organizations, announced that Marse Joe had signed for three years at a salary of $35,000 a season.

Inasmuch as this is the sade figure McCarthy has been receiving, the increase which the Yankee pilot was expected to get for his latest achievement apparently was confined to a lengthening of the contract. The document which has just expired was only for two seasons.

Marse Joe Is Satisfied

McCarthy himself, however, expressed himself completely satisfied with the terms, although in local baseball circles considerable surprise was expressed that Marse Joe did not succeed in getting a substantial financial boost as well as a longer term. In fact, it had been felt McCarthy might even be elevated to the post of being the highest salaried manager in base ball.

That distinction still remains with Bill Terry, pilot of the vanquished Giants who, before the close of the season, was signed to a new five-year contract calling for $40,000 a year.

In a way, however, McCarthy is actually the highest paid pilot inasmuch as the Yankees do not demand as much work from their manager as do the Giants of Terry. For in the Yankee organization are two other highly paid officials. Barrow, the business manager, and George Weiss, director of the club's minor league activities, who lighten the load considerably.

Terry, for the Giants, directs all these matters himself and virtually conducts the club's baseball affairs right down to their minutest detail.

Never Played in Majors

Marse Joe, the man who never played a game of ball in the majors, has been with the Yankees seven years and in that period has achieved phenomenal success, winning three American League pennants and three world championships and finishing no worse than second in the four other campaigns.

Add to this the distinction of being the only manager ever to win pennants in both major leagues and the fact that he piloted the American League forces to a smashing victory this year in the All-Star game, the honors that have fallen to him are quite without parallel in baseball.

Known only as "that fellow who has been doing right well with Louisville," McCarthy made his debut in the majors in 1926 when the Cubs appointed him as manager of a team that had finished the previous season a hopeless tailender. In the first season he had the Cubs fourth and though in the subsequent four campaigns he won only one National League pennant, his team was always a strong contender and never outside the first division.

Successor to Shawkey

He was released at the close of the 1930 season to make way for the elevation of Rogers Hornsby, but he remained out of employment only a few days. The Yankees, who for that year had named Bob Shawkey to succeed the late Miller Huggins, signed McCarthy at once.

His affairs for the past season completed with the signing of his new contract, McCarthy will leave for his home in Buffalo this morning for a long rest. He plans, however, to return to the city before the major league December meetings which this year will be held in Chicago.

The Yankees yesterday also revealed that they had obtained from Tony Lazzeri consent to reconsider his announcement of a short time ago that he would retire unless he obtained a managerial berth.

The veteran second baseman, one of the sensations of the recent world series, is now en route to his home in San Francisco, and while the Yanks would not stand in his way of a promotion, McCarthy has assured Tony that his old job will be waiting for him next Spring if nothing better develops.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Oct. 16—Dartmouth ran rough-shod over Brown, 41 to 0, today. The Indians tallied 7 points each in the second and fourth periods, 14 in the first and 13 in the third, and held the Bruins completely at bay. A crowd of 12,000 watched.

Brown's nearest approach to the goal was the Indian 30-yard line and that threat came late in the game when the invaders were using many reserves. Brown reached the Dartmouth 42 and 48 in the third period, then got to the 30 in the final quarter when Hull was forced to kick from the end zone after a penalty had put Dartmouth back on her goal line.

Employing the single-wingback formation from which a group of hard-running backs operated behind great blocking, Dartmouth took command in the opening moments. Repulsed in an attempt to strike through the air, Dartmouth came with a rush midway through the period and marched 54 yards in ten running plays. Bill Hutchinson scored over right guard from the 6.

Hutchinson Scores Again

Five plays later, the Indians were on their way again. With the Green marching and passing 43 yards, Hutchinson scored again, this time from the 12 through left tackle.

Bob MacLeod, Hutchinson and Fred Hollingworth raced through the tackles and around the ends or straight power plays to cut the remnants of the Bruin defense to pieces. The best Brown could do was hold the threatening Indians to comparatively small gains during the first march, but 37 yards were covered in three plays of the second drive.

Dartmouth scored in the second period on two pass plays, the first an interception of Atwell's aerial by Gates on the Brown 37 that was carried back to the 16. The touchdown pass was from Hollingworth to Warren King, waiting in the end zone for the perfectly thrown ball.

Forwards also provided two touchdowns in the third period as the Indians disdained to run the ball. Midway through the period, Hollingworth tossed to MacLeod on his 33 and MacLeod dashed 67 yards to score, shaking off Atwell's tackle around his shoulders.

Feeley Recovers Fumble

Atwell fumbled on the Brown 24 on the play following the next kick-off. Feeley recovered, and another Hollingworth-to-King pass of 24 yards scored. King was waiting on the Brown 3 and crossed untouched.

With reserves in the Dartmouth line-up in the final period, Brown advanced to the Indian 30, where a series of passes fell incomplete. Dartmouth bided her time and after Colby Howe had intercepted Hall's pass on the Indian 45 launched another smashing drive. Buford Hayden skirted the Brown right end for 37 to place the ball on the 4 and two plays later Howe scored from the 1-foot line.

John McLaughey received a broken nose on the first play and lasted the entire game despite the injury. He has played every minute in Brown's four games.

95-Yard Dash By Frontczak Helps Cadets

By STANLEY WOODWARD

WEST POINT, N. Y., Oct. 9—A ninety-five-yard run by a blocking back, plus three accurate place kicks after touchdown, enabled the Army football team to come from behind and beat Columbia, 21 to 18, this afternoon.

The 20,000 who saw it dragged themselves out of Michie Stadium without the strength to slap a kitten, for in the course of sixty minutes enough happened to fill six volumes of Burt L. Standish and to make the wildest pipe dreams of the scenarists seem pale.

Neither side was able to score two touchdowns in a row. First Columbia scord, then Army, then Columbia, then Army. This brings us to the third period and the Cadet Corps in the low west stand was howling with joy as Woodrow Wilson slammed over the goal line for the second Army touchdown, and Arthur Frontczak, the yearling, placekicked the point which put Army ahead, 14 to 12.

Luckman Dashes Eighty Yards

The joy was brief. Sid Luckman, one of the greatest players in football on this day, caught the next kick-off on his own 20-yard line, ran straight up a "funnel" of blockers to midfield, then broke loose, veered to the left and ran away from pursuit for eighty yards and Columbia's third touchdown. Now the score was 18 to 14.

Not five minutes later Columbia had the ball on Army's 27-yard line through Oscar Bonom's interception of an Army pass. On third down, with seven yards still to go, Luckman faded back and cut loose a long heave intended for Johnny Siegal on the Army 5-yard line Siegal jumped and the ball glanced off his fingers.

Frontczak caught it on the 2-yard line before it touched the ground and came whooping along the west sideline in front of the ecstatic Cadet Corps. At midfield he seemed to be headed off, but he slowed down to let blockers erase two incipient Columbia tacklers and then cut diagonally across the field as Army blockers, appearing from everywhere, mowed the Lions down.

Caught on 3-Yard Line

Frontczak didn't go all the way. Ultimately Art Radvilas got him with a long diving tackle. But when he got up off the ball it was on the Columbia 3-yard line and he had covered ninety-five yards of territory. Two shots at the Columbia line, the last by Jim Schwenk, the powerful fullback, put over the touchdown and settled the issue.

No one could know it was settled, however, for the Columbia team summoned the courage to try once again. With Luckman throwing the ball, the Lions advanced to the Army 18-yard line. The last play of the game was a pass aimed at Art Radvilas on the Army goal-line. He and Charley Long jumped for it as the field judge's watch clicked the last second. Long got it and there you are.

Even in defeat Luckman dominated the game. Playing fifty-eight minutes and taking a murderous beating from the Army rushers all afternoon, he completed eighteen of thirty-four passes, two of them to Siegel for touchdowns. He was Columbia's best ground-gainer from scrimmage, he fielded punts, kicked, blocked and tackled. And at the end he was still going strong. Every time he made a move the Cadet Corps gasped.

Army Runs Pile Up Yards

To attempt to sort out the rest of the day's valorous transactions in their proper logical order would be a job for a general court martial. Army, largely because of the running of the powerhouse Jim Craig, rolled up 235 overland yards to Columbia's 77, but Luckman's eighteen successful passes advanced the ball 202 yards for Columbia.

The Army forward line, big, rough and willing, had it on the stubby, if valiant Columbia submariners. But not one could have more than a shimmering hope that his personal champions would come up with the bacon. But let's take it up chronologically.

"BELIEVE IT OR NOT"---by Ripley

The Great Train Robbery

The 150-mile railway line from Cluj to Jakobeny, Rumania, was built during the World War in 1917, at tremendous cost.

Eight years after it was completed the Government reported, not a little bewildered, that the whole railway line, rolling stock, stations, track, sheds and all had apparently been stolen by one or a number of "sneak" thieves. That is the "grandest" larceny on record.

Reich Net Stars Down Japanese By 3 To 2 Score

Perfect autumnal weather prevailed from early morning Wednesday and the third and final day's matches of the German-Japanese tennis tournament, postponed for two days on account of rain, were finally pulled off at the Yomiuri's stadium, built especially at Denyen-chofu for the visit last year of William T. Tilden and Ellsworth Vines.

Baron Gottfried von Cramm, world's No. 2 amateur ranking player, defeated Fumiteru Nakano by 7-5, 6-3, 3-6 and 6-1. But Jiro Yamagishi, Japan's top ranking player, took the measure of Henner Henkel, the Baron's Davis Cup team-mate and considered world's No. 3 amateur, 6-4, 6-4, 4-6 and 7-5. The result was that the team split in the singles and the Germans finally won, 3-2.

In special exhibition matches, Miss Mary Luise Horn, Germany's No. 1 woman star, teamed with Miss Harada and defeated Miss Yamagishi and Mrs. Matsudaira, 6-1 and 6-3, while Baron von Cramm and Henkel beat Yamagishi and Murakami, 6-4 and 6-3.

Nakano Plays Well

Chief interest Wednesday was how much of a battle could Nakano, who on Sunday had upset the dope by beating Henkel, put up against the great Baron. The Japanese junior member of this year's Davis Cup team played above his head and gave the German ace a real battle. As a matter of fact, he had just as much speed as his opponent in their driving duel. Both his forehand and backhand were functioning excellently and he showed tremendous improvement. But he displayed a weakness on his second service and was apt to doublefault at critical stages of the game.

Those who saw the Baron down Yamagishi at Osaka were of the opinion that he was not at the top of his game Wednesday, but he nevertheless gave a beautiful exhibition of volleying and recovery of passing shots.

It was a nip and tuck struggle during the first three sets but when it came to the fourth, Nakano began showing the after-effects from playing a world champion. Not a game went to deuce and the Baron assumed a 5-0 lead in no time and took the set with ease in 6-1.

Not excepting the Baron, Yamagishi's play was the outstanding of the day. His accurate ground stroke had the coming tennis luminary, Henkel, yet only 22 years old, running from one end of the court to the other to go through the sets a comparatively easy winner. The Japanese took the first set rather impressively and the German never proved able to break through Yamagishi's lead.

Yamagishi Stars

Yamagishi was in splendid form in the first and second sets and won them to lead 2-0. He led 4-2 in the third. Then it was 4-3 and 5-3 but he lost a point and it was 4-4. He was within game point again but this time it was Henkel who led 4-5.

Yamagishi was within grasp of a point to make it 5-all but he lost it and Henkel took the set, 6-4.

Henkel led 3-1 in the third set but Yamagishi rallied and took the next four games to forge into a 5-3 lead. Henkel rallied to win the next two for a 5-all count. Yamagishi, with the score 30-0 against him, broke through Henkel's service and led 6-5. Then he won his own service and finished a winner, 7-5, to beat Henkel.

Giants' Power Grinds Down Eagles, 21 To 0

Chicago Tribune

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—Working smoothly behind a big, hard charging line, two sets of New York Giant backs swept to three touchdowns and a 21 to 0 victory over the Philadelphia Eagles today before a crowd of 28,000 at the Polo Grounds.

The Giants' home debut was impressive. Bolstered by Ed Widseth and others, the line outcharged and outmaneuvered the Eagles, who came to town fresh from a victory over the Washington Red Skins. King Richards, Hank Soar, and Ed Danowski made the touchdowns.

Giants Score Early

The crowd was hardly settled when the Giants' offense went to work with Tuffy Leemans and Richards carrying the ball the home team marched 70 yards for the first score after taking the kickoff. Richards slammed off tackle for this touchdown.

The Giants' second team, led by Soar, had another touchdown in the next period. After gaining over land and in the air to the 11 yard line Ed Danowski shot a pass to Soar in the end zone for the second score. The pass ended a 67 yard offensive.

Eagles' Attack Stalls

The Eagles tried vainly to come back. Strong in midfield with Smukler and Mort Mortell doing heavy duty the attack stalled inside the 20 yard lines and the passing attack was feeble.

The Giants' final score came two minutes before the end of the game, when, after Soar had dashed 36 pards to the 6 yard line and then put the ball inches from the goal line, Danowski crashed through center.

Lineups:

Detroit Should Threaten Yanks

By EDWIN RUMILL
Christian Science Monitor

Even with the football season at its height, baseball manages to find room on the sports pages of the nation. Rumors of trades and managerial changes are producing enough fuel to keep the Hot Stove League functioning merrily.

One of the chief topics of discussion currently concerns the Yankees, who have the magnates worried. The convincing manner in which they pushed aside the Giants in the World Series suggests a monopoly that threatens to ruin public interest in future American League pennant races and October classic events. There arises a suspicion, however, that this Yankee reign may not be so lengthy as many critics would have you believe.

In the first place, American League observers will tell you that the Detroit Tigers would have won the flag had Manager Mickey Cochrane and Pitchers Schoolboy Rowe and Tommy Bridges been available for active duty from the start of the campaign to the finish. Mike, before being hit with one of Bump Hadley's fast balls in Yankee Stadium, was a great catcher. Rowe and Bridges are potential 20-game winners. As a team, the Tigers present batting power about equal to that of the Yankees. With Mickey, Tommy and Schoolboy available, the Bengals would have given the New York club a real argument.

Tigers Threaten

Of course, Cochrane's catching days have ended, by his own admission. But in Rudy York the Tigers are bringing along a youngster who can hit home runs and who should develop into a good receiver. Bridges returned to the mound during the closing weeks of the race and will start from scratch in 1938. So will Rowe. Also, there exists the everpresent possibility of a spurt by the White Sox, Indians or Red Sox. No, the Yankees will not walk away from the field next season.

It was only a few years ago that National League magnates were complaining about the Cardinal monopoly. Branch Rickey's chain store system, they pointed out, had strings on most of the minor league prospects. A colorful and hustling gang of ball players, the Cards looked strong enough to pace the league for an indefinite period.

That situation, however, has suddenly varied. Not only have the Red Birds ceased to dominate the National League, but their farm system has unexpectedly stopped sending along the brand of players who can keep the club on a level with the Giants and Cubs. Pitchers, in particular, have escaped Cardinal scouts.

The Yankees are due for their disappointments and failures. The road cannot always be straight and narrow. Often, Joe McCarthy's outfit crushes the opposition with a batting attack that has no equal in the history of baseball, but plenty of big leaguers went away from the scene of World Series triumphs convinced that Joe needs better pitching to keep his boys on top. Anyhow, McCarthy is definitely on the spot. When, and if, the Yanks fail to win, stadium customers will want to know why.

Giants in Slump

The anxiety expressed by National Leaguers may also be exaggerated. The Giants who lost to the Yankees in the World Series were not the Giants who won the N. L. flag. Terry's athletes played like Brooklyn schoolboys in the classic. The winners made at least 10 scoring hits that would have been gobbled up by the brilliant Giant defense that won the pennant. From Oct. 6 to Oct. 10, the Terrymen were in their most protracted slump of the season.

Getting away from New York, rumor has it that Steve O'Neill's job in Cleveland is safe for at least another year. Alva Bradley, president of the Indians, explains the situation by saying that "if we change, we're going to get someone who will help us a lot." Which causes a person to wonder how Mr. Bradley expects full cooperation from his manager and players after throwing such a shadow of doubt over the entire affair for weeks.

In Boston, the name of the new Bees' pilot remains a point of conjecture. A new possibility presents itself. Bob Quinn may give the position to one of his players. The names of Al Lopez and Tony Cuccinello are mentioned. Tony, it is believed, lacks the necessary temperament, but Lopez might go far in the pilot's seat. He is an extremely popular fellow among both players and press, and would have the whole-hearted support of all. And don't forget that much of the glory for the success of the Bees and their pitchers belongs to the black-haired Tampa boy.

Lions Outfight Eagles By 19-10; Nagoya Rallies

In one of the biggest scores registered in years in first class baseball circles in the country, the Eagles outfought the Lions to take the long end of a 19 to 10 score in the professional league's doubleheader at the Korakuen stadium Wednesday afternoon. The Eagles clinched the game in the first three innings by registering seven in the first frame and six more in the third.

Behind the effective pitching of Speed Ball Eichi Sawamura, who yielded but five hits, the Tokyo Giants took the measure of the Dolfins, 6-1, in the other game at the Korakuen stadium. The Giants went right after the offerings of Furutani and knocked him all over the lot to score four runs in the opening frame. One of them was a homer into the right field stands by burly Right Fielder Nakajima. Furutani bore down after that disastrous first inning and hooked up a pitchers' battle with Sawamura during the rest of the game.

Tigers Held to Draw

Over in the Kansai at the Nishinomiya stadium, the tail-ending Nagoya team woke up from a long sleep and fought to a 2-2 tie with the league leading Osaka Tigers in a game that was halted at the end of the 11th inning.

Pitcher Endo was the hero for Nagoya by chucking the whole game and holding the usually hard hitting Tigers to six scattered hits.

The Tigers scored one run in the second inning which looked bigger as the game progressed but the Nagoya lads rallied in the first half of the ninth to score two runs to emerge into a one-run lead. Ishida worked Pitcher Nishimura, who had been hurling good ball for the Tigers, for walk, and with the aid of consecutive hits by Masu and Osawa and a long fly to center by Endo, Nagoya tallied twice.

But Third Baseman Igauye of the Tigers lashed out a triple to start the Tigers' portion of the ninth and promptly scored on a squeeze by Pinch-hitter Misonou to tie the score.

Henry (Bozo) Wakabayashi relieved Nishimura in the tenth and held the Nagoya batsmen at bay.

Senators Win

In the other game at the Nishinomiya stadium, the Tokyo Senators blanked the Osaka Hankyu, 1-0, scoring the winning run in the third inning. The Senators won although they were checked to two hits by Maruo.

Rikkyo Sextet Beats Keio On Shibaura Ice

Rikkyo University's stick wielders, strong contenders for the championship of the Tokyo Five University Ice Hockey league, barely nosed out the Keio sextet Thursday night at Shibaura ice skating rink.

Keio's five-men defense functioned all too well for Rikkyo and it was only a two-goal rally in the final period that scored victory for them. Score at the end of the first period was 1-all. Neither team registered in the second.

In the other number of the doubleheader Meiji ran away from Tokyo Imperial by a 10 to 2 score, registering six goals in the opening session.

Eagles Register 11th Win In Row In Pro Circuit

The Eagles went on a batting rampage Thursday afternoon at the Korakuen stadium and swamped the Nagoya Dolfins, 9-3, to win their eleventh straight victory. Catcher Bucky Harris led the attack with three hits out of four trips to the plate.

But the Eagles' winning streak is a bit too late as the Osaka Tigers have just about clinched the championship of the professional league's fall season to close at the end of this month. The latter Thursday registered their 33rd victory in 41 games by running roughshod over the Tokyo Senators, 14-4, at the Nishinomiya stadium near Osaka. By virtue of this win, the Tigers are leading the second place Tokyo Giants by six full games.

The standings, including Thursday's games, follow:—

	G.	W.	L.	T.	Pct.
Tigers	41	33	7	1	.825
Giants	42	28	14	0	.667
Eagles	41	24	16	1	.600
Dolfins	39	18	21	0	.462
Senators	40	16	23	1	.410
Hankyu	40	15	23	2	.395
Lions	39	13	26	0	.333
Nagoya	40	10	27	3	.270

Giants Win

In the other two games of the day, the Giants walloped the Lions, 6-2, at the Korakuen stadium while the Osaka Hankyu blanked the lowly Nagoya nine, 1-0, at the Nishinomiya diamond.

Erratic support was crushing factor for the Dolfins' one-sided defeat at the hands of the Eagles. They were charged with five critical errors, enough to lose any ball game. The game was a nip and tuck fight during the first six innings with the Eagles leading 2-0, but the Dolfins went to pieces in the seventh. Pitcher Suzuki of the Dolfins was sent to the showers after Terauchi had singled and he had hit Nakano to allow two men on the bags after one out. Furuya was sent to the hillock. He was too careful pitching to Harris and walked him to fill the bags. Sam Takahashi grounded to third but Shortstop Sei, who scooped up the ball, threw wide to the plate and everybody was safe. First Baseman Kojima then came through with a timely triple to right center to clear the bags. He then tallied on another error by the shortstop to make it five runs for the inning.

Southpaw Narita received the pitching assignment for the Giants but was yanked in favor of Stalphin when the Lions, who had scored one run in third, when the latter with two men on after one out. Susumago walked to clog the bases but Fujinami grounded to Stalphin into a doubleplay to stop the Lions' rally that might have won the game for them. The Giants scored two runs in the fifth and were again headed in the scoring column.

Hurling Duel

Pitchers Nakada of the Hankyus and Morii of Nagoya participated in a hurling duel throughout nine innings. The former had the good luck of seeing the only run of the game scored by his team-mates in the fourth. Miyatake was nailed at the plate when he romped all the way from first on Ko Yamashita's double. But Nogami and Horio both walked to fill the bags and Yamashita tallied on K. Yamada's hopper to second.

The Tigers smashed the offerings of three Senators pitchers to win easily.

Bears, Alabama, Louisiana Top Nation's Grid Teams

San Francisco News

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—Football moves into its fourth bewildering week with 11 more perfect records shattered during a weekend that saw gridiron competition attain a new level of equality. The equalizing process knocked off potential national powers like Nebraska, Cornell, Pittsburgh, Texas A. and M. and Georgia Tech.—standout victims in a hodge-podge of ties and evelash results.

Of the 13 major teams still boasting unbeaten and untied records, California, Alabama and Louisiana State appear most formidable contenders for the mythical national championship.

Warfare was most sanguinary in the East, where seven unblemished escutcheons were smeared: Pittsburgh, Fordham, Cornell, Army, Navy, Harvard and Catholic U. This left only Yale, Holy Cross, Syracuse and Dartmouth with perfect eastern records.

Pitt, Fordham Tie Again

Pittsburgh and Fordham played to their third straight scoreless tie. Cornell, minus its injured backfield ace, Peck, was upset, 14-6, by Syracuse. Yale downed Army, 15-7. Navy was held to a scoreless deadlock by Harvard. Detroit walloped Catholic U., 30-0.

Meanwhile Dartmouth maintained its perfect record with an easy 41-0 win over Brown, and Holy Cross gave Georgia its first set-back, 7-6.

In other eastern games Carnegie Tech upset Notre Dame, 9-7; Tulane shaded Colgate, 7-6; Villanova unexpectedly walloped Manhattan, 20-0; and Columbia won over Pennsylvania, N. Y. U. over St. Johns, Penn State over Lehigh, Duquesne over St. Vincent and Miami (Fla.), held Bucknell to a 6-6 tie.

Probably the outstanding upset of the day was Nebraska's scoreless tie with Oklahoma. This left only Detroit, Northwestern and Wisconsin in the Midwest. That Big Six deadlock also gave the conference lead to Missouri, although Missouri lost on the outside to Michigan State, 2-0. In the Big Ten, Northwestern, Wisconsin and Minnesota remained in a three-way tie for lead as Ohio State had an open date. Northwestern downed Purdue, Wisconsin beat Iowa, and Minnesota walloped Michigan.

Georgians Take Beating

The opposition insisted upon marching through Georgia. Holy Cross blasted Georgia's perfect record in the North, and Duke did likewise for Georgia Tech at Atlanta in a see-saw game that ended 20-19. The two eliminations left only Alabama, Louisiana State and Vanderbilt untied and unbeaten in Dixie, Louisiana State blanked Tennessee 14-7. This left them tied for the Southeastern Conference lead. Vanderbilt played outside and beat Southern Methodist, 6-0.

The two perfect-record elevens, California and Santa Clara, remained at the peak. California beat two teams Saturdy, the California Aggies and College of the Pacific. Santa Clara downed Portland yesterday. California, the conference leader, had its competition outside the conference and retained the lead although three games were staged therein. Oregon State and UCLA played to a 7-7 tie; Southern California walloped Oregon, 34-14, and Washington and Washington State battled to a 7-7 impasse.

Baylor maintained its perfect record by beating Contenary, 20-0. Texas A. & M. suffered its first setback when held, 7-7, by Texas Christian.

Pitt, Fordham Battle To Third Scoreless Tie

Chicago Tribune

NEW YORK, Oct. 16—Before more than 50,00 enthusiastic but disappointed fans Fordham and Pittsburgh today tugged, hauled and fumbled to their third scoreless tie in the three year history of their rivalry.

Beyond four attempted field goals, three by Fordham and one by Pitt and a Pitt touchdown that was called back for holding, there were no serious scoring threats. Once again it was a man's football game all the way, with crashing tackles and head on collisions that more than once brought the players close to blows.

It was Pittsburgh fumbling at crucial moments that cost it its first New York victory. Six times Panther backs bobbled the ball, and five times it was recovered by Fordham.

Three of those fumbles put Fordham in position for their field goal attempts. All by Capt. Johnny Druze. Another ended a 48 yard fourth period march, the longest drive of the game and Pittsburgh's last chance to break the tie.

Pitt's closest approximation to a score came in the closing seconds of the first half. Started off by Harold Stebbins' 34 yard runback of Joe Woitkowski's punt, Pitt drove to a first down on Fordham's 5 yard line and called for time out with 20 seconds to go. On the first play Marshall Goldberg, taking the ball from Stebbins on a deep reverse, crossed the goal line standing up. But Acting Capt. Tony Matisi of Pitt had been detected holding, and the ball was returned to Fordham's 16 yard line. Fordham's holding on the next play brought Pitt up to the 8 yard line, but by then there was time for only one more play, and that was smeared.

Fordham's sophomore back field trio of Butch Fortunato, Steve Kazlo and Dom Principe passed their first major test commendably. They helped bat down all but three of Pitt's passes.

Meiji Swamps Hosei Footballers By 55-6 Score

By LESLIE NAKASHIMA

Meiji University's football team, out to wrest itself from co-championship honors with Waseda last year and reestablish itself as undisputed champions on the gridiron, honors which it took in 1934 and 1935, steamrollered through the plucky Hosei eleven, 55-6, Friday afternoon at the Korakuen stadium before a couple of hundred students and another hundred of civilian fans.

Meiji's teamwork was altogether too much for Hosei. The linemen of the Surugadai eleven put up a stonewall defense and opened up big holes through the Hosei team for their ball toters to romp through for big gains. And the interference given by the linemen and backs to the ball carrier was tremendously effective. One Hosei man after another was moved down as a Meiji ball toter swept the flanks for big yardage and touchdowns.

Meiji Improves

Showing marked improvement over their last game on October 23 when they defeated Rikkyo, 12-0, the Meiji gridders functioned like a well-oiled machine, especially in the second half when they registered touchdown after touchdown in quick order. Off-tackle smashes, sweeping end runs and forward and lateral passes clicked all too well for the inexperienced Hosei players, who were played off their feet. Crisscrosses especially sucked in the Hosei defense.

Hosei lacked substitutes, but this was not their only trouble. The linemen especially were ineffective in their tackling and were outcharged on each line smash. This is well shown from the fact that Meiji failed to convert the extra point only once out of seven attempts of the eight touchdowns on smashes through the center of the line because of an off-side. Halfback Jiro Ebisu kicked goal for other extra point. Besides, the ends were slow in going down on punts and the consequence was that the Meiji safety man ran them back for tremendous yardage, one of them being a brilliant touchdown by Takeo Kunishige.

Meiji scored two touchdowns in the first quarter, three in the third and three more in the fourth. Hosei's only touchdown was registered in the third quarter. It came as a result of two forward passes from Quarterback Yoji Sayegusa, who shouldered most of the work in the backfield, to Right End Saburo Uchimi, who is tall and ideally built for a wing man.

Hata Scores

A few minutes after the opening kickoff, Meiji crossed the Hosei goal on a well executed lateral, but the team was penalized for clipping near the goal line and set back 15 yards. But it only proved to be the first of a series of touchdowns by Captain Hiromu Hata, who called the plays. He skirted around right end and scored standing up. He then bucked the line for the extra point.

Meiji scored again in the first period on a pass from Ebisu to Halfback Katashi Yokoyama that registered 10 yards. Hosei's center at the line failed to hold and Meiji converted the extra point to lead, 14-0.

Hosei rallied in the second period and managed to hold Meiji scoreless but the latter opened up in the second half and the game developed into a runaway affair.

Meiji kicked off to open the third period but Hosei failed to gain from its own 35 yard line, especially with Toyama breaking through for a fine tackle to nail the Hosei ball carrier for a big loss. Hosei punted and the same Toyama returned it 20 yards to the Hosei 30 yard line. The ball was given to Yokoyama again and the latter twisted and sidestepped his way through for a gain to the 4 yard line. A line play failed, but on a crisscross, Hiromu Hata outsped the Hosei secondary defense around his right flank and crossed the final stripe. Hata broke through left guard for the extra point.

Score on Old Play

A forward pass, Ebisu to Toyama, paved the way for another touchdown in no time. It put the ball on the Hosei 25 yard stripe. On the old, old, Statute of Liberty play, Hata skirted around Hosei's left flank and scored. Hosei was caught absolutely flat-footed on the play. Again Hata smashed through for the extra point to put the score 28-0 in Meiji's favor.

Right End Seiji Machida of Meiji caught a pass one-handed from Ebisu to start the fireworks for Meiji's third touchdown in the third period. After snaring the pass on Hosei's 35 yard line as he cut to the left, he lateralled to Yokoyama who didn't stop until he reached the 20 yard line. A lateral, Hata to Ebisu, gained to the 4 yard line. Hata smashed his way to the one-foot line. A fumbled followed but it was still Meiji's ball, and on the next play, Hata picked his way through left guard to score six points. Now it was a change to a place-kick formation for the extra point. Ebisu booted it. The ball was low but it cleared the bar to convert the extra point.

But Hosei's fighting spirit wasn't crushed by any means by this avalanche of touchdowns by Meiji. As a matter of fact, the gridders from Kudan came right back to score a touchdown before the quarter ended. Meiji kicked off to the Hosei 40 yard line and Sayegusa passed to Uchimi for a first down to Meiji 30 yard line. He caught the high pass, close to the sideline, in the clear but he was tackled from the rear before he could romp down the field for a touchdown. And then it was on fourth down, that the same Uchimi caught a pass for touchdown. The ball hit his fingers and bounced up but he snared it and ran 5 yards to cross the final stripe. A place-kick for the extra point failed.

Meiji did not let up its attack in the fourth period. Hosei was pushed back into the shadow of its goal posts early in the session. On the first play from the Hosei 25 yard stripe, Kunishige, who had replaced Hata, cut wide to the left and scored standing up. Meiji was off-side on the play for the extra point.

Kunishige Stars

Kunishige gave an excellent demonstration of football on the next kick-off. He not only booted the ball but nailed the Hosei man who had received deep in the latter's territory. That's getting down the field and playing the ball. Hosei punted and Tokushige caught it on his own 40 yard line, ran toward the right, following his quick forming interference, and then stratight down the field for a touchdown without a Hosei man laying his fingers on him. It was an exhibition of beautiful blocking by the Meiji eleven. Tokushige cut through right guard for the extra point.

Another Meiji touchdown came in rapid fire order with Ebisu passing to Toyama for a clear field from the Hosei 35 yard line. A line play scored the extra point to put the score 55-6 in Meiji's favor.

Field Goal Wins For Carnegie Over Notre Dame By 9-7 Score

N. Y. Times

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 16—Carnegie Tech's struggling Skibos, a thorn in the side of some of Notre Dame's greatest elevens, rose from the ashes of two defeats today to beat another hitherto undefeated South Bend team, 9 to 7, in the stirring fifteenth meeting of their rivalry.

Coleman (Koppy) Kopcsak, member of a prominent Greensburg, Pa., football family, stood on the 16-yard line late in the third period and place-kicked the field goal that brought the Tartans victory after both teams had scored touchdowns in the previous period.

Slim Margin Protected

This slim margin, which Carnegie protected for the remainder of the contest, was a complete and satisfying (for Tech) reversal of the other figures in the game. For Notre Dame piled up 15 first downs to 2 and outgained the Tartans in rushing, 235 yards to 7 net.

The 40,000 spectators, as many of them Notre Dame enthusiasts as were Carnegie clansmen, alternately gasped and cheered as Tech continually slipped from the skillet into the fire and out again.

Except for two quick scoring breaks, the valiant eleven playing its third game for a new coach, Bill Kern, never had an opportunity to show its offensive strength. The game's first touchdown developed from a 59-yard pass on the first play of the second quarter, and even with the 6-point lead obtained so easily Carnegie seemed always to be in a hole.

Merlyn Condi, a sophomore from Charleston, W. Va., drifted back from his 40 as the teams lined up for the second chapter and tossed to the veteran Jerry Matelan at end on Notre Dame's 42. The latter ran to the 1-yard line, was tackled and slid across the goal. The ball was put in play on the 1, however, and Fullback Leo Napotnik crashed over for the touchdown. Condit's placement attempt struck an upright.

An equally sudden pass play in the last minute and a half of the same period gave Notre Dame its touchdown. Held for downs twice inside the 5, the South Bend men took advantage of a short punt to set up a 34-yard scoring pass from Jack McCarthy to Bunny McCormick and Andy Puplis place-kicked the extra point.

Notre Dame's superior power rolled up and down the field in waves, but another pass which went astray decided the ball game. Well along in the third period End Karl Striegel deflected one of Lou Zontini's aerials into the surprised grasp of John Kawchak, Carnegie guard, who lumbered from his 37 to Notre Dame's 14. Three line plays proved ineffectual and Kopcsak then booted the winning points.

Altogether the Tartans staved off the enemy six times with heroic goal-line stands. Midway in the fourth period McCarthy kicked out of bound on the Skibos' 9, a substitute fumbled and two successive penalties gave Notre Dame second down on the 1-yard line. But that was as close the invaders got.

The outcome was typical of three previous upsets Carnegie had turned in against strong Notre Dame teams. The Tartans' first triumph came, 19 to 0, in 1926, when the immortal Knute Rockne did not make the trip to Pittsburgh with one of his greatest teams. Again in 1928 the Tartans triumphed unexpectedly, 27 to 7, and finally in 1933 Carnegie Tech squeezed out a 7-to-0 victory.

The Glacier Of The Angel

From its shape—like a white angel with outspread wings—this glacier gets its name, "Glacier of the Angels." It hugs the side of Mount Edith Cavell in Jasper National Park in the heart of the Canadian Rockies. A splendid highway terminates at the glacier, and summer visitors walk out on the huge mass of ice to get a magnificent view of the ice spread. The highway, one of the many new ones recently constructed, opens up many delightful scenic areas hitherto unavailable to visitors, in this largest of America's National Parks.

Tigers Capture Pennant For Fall In Pro Circuit

The Osaka Tigers clinched the championship of the fall season of the Japan Professional Baseball Federation Sunday afternoon at the Koshien ball stadium by defeating the second place Tokyo Giants, 5-3. This victory gave them a seven full game lead over the Giants and they can afford to go through the season's remaining contests with nary a win and still be ahead of the Giants who won the pennant in the spring schedule. In other words, it means that the Tigers and Giants will cross bats in a special playoff series the first part of December for the title of the year.

Poor Base Running

The Giants bombarded the offerings of Right Hander Nishimura for 13 blows but poor base running in critical moments of the game when they were reckless put them in the short side of the scoring column. Besides the Tigers played errorless ball afield and executed three fast sparkling doubleplays to pull Nishimura out of as many tough situations.

The Tigers themselves had a good day at bat. They nicked Mayekawa of the Giants, who resorted to a fast ball, which the Tigers particularly like, and did not serve his usual menu of hooks. It was too bad for the Giants that Victor Stalphin, lanky Russian twirler, was too tired to pitch and Eiichi Sawamura, speedball artist, lacked control.

With a bang, the Tigers scored right in the opening frame when Captain Matsuki, leadoffman, greeted Mayekawa with a triple in the initial frame and checked in on a single by Fujimura, who followed him.

Then in the third inning on a batting spree by Fujii and Igauye, the Tigers tallied three more times to salt the game away with a 4 to 1 lead.

The Giants lost an opportunity to score in the fourth with a man on third and another on second after one out, Mizuhara dashed for the plate on a hopper by Ito to short and was thrown out. Then in the fifth with two men in scoring positions, Tsuda, pinch-hitting for Center Fielder Go, proved a victim to Nishimura's slants.

After registering a run in the seventh, the Giants rallied in the ninth but managed to put over but one run. It came in when Pinch-hitter Aoshiba pulled off a single and Tsutsui knocked him home with a three bagger. But Nishimura tightened up right then and there and retired the side.

Nakajima Hits Hard

Right Fielder Nakajima of the Giants was the heaviest sticker in the game with four hits out of as many trips to the plate. They included a three bagger and a double.

In the other game at the Koshien stadium, the Eagles won their 13th straight game by taking the measure of the Nagoya nine, 5-2. Pitcher Nakagawa held Nagoya to five hits while his team-mates clouted the offerings of Morii, the Nagoya ace, for 10 blows.

Saburo Miyatake, former star pitcher and homerun hitter of Keio, staged a comeback as a pitcher for the Hankyus in the doubleheader at the Korakuen stadium here by aiding his team to a 4-2 victory over the Dolfins. He yielded six hits. Suzuki checked the Hankyus to five hits but his team-mates booted the ball on six occasions, enough to lose any ball game.

Lions Win

The Lions roared and nosed out the Senators, 5-4, in the other game at the Korakuen stadium. Otomo's three basehit knocked in Tsubouchi who had walked for the winning run in the last half of the ninth.

Alabama Is Only Unbeaten Team As Nebraska And Duke Drop Tilts

Courtesy, Mackay Radio

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 13—Nebraska and Duke dropped from the ranks of the undefeated today, accentuating Alabama's position at the top of the list in major football in the United States.

At the same time, California, Yale, and Pittsburgh, each of which has been tied once, came through with victories.

Pitt's Panthers, in the annual intersectional game, accounted for Nebraska's defeat. Jock Sutherland's heavy machine rolled over the Cornhuskers, 13 to 7, playing at Lincoln.

Far more surprising was North Carolina's victory over Duke. It takes an old football fan to remember when the Tar Heels took a decision over their rivals from Durham. The score was 14 to 6.

California shattered Oregon's sturdy defense, 26 to 0. And Yale slaughtered Princeton's weak team by the same score.

Assuming, then, that California can beat Stanford in the "big game" of the Pacific Coast, it will be the Golden Bears versus Alabama's Crimson Tide in the Rose Bowl on January 1.

Unbeaten Yale faces Harvard next Saturday, and should win, without difficulty, but the Big Three's own rule prevents Yale from being a candidate for the Rose Bowl classic. Pittsburgh might be a candidate, but the Panthers played last year. So if 'Bama wins again next week, it's almost certain that the Southerners will make their fourth trip to Pasadena's famous stadium.

With all the major teams in top form by this time, upsets were few today, but most of the games were hard fought.

Notre Dame's "Fighting Irish" had all kinds of trouble eking out a 7 to 0 victory over the Army. Mighty Minnesota avenged last year's defeat by Northwestern, trimming the Wildcats, 7 to 0, today.

Cornell and Dartmouth, two leading teams in the East, fought each other to a 6 to 6 standstill. Columbia and Syracuse tied by the same score.

In the Middle West, Ohio State's strong Buckeyes, beaten only by Southern California and Pittsburgh, thundered over Illinois, 19 to 0, and Indiana capped a successful season with a 3 to 0 win over Iowa. Purdue's Boilermakers went to a 7-7 draw with Wisconsin.

On the Pacific Coast, Washington crushed the University of California at Los Angeles (not the Golden Bears) by a 26 to 0 score, Stanford thundered over Washington State, 23 to 0, and Southern California played a 12-12 tie with Oregon State.

LaFayette, one of the minor teams, maintained its perfect record for the season with a major upset. It defeated Washington and Jefferson's Presidents, 6 to 0, climaxing the best football year in its history.

Meiji Ruggers Rout Keio Fifteen, 51-8 With Backs Starring

With their backs running roughshod over their opponents, Meiji University's ruggers swamped the Keio fifteen, 51-8, before an enthusiastic crowd Sunday afternoon at the Meiji Shrine stadium. The score at halftime was 32 to 8 in Meiji's favor.

Meiji scored three tries, four goals and one penalty goal in the first half and 3 tries, and two goals in the second period.

A goal and penalty goal accounted for Keio's score in the first half. Meiji's offense proved too much for the boys from Mita and they were unable to get into scoring territory.

Purdue Conquered By Northwestern As 35,000 Look On

N. Y. Times

EVANSTON, Ill., Oct. 16.—Northwestern staged a rousing last minute comeback today to conquer Purdue 14 to 7, for its second straight victory in defense of its Big Ten football title before 35,000 spectators in Dyche Stadium.

The Boilermakers scored in the second period, but the Wildcats came back with a touchdown in each of the last two sessions.

The Boilermakers needed little time in the second period to push over a touchdown. Brock started the march with a 20-yard gallop around right end, and after Juska plunged through the line for five, Cecil Isbell drifted back and shot a 22-yard pass to Zachary who caught the ball deep in the end zone. Isbell place kicked for the extra point.

Northwestern tied it up on a sparkling run by Jefferson in the third period, after Heap ran Brock's kick back to the Purdue 34. Jefferson, with great blocking ahead of him, swept right end for a touchdown. Ryan added the point.

After a great goal-line stand had prevented Purdue from scoring again early in the final period, Northwestern scored a moment later on a hair raising play. Isbell attempted to pass to Brock, but Vanz intercepted the ball in midfield and galloped to the five-yard line where he fumbled as he was hit.

4 Davis Cuppers In Semi-Finals Of Singles Play

Baron Gottfried von Cramm and Henner Henkel of the world famous Davis Cup team and Jiro Yamagishi and Fumiteru Nakano of the Japanese Davis Cup team entered the semi-finals of the singles of the national tennis championships Sunday at the Koshien courts, near Osaka.

Perfect autumnal weather prevailed and tennis enthusiasts from Osaka and Kobe had more than their day's fill of first rate sparkling tennis. They swarmed over the center courts where the Baron, world's ranking No. 2 amateur player, and Henkel, ranked by many experts as the third greatest amateur player living today, and Yamagishi as well, one of the really great stars of the game, eliminated their opponents in convincing style.

Henkel Stars

The young Henkel especially amazed the fans with his cannonball service when he scored four aces on consecutive services to win a game in his match against Nakahara of Waseda. The final score was 6-2, 6-3 and 6-3.

The Baron took the measure of Hirai of the Kokusai Club dropping only three games. The scores were: 6-1, 6-2 and 6-0.

Yamagishi won in four sets from Takakusu of Fukuoka Club, 6-4, 6-4, 3-6 and 6-3.

In the other quarter-finals match, Yasumine Kuramitsu of Kansai University eliminated Reizo Murakami of Keio University in three sets, 8-6, 6-2 and 6-1.

Yamagishi is to meet Henkel in one of the semi-finals and it should be one of the greatest matches of the championships.

The mixed doubles matches Sunday follow:

Second Round

Kawachi and Mrs. Matsudaira defeated Wakabayashi and Miss Saito, 7-5 and 6-1.

Quarter-finals

Miki and Miss Mary Luise Horn (Germany) defeated Murayama and Miss Toda, 6-4 and 6-1.

Akimoto and Miss Kimata defeated Kawachi and Mrs. Matsudaira, 3—6, 7-5 and 6-3.

"BELIEVE IT OR NOT"---by Ripley

Clothes Make The Man

Living in an era when traveling, even from continent to continent, has become only a jaunt, it sounds unbelievable that Uncle Frank Richardson, 76 years old, has lived his entire life within the bounds of the little county in which he was born, and it is also unbelievable that "Uncle Frank" Richardson has never owned a Sunday suit of clothes, a dress shirt, a necktie, a pair of dress shoes or socks. He has been content with work shirts, work shoes, and overalls all of his life. He has missed a lot of other things in this modern life, too—he has never gone to church, never ridden in a passenger train, never danced a step, never driven a car, and has only been to a movie once in his life. Both "Uncle Frank" and his wife say that health, travel and knowledge only serve to increase the desires of a person, making life more complicated and difficult.

Ex-Davis Cuppers Lose In 5 Sets To Keio Combine

Jiro Yamagishi and Keizo Murakami of Keio University eliminated former Davis Cuppers Abe and Kawachi in the semi-finals of the doubles competition of the national tennis championships Monday at the Koshien courts near Osaka. But the veterans put up a keen battle and the match went to the maximum five sets, the scores being 6—3, 2—6, 7—5, 3—6 and 6—4

Germans Win Easily

The visiting German Davis Cup team, Baron Gottfried von Cramm and Henner Henkel, world's No. 2 and No. 3 ranking amateurs respectively, easily rid themselves of Uyehara and Horikoshi of the Kokusai Club. The scores were 6—3, 6—1 and 6—3.

Beginning at 11:30 a.m. today, the semi-finals of the men's singles were to be played. Baron von Cramm was hot favorite to win from Yosumine Kuramitsu, last year's national champion. The other match between Henkel and Yamagishi was believed to be a toss-up. In the recent German-Japanese tennis tournament at the Denyen-chofu courts of the Yomiuri Shimbun which the Reich stars won, 3-2, it will be remembered that Yamagishi won, 6-4, 6-4, 4-6 and 7-5. If Yamagishi is in the top form he was last week, his brilliant all-around play should give him a good chance to meet the Baron in the final.

Yamagishi Scores

The match between Yamagishi-Murakami against Abe and Kawachi of the Tomon club started with Yamagishi's service. Abe fell down in his play at the net and in no time Yamagishi and Murakami were leading, 4-1. The veterans rallied to creep up, 5-3, but Yamagishi came through with two consecutive aces on his service to take the first set.

Abe and Kawachi exhibited good teamwork in the second set and dropped only two games on Murakami's service. With the score 5-2 in the veteran favor, Yamagishi committed two errors and the set went to the former.

Yamagishi and Murakami could not get going in the third set but took advantage of the errors by the older duo and the score ran from 3-all, to 4-4, and 5-all. The set than developed into a nip and tuck affair but Abe's two successive errors when the ninth game went to deuce five times and failure to break through Murakami's service gave the latter team the set, 7-5.

Once again, the Abe and Kawachi combination rallied and ran through the fourth set easily, 6-3.

The final set started with Yamagishi's service and the Keio team led 2-0. But the veterans broke through Murakami's service and put up a gallant fight to keep the younger combine leading only by the close margin of 5-4. In the 10th game, with Kawachi serving, the veterans fought from 15-30 to 30-all. But Abe's error gave the younger team a 40-30 lead. And then came Murakami's beautiful point through the left of Abe on his return of the latter's drive.

The Tomon team's tactics was concentration of its attack on Murakami and succeeded eight out of 10 times. But there was the offsetting factor of Kawachi's erratic play at the net. The latter began rounding into form from about the eighth game in the final set but at this stage of the match, his partner began showing weariness of foot and he slowed down decidedly in his play. On the other hand, Murakami played over his head and gave Yamagishi excellent support.

Japanese Outmaneuvered

Baron von Cramm and Henkel proved much too good for Horikoshi and Uyehara, who were outmaneuvered throughout the three sets that the match was over within an hour. Each time they advanced to the net, the Reich stars pierced their defense for points, and when essayed for aces, the Baron or Henkel were returning them with ease.

In the first round of the women's doubles, Miss Mary Luise Horn, Germany's No. 1 woman player, paired with Miss Toda to beat the Seto and Funabashi team, 6-2 and 6-1. And then in the second round of the women's singles, she eliminated Miss Enotani, 6-1 and 6-1.

Indiana Defeats Illinois, 13 To 6

N.Y. Times

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., Oct. 16.—Indiana University smashed to a 13-to-6 victory over the University of Illinois today before 18,000 fans to gain the Hoosiers' first Big Ten victory of the season.

Indiana took the ball on Illinois' 19 soon after the opening kick-off. A 5-yard line gain, a 22-yard pass, Fowler to Davis, and toss from Fowler to Filchock from the 10-yard line scored for Indiana. The try for point was blocked.

For more than half the second period Fowler and Berner engaged in a punting duel. Then Davis fumbled on his 17 and Illinois recovered. A moment later Davis intercepted an Illinois pass on the goal line but on the next play he fumbled again.

Illinois took possession on the 33. Bennett and Zimmerman then made a first down, and in three plays Burris went over for a touchdown. The kick was blocked.

Starting from their own 43, Davis and Filchock in the final period ripped the Illinois line to shreds, driving to the Illini 4-yard stripe. Davis ripped off left tackle on the first play for a touchdown. Miller kicked the extra point to give Indiana a lead which the Hoosiers held to the end.

Kasamatsu Hits 100th Home Run In Pro Circuit

All eight teams of the professional baseball league are in Tokyo to wind up the schedule for the fall season, the championship of which the Osaka Tigers clinched on Sunday at the Koshien stadium.

Hits 102th Homers

Pitcher Kasamatsu of the Hankyus hit the 102th homer of the league for the season when he smashed one into the left field bleachers after two outs with one man to deadlock the count with the Eagles at 4-all. The game was halted after the end of the ninth inning to make way for the two games still left to be played the same day. Hence, the Eagles out to win their fourteenth straight game never had a chance. The latter had a tough time because Right Fielder Nakano, Backstop Harris, Shortstop Sam Takahashi and First Baseman Kojima, comprising the club's murderers' row, failed to hit.

Pitchers Ishida and Kasamatsu held the Eagles to five hits.

Coming back to the matter of homers, Captain Matsuki and Right Fielder Kageura of the Tigers both came through with four base clouts in the first inning of the day's third game against the Lions to increase the season's homers to 102. The Tigers had a heavy day at bat, registering 20 hits off three Lions pitchers to win by the one-sided score of 19 to 5.

In the other game of the day, the Dolfins wallopped Nagoya, 7-2, although outhit 11 to 8.

Rikkyo Beats Waseda To Win Ice Hockey Pennant For Season

Rikkyo University's stick wielders defeated the Waseda sextet, 3-1, Monday night at the Shibaura Ice Skating rink to capture the championship of the fourth annual Tokyo Five University Ice Hockey series with four straight victories.

With clever body checking, the Waseda skaters broke up the Rikkyo attack in the first period. Besides, in 13 minutes, a clever pass from Forward Ichikawa to Nishibori and back to the former tallied a goal for Waseda for the only score in the period.

Rikkyo, however, rallied in the second period to register two goals and one more in the final session.

The line-ups were: Rikkyo: Forwards—Tanaka, Omura, Sunada, Goto, Koyanagi and Takahashi; defense—Obashi and Tani; goalie—Yamamoto; Waseda: Forwards—Ichikawa, Yoshijima, Nishibori, Onikura, Kosuda and Shichida; defense—Soda and Yasuda; goalie—Nakazawa.

Lazzeri Is Free To Accept Managing Berth In Majors

Christian Science Monitor

NEW YORK, Oct. 16—Handed his unconditional release less than a week after starring in the World Series, Tony Lazzeri today was open to any and all propositions in the major league managerial or coaching fields. Yesterday, the Yankees announced that the veteran infielder had been cast adrift because "we have received word from a reliable source that you have a chance to sign with a major league club, either as a coach or as assistant manager."

The Yankees gave no hints as to what club might be dickering for his services, but in a managerial capacity only the Boston Bees and Cleveland Indians could be interested. With Bill McKechnie now in Cincinnati, the Bees are without a pilot. Bob Quinn, however, is on vacation and cannot be reached. Steve O'Neill has not been signed to a 1938 contract by Cleveland and could easily be released should the club reach an agreement with Lazzeri.

In the coaching field, however, there are many places Tony might settle. McKechnie will be hiring new coaches at Cincinnati and of course the Bees are on the market, as are the Browns and Indians. The Browns incidentally, are without a manager at the moment but Gabby Street is their man unless the attitude of the front office has suddenly changed.

The salary question enters into the situation. Tony received $16,000 from the Yankees this year and probably would not accept a reduction to join the coaching ranks. In fact, the 1937 Lazzeri pay check was considerably larger than that of several managers.

Going to New York in 1926 from the Salt Lake club of the Pacific Coast League, Lazzeri gave 12 years of regular duty to the Yankees. He is one of the game's smartest players and still capable of playing second base. Tony possesses the qualities necessary in a successful manager.

Princeton Beats Chicago, 16 To 7 To Tie Count, 2-All

By WILLIAM D. RICHARDSON

N. Y. Times

CHICAGO, Oct. 16—Famished after fasting since the Virginia game two weeks ago, Fritz Crisler's Princeton Tigers gorged themselves today on a menu consisting chiefly of University of Chicago Maroons.

Tire After Fine Showing

But it wasn't until the second half, when Clark Shaugnessy's Maroons had virtually exhausted themselves by a valiant performance, that the Tigers began to show the power that they possess, particularly in the backfield. Up to then indications were that the prophets might be once again wrong for the Maroons were leading the Tigers by the margin of 7 to 3.

Leavis Hamity, the Maroon fullback, scored his team's first touchdown of the season when he fell on a loose ball in the end zone midway in the second period. Ed Valorz, his fellow-Hyde Parker, converted and Chicago had washed out the three-point margin the Tigers held when Tom Mountain drop-kicked a field goal from the 29-yard line in the opening stanza.

Chicago's cup of joy was soon spilled after the teams took the field in the second half, for it was then that Princeton's power asserted itself. Taking the ball on their own 30-yard stripe, the Tigers, with Dick Wells, sophomore back from Albany, and Bill Lynch of Birmingham, Mich., and Jack Daniels of Jacksonville, Fla., lugging the ball through the center of the Maroon line, went all the way to the goal line, making five successive first downs without interruption until they reached the 13-yard line. The Maroons then checked them twice, but were finally tricked by a fake spinner.

Feeds Ball to Wells

Nimble-footed Jack White of Lebanon, Pa., had gone into the line-up and, after smashing over the left side of Chicago's line for a 5-yard gain, making it fourth down and about two to go on Chicago's right end to cross the goal line standing up. Lynch's placement was good and Princeton led by 10 to 7.

The final Princeton score came early in the fourth period and was made by Mountain. The stage for the insuring count was set when three Tigers rushed through and almost blocked Bob Fitzgerald's punt.

The latter was forced to kick so hurriedly that the ball travelled only twenty-odd yards, going out of bounds on Chicago's 38-yard line. Shortly after the next period opened, White tossed a lateral to Mountain, who raced around Chicago's right end, cut back in toward the center of the field and crossed the goal line after a romp of thirty yards.

Love a la Klondike

In the famous days of 1898, a Swedish miner named Joe Hanson, who had just struck it exceptionally rich, came to a Dawson City saloon and there offered a lady named Lou her weight in gold if she would consent to marry him. The hostess was placed in a sitting position on a board across the table and bag after bag of gold dust was heaped on the other end of the board until the two ends were balanced. The lady weighing 125 pounds, the suitor's success cost him $28,000.

LITERARY SUPPLEMENT

No. 1844, Saturday, June 5, 1937

....this new manual is practical and useful, and what Count Kabayama in his prefactory note calls its "human method" will make it acceptable to the growing number of English students of Japanese. When the student has mastered its sixty lessons he will have completed the equivalent of an ordinary Japanese school education and will be at home in the language and able to proceed to higher things.

A feature of the book is its transliteration with Chinese characters of every Japanese example rendered in English spelling so that the student is gradually familiarized with the appearance of the language as well as with its sound.

Studying Japanese with this Grammar Becomes a Real Pleasure

EXTRACTS FROM THE PREFACE

"Mr. and Mrs. Vaccari have brought out what I would like to regard as the most complete book to date for the study of Japanese, and have, thereby, provided an effective and practical guide toward a basic study of the Japanese nation and people ....The method introduced by the authors is not only scientific, but human....the particular of the language, fully treated with practical examples, have been regulated in each lesson according to the measure of a partial effort of the mind....The Japanese taught in the book has struck me as of the best commonly accepted diction today....The authors have introduced a new system of giving all the sentences in the book in Japanese characters and Roman transliteration with their respective English translation, an innovation most likely to prove very helpful....Mr. and Mrs. Vaccari have published a book of high merit and may be regarded as the initiators of a new system for teaching Japanese.

Yamagishi Beats Henkel; Battles Von Cramm Today

Playing the very best tennis he is capable of, Jiro Yamagishi, Japan's top ranking player and whom Baron Gottfried von Cramm includes within the world's first five, eliminated Henner Henkel of the German Davis Cup team and commonly ranked as the world's third ranking amateur player in four sets in the semi-finals of the singles of the national tennis championships at the Koshien courts near Osaka Tuesday. The scores were: 6-4, 4-6, 6-2 and 6-3.

Von Cramm Wins

In the other match of the semi-finals, Baron von Cramm won handily from Yasumine Kuramitsu of Kansai University, last year's national champion; in three sets, 6-2, 6-4 and 6-3.

And so Yamagishi and the Baron were to meet this afternoon for the championship. The uppermost question Tuesday night and this morning was: Can Yamagishi beat the Baron? In their three matches since the arrival of the German Davis Cup team late last month from the United States via Honolulu, Yamagishi has won once. In their first clash at the Koshien courts in the first German-Japanese tournament, the Baron played exceptionally beautiful tennis and took the measure of Yamagishi easily. It was a different story at Nagoya where Yamagishi outdrove the Baron in a driving duel from the baseline, then rushed to the net to score, and when the Reich star advanced to the net, Yamagishi would lace an ace through his defense. Their match at Tokyo was a battle royal that went to five sets but the Baron out-maneuvered his opponent to pull through a winner.

The Baron plays a tennis that is high in its percentage of accuracy and one can say that it is only on a very few occasions that he goes erratic during the course of a match, according to Tamio Abe, former Japanese Davis Cupper in an article in the Asahi this morning.

Yamagishi Has Chance

But if Yamagishi plays at the peak of his game this afternoon as he did against Henkel on Tuesday, there is a chance that he might emerge a winner against the world's No. 2 ranking amateur, only giving way to J. Donald Budge of California, Wimbledon and American singles champion, Mr. Abe says. As in the game against Henkel on Tuesday, if Yamagishi outdrives the Baron in a duel from the baseline and then advances to the net and smashes his opponent's attack with his volleying, he is likely to win the championship.

But if the Baron effectively returns Yamagishi's drives, he probably will switch the course of the game and put Yamagishi on a difficult defense and run through the sets a winner. The German ace is favored to win if he plays his usually steady brand of tennis.

Tuesday's match was the third between Yamagishi and Henkel since the latter's arrival here. And it turned out to be a battle royal as expected, with Yamagishi out to win his third straight match and establish his mettle as a recently great tennis player, while Henkel was determined to redeem himself. The latter registered three aces on his service in the first game to win it easily to show he was out doing his best. Henkel led, 3—0, but Yamagishi began to round into form and unleashed an accurate driving attack that was accurate and he rallied to win five straight games to win the set, 6—4.

Yamagishi continued to lead in the first part of the second set, keeping Henkel on the run from one side of the court to the other, and scored on the way to take it. But he began to show signs of weariness and Henkel, quick to take advantage of this, managed to run through the set, 6-4, to put the match on a 1-all basis.

Henkel Rallies

Henkel maintained his good play at the start of the third set while Yamagishi could not recover his touch to lead 3-1. At this stage of the game, the Japanese Davis Cupper's attack began functioning and once again, he took five consecutive games to take the set, 6-3, to lead 2-1.

No intermission was taken by both players and play continued. Yamagishi forced into a 3-1 lead in the fourth set. Then he led 40-15 in the fifth game, which went to deuce on several occasions before Yamagishi finally took it to lead 4-1. He was then playing sensational tennis and led 5-2. Henkel kept his service to creep up to 5-3. With his service, Yamagishi led 40-15 in the next game. Henkel took the next point but Yamagishi rallied to win the game for match-point.

Kuramitsu gave a exhibition of good tennis but his service and net play were much too weak against a player of the Baron's caliber. There were frequent rallies of a keen driving duels but the Reich wizard won the match within an hour's time.

Miss Horn Wins

Miss Mary Luise Horn, German's No. 1 ranking woman player, entered the semi-finals of the women's singles championships by eliminating Miss Harada in the quarter-finals, 6-2 and 6-0. Then paired with Miss Toda, she beat Misses Kimata and Takeda in the semi-finals of the women's doubles, 6-0 and 6-2. In the other match, Mrs. Matsudaira and Miss Yamagishi eliminated Mrs. Ewing and Mrs. Fichter, 6-2 and 6-2.

The results of the other quarter-finals matches of the women's singles follow:

Miss Kimata defeated Miss Yamagishi, 6-2 and 6-4.

Mrs. Sasakura defeated Mrs Ewing, 6-3 and 6-2.

Wisconsin Wins From Iowa, 13-6

N. Y. Times

MADISON, Wis., Oct. 16.—The University of Wisconsin football team extended its victory string to four straight by defeating Iowa today, 13 to 6, before a homecoming crowd of 31,000.

The Badgers scored in the first and fourth periods. The Iowans crossed the Wisconsin goal line for the first time this season in the third.

Fumbles Costly

Wisconsin picked up three Iowa fumbles in the first period, and one of the breaks led to a touchdown. Halfback Kinnick fumbled after a 40-yard return of a Badger punt and Gayre recovered. After an exchange of punts, Olson fumbled for Iowa and Gayre again recovered on the Iowa 28. The Hawks pulled up by Pohl on the Iowa 22. Gayre passed by Martin for a touchdown.

After a scoreless second period Iowa marched from its 30 to a touchdown in the third, the Hawkeye backs tearing the Badger line on center and tackle smashes. One pass, Kinnick to Lannon, picked up 17 yards to place the ball on the Badger 16. The Wisconsin line stiffened, but Olson tore through center on two thrusts to the Badger. 3. Kinnick drove through for the touchdown.

Two Badger Passes Click

In the final period Wisconsin got the ball at midfield after an exchange of punts and two passes clicked to move the ball to the Iowa 33. Four plays, with Schmitz, Bellin and Weiss carrying the ball, made it first down on the Iowa 7. Weiss went around end for a touchdown. He also kicked the point.

Michigan State Rally Subdues Marquette, 21-7

N. Y. Herald Tribune

EAST LANSING, Mich., Oct. 23—Rangy Jack Pingel, fleet-footed halfback, ended Michigan State's touchdown famine today as the Spartans put on a late rally and conquered Marquette, 21 to 7.

Pingel scored all three State touchdowns, the last one on a sensational eighty-yard sprint.

He scored the first touchdown of the game late in the first period when he plowed over from the 6-yard line after a combined running and aerial assault had taken the ball from midfield to scoring territory.

Early in the third period Marquette tied the count when Ray Sonnenberg caught a ten-yard pass from Andy Bakula over the goal line. Previously Bakula had intercepted one of Pingel's tosses and raced forty-two yards before being brought down from behind.

Opening the final period, State unleashed a furious attack that saw Uel Haney, substitute fullback, make gains of eighteen and nineteen yards. Pingel battered his way across from the 8-yard stripe.

Marquette came back with a passing game that carried deep into State territory before Bakula punted over the goal line.

The triumph gave State a one-game edge in the five-game series that the teams have played.

Pingel's touchdowns were the first that the Spartans have scored since they beat Michigan, 19 to 14, on October 2.

Detroit Tiger Park Will Be Enlarged

DETROIT, Oct. 22—Plans for increasing the seating capacity of the Detroit Tigers' baseball park to 60,000 were announced yesterday by Walter O. Briggs, owner of the club. The addition of 22,000 seats and other improvements will cost $700,000, Briggs said. He also disclosed that hereafter the park will be known as Briggs Stadium rather than Navin Field.

Briggs, automotive magnate, who purchased an interest in the Detroit club some years ago, became sole owners of the Tigers in 1935.

The park will be double decked throughout and the seating capacity of 60,000 will make it second in size in major league cities. The Yankee Stadium seats 72,000. The alterations will not change the size of the present playing field, Briggs said. Work will begin within a month.

This will be the second time that the park has been enlarged in two years. When Briggs assumed control of the club he constructed additions which increased the seating capacity from 28,000 to 38,000. During the 1937 season the Tigers led all other major league clubs in home attendance with a total of 1,300,000.

Dayton's Pass At Gun Beats Ohio Eleven, 6-0

ATHENS, Ohio, Oct. 23—Dayton made good a last-second pass and beat Ohio University, 6 to 0, today, retaining its lead in the Buckeye conference football race.

Padley, substitute halfback, grabbed a 26-yard pass from Riegel on the 5-yard line and crossed the goal just as the final gun sounded to administer the Bobcats their first home defeat in ten years.

London Soccerites Coming To Japan In March Of '38

The Corinthia Soccer team of Islington ward, London, will probably play a series of games in Japan next March while on a tour around the world, according to a Domei dispatch from London as of Monday.

The world girdling trip was suggested from the creditable competition shown by the teams from the Orient in the last Olympic Games at Berlin, and is being sponsored by the Islington Rotary Club. The Corinthia team left London for the Netherlands the first part of this month, according to the Domei dispatch.

Team's Itinerary

From the Netherlands, the team's itinerary calls for games in Switzerland and Italy, and then across the Mediterranean to Egypt, through the Red Sea to India, the Malyan group, Hongkong, probably Shanghai, and to Kobe. From Yokohama, the team will sail for Honolulu, thence to Canada and back to England.

According to information received, the team will spend approximately two months in India and will play 24 games while there. Arrival at Kobe is expected to be during the middle part of March when the cherry blossoms are in bloom. Games with Japanese team are in the course of negotiations.

The Corinthia eleven's trip will be the first round the world jaunt ever to be made by a soccer team and from this angle, the results will be watched with great interests. It will afford an opportunity to compare the Japanese teams with those of the first rank in other countries.

Visit Is Hailed

Depending on the showing of the teams in the Orient, it is not unlikely that there will be other teams coming to the Orient from Europe. And the Corinthia's soccerites to Japan is being welcomed with great enthusiasm, furnishing competition of the nature local teams sorely lack.

"This news about the Corinthia team's visit to Japan is most welcome," Shigeyoshi Suzuki, honorary chairman of the Japan Association Football Association said Tuesday. "We have been working on preparing a team for the Olympic Games in 1940 from last spring, and if things go right, we might be able to defeat the English team."

"BELIEVE IT OR NOT"---by Ripley

A Stomach-Ache Made France A Republic

On January 30, 1875, the so-called Wallon amendment declaring France a Republic was to be voted upon by the French Assembly. The 706 members of the Assembly were evenly divided, 353 being for a monarchist and 353 for a republican form of government. A few minutes before the actual voting, Deputy Jules Leureant, a rabid monarchist, was seized with a violent stomach-ache and carried home. In his absence and for the lack of his vote, the republican amendment was carried by a vote of 353 to 352, making France a republic by the majority of one vote.

Von Cramm Beats Yamagishi To Win National Singles Title; First By Foreigner

Baron Gottfried von Cramm of the German Davis Cup team and world's No. 2 ranking amateur player, second only to the great J. Donald Budge of California, won the national singles championship of Japan Wednesday at the International Courts at Koshien, near Osaka, by defeating Jiro Yamagishi, Japan's top ranking player, in the final. The scores were: 7-9, 6-4, 6-4 and 6-4.

It was considered the match with the highest brand of tennis yet played in this country, and the fans that packed the stands were treated with one beautiful play after another. The volleying of the two, with lightning speed, was especially sparkling.

Yamagishi Plays Well

Great credit is due Yamagishi for his feat of winning the first set and almost that of the second against the great von Cramm, who in the opinion of William Tilden, tennis' greatest star to date, is the world's best player today, not excepting Budge.

As a matter of fact, Yamagishi led 4-1 in the second set and it seemed as if he might be able to down the Baron. But the latter unleashed an attack of superb tennis that won for him five games in a row to take the set. After that, Yamagishi never had a chance against the German star.

Baron von Cramm dropped his service early in the first set and Yamagishi led 4-2. The latter lost his game point for a 5-2 lead and then lost his service to give the game to von Cramm. The latter then won the next to put the score on a 4-all basis. Each won his service game and the score went to 5-all. For the second time, Yamagishi lost his service and for the first time the German star was in the lead, 6-5. And when it seemed that the Japanese star would loss the first set, von Cramm dropped his service and it was 6-all. He then led 7-6 but von Cramm won his service and they were tied again, that the Japanese star would lose 8-7. The Baron then lost his service game and Yamagishi finally took the set at 9-7.

Turning Point

Yamagishi continued his accurate and smashing attack in the second set to take the first three games. Then it was 3-1 and 4-1 in his favor. But Yamagishi lost his service and it was 4-2. The Baron made two errors and Yamagishi led 30-0 in the seventh game. A forehand drive by Yamagishi failed to work and it was 30-15. The Baron then came through with a sensational backhand shot that put the score, 30-30. This turned out to be the deciding factor in the match. Yamagishi made an error on a bounce that tended to be uncertain and the Baron led 40-30. The latter then took the next point on a volley to break through Yamagishi's service. Had Yamagishi won this game, it would have given him in a 5-2 lead and he might have taken the set. The Baron then won his service to put the score at 4-all and unleashing an attack that was not to be stopped ran through the set, 6-4.

Yamagishi appeared to have felt the strain of the battle and lost his service at the opening of the third set. The Baron then kept his service games and won the set and match without trouble.

In the fourth set, the Baron in no time was leading by 5-2. It seemed as if Yamagishi had lost all fight but he rallied and broke through the Baron's service and caught up to 5-4. And once again it looked as if he might break through the Baron's service by leading 40-15 in the 10th game. Here were two chances for him to take the set but he failed.

Thus did the national title go to a foreigner for the first time.

Roderick Menzel, the great Czech player, was in Japan two years ago but Yamagishi defeated him in the final in the national championships.

Germans Favored

Miss Mary Luise Horn, German's No. 1 woman player, and Miss Toda won the women's doubles title by defeating Mrs. Matsudaira and Miss Yamagishi in the final, 6-3 and 6-3.

Miss Horn also entered the final of the women's singles by eliminating Miss Kimata, 6-0 and 6-1. In the other semi-finals match, Miss Sasakura defeated Miss Betty Pierce, 6-1, 4-6 and 6-1.

Net Champion

Tulane Triumphs Over Colgate, 7-6 Before 36,000

N. Y. Times

BUFFALO, N. Y., Oct. 16—Tulane edged out a 7-to-6 victory over Colgate in Roesch Stadium today before 36,000 spectators, after having gone into the second quarter one touchdown behind.

A fumble paved the way for the Colgate touchdown in the first five minutes. Fullback John Andrews of the Green Wave fumbled on the first play. The ball was recovered on Tulane's 22 by John Lucy, the Red Raiders' left guard. A few minutes later John Lalor went over the line for the first score, but Marcel Chesboro's placement failed.

Southern Line Stiffens

Colgate threatened once again before the period ended, driving to the 3-yard line after right end Don Demple had blocked a punt and Lucy had recovered it on Tulane's 33. A series of end runs and spinners brought two first downs before Tulane's line stiffened and the Southerners punted out of danger.

Tulane began an impressive counter attack that reached its climax when Brunner heaved a 40-yard forward pass to Peter Dalovisio, substitute end. This put the ball 13 yards from Colgate's goal. Brunner passed to quarterback Ralph Bond, who took one step and scored. Mattis's placement succeeded.

Tulane reached Colgate's 12 in another drive that saw the Green Wave try of modified version of the old Statue of Liberty play. Mattis intercepted one of Labor's passes to give Tulane the ball on its 44. Dalvision gained 14 and Brunner handed the ball to Mattis to gain 4 yards on Mattis to gain 4 yards on the Statue play. The same play, however, lost 6 yards for Tulane just before it surrendered the ball 18 yards from the Colgate line.

The teams struggled in midfield through the opening stages of the third quarter, Colgate breaking through for a thrust that brought a first down, before being forced to kick. Tulane retaliated with a march from its 17 past midfield.

Mattis Places Punt Wall

Then Mattis placed a punt in the coffin corner where Herman of Colgate was downed in his tracks 3 yards from the goal line. Wemple's return punt was hurried and high, and Tulane took the ball on the 27, only to lose it almost immediately when Friedrichs, substitute end, fumbled on an intricate lateral.

Tulane pierced deep into Colgate territory at the opening of the last period, carrying the ball from its 36 to Colgate's 22. The drive brought two first downs, Brunner and Mattis carrying the ball on end runs and off-tackle smashes. Two forward passes failed as Colgate covered potential receivers closely.

With Bill Mattis in the role of battering ram, Tulane reeled off five first downs and the ball was on Colgate's 7. Dalovisio swung around end and was downed three yards from the goal line. With a minute and a half left to play, Colgate held, inches from the line.

Lalor of Colgate attempted a forward pass, but it was intercepted by Butler, who was downed 11 yards from the goal. The ball was on the 6 when the whistle blew.

Yomiuri To Stage Titular Series For Pro Nines

The first of an annual four-day series to determine Japan's professional baseball champions under the auspices of the Yomiuri Shimbun pioneers in pro baseball in Japan through the organization of the Tokyo Giants squad in 1934, will be held at the new Korakuen stadium on December 15, 16, 18 and 19, according to announcement this morning by the Yomiuri.

The championship will be determined on an elimination system. The schedule will be drawn on the showing of the teams in the present fall season which is to come to a close soon, and the teams will be accordingly seeded. Announcement will be made in the near future.

Series At Osaka

Entirely separate from the spring and fall pennant chasing seasons of the pro league, another championship series of the existing professional teams will be held at the Nishinomiya stadium near Osaka on December 9, 10, 11 and 12, under the auspices of the Osaka Mainichi Shimbun, it was announced this morning. Part of the proceeds will be sent to the comfort fund of the soldiers on the battle fronts in China.

The Osaka Mainichi's series for next year will be staged after the spring season with the games to be played at the Koshien stadium. The annual series thereafter will be alternated each year at the two stadia.

The Osaka Tigers, who have already clinched the championship of the fall season, won their 36th victory by downing the Nagoya nine, 12-8, in the curtain-raiser of Wednesday's triple-header at the Korakuen stadium. Captain Matsuki and Backstop Tanaka of the Tigers each knocked out a homer in the Tigers' attack.

Eiichi Sawamura, speedball artist of the Giants, was in splendid form and checked the Hankyus to three scattered hits to aid his team to a 1-0 victory in an extra inning battle. He sent 12 men back to the bench via the strike-out route. Nakada of the Hankyus himself hurled fine ball by allowing only five hits.

Sawamura Wins Own Game

The Giants scored their winning run in the last half of the 10th canto when Nakada began to show signs of weariness. First Baseman Nagasawa greeted him with a timely three bagger. Uchibori was safe on an infield hit. And then it was Sawamura, who smashed one over the center fielder's head to win his own game.

The Senators nosed out the hard fighting Eagles, 7-6, in the other game.

California Tops U.S.C., 20 To 6, Before 80,000

N. Y. Herald Tribune

BERKELEY, Calif., Oct. 23—California's Golden Bears sounded another challenge today in their drive toward national football championship recognition with a stunning 20-to-6 victory over the University of Southern California's Trojans.

Nearly 80,000 fans, the largest crowd to witness a game on the Pacific Coast this season, saw the powerful Bears smear the Trojans during a first half offensive that rolled up three touchdowns and a victory more decisive than expected by their most ardent supporters.

It was the fourth successive victory over an old-time gridiron foe for California and its third victory in the drive for the Coast conference title. The Bears, undefeated, untied and undisputed leaders in the championship race, struck early and often.

Behind brilliant line play, marked by the work of two sturdy guards, Stockton and Evans, Vic Bottari, left halfback, scored two touchdowns in the opening quarter while Dave Anderson, fullback, followed with another in the second period.

Southern California saved itself from being blanked when Landsell, reserve quarterback, went from the 1-yard line to climax a seventy-seven-yard advance in the third quarter. The counter was made against a complete team of California substitutes.

Nine minutes after the opening kick-off Bottari crashed left tackle for three yards. The touchdown came on the tail end of a fifty-seven-yard march on eight line plays with the California line opening up big holes.

Five minutes later Bottari spun around left end for four yards to climax a drive of seventy yards. One pass, from Bottari to the right half, Sam Chapman, good for twenty-four yards, was the big gainer with nine plunges at the line making up the balance.

In the second quarter Anderson cracked through left guard for six yards for the third touchdown after a California march starting sixty-seven yards from the goal.

California chalked up twenty first downs against eight for U.S.C. and banged out 304 yards from scrimmage, compared with sixty-four for the Trojans. The line-up:

Navy And Harvard Play 0-0 Deadlock, Thrilling 54,000

By JOSEPH C. NICHOLS

N.Y. Times

BALTIMORE, Oct. 16—Weakening gradually after a brisk start, the Harvard football team had to content itself with a tie in its battle with Navy today, while a crowd of 54,000 looked on. The rival aggregations pounded each other vigorously and without stint, but when the final whistle sounded neither side could point to anything in its scoring column.

Though unproductive of touchdowns, the game held more than a fair share of thrills, and the great crowd remained seated in the Baltimore Stadium until the final play, held there by the hope and possibility that anything might happen.

And, for a few brief seconds, it appeared as though that last play of the battle was to encompass the Crimson host's downfall. The Middies, in possession of the ball on Harvard's 42-yard line, thanks to a brilliant recovery of a Cambridge fumble by Ray Dubois, the service team's captain, had time to try only one more play before the closing signal.

Famous in Navy Annals

Strategy, of course, called for a forward pass, even though the Middies had been meeting with only mediocre success in their aerial thrusts at Harvard all afternoon. It was thought that a different passer would serve to confound the New England warriors and, following this reasoning, Bill Ingram 2d, the present representative of a family long famous in Annapolis athletic annals, ran onto the gridiron.

Ingram had warmed the bench since the start of the game, kept there by a chest bruise suffered in the Midshipmen's game against Virginia last week. But his throwing arm was whole, and he elected to gamble with it to advance Navy's slim chance of victory.

The vast stands were hushed as Ingram, standing well behind his own line, received the snap-back and poised, almost nonchalantly, to seek his receiver. Espying him on Harvard's 10-yard marker, near the sideline, Ingram released a toss that nestled softly in the arms of Lucien Powell, his right end.

Roar Subsides Quickly

A tremendous roar went up from the Navy rooters on the completion of the pass, for it seemed to them that there remained only for Powell to jog 19 yards to score a Navy touchdown. The roar subsided almost as soon as it arose, however, for Vernon Struck, Harvard's safety man, was dangerously close to Powell. The former, the only obstacle between Powell and his goal, ran at the Navy ball carrier with all the speed at his command, and his prodigious strides brought him apace with Powell on the five-yard stripe.

Powell, close to the sideline, dared to take the chance to slip past Struck, but the Crimson stalwart got his hands on him just in time, to spill him just out of bounds. No sooner was the play over than the gun barked the end of the game, with the sailors nearer their opponents' goal than at any time during the fray.

So, Ingram's dramatic, last-second attempt to put Navy on the touchdown trail just fell short. It served, nevertheless, as the climax of the hard-fought battle, and left every spectator, Navy sympathizer and Harvard adherent alike, limp with excitements.

Reich Stars Win Doubles Title In Listless Match

Baron Gottfried von Cramm and Henner Henkel of the German Davis Cup team, considered by many as the world's best doubles team, won the national doubles title Friday afternoon in the concluding day of this year's national tennis championships at the Koshien courts. They did so by defeating Jiro Yamagishi and Reizo Murakami of Keio University in five sets, 8-10, 6-2, 11-13, 6-2 and 6-4. Incidentally, it was the first time the doubles title has gone to a foreign combination.

Miss Mary Luise Horn, Germany's No. 1 woman player and considered world's eighth best, took the women's singles title by winning easily from Miss Kimiko Sasakura in the final, 6-2 and 6-1.

Further laurels were gained by Miss Horn when she paired with former Davis Cupper Ryuki Miki and won the mixed doubles championship by vanquishing Miss Hisako Yamagishi and ex-Davis Cupper Tamio Abe in two straight sets, 6-3 and 6-4.

Germans Clean Sweep

Thus it may be said that the major titles will be en route to Germany when the Reich stars leave this country.

Members of the German team are scheduled to leave Osaka by the Fuji special express at 11:22 p.m. today for Shimonoseki. Sunday at the Kasugabara athletic field at Fukuoka, the Baron and Henkel will take on Yasumine Kuramitsu, last year's national champion, and Takakusu of the Fukuoka Club in exhibition matches.

Although the men's doubles final went to the maximum five sets, requiring 68 games over 2½ hours, it cannot be said that the players exhibited the best brand of tennis they were capable of. Rather it was the many faults committed that made it a long drawn out match. To tennis experts, the match was a distinct disappointment, according to former Davis Cupper Abe.

The great von Cramm was the first to show that he was not in his usual form. For instance in the second game of the first set on his own service, he made three consecutive errors on his volleying and the consequence was that the Japanese won without the Germans scoring a point.

Taking advantage of von Cramm's off-form, Yamagishi and his partner led 4-1 in no time. And on von Cramm's service again, the Japanese were leading 40-15 and had a good chance to make it 5-1. But Yamagishi lost four chances for game-set. The Germans rallied and caught up to 4-4, due largely to three errors on volleying by Murakami. Both teams kept their service and the score went to 7-7, then to 8-8, with both sides committing errors on smashing and volleying. Yamagishi won his service and von Cramm erred twice on his volley to lose his service and the Japanese finally ran through the set, 10-8.

Murakami Falters

Then it was Murakami who began to lose his touch in the second set. Yamagishi too was listless in his play and the Germans took the set easily in 6-2.

An indication of the mediocre play of the contestants was revealed in the third set when Yamagishi, Henkel, Murakami and von Cramm lost their services respectively to put the score on a 2-all basis. On such a trend did the set continue and it was Murakami's shot through Henkel that gave it to the Japanese, 13-11.

Henkel became erratic in the fourth set and it seemed as if the Japanese duo would win the set but the Germans rallied and took it easily by 6-2.

In the fifth set, the German pair proved much too good for the Japanese and assumed a 5-1 lead. Yamagishi staged a comeback and won the next three games to put the score 5-4 but Henkel kept his service on the next game and the Germans took the match.

Germans Score Clean Sweep

Michigan Beats Iowa Eleven, 7-6

N. Y. Herald Tribune

IOWA CITY, Iowa, Oct. 23—Michigan's Wolverines, who have prowled unsuccessfully through Big Ten football sectors since October, 1935, finally found a victim today when they defeated Iowa, another victory-starved team, 7 to 6, before 18,000 Dad's Day guests.

The Wolverines outplayed the Hawkeyes most of the way, snatching a 7-to-0 lead in the second quarter and clamping a tight lid on Iowa's offense, except for one brilliant touchdown thrust by Nile Kinnick.

The only real spark of enthusiasm the Hawkeyes provided the crowd came in the third quarter when Kinnick, triple-threat sophomore, grabbed a Michigan punt and sprinted through the entire Wolverine team on a seventy-four touchdown dash.

Iowa, however, was denied a tie when Bill Smith, Michigan tackle, smashed through the Iowan line and blocked Jack Eicherly's conversion attempt from placement.

The Hawkeyes never had another chance. The big Wolverine line constantly smashed through to ground Iowa's running and passing attack, and Iowa fans filed out of the stadium still waiting for the Hawkeyes' first home conference victory since 1933.

Michigan started its touchdown drive late in the first quarter. Fred Trosko returned a punt ten yards to the Michigan 45. Trosko swept nine yards around end as the quarter ended.

Tex Stanton, fullback, and Trosko hammered to the Iowa 28. Then Trosko dropped back and looped a beautiful pass to Bill Barclay, who was chased out of bounds on the 8.

Trosko picked up five yards on a plunge, and Stanton crashed through on the next play for a touchdown. Trosko added the extra point from placement, and the Wolverines never were headed.

Iowa gained ninety-nine yards from scrimmage to Michigan's 139. The Wolverines netted sixty-four yards on passes to twenty for the Hawkeyes and made ten first downs to Iowa's six.

Kelly, Ex Yale Star, Becomes Professional With Boston Eleven

San Francisco News

BOSTON, Oct. 21—Larry Kelley, whose wise-cracking and pass-snaring at Yale made him a Gridiron Dizzy Dean, has become a professional football player. George Keneally, general manager and coach of the Boston Shamrocks, announced today.

Keneally said the former Yale captain and end had signed with the Shamrocks on the American Professional League. Previously Kelley had insisted that he would not play as a pro. He was reported to have rejected $12,000 for a season with the Detroit Lions.

Keneally said Kelly signed a contract at Highstown, N.J., where he now assists in coaching a boys' prep school team. He said negotiations were carried on through an agent and that Larry would play end for the remainder of the season, beginning Sunday at Boston in the game with Pittsburgh. No salary figure was revealed.

Pass Wins For Kansas Over Oklahoma, 6 To 3

NORMAN, Okla. Oct. 23—Kansas University's Jayhawkers pulled a forty-eight-yard touchdown pass on the final play today to defeat the University of Oklahoma Sooners, 6 to 3, in a Big Six Conference football game. With ten seconds to play, Don Ebling looped a thirty-yard aerial to Dick Amerine, who outran Webber Merrall to the goal line.

Stanford Tumbles Washington, 13-7

N.Y. Herald Tribune

SEATTLE, Oct. 23—The University of Washington made the first downs, but Stanford University made the touchdowns to win a 13-to-7 Coast Conference football game today.

Despite the fact the Stanford Indians were unable to gain a first down and had a minus-ten yardage total through the first two periods, they had scored a touchdown by half-time.

Late in the second period Stanford recovered a Husky fumble on the Washington 44-yard line. A following Stanford punt rolled to the 3-yard line. The Indians blocked Johnston's punt in the end zone and Stanford's Stone fell on the ball for a touchdown.

In the third period, Wise punted from behind the Washington goal line. The ball went out of bounds on the Husky 16. Groves drove down the sidelines to the Washington 4, and three plays later smashed over for the second Stanford touchdown.

The Huskies rallied in the same period to march from their own 16-yard line to the Stanford goal line, Cruver plunging the final half yard for the score. The line-up:

Nebraska In 0-0 Tie Against Oklahoma

N.Y. Times

LINCOLN, Neb., Oct. 16—Nebraska and Oklahoma sloshed to a scoreless tie in their annual Big Ten football fray today, as about 15,000 bedraggled fans sat through a drizzle. Both teams made five first downs and neither threatened seriously, although Oklahoma missed two field goals.

Howell and Merrell engaged in a kicking duel as both offensives stalled in the mud. Bill Callihan, Husker fullback, personally engineered two first downs by plunging, the only ones of the quarter. Merrell was getting off some beautiful kicks but neither team was able to get closer than the opposing 35.

Oklahoma took full charge in the second quarter, playing constantly in Cornhusker territory. Hugh McCullough, Sooner fullback, tried a 40-yard place-kick but it fell far short. Marvin Plock, tiny substitute Husker halfback, misjudged one of Web Merrell's kicks and was almost downed for a safety. The Sooners got no closer than the 30, however.

A kicking duel between Merrell and Bill Anderson, substitute Nebraska quarter, was interrupted only by two Nebraska first downs driven through the line by Callihan for Nebraska. Late in the period, however, Duggan grabbed a Nebraska pass on the Husker 45 and then McCullough tossed a pass to Pete Smith and plunged through the line for a first down on the Nebraska 35.

The futile kicking duel continued through the fourth quarter. Raphael Boudreau, Sooner placekicker, came in late to try a 23-yard field goal, but it fell short. Bill Callihan engineered another first down on a pair of ramming plunges, but Oklahoma, with the help of a penalty, scored two first downs to even the count in that department at five and five for the game.

The line-up:

The Oldest Man

The excellent climate of Abkazia, Soviet Autonomous Republic, a part of Soviet Georgia, Trans-Caucasus, is conducive to long life, and there are many people there who are well over a hundred. The oldest of all is Yekup Shoua, who is now 157 and still sprightly and active. Supporting himself on a small cane, Yekup makes daily walks in the mountains, going two miles from his native village, Gvada. His vision and hearing are still good, and his memory is so keen that he recalls incidents that occurred about 1800, as though they happened only yesterday.

Not only the climate but their simple manner of living adds many years to the lives of Abkazians. The mountainous country forces them to be athletic, they bathe in the mountain streams all year round, get plenty of mountain air and sunshine.

IT TAKES CRUST TO SPEAK OF PIES

It takes crust to speak of some pies. But Lohmeyer's pies have those rich, brown crusts worth speaking of. They're crisp and tender, never soggy and always baked to a golden turn. We'd be going too far to say that they melt in your mouth. Besides there isn't much fun eating things that do. So let's agree that they are uniformly good and baked to be eaten. And when they're packed with apples or peaches or other fruits in season, they make a thrilling climax to a meal.
Any time between 11 and 11.

Bears Beat Stanford, 13-0 To Win Conference Title; Harvard Upsets Yale, 13-6

By COURTESY OF MACKAY RADIO

PALO ALTO, Nov. 20—California's belligerent Bears struck twice in the second quarter today, and rolled over Stanford for an easy 13 to 0 victory in the blue-ribbon traditional football game of the Pacific Coast.

It gave California the conference championship, preserved a spotless record and qualified them to represent the Far West in the January 1 classic at the Rose Bowl.

They play an intersectional game with the efficient Engineers from Georgia Tech in their last scheduled contest.

Rain Slows Attack

Intermittent rain slowed California's powerful running attack today, but the victory was decisive. Both touchdowns came after long, irresistible drives, one of 79 yards, the other of 65 yards. The Bears big line mowed down Stanford's forwards and the backs went ahead steadily. Bottari scored the first touchdown and Chapman the second.

It was a matter of sheer power. The Bears made no attempt to gain by passing the rain-soaked leather. Stanford's lone opportunity to score came late in the game when they reached California's 23-yard line, but an Indian pass fell into the hands of an alert California defender and the game was over.

A series of history-backed games between the nation's oldest collegiate rivals ended heavy firing on the 1937 football front today, and produced the normal number of surprises.

Harvard Beats Yale

And so the day saw favored Yale fall before Harvard, Oregon State lose to Washington State, and the underdog Colgate triumph over Syracuse.

Even in the cases where favored teams did win, the scores were close. Marquette barely nosed out Duquesne, 13 to 6, and Fordham's Rams had trouble winning a 6 to 0 decision over the oft-defeated St. Mary's Gaels, of Moraga, California.

Illinois took a clean-cut 21 to 0 victory over lowly Chicago, and Ohio State won from Michigan by the same score. Purdue beat Indiana, 13 to 7, and Arizona's Wildcats pulled a surprise with a 9 to 7 victory over Kansas.

Another surprise came from the Eastern seaboard where Princeton, with a team that has been pummeled and pushed around all season, crushed the Navy's Middies by the startling score of 26 to 6. Notre Dame added another close one over Northwestern to the records, 7 to 0.

Pitt's Panthers, unbeaten and booming large in the Rose Bowl picture, had no difficulty marching through Penn State, 28 to 7. Choice of a candidate to oppose California in the Rose Bowl game probably will lie between Pittsburgh and Alabama. Aalbama did not play today.

The oldest traditional football game in the United States produced the biggest surprise of the season today when Harvard rose to inspired heights and defeated Yale, 13 to 6.

80-Yard Drive Produces

It was a startling reversal of form. Yale was previously undefeated and had been tied only by Dartmouth. The Crimson, on the other hand, had lost to that same Dartmouth team, and to the Army, and had a scoreless tie with the Navy marring its record. The most ardent Harvard supporters had conceded a two-touchdown margin to Yale before the game.

But it was hardly five minutes old before some 50,000 spectators knew the game was not going to run according to form. Harvard quickly produced a touchdown, fought off a series of Yale drives and was leading, 6 to 0, at the half.

Bulldogs Rally

Early in the third quarter, the Bulldogs began showing the power that had brought them through to this game without defeat. Hessberg led a long down-field drive and Yale's famous Capt. Clint Frank drove over for the tying touchdown. The try for goal was missed and the score stood, 6 to 6.

Soon afterward, Yale again penetrated deep into Harvard territory. Held for downs on the 23-yard-line, they tried a field goal. It missed.

The game was within a few minutes of the end when Harvard started on its own 20, and, in thirteen plays, had a touchdown. The thirteenth play was unlucky for Yale. Toley carried the ball on a reverse, out-sprinted Capt. Frank, and went over standing up.

Eyston Sets New World Record For Automobile

By The Domei Tsushin Sha

BONNEVILLE, Utah, Nov. 19—Traveling faster than any man or machine has gone on land before, Captain George Eyston, piloting his six-wheeled, seventon Thunderbolt at 311.42 miles an hour, today claimed a new world speed record for the automobile. The noted British speed demon broke the two-year-old record of 301.13 miles an hour set up by another Englishman, Sir Malcolm Campbell with his Bluebird.

Eyston late last month sped over the Bonneville Salt Flats at 309 miles an hour but did not get the record as his car broke down on the return run. His racing car, the world's mightiest land machine, is powered by a 6,000 H.P. Motor.

80-Yard March By Bates Turns Back Maine, 7 To 0

LEWISTON, Me., Oct. 23—A sustained eighty-yard march in the first period culminated in Bates scoring the only touchdown of its state series opener with the University of Maine today, the Bobcats winning, 7 to 0. The game was played in a driving rain.

A lateral pass, Morin to Haley to Briggs, resulted in the lone tally. Briggs rushed the ball for the extra point. Bates halted practically every Maine offensive except a fifty-five-yard run by Rod Elliott from a trick spread formation in the second period. Elliott went all the way to the goal line, but the ball was called back and Maine penalized for having only six men in the line of scrimmage.

Ohio Wesleyan Defeats Rollins College, 26-13

DELAWARE, Ohio, Oct. 23—Ohio Wesleyan spotted Rollins College two touchdowns in the first five minutes, then rolled up a 26-to-13 victory over the Florida team today. It was the Bishops' first victory of the season.

Oliver Daugherty's seventy-four yard run in the opening period for Rollins was the game's highlight. Wesleyan came within one point of tying the score in the second period, then took the lead in the third.

Waseda Swamps Keio Eleven By 44 To 0 Score

Waseda University's gridders, determined to win this year's championship of the Tokyo Inter-collegiate American Football league, took no chances with the Keio eleven Saturday afternoon at the Korakuen stadium and walked away with a 44-0 victory. They rolled up seven touchdowns during the afternoon in their relentless attack before an enthusiastic crowd of 1000 fans.

Although Keio showed a much improved team over last year, obviously the results of better coaching by Katsumi Nakamoto, former star at Maui high school in Hawaii, it was unable to cope with the well functioning Waseda machine. The latter's sweeps around the ends were particularly good, each good usually from 10 to 15 yards. The Keio's wingmen were thoroughly sucked in.

Aerial Attack Scores

But what proved an even greater nemesis to the team from Mita was the aerial attack of the Waseda eleven. With Coach Masa Shimoda, playing in the backfield instead of his usual position at end, and Heiichi Nouchi tossing them and both ends, Takeo Nomura and Tatsuo Murayama, on the receiving end, the passes clicked all afternoon.

Keio's only threat for a touchdown came in the third quarter when the ball was advanced to the Waseda 20-yard line with Tamura and Kataoka hitting the line. But an attempt at a lateral pass was intercepted by Center Fukuda of Waseda to check the rally.

First Quarters

After five minutes of play, Keio punted from its own 11 yard line and Yoshimoto of Waseda received it and ran zig-zag for a touchdown with perfect interference furnished him by his teammates. Naito hit center for extra point. Score 7-0.

Continuous line plunges by Obayashi and Naito and nice end runs by Yoshimoto accounted for touchdown. Obayashi hit center for the touchdown. Conversion failed. Score 13-0.

Second Quarter

Deep in its own territory, Keio attempted a lateral pass which was blocked and recovered by Nomura, tall Waseda end. From here a nice reverse play gained 15 yards and Obayashi again hit center for the third touchdown. Conversion failed. Score 19-0. Waseda's fourth touchdown came after a succession of passes. Starting on its own 30 yard line, a pass from Nouchi to Nomura was good for 10 yards. An end run by Noguchi was good for another 10 yards. Another pass by Nouchi to Nomura, who lateralled to Noguchi to Murayama to Naito, gained 15 yards. Naito hit left tackle and scored touchdown standing up. Score 25-0—a drop-kick for the extra point failed.

Third Quarter

Waseda kicked off but Keio man fell down with the ball on his own 3 yard line. Keio kicked out of danger to Waseda's 30 yard line but a pass from Nouchi to Yamaguchi over right flank scored the fifth touchdown. Conversion failed on a place-kick. Score 31-0. After this Keio put up a stone wall defense. In fact its offense with the Kataoka, Tamura and Todo hitting the line netted big gains and Keio advanced to the Waseda 20 yard line. A pass was attempted but it was intercepted by Fukuda of Waseda.

Fourth Quarter

Waseda marched down with beautiful passes by Shimoda. On the 30 yard line, Shimoda threw a beautiful spiral pass over the right flank to Murayama who raced 15 yards to a touchdown. Conversion again failed. Score 37-0. Another string of passes brought the ball down to the 12 yard line and a short pass by Shimoda to Nomura scored the last touchdown. Drop-kick finally found its mark for the extra point. Score 44—0.

Nakamura Leads Rikkyo To 27-6 Win Over Hosei

With Kenichi Nakamura, although Japan born and reared here is the best punter and one of the best backfield men in the Tokyo Inter-Collegiate American Football league, leading the attack, the much improved Rikkyo University eleven ran roughshod over Hosei, 27-6 Sunday afternoon at Korakuen stadium at Suidobashi.

Only remaining game now in the league's schedule is that between the only two undefeated teams, Meiji and Waseda, on December 4 at the Korakuen stadium.

Missouri Bows To Nebraska's Passes, 7 To 0

N.Y. Herald Tribune

COLUMBIA, Mo., Oct. 23—The Missouri anti-aircraft guns jammed for a few fleeting seconds today and the raiding Nebraskans bombed their way to a 7-to-0 victory over the team early rated as the biggest hurdle in their path to another Big Six championship.

As approximately 16,000 fans sat in dismayed silence Marvin Plock, Husker halfback, raced wide beyond his left end, took a flat pass from Thurston Phelps, and ran thirteen yards to score.

That one thrust, preceded by a brilliantly executed thirty-five-yard pass, Phelps to Jack Dodd, was the clumination of the one real threat of a game which saw two great lines hold opposing offenses in check.

Neither team could provide even a hint of a sustained running attack. Yards from scrimmage were rolled up by both teams, but they were added for the most part by twos and threes, and at the faintest sign the opposition plotted a march scarlet or white-shirted linesmen would swarm through to smother a ball-carrier or rush a passer, and the offense ended right there.

The touchdown march started from the Nebraska 47, and except for a couple of thrusts into the line by Bill Callihan, was made up entirely of the two passes which caught the Missourians flat-footed.

K.R.A.C. Defeats Meiji Footballers In Upset, 19 To 12

Meiji's strong American football team, co-contenders with Waseda for this season's championship of the Tokyo Inter-Collegiate American Football league, went down to an unexpected defeat at the hands of the K. R. and A. C. (Kobe Rowing and Athletic Club) eleven last Saturday afternoon at the Koshien stadium, near Osaka. The score was 19 to 12.

Held scoreless in the first half and thoroughly outplayed by the collegians and on the short side of a 12-0 score, the Kobe gridders, coached by Perry Schultz, rallied in the second half to put over two touchdowns in the third and another in the fourth to win. The Meiji players themselves were without doubt the most surprised persons after the game.

Passes Score for Meiji

Meiji's first touchdown came in the first half on forward passes from Ebisu to Fujiiye and Yasuda in the wake of brilliant offtackle smashes by Kunishige. The attempt to score the extra point on a forward pass failed.

Fullback Ebisu registered Meiji's second touchdown in the second quarter when he grabbed the ball in mid-air which Ueshima of the K. R. and A. C. had fumbled while attempting an end run and then ran unmolested across the final stripe. Conversion failed.

It was a rejuvenated Kobe eleven that received the kickoff to start the second half. Registering one first down after another the ball was carried deep into Meiji teritory before the latter finally held and took the ball over on downs. Quarterback Poons scored the K.R. and A.C.'s first touchdown when he intercepted a pass intended for Machida and romped across the goal line. Ueshima passed to Right Half Hayashi for the extra point.

The same Ueshima paved the way to K.R. and A.C.'s second touchdown in the third period by reeling off a beautiful 30 yard run through the entire Meiji defense to the latter's 15 yard line. A first down put the ball on the 3 yard line. Hayashi and Ueshima on two thrusts to the line put it on the half-foot line whence Captain Robertson carried it over. Conversion failed but the K.R. and A.C. men were leading 13-12.

Final Touchdown

K.R. and A.C.'s final touchdown that salted the game away was scored on a similar play by Ebisu in the second quarter. Captain Hiromu Hata took a short lateral from Ebisu and headed for the sidelines. As Zolotareff crashed into him, Hata fumbled and the alert Zolotareff caught the ball before it hit the ground and ran for a touchdown. The try for the extra point failed.

The line-ups were:

K.R. and A.C. (19)		Meiji (12)
R.E.	Brown	Machida
R.T.	Gilbert	Ban
R.G.	Garrod	Takeshita
C.	Davis	Sakamoto

Substitutions—K.R. and A.C.: Hawkins, Arab, S. Zolotareff, Amram, and Kimura. Meiji: Hata, Yokoyama, Kurokawa, Tani, Hamazaki.

Yale Wins From Cornell, 9-0 Frank Scoring On 68-Yd. Run

By HARRY CROSS

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 23—Yale was too smart for Cornell in the damp bowl this afternoon and 40,000 spectators saw the Big Red team go down in the mud, 9 to 0, the margin of a touchdown and a goal from placement. Resourceful and versatile on the defense and gambling with a wet, slippery ball on the attack, Yale was even a better team than the score indicates.

The big moment of the game came midway in the final quarter when Clint Frank raced sixty-eight yards to a touchdown. It was a glorious romp over the wet turf. He took the ball on a fake reverse and cut through right tackle on a spinner. Once through the Red line he cut to the sidelines to outwit the Cornell outposts.

The Yale blockers organized around Frank and as he seemed about to go over the sideline, he cut out into the field, sending his pursuers off balance.

Hessberg Tumbles Spang

Frank went on merrily toward the goal and Carl Spang, Cornell end, almost seemed within reach of him when Al Hessberg tumbled Spang out of the picture with a deadly block and Frank went on to score.

In the first period after the game was only about eight minutes old, Yale from its own 45-yard mark, carried the ball to the 21-yard mark where Cornell got stubborn. Dave Colwell dropped back to the 28-yard mark and, with Al Wilson holding the ball, booted over a goal from placement.

Yale outrushed Cornell decidedly on the ground and was more successful through the air. Cornell's aerial attack was smothered by the alert Yale defense and twice the imaginative Frank Gallagher and once Charley Ewart intercepted Cornell passes There was elasticity to the Yale defense and Cornell was unable to get off on any sort of a sustained advance. Platt and John, the tackles, and Johnny Miller and Archie Hoxton, at the ends, always had the jump on the Cornell line.

The player who stood out prominently for Cornell was Brud Holland, the Negro end. In the third period he was so alert that he was a fifth man in the Yale backfield and he threw Rafferty and Wilson for a total loss of more than twenty yards.

Rain Cuts Attendance

The wet day, with a drizzling rain which fell for the first two periods, kept down the size of the crowd and the hardy spectators came in slickers and oil skins.

Cornell refused to take chances with forward passes. Although Yale did not hesitate to take chances with the elusive leather.

Because of the kind of day it was, the teams trusted to a kicking policy and, in spite of the heavy, wet ball, the punting, which Eliott Hooper, of Cornell, did with his left foot and Dave Colwell with his right, furnished as exciting a duel as the gridiron will see this season. Hooper averaged forty-six yards on his kicks from the line of scrimmage and Colwell forty.

Yale got into some bad holes, but had sufficient resource to get out of them. A ticklish situation came in the first period after Yale had taken the lead with the field goal.

Hooper got away a long punt, which Ewart took on Yale's 16-yard line. Frank was unable to get through the Cornell line and dropped back to kick. Gallagher was handicapped for the only time of the afternoon by the muddy ball and he made a bad pass back to Colwell, who fumbled and recovered as Spang came tearing down and nailed him on the 3-yard line for a loss. It was the third down and Colwell dropped back into the end zone and booted a long one to Baker at midfield.

Yale Reserves Hold Rivals

The Yale team played so well together as a unit that in the first two periods not a substitution was made. In the last quarter Yale sent in an entirely new outfit, but by that time the Cornellians had the appearance of a team, which was fighting a lost cause and could not get going. Even Yale's second line was too alert for the Big Red team at this stage of the game.

A mysterious, uninvited stranger invaded the sanctity of the gridiron in the third period and was well on his way to offer his services to one or the other of the teams when the officials spotted him and a regiment of assistant managers aided by coaches and spectators carried him off the premises.

In an effort to stem the rising tide of Yale's advance Cornell sent its speedy invalid back, George Pack, into the game, but this surprise move made no impression on a Yale line which knew how and when to charge. Cornell was not able to make any headway on the ground against the Blue forwards and ever-ready secondaries and the few times they went to the air routes, the irrepressible Gallagher was on the ball ahead of the Cornell receivers.

Platt and Gallagher probably did most of the tackling during the afternoon, for no matter on which side the Cornell play went, these two were on the job to greet it.

Platt Balks Cornell

Yale's five-man line on defense changed from a six-man line just before each play when Platt dropped out of his tackle position to get a good look at what was going on in the Cornell backfield. His research work on behalf of the Yale team was invariably successful, for the Cornell attack did not once catch the resourceful Yale defense unawares.

Cornell played a stubborn defensive game, with the aggressive Holland leading the raids against the Yale plays. The team from Ithaca was able to stop Yale three or four times and take the ball on downs after Yale had tried passes on the fourth down unsuccessfully. In the third period, Yale advanced the ball fifty yards to Cornell's 9-yard line only to have Cornell take the ball on downs. In the Yale march was one nifty twenty-five-yard pass from Frank to Johnny Miller.

Redskins Triumph Over Eagles, 10-7

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 24—A 27-yard field goal by Riley Smith in the last thirty seconds of play today gave the Washington Redskins a 10-to-7 victory over the Philadelphia Eagles in a National Football League game.

A crowd of 13,167 saw the Redskins, trailing by to 7 to 0 at half time, come from behind in the third period to tie the score on a 59-yard forward pass, thrown by Slinging Sammy Baugh to Charlie Malone, an end, and then march 65 yards to the Eagles' 20 in the last two minutes to set the stage for Smith's winning field goal.

Cliff Battles, who alone accounted for 103 yards by rushing, started this last advance by intercepting Emmett Mortell's forward on the Washington 15 and running it back 42 yards. He then carried the ball six consecutive times to the Eagles' 20, where, on fourth down, Smith dropped back to the 27 and booted the pigskin between the uprights.

Washington piled up sixteen first downs to two and gained 162 yards by rushing to 37, plus an additional 143 by passes to 59.

The Eagles scored on a 26-yard forward pass in the second period, Mortell to Joe Carter.

Alabama Hands G. Washington 1st Defeat, 19-0

N. Y. Herald Tribune

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23—Alabama's Crimson Tide, striking once with its versatile running attack and twice through the air, bumped George Washington University from the unbeaten ranks and earned a 19-to-0 intersectional victory today before 24,666 fans. The triumph was Alabama's fifth of the campaign.

It took the Southerners more than a quarter to set the spark to their rushing offensive and, although they won handily, they were far from alert to a half-dozen opportunities George Washington errors offered them. The Colonials, except for a wild aerial barrage that clicked briefly in the last period, made few gestures and gained only sixteen yards.

Sampson, Colonial halfback, caught the Alabamians asleep right at the outset with a quick kick down to the goal line that kept the Crimson in its own backyard most of the quarter. Alabama was fortunate—the ball barely touched the goal line and was brought out to their 20

Finally Joe Kilgrow, Alabama's chief threat, lugged a punt back to midfie'd and shot a pass which Perron Shoemaker speared and carried to the 13. Charley Holm banged down to the 5 but there the attack bogged down, even though the Crimson was given a series of extra downs because of a penalty against George Washington.

Early in the second period Holm fell in behind Jim Ryba's superb interference and darted thirty-seven yards to the Colonial 25. Kilgrow then drifted back, found Shoemaker unguarded out by the sidelines and flipped him a pass he caught on the 7 and carried for a touchdown. Kilgrow's placement split the uprights.

Hal Hughes, quarterback, personally arranged for the Southerners' second score with a surprise kick down to George Washington's 10 that brought a badly rushed short kick and the Crimson was ready to march again from the Colonials' 30. With Kilgrow and Holm bombing the line, they moved, punch by punch, down to the 2 and Kilgrow drove across. His attempted pass for the extra point was incomplete.

Holm took advantage of Sampson's ineffective floating low passes by snagging one and running it back thirty yards for a touchdown just after the third period opened. Kilgrow's placement was wide.

Green Bay Routs Cleveland, 35-7

N.Y. Times

GREEN BAY, Wis., Oct. 24—The Packers of the National Football League, making their last appearance of the season at home, handed the Cleveland Rams their second setback in as many Sundays by defeating them, 30 to 7, today. It was Green Bay's fourth consecutive circuit victory.

Green Bay made two touchdowns in the first period, another in the third and two in the final quarter. Cleveland tallied in the second period.

A 37-yard run by Halfback Clark Hinkle after he took a 49-yard pass from Bob Monnett accounted for the first Green Bay score. Another pass, Monnett to Schneidman, was good for another Packer tally in the same period.

The Packers counted again four plays after the second half began. Hank Bruder, substitute back, skirted end for this marker from the Cleveland 12-yard stripe.

Green Bay got under way again in the closing session when Monnett passed to Gantenbein on the 10 and the receiver threw laterally to Laws, who scored. Gantenbein intercepted a pass on the Rams' 28 and raced back to the 5-yard stripe, where he tossed a lateral to Bud Schammel, who scored the Packers' fifth touchdown. Hinkle turned in his fifth straight placement conversion.

Bug Memorial

The district around Boonarga, Queensland, Australia, is now rich, productive farming and dairy land—thanks to the Cactoblastis. A few years ago it was a comparatively, worthless plain of prickly pears as far as the eye could see, and no amount of grubbing by hand or machinery enabled settlers to clear the land. However, in America was found a little bug—the cactoblastis—that destroyed the prickly pear plant completely, yet did not harm any other vegetation. The insects were then imported from America by millions and turned loose in the prickly pears. Within a very short time the area was transformed into farm lands, and in November 1934 the thankfuk citizens voted the construction of a memorial to the little bug that gave them wealth and happiness. The memorial was completed in February 1936.

Kansai All-Stars Beat Kanto Pros In Special Series

The special three-game series between all-star teams of the Kansai and Kanto professional baseball squads under the auspices of the Osaka Asahi Shimbun was won by the Kansai representatives Tuesday afternoon at the Koshien stadium when they took the third and deciding game, 9-2. The first game went to the Kanto squad by the one-sided score, 14-0 last Saturday but the Kansai combine rallied to take the second, 4-1, on Sunday.

Backstop Harris' bingle drove in two runs for the Kanto team in the first half of the initial frame but Kuroda's two-bagger and K. Yamashita's hit deadlocked the count in the last half of the same inning.

The Kansai players resumed their batting attack in the third and sent Eiichi Sawamura, the speed-ball artist of the Giants, to the showers in the third when they tallied four times to salt the game away. M. Yamashita started off by walking and then came home on hits by K. Yamashita and Kageura. Sawamura was yanked off the mound and burly Hatafuku of the Eagles relieved him. But he proved no salvation as Iganye's two bagger and Tanaka's bingle chalked up three more runs.

Hatafuku too was taken off the mound when K. Yamashita's two bagger registered a run in the fourth and Stalphin of the Giants relieved him. The latter too was replaced by Kikuya of the Lions in the eighth.

Nishimura of the Tigers chucked the whole game for the Kansai and held the Kanto team to five hits.

Auburn Defeats Georgia Tech, 21-0

N. Y. Herald Tribune

ATLANTA, Oct. 23—Auburn, the mid-season surprise package of the Southeastern Conference, trimmed Georgia Tech, 21 to 0, before 19,000 shivering fans at Grant Field today.

Uncovering a sparkplug in Henry Kelly, the Plainsmen won their fourth straight game from the Engineers.

The first Auburn score came on one of the season's strangest plays. Kelly broke away in midfield and ran to Tech's 21 before he was chased out of bounds. A moment later he tossed a pass that Tech's Page intercepted on the 9 and ran back to the 15, where Sivell, Auburn guard, tackled him high, stole the ball out of Page's arms and ran for a touchdown.

Auburn kicked off to Tech, and the Engineers made a first down only to lose the ball as Collins fumbled and Antly, Auburn center, recovered on the Tech 37, as the quarter ended.

After two short line gains, Jimmy Fenton, Auburn halfback, raced around left end for thirty yards and the score. His placement kick, like the first—and the third to come—was good.

Auburn started another touchdown drive after captain Fletcher Sims of Tech punted out of bounds on the Plainsmen's 45-yard line.

Kelly, Fenton and Dutch Heath, the Auburn fullback, alternated on the 55-yard march with Fenton going over from the 4-yard line for the score.

Waseda Ruggers Rout Keio By 41-0 Score

Outplaying their opponents in all departments of the game, Waseda University's rugby team ran roughshod over the Keio fifteen by a 41-0 score Tuesday afternoon at the Meiji Shrine stadium. Perfect weather prevailed and the day being a holiday, Niinamesai, the biggest crowd to see a rugby game this season was on hand although the forecast was that the Waseda ruggers were much too strong for Keio.

Keio's players never gave up fighting but they were fairly swarmed over by the smooth and fast functioning Waseda forwards.

The score at half time was 13-0 in favor of Waseda who scored one try and two goals first half and three tries, three goals and one drop goal, the latter by Igawa, in the second half.

It was Waseda's seventh straight victory and the largest score to date. Since their first game in 1922, each has won eight games and been tied once.

North Carolina Dents Tulane's Slate, 13 To 0

N. Y. Herald Tribune

CHAPEL HILL, N. C., Oct. 23.—North Carolina struck twice in the second quarter today, displaying beautiful deception and power, and defeated Tulane University, 13 to 0.

George Watson, big Carolina right halfback, scored both touchdowns. He swept his left end wide for ten yards for the first one, twice changing direction when he encountered Green Wave forwards. A few minutes later, on a dead run, he took a forward pass from Tom Burnette for a 5-yard gain and touchdown. Burnette converted one point from placement.

A crowd of 21,000 homecoming day fans saw the Tar Heels keep the Green Wave so much under control that they never closely threatened.

Held tight in the first half, the Green Wave offense functioned smoothly in its own territory and in midfield in the second half. Tulane made thirteen first downs and North Carolina twelve. Fumbles impeded the Tulane attack in the first half.

Carolina's first score capped a fifty-two-yard advance. Tulane was penalized twice for offsides. Burnette passed once to Howard Palmer for twelve yards and Burnette raced fifteen at right end before Watson scored. Friedrichs blocked Burnette's placement attempt.

The Greenies made a first down into Tar Heel territory after the kick-off, but Dub Mattis fumbled and Bob Adam recovered from Carolina on the N. C. 40.

Jack Kraynick, fullback, concealed the ball on a reverse and sliced down the sideline for twenty-eight yards. Burnette duplicated the deception for ten at right tackle. Next Crowell Little, quarterback, rifled a pass to Andy Bershak, an end, who lateraled to Kraynick for thirteen yards. From their 8, the Greenies were penalized five more for offside, and Little punched two yards at tackle. Carolina lost five on an offside penalty, Watson dug two at left end and then caught the scoring pass.

Tulane never passed the North Carolina 26.

34,530 Witness Bears Top Lions In Pro Football

N.Y. Times

CHICAGO, Oct. 24.—The Chicago Bears, playing before the largest crowd ever to see a professional football game here, gained their fifth straight National League victory today by defeating the Detroit Lions, 28 to 20, in a hair-raising battle at Wrigley Field.

With 34,530 spectators in the stands, the Bears tightened their grip on the Western division lead by scoring one touchdown in the opening period, two in the second and another in the final stanza. The Bears, by their spectacularly earned triumph, maintained their standing as the only undefeated team in the circuit.

A partially blocked Detroit punt, giving the Bears possession on the Lions' 26, started Chicago on its way, Bronko Nagurski climaxing the drive with a 3-yard touchdown smash. The second period had the fans on the edge of their seats. As the result of a long drive on the ground, the Bears had only a yard to go for a touchdown as the stanza opened, and on the first play Bernie Masterson went over.

Long Run by Clark

Then Earl (Dutch) Clark, Detroit coach, who is recognized as the greatest all-around back in the game, went into action. He returned a Chicago punt 53 yards to the 7 and scored on the third play, his dropkick for the extra point being blocked.

Seconds later, with the Bears in possession on the Detroit 42, Masterson passed to Bill Karr, who took the aerial on the 20 and scampered over the line. In the closing minutes of the stanza, Detroit drove from its 32 for a touchdown, Shepherd tallying from two yards out after his brilliant passing had moved the Lions into position.

The Bears made a touchdown on Masterson's 27-yard pass to Ed Manske in the opening minutes of the final quarter. Detroit then smashed back with a pass and ground attack offense that carried the visitors 70 yards to a touchdown, Clark going over on a 2-yard plunge.

In the second period, Detroit crossed the goal line without adding any points. Huffman scampered 40 yards, apparently to score, but the officials ruled there had been two forward passes instead of a forward and a lateral and no touchdown was allowed.

Fumble Is Costly

Then Clark passed to Huffman, who ran 30 to the 1-yard line. He fumbled at that point, the Bears recovering in the end zone for a touchback.

Jack Manders, who with Ray Nolting and Nagurski played a great line-smashing game, converted all Chicago's extra points from placement.

Swell Affair

"Well, Mary," said the minister, kindly, "you didn't come to our little gathering last night, after all. How was that?"

"Please, sir, I had a little gathering of my own that prevented me."

"Oh? And where was it?"

Horiguchi Given K.O. Victory Over Shiina

Tsuneo (Piston) Horiguchi was awarded a knockout victory over Isao Shiina of the Kokusai Boxing Club in the sixth round of their scheduled ten-rounder at the Hibiya park amphitheater Tuesday afternoon.

Horiguchi looked sluggish and appearing faring badly against Shiina's offensive in the first five rounds, but Shiina went down in the sixth on a body blow. Shiina, on the canvas, complained of a kidney punch but it was disallowed.

Blocked Punts Beat Colgate For Duke, 13-0

N.Y. Herald Tribune

HAMILTON, N.Y., Oct. 23—Duke University's alert Blue Devils took advantage of two blocked punts today to hand Colgate a 13-to-0 defeat, the first on Whitnall Field for one of Andy Kerr's squads.

A crowd of 10,000 rain-chilled, homecoming alumni witnessed the defeat in which Colgate's halfback, Johnny Long, was both the goat and later the hero in a Red Raider rally that came close but failed to save the home-town lads from a whitewashing.

Early in the first period, Fred Yorke, Duke right tackle, shot into the Colgate backfield to block one of Long's wabbly kicks and send it out of bounds on the Colgate five-yard line. Duke's fullback, Hardwood Smith, plunged over for the score on the fourth play to send Duke into an early lead that was never threatened.

Duke's hard-charging line gave Colgate a discouraging day for its ground attack and it was another blocked punt late in the game that gave the Blue Devils their second tally.

Herb Hudgins, Duke left end, who with the rest of the Duke line spent the afternoon hurrying the Colgate kickers, sliced through to bat down another kick by Long from his own end zone and Gentleman Joe Brunansky, 210-pound Duke left tackle, fell on the ball for the score.

Honey Hackney, Duke's backfield ace, missed the try for a point but he made the one after the first touchdown and spent the rest of the afternoon worrying Colgate with a brilliant exhibition of ball carrying.

Hackney and Eric (The Red) Tipton, slashed off tackle and swept the Colgate ends time after time and frequently threatened to break into the open.

Colgate flashed a fine passing attack late in the game with Long on the heaving end to go from deep in its own territory to Duke's threshold but the Blue Devils rallied to halt the drive.

Kanto Students Rout Kansai Net Team, 10 To 3

Taking seven out of the eight remaining matches, the Kanto racqueteers, who led 3-2 at the conclusion of the first day's play, defeated the Kansai squad, 10 matches to 3, in the seventh annual intersectional students tennis tournament Tuesday at the Koshien courts. It was Kanto's seventh straight victory.

The summarized score shows that the Kanto team won four of the five singles and six of the eight doubles matches.

Nakano Is Beaten

Biggest surprise of the day was the defeat of Davis Cupper Fumiteru Nakano of Hosei University at the hands of Ikujima of Kwansei Gakuin. The latter took the first two sets, 6-4 and 6-3, but Nakano rallied and put it 2-sets all by taking the third and fourth sets, 6-0 and 6-3. Ikujima, however, did not let the opportunity go by of beating Nakano, who had taken the measure of Henner Henkel of Germany, world's No. 3 ranking amateur player recently, and ran through the fifth set, 6-2.

The anticipated battle between the doubles teams of Jiro Yamagishi and Reizo Murakami of Keio against Kuramitsu and Okumura of Kansai University, whose match had been halted the previous day because of darkness in the fourth set with the count standing 13-all, fizzled out. The match was continued with Okumura's service but Yamagishi and Murakami playing conservative tennis broke through his service to lead by one game. But on Murakami's service that followed, with the count 40-30 and within matchpoint, Yamagishi began netting his balls on his volleying and the game went to deuce five times before the Keio pair finally won.

Yamagishi Wins

Kuramitsu, last year's national champion, put up a game fight against Yamagishi in the singles but he was no match for Japan's No. 1 ranking player who won in three sets, 7-5, 6-2 and 6-2.

The results of the other singles matches follow:

Hirose (Kansai University) defeated Uyeda (Nagoya Higher Commercial), 4-6, 7-5, 6-3 and 6-2.

Takahashi (Tokyo Imperial) defeated Kodera (Nagasaki Higher Normal), 6-3, 6-4 and 6-4.

Matsumoto (Hosei) defeated Fuwa (Kyoto Imperial), 1-6, 6-0, 6-2 and 6-2.

Kagitomi (Keio) defeated Tomii (Kwansei Gakuin), 5-7, 6-0, 6-3 and 6-3

Nakahara (Waseda) defeated Nakamuda (Kobe Commercial), 6-2, 3-6, 7-9, 6-2.

Murakami (Keio) defeated Tatsuta (Kwansei Gakuin), 6-8, 6-3, 2-6, 6-2 and 6-2.

Italy To Dispatch Big Delegation To 1940 Games

A giant delegation will come to Tokyo for the 12th Olympic Games in 1940 from Italy, according to a telegram the Olympic Organizing Committee has received from the Italian Amateur Athletic Federation.

On top of this, several thousand members of the Italian Black Shirt Boys' organization will be dispatched to Japan during the Olympic Games for an education tour of the country, the O.O.C. was informed.

The decision of the Italian Amateur Athletic Federation was prompted by goodwill arising from the recent conclusion of the tripartite Anti-Comintern pact among Germany, Japan Italy, it is said.

The O. O. C. also received a request from the International Lacrosse Federation which has its headquarters at London to include lacrosse in the events of the 12th Olympic Games.

To this, Secretary-General Nagai of the O. O. C. has replied by telegram, it was revealed Wednesday, that inasmuch as the events had already been decided at the last meeting of the International Olympic Committee at Warsaw (which did not include lacrosse), it would be difficult to add this sport to the 1940 Olympic program, but he hoped lacrosse would be introduced in Japan.

Notre Dame Tops Navy Eleven, 9-7

N.Y. Herald Tribune

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Oct. 23—Notre Dame's inspired Irish, beaten for three periods, struck savagely twice in the fourth today and defeated Navy, 9 to 7, on a snow-swept field.

For three disappointing periods the 45,000 spectators, huddled in the pelting snow, watched Navy rip through Notre Dame's underpowered line as if it were paper. Once the Middies scored, again they threatened.

Suddenly, in the fourth, the Irish found their fight and scored a touchdown and safety in the final minutes. A punt exchange gave them the ball on Navy's 29. Nevin (Buddy) McCormick lost two yards on the first play and Elmer Layden shot in a new quarterback. Snatching a direct pass from center, Jack McCarthy slithered through a hole at right tackle, cut back toward the left sideline and scampered twenty-one yards for a touchdown. Andy Puplis place-kicked the extra point, tying the score.

Still the Irish battled on. Navy was hammered back on the defensive as Notre Dame began to function as it never had before this season. Late in the quarter Puplis tucked a long punt under his arm on Notre Dame's 38-yard line, twisted toward the sidelines and swept fifty-one yards through the entire Navy team to the 9-yard line before he was dropped from behind. There Navy set up a defense the Irish couldn't budge.

Standing deep in the end zone to punt out of danger, Alan McFarland, substitute Navy halfback, fumbled the wet ball and Chuck Sweeney bore him to the ground for a safety.

Before the game was three minutes old the ball was too slippery to handle. In all, Notre Dame fumbled eleven times, Navy four. It was one of these early Irish fumbles that gave Navy its scoring opportunity on the Irish 9-yard line.

Ripping Notre Dame's line with power thrusts, Navy rammed the Irish back to their 10-yard line after receiving the opening kick-off. Massing their defense, the Irish finally checked the fifty-five-yard march, but the damage was done. They were deep in their own territory, and after an exchange of punts failed to bring them out, they tried to run.

On the first play, Joe Thesing let the soggy ball slip through his fingers. Four Navy linemen charged after the bounding ball and Dick Gunderson, bulwark guard in the Navy defense, finally pounced on it on the 9-yard line.

The two iron men who knifed through the Irish on the previous unsuccessful sortie, Lem Cooke and Emmett Wood, halfbacks, alternated on four swift plunges and produced the Midshipmen's score.

It was Wood who pushed through a tiny hole in the left side of the Notre Dame line and scored from two yards out. He place-kicked the extra point and Navy apparently was on its way.

The second period centered around a punting duel between Cooke and McCarthy. Time after time Cooke drilled his punts deep into Notre Dame territory, pushing the Irish farther back with each attempt.

Notre Dame made its only early threat at the start of the third, moving to Navy's 25-yard line before the Middies held.

The fourth, however, was all Notre Dame. In that period it not only scored all nine points but rolled up an impressive yardage margin.

Notre Dame made nine first downs, to six and gained 186 yards by rushing to 110 for Navy.

Frank's Pass Against Cornell Raises Point For Rule Makers

N.Y. Times

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 25—Clint Frank, Yale's All-America back, found himself in the spotlight today, the leading man in a football play that threatens to become a new problem for rule makers and officials.

The play occurred in the third quarter of the Yale-Cornell game here Saturday, which the sons of Eli won, 9 to 0. With the ball on the loser's 28, fourth down and 10 yards to go, Frank faded back to the 40 and shot a long, high forward pass deep into Cornell's end zone without a single Yale player leaving the line of scrimmage.

Pond Answers Inquiries

The question today was whether the Elis' brilliant captain had deliberately grounded a forward pass to gain ground, which involves a technicality in the rules. The officials called the play a touchback and handed the ball to Cornell on its 20, an advance of 8 yards for Yale.

All inquiries concerning the play were handled by Head Coach Ducky Pond of Yale, who said:

"So far as I know, Frank intended that his pass be completed for a touchdown."

There were those, however, who insisted the play had all the earmarks of a deliberately grounded pass, and termed it a "smart" play on Frank's part, if that was his intent.

They pointed out the circumstances that led to the play, the fact that no Yale player left the scrimmage line to attempt to complete the pass, and to an apparent technicality in the rule with emphasis on the interpretation of the word "loss."

Protecting 3 to 0 Lead

Frank's forward came as Yale was protecting a 3 to 0 margin which it had gained early in the game on Dave Colwell's field goal. By heaving the ball over the end zone the Elis' captain avoided chancing a pass interception or a blocked kick.

The rules of football provide that any one who intentionally grounds a forward pass to save loss of yardage shall be penalized by the loss of a down for his team and the ball shall be put in play 15 yards back of the spot of the preceding down.

It was pointed out that there is nothing in the rules to penalize deliberate grounding of a pass to gain ground. The fact is that Yale did gain 8 yards on the play.

Kelley's Kick Changes Rule

The Yale team figured in an unusual play last year in which Larry Kelley, the Blue's brilliant end and captain, made a "soccer" kick on a fumbled ball, which led to Yale's 12-to-7 victory over Navy. Pond and Kelley insisted the play was "absolutely accidental."

The football rules committee, meeting last winter, changed the rules to handle such a situation in the feature, which became effective this Fall

Johnny Goodman Retains His Mexican Golf Title

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 3—Johnny Goodman, the former caddy from Omaha, Neb., who outlasted a field of the best amateur golfers in the United States and a handful of Canadian stars when he won the United States amateur golf championship, has extended his rule over Mexico for the second straight year.

Goodman, who breezed off with the title a year ago, retained it yesterday by walloping 22-year-old Don Schumacher of Dallas, Tex., 6 and 5 in a 36-hole match over the stiff Mexico City Country Club course. Dallas gained an even break in the day's results, however, when Mrs. Dan Chandler won the Mexican women's title for the third time by routing Mrs. Mary Carruthers of Mexico City, 10 and 9.

All-America Five Named

N. Y. Times

NEW YORK, Nov. 3—The 1937 all-America basketball team was announced yesterday by C. L. Parsons, chairman of the A. A. U. basketball committee, with the publication of the A. A. U. Guide containing the new official rules for the coming season.

Three members of the Denver Safeway five, which won the National A. A. U. crown last March were named. They are Jack McCracken, forward; Bob Gruenig, center, and Tex Colvin, guard. Jack Osburn of the Kansas City Trails was nominated for the other forward position and Jay Wallenstrom of the Phillips Oilers was selected as the other guard for the second straight year.

Interest Mounting On Waseda - Meiji Grid Clash, Dec. 4

The Tokyo Inter-collegiate American Football League has invited a number of people to a tea at the New Grand Restaurant at 3 p.m. Friday to discuss the big game on Saturday, December 4, at the Korakuen stadium when Meiji and Waseda, both undefeated, will clash for the championship.

The clash is a fitting climax to the season which has seen a considerably improved brand of football among the five competing teams. The rivalry has been especially keen between Waseda and Meiji since the former's upsetting victory by a 6 to 0 score last year for the two to be tied for the championship. Each is confident of victory in the game on December 4.

U.S. Team Beaten In Jumping Event By Belgian Riders

N.Y. Times

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24—A fault by the last horse on the final jump of the three-day competition cost the American Army team the Inter-American Horse Show's military jumping championship today as the Belgian cavalry officers rode to a 65¾ to 67 triumph.

So close was the competition between the rival military contingents that it was decided only when the American horse, Masquerader, soared over the last jump and landed in the ditch.

The Americans were leading by a single point, 47 to 48, as today's show began. And they appeared to be sure winners when the first Belgian horse, Acrobate, was ridden off the course by Lieutenant Ferdinand Poswick and ruled out.

The daily score was based on the scores of the best three among the four rival team jumpers, so with hope gone for any aid from Acrobate, the Belgians were forced to rally strongly and, in effect, do better with three horses than the Americans could do with four.

Four Faults Assessed

Dakota, the American veteran jumper, ridden by Lieutenant Franklyn Wing, hurdled cleanly all but one jump, to be assessed four faults. The Belgian Ramona, Lieutenant Ives von Strydonck up, matched his performance. Whisky, with the Belgian, Captain de Menten de Horne riding, drew 9¾ faults for two refusals. And then the American horses Renzo, Lieutenant William Wright up, and King-Hi, ridden by Captain Royce Drake, accumulated eight faults each.

Ibrahim, the famous gray of the Belgians, leaped hurdle after hurdle and appeared certain of a perfect tour, but his hoofs plopped in the water on the last jump, to cost him four faults.

So the best Belgian total for the day was 17¾. The American score was 20 faults and but one American horse, Masquerader, remained. He could pick up one fault and still bring the United States a victory, but two would be fatal.

He toppled one fence pole early in the ride and then soared cleanly over one after another, but his hoofs landed in the ditch on the final water jump and dashed the American hopes.

Eyes Delight Is Victor

Dakota, on the basis of his performance through the three days of team competition, was awarded the champion jumper ribbon among the military mounts. The champion jumper among horses not on the two rival teams was Eyes Delight of Fort Myer, with Captain B. F. Leubberman's Billy second.

"BELIEVE IT OR NOT"---by Ripley

What's In a "Name?"

After gold was discovered in the Klondike, the United States Government ordered a more complete map of Alaska. A cartographer in the Coast Geodetic Survey Office could not find the name of the strip of coast on the Seward Peninsula, and so he wrote the word "Name" with a question mark, in the spot on the map. The engravers read the word as "Nome" and gave that name to the locality. Although the real name was Anvil City, the town, river and cape have been called Nome ever since.

Giants, Tigers To Decide Title In 7 Tilt Series

The champions of the Japan Professional Baseball Federation for this year will be determined on the basis of the world series of the major leagues in the United States, according to announcement this morning.

This means that the Tokyo Giants, champions of the spring season, and the Osaka Tigers, winners of the autumn schedule, will clash in a seven game series to be played in Tokyo and Osaka beginning on December 1. The team first winning four games will win the title.

The schedule follows:

First game—Wednesday, December 1, at Korakuen stadium, Tokyo.

Second game—Thursday, December 2, at Korakuen stadium.

Third game—Saturday, December 4, at Koshien stadium, Osaka.

Fourth game—Sunday, December 5, at Koshien stadium.

Fifth game—Monday, December 6, at Korakuen stadium.

Sixth game—Tuesday, December 7, at Korakuen stadium.

Seventh game—Wednesday, December 8, at Korakuen stadium.

Both teams are not only evenly matched but possess the best lineups in the league and the best brand of baseball yet exhibited by Japanese nines should feature the series.

Behind the airtight pitching by Right Hander Noguchi, the Senators upset the dope by blanking the Giants, 2-0, in the feature game of the league's tripleheader Thursday afternoon at the Susaki grounds. He yielded four hits, struck out eight and issued but one free pass to first.

Stalphin of the Giants also chucked a good game. He allowed only four hits and sent nine Senators back up the bench via the strike-out route but Noguchi was the more fortunate of the two by receiving better support by his team-mates in the pinches.

The Senators broke into the scoring column in the fourth. Backstop T. Nakamura knocked one down the left field foul line for three bases. Noguchi lined into Second Baseman Tsutsui's hands and the latter pegged to third for a doubleplay. But Third Baseman Mizuhara tried a one-handed catch to let the ball away and Nakamura checked in.

Omoda salted the game away for the Senators in the first half of the ninth by getting on with a hit and then scoring later on a fly to the outfield.

Nakagawa checked the Dolfins to six hits to aid the Eagles to a 5-2 victory while the Lions nosed out the Hankyus, 6-4, in the other two games.

The standings follow:

	G	W	L	T	Pct.
Tigers	46	37	8	1	.822
Giants	47	28	18	0	.617
Eagles	46	27	17	2	.614
Dolfins	43	20	23	0	.455
Senators	45	19	25	1	.432
Lions	44	17	27	0	.386
Hankyu	45	16	26	3	.381
Nagoya	45	11	31	3	.262

Minanogawa Is Beaten On First Day Of Sumo Tournament At Osaka

It was a day for upsets Thursday in the opening day of the Tokyo professional sumo wrestler's tournament at the new bowl at Osaka.

Yokozuna or grand champion Minanogawa, tallest and biggest man in the wrestling circles, was a bit too slow and the veteran, Toshuzan, pushed him out of the ring for victory.

Then Ohseki or champions Shimizugawa and Kagamiiwa both found themselves in the losing column. The former tasted defeat at the hands of Dewaminato in similar fashion to Minanogawa. Kagamiiwa was a victim to the speedy tactics of the young and strong Kyushuzan.

Tamanishiki, Futabayama and Musashiyama, the three other yokozuna had no trouble disposing of their opponents.

All-Stars' Sextet Tops Montreal, 6-5

MONTREAL, Nov. 2—The National Hockey League's All-Stars defeated a combined team of Montreatl Canadians and Maroons tonight, 6—5, in the Howie Morenz benefit game.

In a finish Hocie would have liked, the Montrealers just failed to catch the All-Stars as they piled in three goals quickly. The Stars, coached by Jack Adams of the champion Detroit Red Wings, held a wide edge until Big Babe Siebert of the Canadiens rallied his forces.

The exhibition, attracting an attendance of 8,653, included tributes last Winter of a heart attack, suffered by the Canadien center who died while recovering from injuries he had received in the midst of his come-back with the Habitants.

Souvenir Sales Swell Fund

Joe Cattarinich, former partowner of the Canadiens, bought Howie's old equipment between periods for $500, then presented it to the deceased player's son, Howie Jr. Sale of other souvenirs helped swell the fund that will go to Morenz's widow and three children.

Johnny Gagnon, who used to play right wing beside the dashing Morenz, was a star in defeat. He scored twice and passed to Siebert for the goal that started the late Montreal rally.

Most of the greats and neargreats of the league were in the game. Even King Clancy, now coach of the Maroons, came from retirement to play on the Montreal defense and gave an aggressive performance.

Gagnon Opens Scoring

The forward lines were unaccustomed to playing as units, but the game pleased the crowd because of the multiple scoring and the parade of stars. Aiding in pre-game ceremonies were Quebec's Lieutenant Governor, E. L. Patenaude, and Mayor Adhemar Raynault of Montreal.

After Gagnon had opened the scoring, the All-Stars gained a 2-1 lead at the end of the first period on goals by Dit Clapper of Boston and Johnny Gottselig of Chicago. Cecil Dillon of the Rangers put the Stars further ahead with the second period's only goal.

Pit Lepine partly closed the gap as the third began, but Charlie Conacher of Toronto, Dave Schriner of the Americans and Marty Barry of Detroit scored in quick succession to put the All-Stars ahead by 6—2. The Siebert and Clancy led charges from the Montreal defense, and Sibert, Gagnon and Paul Haynes scored goals that almost brought the flying Montrealers even.

The line-up:

ALL STARS—Goal, Thompson (Boston); defense, Goodfellow (Detroit), Horner (Toronoto); center, Boucher (Rangers); wings, March (Chicago), Schriner (Americans); spares, Smith, Barry (Detroit); Shore, Clapper (Boston); Conacher, H. Jackson (Toronto); Chapman, Day (Americans); Gottsellg (Chicago); Dillon (Rangers).

MONTREAL—Goal, Cude (Canadiens); defense, Sibert (Canadiens), Wentworth (Maroons); center, Blinco (Maroons); wings, Gagnon (Canadiens), Northcott (Maroons); spares, Beveridge, Clancy, Ward, Robinson (Maroons); Joliat, Buswell, Lepine, Haynes, Blake, Mantha (Canadiens).

Goals—All-Stars: Clapper, Gottselig, Dillong, Conacher, Schriner, Barry. Montreal: Gagnon 2, Lepine, Sibert, Haynes.

Penalty—Horner (2 minutes).

Gehringer Named Most Valuable Player In A.L.

Editor's note—Charley Gehringer, Detroit second baseman, visited Japan with Connie Mack's American major league all star ball players three years ago.

By JOHN DREBINGER

N.Y. Times

NEW YORK, Nov. 3—Topping the Yankees' famous Joe DiMaggio by four points and scoring a total of 78 out of a possible 80, Charlie Gehringer, veteran second-base star of the Detroit Tigers was voted the most valuable player in the American League for 1937 by the Baseball Writers Association of America, according to the official figures announced yesterday.

Gehringer, who thus became the third Tiger to gain this award in the last four years, will receive the B. W. A. A. trophy, donated by The Sporting News, early next season. Manager Mickey Cochrane was named the most valuable player in his circuit in 1934, and the following year the prize was voted to Hank Greenberg.

The members of the selection committee, composed of a writer from each of the eight cities in the Harridge circuit, all ranked ten players, with points scored on a basis of ten for first, nine for second and so on down to one point for tenth.

The balloting for the prize developed into a two-player race, with all eight members of the committee naming Gehringer and DiMaggio for the first two places. Gehringer, however, gained six first-place rankings, while the Yanks's sensational sophomore received only two.

Greenberg Has 48 Points

There was also a fair amount of unanimity among the writers in picking the next two places. Greenberg, his point-score bolstered with four third-place rankings, was third with a total of 48 points, which Lou Gehrig, the Yanks' clouting first baseman, received four fourth-place ballots, which helped to put him in that position with 42.

Luke Sewell, veteran catcher of the White Sox, and Bill Dickey, star backstop of the Yanks, tied for fifth place with 22, and Manager Joe Cronin, who staged a great comeback as a player with the Red Sox, was next with 19, followed by two more Yankees, Charlie Ruffing with 13 and Vernon Gomez with 14.

The world champions, therefore, placed no fewer than five players in the first nine, about in keeping with the way the Yankees dominated pretty much everything else throughout the season.

Gehringer, who led the American League in hitting this year, broke in with the Tigers in 1924, became their regular second baseman two years later and for more than ten campaigns has been accepted as his circuit's foremost keystone guardian. Since 1927 he has hit only once .300, this being in 1932, when he batted .298, and the past season saw him come through with one of his greatest years.

Personnel of Committee

The committee which made the selections was composed of Hy Hurwitz, Boston Globe; John Carmichael, Chicago Daily News; Gordon Cobbledick, Cleveland Plain Dealer; Harry G. Salsinger, Detroit News; Max Kase, New York Evening Journal; James C. Isaminger, Philadelphia Inquirer; Glen Wallar, St. Louis Globe Democrat, and Francis E. Stan, Washington Star.

Fleischer Takes Walking Laurels In New York City

By LOUIS EFFRAT

NEW YORK, Oct. 25—Morris Fleischer, 32-year-old engineer from Long Island City, made a "runaway" of the 30,000-meter national senior championship walk yesterday at Victory Field, Woodhaven, L. I., finishing two full laps in front of the second man in 2:48:16.6.

The runner-up honors went to 20-year-old Otto Kotraba of the Bronx, a clerk in a chemical laboratory, who was clocked in 2:55:26, seventeen seconds faster than the third man, Frank Voutsinas of the Greek-Hermes A. C.

The distance, slightly less than 19 miles over a four-lap cinder track, proved too much for four of the sixteen starters, who failed to finish, including Irving Horowitz of the Ninety-second Street Y. M. H. A., the present national senior 15,000-meter titleholder. He was disqualified for "illegal walking" after four miles.

Ten Within Time Limit

Three and a half hours was the time limit and ten of the sixteen made it. Two others, Michale A. Kearns of Yorktown, Va., and the veteran Jack Schwartz, 64-year-old Educational Alliance entrant, traveled the full course, but barely missed the deadline. Their time was not recorded.

On the seventh mile Fleischer lost the lead to Arthur Hall of the St. Anselm's A. C., and then to John Rahkonen. After half a lap Hall regained the upper hand and remained in front of Rahkonen and Fleischer for a little more than a mile.

When the ninth mile had been passed Fleischer was back on top and soon was out by himself, adding to his advantage with a fast and steady peace.

Hall and Rahkonen Tire

Meanwhile, Hall and Rahkonen tirde rapidly and were passed in turn by Kotraba and Voutsinas. The latter pair staged a close duel for a long stretch but Kotraba had enough left to sprint away from Voutsinas and enjoyed a 30-yard margin at the finish line.

The event, witnessed by several thousand persons, who stood along the sidelines despite the cold, was sponsored by the Major James A. McKenna Jr. Post, V. F. W.

"BELIEVE IT OR NOT"---by Ripley

Church Of St. Cat

Way back in the 18th century a resident of the Island of Mykonos, just off the coast of Greece in the Aegean Sea, almost lost his life in a storm. In his prayer he promised a church to his patron saint if he would be saved, but upon reaching Mykonos safely, he found his means were insufficient for the erection of a church other than a very small one. Not wishing to break his vow, he built on his garden wall a tiny edifice measuring 50 by 30 centimeters, furnished in minature exactly the same as an ordinary church, duly consecrated, and services were observed therein. The night it was finished, a cat took refuge in the church and gave birth to a litter of kittens. Since then it has been nick-named "St. Cat". The present owners still observe the wishes of their grateful forefather and hold services daily in his memory.

30,000-Word Letter

Ernest B. Mincey of Fullerton, California, has always liked letter writing, and in 1932 he decided to write a real champion letter. Addresing his cousin, A. W. Richardson of Gainesville, Ga., Mr. Mincey began the letter that took him eight weeks to write, using more than 160 large sheets of writing paper and many pencils. The subject matter was nothing but the marvels of the state of California and Mr. Mincey's varied experiences during his 11 years residence there.

Alabama Defeats Vanderbilt, 9-7 On Thanksgiving Day

By COURTESY OF MACKAY RADIO

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 25—Alabama's Crimson Tide turned westward toward the Rose Bowl today following a thrilling 9 to 7 victory over Vanderbilt in the annual Thanksgiving Day football game between the two old rivals.

Victory preserved Alabama's spotless record for the season.

In eight games the Tide has rolled up 184 points to 20 scored by the opposition. But four of these contests were decided by the narrowest of margins. Alabama whipped Tennessee, 14 to 7, Tulane 9 to 6, and Georgia Tech, 7 to 0. Today's two-point win over Vanderbilt's Commodores was the fourth.

Field Goal Decides

A fourth-quarter field goal settled the issue today. Both teams had registered touchdowns earlier, but the Commodores, thanks to converting the goal, were holding a 7 to 6 lead. Late in the game, Alabama came 9 to 7 lead that eventually stood as the cross-bar, made it, and took the close enough for an artillery shot at the final score.

If California, the champion of the Far West, invites Alabama to the New Year's Day game, an interesting bit of comparative "dope" will then be available. The Golden Bears are scheduled to meet Georgia Tech, December 5. The Engineers gave Alabama a serious struggle, and lost by only 0 to 7. Some light on the comparative strength of California and Alabama thus will be available after the Tech-California game.

Cornell Wins

Another outstanding Turkey Day game saw Cornell win a wild 34 to 20 triumph over Pennsylvania. The Texas Aggies went into a position as one of the top Southwestern teams with a 7 to 0 win over Texas University. Duquesne whipped Detroit, 14 to 7, in their annual meeting.

Other scores follow:

Alabama 9, Vanderbilt 7.
Brown 7, Rutgers 6.
Citadel 7, Oglethorpe 6.
Colorado State 0, Arizona 47.
Cornell 34, Pennsylvania 20.
Davidson 7, Wake Forest 19.
Duquesne 14, Detroit 7.
G. Washington 0, W. Virgina 26.
Kentucky 0, Tennessee 13.
No. Carolina 40, Virginia 0.
So. Carolina 14, Catholic U. 27.
Texas 0, Texas A and M. 7.
Willamette 41, Nevada 7.

Carnegie Tech Invites Alumni Aid In Football

PITTSBUGH, Oct. 30—Carnegie Institute of Technology, broadening its previously announced policy of encouraging scholarships for athletes, invited alumni today to aid Tech's football players. Robert E. Doherty, institute president, on the eve of the annual game with Pitt, said that the strength of Tech teams would be "determined by the extent to which alumni—not business concerns—contribute." Asserting that the college had no desire to "police amateurism," he said that Tech wanted a football team "as good as we can have within the limits of our pocketbook."

In estimating that four times as many scholarships would be needed in 1941 as provided this year to maintain a squad on the present basis, Doherty said that none of the college's funds would be used to support the team.

Waseda Asked To Send Swimmers, Tracksters To Carnival In Feb.

In addition to the basketball team whose trip has been already settled, Waseda University has been requested by the Philippines Amateur Athletic Federation to dispatch six track and field athletes, four swimmers and its baseball squad numbering 15 players and a coach to the Philippines carnival at Manila next February, according to a letter received by the Japan Amateur Athletic Federation on Friday from Honorary Chairman Regino Ylanan of the Philippine organization.

The invitation was transmitted to Dr. Tadaoki Yamamoto, head of Waseda's athletic division, who said that indications are favorable for the track and field athletes to go to Manila. Whether the swimmers can go is yet uncertain, he said.

The Philippine organization will be notified immediately that the baseball team will be unable to make the trip, Dr. Yamamoto said.

Alabama Subdues Kentucky, 41 To 0

N.Y. Times

TUSCALOOSA, Ala., Oct. 30—Alabama's Crimson tide, visioning a fifth Rose Bowl bid, swept over Kentucky, 41-to-0, this afternoon in a homecoming day game. A crowd of 13,000 watched the contest.

A relentless surge of power that appeared undiminished by frequent substitutions gathered momentum after a slow first period and reached its great crest with three touchdowns over the Wildcats in the second quarter.

Holm Covers 22 Yards

Joe Kilgrow, Crimson spearhead, sparked the first scoring drive midway of the first quarter when he returned one of Simpson's punts 13 yards to Kentucky's 42-yard line and then slashed off tackle for 12 more. After two punches at the line, Fullback Charley Holm swept right end for 22 yards and a touchdown.

An end-around play produced the second touchdown after Carey Cox returned an intercepted pass to Kentucky's 12. Gene Blackwell, substitute end, took the ball from Kilgrow and crossed the line standing up. Kilgrow came back with a 20-yard sprint around end for the third score.

Reserves Get Chance

Reserves played throughout the second half, pushing over two touchdowns. In the third period, the Tide smashed to a score without surrendering the ball after receiving the kickoff. The march ended when Slemons skirted left end from the one-yard stripe.

The closing touchdown came on a fluke play. Curtis juggled a pass from center behind his goal, crossed the line to avert a safety, but fumbled again. Ryba recovered for Albama and Waites scored in one plunge.

Alabama (41)		Kentucky (0)
L.E.	Warren	Garland
L.T.	Merill	Basse
L.G.	Monsky	Snyder
C.	Machtoff	S. Hinkebein
R.G.	Harkins	Boston
R.T.	Ryba	Skaggs
R.E.	Shoemaker	Hagan

F.B.	Holm	Simpson

Takatsu Scores T.K.O. Win Over Koike In Seventh

Goro Takatsu, hard hitting featherweight of the Olympic Boxing Club, was favored to defeat Jitsukatsu Koike of the Dai Nippon Boxing Club, former featherweight champion of Japan, but not to the extent of the technical knockout he scored in the seventh round of their scheduled ten-round main event of a smoker sponsored jointly by the Dai Nippon and Taiyo Boxing Clubs Friday night at the Hibiya Public Hall.

Slambang Affair

Takatsu, who tore into Koike from the opening bell with the sole intent of putting his opponent away, was the aggressor. But Koike never backed away and it was a slambang affair all the way through until Takatsu's right hand had Koike virtually out on his feet late in the seventh round. Koike's seconds tossed in the towel to save him from undue punishment.

Boxing skill was cast to the winds and the two fought toe to toe to throw the 2,000 fans into a frenzy. Although he was in poor form and absorbed plenty of punishment from the outset of the bout, particularly from Takatsu's left hooks to the body and lefts and rights to the jaw, so much so that the bell saved him from a probable knock out in the fifth round, Koike was game to the core and depending on his fighting instinct, gave splashes of his old time form to throw a bit of hope now and and then in the hearts of his supporters.

Although Takatsu swung many rights and lefts, the number of real hits was comparatively small. It was this factor plus Koike's toughness that enabled him to continue up to the seventh round. Had Takatsu's timing been a bit better, he probably would have been able to stop Koike in the fourth or fifth round.

Koike Lacks Kick

Koike, who started on his downward march after his defeat at the hands of Umio Gen some months ago in a bout slated for the featherweight title, lacked kick in his punches. And against a tough man of the order of Takatsu, it was a sad case.

Takatsu weighed in at 125.5 pounds and Koike at 124 pounds.

The results of the other principal bouts follow.—

Kikuchi (Shinko) 117 pounds, decisioned Masumura (Dai Nippon), 120 pounds.

Yashima (Dai Nippon) 108 pounds, decisioned Seki (Teikoku), 115 pounds.

Kobayashi (Toho) 145 pounds, decisioned Wills (Philippines), 146 pounds, six rounds.

Maryland U. Passes Conquer Florida, 13-7

COLLEGE PARK, Md., Oct. 30—A passing attack that couldn't be stopped carried the University of Maryland to a 13 to 7 intersectional football victory over Florida today.

Florida's star, Walter Mayberry, was bottled up by the Maryland defense most of the game. His short pass to Moon Mullins late in the third period accounted for Florida's score.

Maryland scored in the first when a pass, Weidinger to Bryant, carried to Florida's 3, and Meade plunged over.

Manning's fumble of Meade's kick to Florida's 45 paved the way for the second score. McCarthy recovered. Weidinger heaved to McCarthy on the next play and McCarthy, just as he was tackled, lateraled to Budkoff, who was downed on the 2-yard stripe. Weidinger went over in three attempts at the line.

Kagamiiwa Is Beaten For Second Time In Osaka Sumo Tourney

Kagamiiwa, ohseki or champion, lost his second straight bout in the Tokyo professional sumo wrestlers' tournament at Osaka Friday afternoon. Throwing him to the sand was Kasagiyama, former Waseda student.

The four yokozuna or grand champions, Minanogawa, Tamanishiki, Musashiyama and Futayama, won their matches with ease.

Ohio State Puts Chicago To Rout By 39 To 0 Score

N.Y. Times

CHICAGO, Oct. 30—Ohio State's high-powered gridiron machine coughed and sputtered for one period today, but found the proper carburetor adjustment and rolled to a 39-to-0 triumph over Chicago's game little band of Maroons.

It was the Buckeyes' third straight victory on the road to the Big Ten title, or at least a share of the honors.

The Maroons, without a victory for the season, tried desperately, first, to connect with an upset triumph, then, after the Ohio State juggernaut had rolled them almost flat, to save themselves from a shut-out. But most of their efforts merely helped the fleet, alert Buckeyes to scoring opportunities.

Maroons Toss Passes

Chicago's game backs tossed passes until they were arm-weary and they flipped the ball in lateral plays, only to find the Bucks a step or two ahead of them on most occasions.

Ohio State had two scoring chances in the first period, but the first one was pulled apart when Louis Letts intercepted a pass from Mike Kabealo and the second one was halted by plain, old-fashioned defensive football.

A pair of fumbles by Johnny Rabb, deep in Chicago territory early in the second period, delayed the inevitable a while longer, but once under way, the Bucks strong-armed through for two touchdowns in each of the last three periods.

Buckeyes Wide Awake

Even had they lacked their great power, the wide-awake defense of the Buckeyes against forward passes probably would have helped them to victory. Three out of their first four touchdowns were set up by pass interceptions.

The Bucks were outdone in first downs, 5 to 8, but their gains for the most part were big ones in scoring ground, while Maroons made most of their yardage in their own territory. Wasylik scored two of the Ohio touchdowns, dashing 66 yards for one of them.

The line-up:

Ohio State (39)		Chicago (0)
L.T.	Crow	Fitzgerald
L.T.	Schoenbaum	Tetersen
L.G.	Maggied	Fink
C.	Wolf	Antonic
R.G.	Chrissinger	Anderson
R.T.	Novotny	Kelley
R.E.	Ream	Wasem
Q.B.	McDonald	Hamity
L.H.	Kabealo	Sherman
R.H.	Nardi	Valorz
F.B.	Rabb	Letts

Score by Periods

Ohio State	0	14	13	12	—39

Touchdowns—Kabealo, Miller (sub for McDonald); Zadworney (sub for Nardi) 2, Wasylik 2. Points after touchdown—Kabealo 2 (place-kicks). Miller (forward pass from Wasylik).

Former American College Stars On Union All-Stars

WINNIPEG, Man., Nov 3—Ten former American college stars, including three competing in the league for the first time, have been placed on the first western provincial football union all-star team selected for the Canadian Press by coaches and sports editors.

University of North Dakota is represented by three men, flying wing, Ed Rorvig of Calgary Bronks; half, Ralph Pierce of Regina, Rough-Riders, and middle, Martin Gainor of Winnipeg Blue Bombers.

The only unanimous choice, at half, was Winnipeg's Fritz "Twinkletoes" Handson, former star at North Dakota State, while Bud Marquardt, also from North Dakota State and now a member of the Blue Bombers, tied for one of the outside berths with Larry Haynes of Calgary, who learned the game in California.

Other former American collegians on the all-star roster are half, Art Stevenson of Winnipeg, who played at Hastings College, Nebraska; quarter, Bob Fritz of Winnipeg, from Concordia College, Minnesota; snap, Dean Griffing of Regina, formerly of Kansas State; Howard Hurd, Calgary inside, who came from Gonzaga, and middle, Bob Walker of Regina who played for South Dakota.

The only Canadian-taught players to make the team were Lou Mogul, Winnipeg inside, and Jeff Nicklin, Winnipeg outside, who is the son of Percy Nicklin, former coach of the Moncton Hawks hockey team.

Hanson, an elusive runner who helped Winnipeg win the national championship in 1935, added another weapon to his array this season as one of the union's best passers.

"BELIEVE IT OR NOT"---by Ripley

England's Two Simultaneous Kings

Henry II of England, in order to assure the succession to his son Henry (1155-1183), ordered the latter crowned as King of England in his own lifetime. The coronation took place at Westminster on June 14, 1170, and was repeated on August 27, 1172 when both young Henry and his child wife Margaret were crowned again. These coronations were quite revolutionary in character and wholly inconsistent with English law and usage. Because the Archbishop of York officiated at the "young king's" coronation, Thomas of Canterbury considered it an infringement on his exclusive privilege. Canterbury was thereupon slain, and Henry II, to divert public indignation from himself, was compelled to embark upon the conquest of Ireland. The young king died on June 11, 1183, during an insurrection which he headed against his father.

Miss Mildred Okerstrom of St. Petersburg, Florida, decided to put both a lot of material and a lot of work into the making of a dress. She made the entire outfit out of 168 yards of bias tape and 375 yards of thread, doing all the work by hand. Total cost was only $2.05.

Notre Dame Beats USC, 13-6; Army Sinks Navy By 6 To 0

By COURTESY OF MACKAY RADIO

NOTRE DAME STADIUM, Nov. 27—Badly outplayed in the first half, and trailing by one touchdown, Notre Dame's Fighting Irish came back in the second to sweep through to a 13 to 6 victory over Southern California here today.

It was the twelfth meeting of these intersectional rivals, and one of the best of the twelve. Neither team rates among the nation's elite this year, but each played championship football today. The Trojans had things all their own way in the first two periods, and went off the field at half-time holding a 6 to 0 lead as a result of a long pass to Ambrose Schindler, the sparkplug, of the machine. Notre Dame's Andy Puplis tied the score in the third, on a zig-zag run for 65 yards.

Then the tide of battle swept back and forth and up and down, with neither eleven able to tip the balance. The game was drawing to a close when Southern California began what looked like an irresistible touchdown drive. The Trojans banged along from their own territory past midfield, past the Irish 20, and down to the 10.

At that point, Puplis again foiled them by pulling a Trojan pass out of the air, giving Notre Dame possession of the ball. On the next play, Tonelli broke loose and raced some 75 yards to the Trojan 15. Two passes carried it over from there.

Panthers Win

Pittsburgh's unbeaten Panthers humbled Duke, 10 to 0, and the UCLA Bruins downed Missouri, 13 to 0, in two outstanding intersectional games today. Michigan State defeated the University of San Francisco, 14 to 0, in another. New York's cross-town rivals, Fordham and NYU, met in their annual argument with the Rams chalking up a 20 to 7 win.

The Army sank the Navy, 6 to 0, in a sea of mud at the Sesquicentennial Stadium at Philadelphia.

Early in the first period, before a heavy rain had slowed to field, West Point's football warriors marched from Navy's 45-yard line into touchdown territory. The Navy line turned back two thrusts, and then Army's Jim Craig suddenly emerged from the fog that shrouded the field, and touched pay-dirt with the only score of the game.

The score does not tell the story. The Cadets consistently outplayed their Annapolis rivals, menacing the goal several times. But lack of a scoring punch, and the soggy terrain nullified their efforts. Navy's lone bid came in the third quarter when a 50-yard drive ended on the West Point 17-yard line.

At New York, Stanford and Columbia played to a scoreless tie in a thrilling football battle that ranged from goal to goal.

The Indians had the edge in everything but the final score. Their powerful ground game lost a lot of its potency in the unsteady footing that came from a heavy rain, but even so they knocked at Columbia's goal in virtually every period.

Actually, Stanford cleats marked Columbia's touchdown zone, but the toudchdown was not allowed. In the third quarter, Pete Fay, a dark-haired giant who wasn't "discovered" until this present season was more than half over, shook loose and rambled down the sideline for some forty yards and crossed the Columbia goal.

The referee ruled he had stepped out of bounds.

That same Mr. Fay executed one of the four-star plays of the season, in the next quarter. Columbia had penetrated inside Stanford's 10-yard line, then lost the ball on downs. Fay went behind his goal line to punt.

Executes Rugby Kick

When the ball was snapped, three Columbia linemen sifted through and had him completely trapped. Instead of punting, he ran to the left, stopped short, and let go with a side-swiping Rugby kick that sent the ball some 50 yards upfield.

Stanford's last attempt came a minute before the game ended. The Reds marched to Columbia's 25-yard line, and Luckett tried for a field goal, which missed.

Army 6, Navy 0.
Columbia 0, Stanford 0.
Duke 0, Pittsburgh 10.
Fordham 20, New York U. 7.
Georgia Tech 6, Georgia 6.
Laverne 6, Whittier 7.
Michigan State 14, San F'cisco 0.
Missouri 0, UCLA 13.
Nebraska 3, Kansas State 0.
Notre Dame 13, USC 6.
Rice 13, Baylor 7.
So. Methodist 0, Tex. Christian 3.
Tulane 7, Louisiana 20.

Keio Soccerites Win Kanto Students' Title

Keio won its first championship in four years in the Kanto University Soccer league Sunday afternoon at the Meiji Shrine stadium by defeating Waseda, 5 goals to 1, in the season's final game. The score at half time was 3 to 1 in Keio's favor.

Keio's forwards proved too fast for the Waseda defense.

As a result of the victory, Keio's soccerites will meet Kyoto Imperial at the same grounds on December 12 for the national students' championship.

Nebraska Beats Indiana By 7 To 0

LINCOLN, Neb., Oct. 30—In a dizzy, thrilling football game crammed with contradiction, Biff Jones' Nebraska Cornhuskers slashed out a lone touchdown on the first scrimmage play of the game to defeat the potent Hoosiers of Indiana, 7 to 0, and continue in the list of the nation's unbeaten elevens.

The Huskers defeated Minnesota on two plays that clicked. They defeated Missouri the same way. Today the biffer showed he didn't need to pull rabbits out of hats. He used mirrors.

Almost before the 37,000 fans, second largest home crowd in Cornhusker history, had settled themselves comfortably to enjoy what loomed as a ding-dong battle on an Indian Summer afternoon, they were on their feet roaring. Little Jack Dodd took a short shovel pass from Johnny Howell behind the Nebraska 35-yard line, where the Huskers had put the ball in play after an out-of-bounds kick off, and started eating up the yards around his left end.

Fine Blocking Aids

His team-mates came to his aid with superb downfield blocking. Twice he stumbled in the clutches of Hoosier blackshirts, but finally daylight loomed ahead and he crossed the goal standing up to complete his 65-yard sprint. Lowell English place-kicked the goal as the hand on the big clock registered just seventeen seconds.

Then came the maze of statistical contradictions which sent fans home groggy.

The Huskers failed to register a first down until midway in the final period, and wound up with two, one on a penalty. They gained a net 25 yards from rushing and on the two forward passes attempted they gained a total of 88 yards. The backs were smothered before they reached the line of scrimmage, starting as though they were pulling their feet out of tar.

14 First Downs for Hoosiers

Meanwhile the sturdy Hoosiers surged up and down the field like a big black wave registering fourteen first downs. They gained a net 136 yards by land and 132 yards by air.

Yet so superior was the Nebraska line that every touchdown threat wilted before reaching its goal. Six times the Hoosiers started what appeared to be touchdown marches. Twice Dodd intercepted passes in the end zone to quell uprisings, and after it was all over the impression was the teams could play all night and at dawn the Huskers still would be leading, 7 to 0.

S.M.U. Turns Back Texas Eleven, 13-2

DALLAS, Oct. 30—The Southern Methodist University Mustangs came out of the Southwest Conference cellar today with a 13-to-2 victory over the University of Texas.

Southern Methodist scored in the third period when Bryan, Texas back, fumbled on the 4-yard line and Ranspot, end, recovered. Stidger plunged to the 2, and Patterson cracked the center of the Longhorn forward wall for the touchdown. Stidger kicked the extra point from placement.

On the second play of the fourth quarter a triple lateral with Ewing on the tail end carried from the Texas 37 to the 20. One forward failed and then Ewing hurled one to Jackson, halfback, on the 3, and he stepped over the line for the marker. Bellville failed to covert.

Toward the close of the final period the Mustangs drew a clipping penalty to their 3-yard line after Atchison's long punt had carried deep into Mustang territory. Preferring not to chance a blocked punt, Busacker downed the ball intentionally to give Texas its two points.

Baylor Defeats Texas Christian On Aerials, 6-0

N.Y. Herald Tribune

WACO, Tex., Oct. 30—Baylor's unbeaten aerial machine defeated Texas Christian today, 6 to 0, in as wild an offensive show as the Southwest Conference ever produced. Many times repulsed in surges that pierced deep into Baylor territory, the Christians were frantically passing from the enemy 4-yard line when the held judge's final gunshot relaxed a crowd of 18,000.

Bill Patterson, Baylor's bouncing youngster, shot Texas Christian down in the first three minutes of play and then swung a grand kicking foot to keep them off balance the rest of the way. From the moment Patterson loosed aerials of eighteen to twenty-three yards to Gernand and Sam Boyd in the first three minutes of play to bring a touchdown on Captain Carl Brazell's line buck, the field was a madhouse of sky trickery.

Tiny Lavy O'Brien, the Texas Christian Sniper, tossed forty-seven of the forty-nine T. C. U. aerials that gained 204 yards on twenty-two completions. There were seventy-two passes thrown, Baylor trying twenty-three and completing nine for 155 yards.

Patterson's first throw found Gernand on the Christian 26 and his second was gathered in by Boyd on a fancy over-the-shoulder stab on the 3. Brazell, fullback, bumped into the Christian wall three times before be barely made it. Gernand's attempted kick was wide.

From then on the Christian threatened intermittently, O'Brien leading the way. Always, it seemed, the drives would fizzle around the Baylor 20. Time may have saved Baylor on that last surge when O'Brien's final and forty-seventh heave was grounded on second down as the Christians stood on the Baylor 5.

Michigan Beats Illinois, 7 To 6

N.Y. Times

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Oct. 30—Michigan's scrappy Wolverines applied a spot of tarnish to Bob Zuppke's silver jubilee celebration today, coming from behind with a quick third-period scoring thrust to defeat Illinois, 7 to 6, before 30,000 spectators in Memorial Stadium.

It was the fifth successive year in which battles between the old rivals had been determined by a place-kick. Michigan, in snapping the Illinois string of victories over the Wolverines at three straight, won on Fred Trosko's conversion after his long touchdown pass to Jorn Nicholson had caught the Illinois secondary flatfooted.

After a fumble-marred first half, Illinois began a sixty-nine-yard touchdown march in the third period. Taking the kick-off, the Illini, with Ralph Bennett, sophomore, and Ken Zimmerman sparking a brilliant running and passing attack, drove to the Michigan 15. Zimmerman then faded back and shot a bullet-like pass to Bill Benis, who made a finger-tip catch and was nailed by Trosko on the Michigan 5. Zimmerman, on his third line smash, reached the Michigan 3 when he fumbled. The ball bounded crazily a foot over the goal line and Willard Cramer, sophomore Illini tackle, recovered for a touchdown. Bill Berner's conversion try was low.

Michigan's alert secondary gave the Wolverines their chance for victory in the closing minutes of the third period. Bill Barclay intercepted one of Zimmerman's passes on the Wolverine 44. Trosko shot a pass to Danny Smick which put Michigan on the Illinois 47. Trosko and Barclay alternated to the Illinois 39. Then Trosko dropped back five yards and shot a long pass diagonally across the field.

The A. B. Mountain

This mountain in Skagway is so called because of the letters A. B. which are formed by natural clefts filled with snow. The letters led to the foundation of the Arctic Brotherhood Society, by Captain William Connel of the steamship "City of Seattle," while lying in the harbor of Skagway in 1899. Its purpose was the brotherhood of Americans and Britons, and today there is a branch of the Arctic Brotherhood in every place of any size in Alaska.

Vancouver

Captain George Vancouver (1758-1798), charted the entire difficult 2,000 mile passage between Vancouver and Cook Inlet, through a perfect maze of islands, sunken rocks and other handicaps to navigation, during his expedition as master of the "Discovery" between 1791 and 1795. The job done was so perfect, that after 14 decades navigators on modern ships making this passage still use the charts executed by Captain Vancouver.

64,000 See Notre Dame Shade Minnesota, 7 To 6

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Oct. 30—Andy, Puplis, Notre Dame's tiny quarterback, led the fighting Irish to a 7-to-6 triumph over Minnesota's highly favored Gophers in a bruising battle today before an overflow throng of 64,000.

Puplis was a midget among giants today, but it was his brilliant generalship, running and talented toe which enabled the Irish to maintain their record of never having lost to Minnesota.

With the largest throng ever to see a game in the northwest looking on, Puplis, stubby little 165-pounder who played at Harrison Tech High, Chicago sneaked through the Golden Gophers' huge line for four yards and a touchdown in the first ten minutes of play. Then, with Jack McCarthy holding the ball, Pupils placekicked the extra point.

From there on, Notre Dame, rated a 2-to-1 underdog in the betting, hung on for dear life and outlasted the heavier Gophers through three quarters of smashing play.

Minnesota executed a breath-taking double lateral-forward pass to get its touchdown in the second period. With the ball on Notre Dame's 20-yard line, fourth down and two yards to go, Minnesota pulled its touchdown play. The ball was snapped to Wilbur Moore, who tossed a short lateral to Martin Christiansen, who in turn whizzed a long lateral to Harold Van Every. While these maneuvers were going on, Ray King, Minnesota's right end, had raced diagonally through the Notre Dame secondary and was out in the flat zone on the opposite side when Van Every pegged a rifle-shot pass to him and King raced over.

With a chance to tie the score, Minnesota failed. Bernie Bierman sent In Horace Bell, Negro guard, to try for the extra point. He left the field without attempting it. The Minnesota players apparently preferred George Faust, substitute quarterback, to make the attempt. When the ball was snapped, five Notre Dame linemen swarmed through, and Chuck Sweeney, Irish right end who won last week's game by tackling a Navy man in the end zone for a safety, blocked the attempt. The ball barely got off the ground before Sweeney smothered it.

After that Minnesota never crossed midfield until the last two minutes of play, when a daring series of passes by Van Every held the throng spellbound as the Gophers swept from their own 12-yard line to Notre Dame's 35. Van Every threw two to Faust for eighteen and nineteen yards to put the ball in midfield.

Then George Nash substitute end, caught one for sixteen yards. With forty seconds left to play, Minnesota drew a five-yard penalty and then Ed Eimonich, Notre Dame fullback, intercepted one of Van Every's passes on Notre Dame's 24-yard line. He dropped the ball, but Bunny McCormick recovered for the Irish and the final gun sounded.

Notre Dame's touchdown was set up by Puplis when he grabbed one of Ray King's booming punts midway in the first period and raced thirty-two yards down the sideline to the Gopher 33-yard line. McCormick picked up a yard, and then Jack McCarthy whipped a twelve-yard pass to McCormick. McCarthy smashed off the Gopher left wing for nine yards and Joe Thesing made first down on the 7. Minnesota drew a five-yard penalty, but smashed off Minnesota's left end for the seven to the 4-yard line. Then Pupils circled up behind the Notre Dame line, took the ball and sneaked through left guard for the touchdown. The line-up:

Lazzeri Becomes Member Of Cubs

By IRVING VAUGHAN

Chicago Tribune

CHICAGO, Oct. 29—Tony Lazzeri, who yesterday signed as a coach and utility infielder with the Cubs for 1938, left for San Francisco last night enthusiastic about the outlook for a National league championship club in Chicago come next September.

President Philip K. Wrigley and Manager Charley Grimm, who helped to engineer the deal that brought Lazzeri from the world champion Yankees to the Cubs, both expressed gratification yesterday when the signing formalities were completed.

Clarence Rowland, Cub scout and Mr. Wrigley's special emissary in player transactions, last night scoffed at insinuations that Lazzeri had been imported with the idea of making him manager.

"The acquisition of Lazzeri will strengthen Grimm's position," Rowland said. "He will be a valuable addition to the roster both as a player and a coach. Charley was in on the deal from the beginnings."

Retain Present Coaches

Rowland further asserted that neither Red Corriden nor Roy Johnson, the present Cub coaches, would lose out as a result of the deal. If either is relieved next season he will be employed as a manager or as a coach of a club in the organization. Los Angeles is the only farm now owned by the Cubs, but Wrigley is interested in the purchase of other minor league clubs. It is considered a certainty that Corriden will be back with the north siders.

With the signing of Lazzeri, Wrigley completed the first step in a scheme he hopes will provide a pennant for the flagpole alongside the new tree bedecked $200,000 bleachers. The next step in mind is the landing of one or two gentlemen able to hit in the pinches, this being the glaring weakness of the present setup.

Known for Aggressiveness

The idea that Tony, given his unconditional release recently after twelve years with the Yankees, might be of value as a coach isn't to be scoffed at. He's never served in that capacity, but that's of no importance. What counts is that he figured in a half dozen successful pennant campaigns while wearing Yankee flannels and while so doing picked up a fairly good idea of how baseball is played in the American league. Wrigley hasn't said it in so many words, but he apparently suspects that a little of the junior major league's aggressiveness might do the Cubs no harm.

Nor should the thought that Lazzeri might be of assistance as a player if an emergency arises be sneered at. He didn't look like much of a cripple either during the 1937 season or in the recent world series. In his time he has played every one of the four infield positions, although specializing at second base. However, there is reason to doubt that his arm is good enough to take care of the longer throws from shortstop or third. But he might be handy as a pinch hitter, and even that would help.

Hope for Trades

The trades the Cubs began working on before the last race was finished haven't been abandoned, but nothing of importance is expected to happen before the minor and major league meetings in December. Because hitting is needed, the Cubs would take either Shortstop Arky Vaughan or Outfielder Paul Waner from the Pirates. The Pirates plan to trade one of the pair, but not both.

The St. Louis club, while saying neither yes nor no to a Cub inquiry about the possibilities of dealing for the noted Joe Medwick, have thus far refused to set a price on the star. They'll trade him if they can get the better of the bargain. The Brooklyn club also has been silent about Van Lingle Mungo, the speed ball pitcher, for whom Rowland put in a bid during the last world series. Incidentally, Rowland who managed the White Sox into a world championship in 1917 and who is pretty slick himself at dealing, is to have more of a voice in the assembling of players.

Satisfied with Duties

Lazzeri admitted after the signing that he was well satisfied both as to pay and his future duties. Whether anything was said about the possibilities of his becoming a Cub manager in the future isn't known. The subject probably was discussed. Wrigley for the last couple of years has said that his next manager would be a fellow brought in from the outside. Lazzeri may turn out to be that man, depending, of course, on how the Cubs conduct themselves in the next pennant race.

Yoshida Is Elected Captain Of Meiji's 1938 Baseball Team

Masao Yoshida, bespectacled right hand pitcher of Meiji, champions of this year's spring and autumn seasons of the Tokyo Six University Baseball league, has been elected captain of the team during the 1938 season, according to announcement today. He succeeds Backstop Sakurai.

Yoshida pitched Chukyo School to three successive championships in the annual middle school elimination series. He has been a valuable man on the pitching staff since his entrance into Meiji.

Nobu Matsui was elected manager and Shortstop Kiyoshi Sugiura and First Baseman Kanji Sakata as committeemen.

Ted Husing Well Fortified For His Football Broadcast

Literary Digest

Broadcasting football games has gone a long way since one amateur announcer at a Northwestern game, seeing the referee scoop up the ball and march away, followed by all the players, screamed into the mike: "Boy, what a penalty! Five—ten—twenty yards. The referee's still going! Fifty yards; Boy, I can't understand it. Ninety yards—why, it's the greatest penalty I've ever seen!" And all that he really saw was the referee changing goals at the end of a quarter.

Today that couldn't happen. Ace football announcers are well fortified for describing accurately outstanding gridiron battles. With fourteen years of pigskin broadcasting behind him, Ted Husing, recently voted most popular sports announcer, has gotten football broadcasting down to a system.

Demands Experience

Like the game itself, broadcasting football demands experience, training, endurance, plus special mechanical equipment (75 pounds of it in Husing's case). One cannot simply stand up before a mike and rattle off any analysis and play-by-play description of the game. Football broadcasts, in fact, follow a routine.

Take, for example, Ted Husing's first 1937 broadcast, the game between Ohio State and Texas Christian. On the day before the game, Husing and his assistant, Jimmy Dolan, attended the final secret practice of both teams, watched the plays, talked with the coaches, got the pre-game "dope." Naturally, they are honor bound not to divulge such secrets. That evening they wrote their descriptions for the next day's battle, for, excepting the actual recounting of each play, there is very little ad-libbing in a first-class broadcast.

On the morning of the game, Husing, Dolan, and their radio engineer were out at the stadium after breakfast to check over the setup. One hundred and one things can go wrong, especially since each stadium presents its own broadcasting difficulties and is rarely visited more than once a season. Lunch time arrived. But there was no lunch. Both Husing and Dolan got too nervous to run the risk of a full stomach. Yet Husing has broadcast football for fourteen years!

During the game, Husing's "annunciator board" (his own invention, "though most announcers have copied it) came into play. The board consists of two boxes, each containing electric batteries, joined by a wire. Its purpose is to "announce," through a system of lights, exactly who is carrying the ball and who is making the tackle. It is Husing's "third eye."

22 Buttons

Jimmy Dolan manipulates the first box. This has 22 buttons, each representing a player on the field. If Ohio State's No. 5 is running the ball, and is tackled by Texas Christian's No. 1, Dolan presses the buttons which light up the names of these two players on the second board. Then Husing needs but a glance to see the exact play, and tells his unseen audience who did what to whom. To Dolan, the players are only numbers; to Husing, only names. The system is simple enough, but experience proves that without it football broadasts lose accuracy and speed, and what you get instead is the indifferent splutter of a second-rate announcer.

Husing first used this annunciator board at his first broadcast, fourteen years ago, when Pennsylvania drubbed Cornell. He say it "reduces football to the least common denominator—names and numbers. It eliminates guesswork."

But there is a larger aspect to broadcasting football. The big secret was taught to Husing by Knute Rockne. Rockne insisted that the untrained eye of the spectator (and grandstand quarterback) gets fooled, because the eye takes the road of least resistance and follows the backfield on the offense and the line on the defense. As a coach, Rockne's eyes did just the opposite, and Husing's do the same. It makes the analysis of the game sounder.

Yet even the best prepared broadcast can go haywire when the human equation ruins well-laid plans. Followers of the pigskin still chuckle over the broadcast of a local Kentucky game which ended abruptly when the visiting players got so pepped up by a fight talk in their dressing-room, that they rushed out the nearest door and fell headlong into the swimming-pool.

Born In New Mexico

Reflecting on his career, Husing recalls how he was born in New Mexico 36 years ago, and then became an actor, soldier, hitch-hiker extraordinaire, Broadway barker, policeman, aviator, and finally, radio announcer. He was named Edward Britt Husing (after the prizefighter Johnny Britt whom his father greatly admired) but when young Husing was twelve he fell in love with a girl who insisted on calling him "Ted," and the name has stuck.

After playing football at New York's Stuyvesant high school, he played semi-professional football with the Prescotts around New York City. The Prescotts have stuck together pretty well in passing years. Husing played center, Les Quailey, his former radio assistant, called signals, and Jimmy Dolan played end. The Prescotts, however, would be the first to agree that they talk a better game over the ether now than they ever played on the field.

Husing entered radio in 1924, when he out-talked 619 rival applicants for an announcer's job at WJZ in New York, "mainly," he says, "because I could talk louder and longer than any of the other boys." "Louder and longer"—well, at least as long as anyone—a football broadcast takes up a mere three hours of continuous talking—but not really louder than most announcers. The secret of Husing's success lies elsewhere. He is pleasant to listen to because his enunciation is so crystal-clear that it allows him to talk exceptionally fast. He doesn't hesitate. His voice is smooth, and he knows the sports he describes so well that the listener doesn't writhe uncomfortably as a lot of "ahems" and "aaas" float out of the loudspeaker.

Husing's technique is homesupon. "Whenever I broadcast," he told me, "I always imagine myself in the listener's shoes, and I try to imagine what would interest me most if I were sitting at home listening instead of being here talking." Conciseness is Husing's motto. His streamlined speech is staccato. It is crisp and to the point. Self-confidence is his stock in trade. He never gets ruffled and hence doesn't upset his listeners. To accomplish this, one's faculties must coordinate.

In Husing, mind, eye, ear, and tongue work as one—and the nose senses news. If the game stalls, Husing instinctively stretches his words to eat up the empty time. If something goes wrong, he is ready to fill the gap with interesting tidbits, prepared in advance. Husing's technique is not easy: it is more than a natural ability to talk on one's feet. If Husing can rattle things off, it is because a lot of preparation has gone on beforehand.

Shimomura Takes Post As Chief Of The J.A.A.F.

Dr. Hiroshi Shimomura, former vice-president of the Asahi Shimbun and at one time Governor-General of Taiwan, on Monday formally accepted appointment as president of the Japan Amateur Athletic Federation at a meeting of directors of the Federation at the Chuotei restaurant at Marunouchi.

Dr. Shimomura succeeds Lieutenant-General Matahiko Oshima, who resigned recently, and becomes automatically a vice-chairman together with the Mayor of Tokyo of the Tokyo Olympic Organizing Committee.

His assumption of the post is being hailed in Tokyo's sports circles. He is said to be a proponent of reorganization of the Federation to reestablish the prestige it enjoyed during the tenure of the late Dr. Seiichi Kishi.

In connection with the 12th Olympic Games in 1940, Dr. Shimomura is said to be of the view that it should be held in consonance with the conditions in the country, and all preparations should be made with this attitude in mind.

Stengel Succeeds Bill M'Kechnie

Chicago Tribune

BOSTON, Mass., Oct. 25—The Boston Bees today named Casey Stengel, former manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers, as leader of the club for 1938, succeeding William B. McKechnie

J. Robert Quinn, president of the Bees, telephoned Stengel at the latter's home in Omaha, Tex., and offered him the job. Stengel accepted. No terms were announced, but Quinn indicated the question of salary and length of contract would be settled when Stengel comes to Boston early next month.

Stengel was idle last summer, although under contract with the Dodgers, from whom he was reputed to have received more money for not managing the club than Burleigh Grimes, the team's pilot, did for finishing sixth.

Three Years with Dodgers

Stengel managed the Brooklyn club three years, finishing sixth in 1934, fifth in '35 and seventh in '36 after a distinguished playing career with the New York Giants in the early 1920s.

McKechnie, who piloted the Bees to fifth place last year with mediocre material, left Boston to go with the Cincinnati Reds at a substantial increase in salary.

It was the second time Quinn had signed Stengel as manager. In 1934, when Quinn was directing the Brooklyn club, he closed a deal with Casey after the Dodger management had decided to release Max Carey.

Quinn said he had been in doubt about signing Stengel for the Bees until he reached him on the telephone.

Bees Wanted Hartnett

"I turned down Casey's request for the job the day after the world series," he said, "explaining that I had two others in mind—Donie Bush of Minneapolis and Gabby Hartnett of the Chicago Cubs.

"When I couldn't get either of them I feared Casey might already have taken any one of five minor league offers he's had, including one from Kansas City."

There wasn't any doubt as soon as the telephone connection was made.

"Casey," Quinn asked, "do you want to come with us next year?"

"I'd be delighted to," came the reply.

"Okay, you've got the job."

"I'm delighted. Thank you. We'll fool a lot of the boys."

It Doesn't Matter to Casey

Casey told Quinn, the latter said, he didn't know until today Bush had turned down the Boston job to remain with Minneapolis and that he "didn't care if 150 guys have turned it down."

Before calling Stengel, Quinn revealed that Hartnett and Bush had been the only two approached, that neither Babe Ruth nor Rabbit Maranville had applied for the post.

P. K. Wrigley, owner of the Chicago Cubs, he said, informed him that Hartnett was not available for any managerial job and that the Cubs' catcher would have a job in the Chicago organization whenever he gave up playing.

Quinn said he had gone over applications from Rogers Hornsby, Roger Peckinpaugh, "and about 150 others," but had come to the conclusion "Casey Stengel is the only man left."

"He may have the reputation of a clown, but I've worked with him for two years; I know he can be as serious as any one can be and he's loyal," Quinn continued.

"Don't sell Stengel short. He's likely to fool a lot of people, and if he wins next summer. . .

He's a Versatile Leader

"Casey will make the players hustle, and he's a good man at mixing up his plays. He won't always holler for a hit-and-run play or a bunt, and he's not afraid to try something new.

"I've wanted somebody who knows the National league, and while Tony Lazzeri would make a pretty good manager in a couple of years he doesn't know our league."

Stengel, who is 46 years old, and managed the Toledo Mudhens after his major league playing days, said he had seen the Bees play their first four games last year—all of which they lost, and watched them later in the season.

"I don't think they were lucky to finish fifth and I believe we can do it again, if not finish higher," he declared.

Quinn said the status of Coaches Hank Gowdy and Bob Smith would be settled when Stengel arrives.

Northwestern Attack Defeats Wisconsin, 14-6

N. Y. Herald Tribune

MADISON, Wis., Oct. 30—Northwestern pushed Wisconsin from the ranks of the undefeated in Big Ten football today with a 14-to-6 victory before a crowd of 30,000 in a game that dragged because of unseasonably warm weather.

Northwestern, resuming its title-defense stride after a set back by Ohio State last week, stuck mainly to conservative ground plays. The Wildcats broke through big holes in the Badger forward wall consistently.

Captain Don Heap, left halfback, put Northwestern in the lead midway in the first period, plunging to a touchdown from the 5-yard line after he led a drive from his own 33. Nick Conteas, quarterback, kicked the extra point.

The Wisconsin pass attack, sparkling briefly near the close of the second quarter, produced the Badgers' one touchdown. Ed Hartman, reserve quarterback, threw a long pass to Bill Schmitz, halfback, in the end zone to climax a march from midfield. Howard Weiss missed the kick for extra point.

The Wildcats started another touchdown march from their own 31. Jay Laskay, fullback, carried the ball over the goal line and Conteas again kicked the extra point.

The defeat was the first for Wisconsin in three Conference starts.

"BELIEVE IT OR NOT"---by Ripley

Beyond Gold And Rubles

On August 16, 1896 an Indian guide named Tagish Charlie called the attention of Robert Carmack, a prospector, to the coarse gold on Rabbit Creek (later called Bonanza Creek). This little intermezzo led to the Great Klondike gold rush which produced nearly $400,000,000 of gold.

Tagish Charlie was rewarded for his discovery in a peculiar manner. At his own request, he was given the right to walk into any saloon and buy a drink whenever he wanted. The sale of drinks to Indians was forbidden, and his exceptional status, conferred on him by the Canadian Government, pleased Charlie more than any other reward he could think of.

Brewer Of Alaska

Prof. Wm. H. Brewer, (1828-1910), head of the agricultural department of Yale University, is the man who convinced Secretary Seward of the desirability of Alaska as a source of ice for the entire Pacific Coast.

Seward was sold on the idea, although he smiled when Prof. Berwer suggested that Americans might eventually be induced to go to Alaska to admire the scenery. But President Johnson was still to be won over.

It so happened that the President came to New Haven in 1866 to visit Yale College. Prof. Brewer was assigned as his escort, and it was in this capacity that the Professor took the Chief Executive aside and "sold" him on Alaska, which was acquired the following year for $7,200,000. Alaska has since yielded more than $1,000,000,000, of which gold, silver and copper alone account for $700,000,000.

Meiji, Waseda Elevens Are Evenly Matched For Big Game Saturday

By LESLIE NAKASHIMA

The game Saturday at the Korakuen stadium between Meiji and Waseda for the championship of the Tokyo Inter-collegiate American Football league has all the indications of turning out to be the hardest fought battle on the gridiron since the innovation of this sport in Japan four years ago. The kick-off is scheduled for 2:30 p.m.

Both teams will start the fray undefeated and untied for the season. In the case of the determined Waseda eleven, its goal line has not been crossed this year. Meiji on the other hand was scored upon once . . . . in the game against Hosei when a forward pass scored the latter's only touchdown.

Comparative Scores

Comparative scores of the two teams this season follows:

Meiji defeated Keio, 20-0; Waseda defeated Keio, 43-0.

Winner between the two elevens last year was Waseda by a 6-0 score at the Shiba stadium which made the two co-champions and gave each the right to have seven players selected on the all-star collegiate team that went to Southern California. Meiji had won in the previous two seasons which gives it a 2-1 edge to date.

Evenly matched, Saturday's affair is a toss-up. The rivalry is exceptionally keen. As a consequence, tackling and charging are expected to be particularly fierce and plenty of fireworks is anticipated.

The general consensus is that Waseda has the better line but Meiji's backfield is the more dangerous and more efficient in scoring.

But anyone who knows the game is cognizant of the fact that the best backfield in the world can't get anywhere without a good line. Of course, this is no reflection against Meiji's linemen for they have given scintillating performances paving the way for the team's enviable record to date.

Meiji's Backfield Strong

In Hiromu Hata, Takeo Kunishige, Katashi Yokoyama and Jiro Ebisu, Meiji virtually has the best balanced backfield in the league. Hata can hit the line and skirt the ends. He is probably the shiftiest ball carrier in Tokyo. Kunishige, who hails from California, is especially effective on the sweep around the flanks for he is big and fast. There is no telling when he is off to a touchdown either on a play from scrimmage or after receiving a punt. Yokoyama is short and stocky but one of the best line plungers in the circuit. Ebisu does most of the passing for the team and deserves plenty of credit for Meiji's effective aerial attack. He shoots them pretty accurately to the eligibles, either to the wingmen or to the backs.

With his four men as the nucleus and the Pop Warner double-wing back formation used, the potentialities of a varied and deceptive attack are great. Reverses and laterals can be pulled off under the most favorable circumstances.

If Meiji's offensive in its last game against Hosei when it rolled up the highest score of the season, 55-6, is any indication, laterals must be particularly watched out by the Waseda. But there is this to be considered, Waseda is a much better eleven and laterals pack a lot of danger in being intercepted by the opposing team to result in great damage.

Shimoda Is Key Man

It is probable that Coach Masa Shimoda, who is without doubt the best end in the league, both on the offense and defense, will play in the backfield for Waseda Saturday as he did recently when the team mowed down Hosei by a 44-0 score. This will bolster the Waseda backfield to such an extent that it will be on virtually even terms with the Meiji backfield. Shimoda not only can run and pass but there is no better pass receiver in the country today. With Heichi Nouchi also shooting aerials, there will be plenty of trouble for Meiji. The latter is also fast on end runs. In Captain Uichi Obayashi, Japan born and reared, who is one of the biggest players in the league, the team has a line plunger hard to stop.

Terasu Yoshimoto, who plays safety, is small but speedy and a threat to the opposing team when returning punts. Yukio Naito is expected to bear a large part of the burden in the line smashes. He runs low and hits the line hard. Shigeo Nakayama, quarterback, although he has learned the game since the sport was taken up at Waseda, was good enough to be picked on the all-star team to California last year.

Waseda is fortunate in having Richard Fukuda as center. He was an all-star pivot man in the interscholastic league of Honolulu as a McKinley high school player. It is pertinent to point out in this connection that such a high brand of football is played in this circuit that the champions have had to play the junior college elevens of the Pacific Coast of the United States. Fukuda is a virtual Rock of Gibraltar on the Waseda line. And he is likely to spoil many a Meiji play, particularly in intercepting or knocking down their passes.

Waseda's Ends Better

Another reason Waseda is said to have a better line than Meiji's is in the presence of Takeo Nomura and Tatsuo Murayama in the end positions. Their performance to date has been a bit more impressive than Satoru Sugimura and Sadao Toyama.

As to the tackles and guards, the two teams are evenly matched. Perhaps Waseda's men have the advantage in weights by a shade difference.

The two teams are so evenly matched, it seems as if the breaks will decide the winner—champions for the season.

Keio Fifteen Routs Teidai By 46-9 Score

Their forwards proving a disappointment, the Tokyo Imperial University rugby team, which had been figured to have a chance to break into the winning column, was routed, 46-9, by Keio University's fifteen Tuesday afternoon at the Meiji Shrine stadium. The score at half time was 19-0.

Keio scored one try, two goals and two penalty goals in the first half and three tries, three goals and one penalty goal in the second.

Teidai registered two tries and one penalty goal in the second half.

Death Summons McAuliffe, 71, Ex-Ring Champ

N. Y. Times

NEW YORK, Nov. 5—Jack McAuliffe, who retired in 1896 as the undefeated professional lightweight boxing champion of the world after holding the title for twelve years, died yesterday at his home, 73-20 Austin Street, Forest Hills.

McAuliffe, who was 71 years old, was stricken by an ailment of the throat glands in February, 1936, and underwent an operation at Memorial Hospital, Central Park West. He had been in ill health since.

Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Jennie McAuliffe; his stepdaughter, Mrs. James S. Campbell of Lake George; a sister, Mrs. Howard Beecher of Montiecello, and a nephew, John McAuliffe Jr. of Forest Hills.

Burial will be in the Albany Road Cemetery at Albany on Sunday.

Born in Ireland

McAuliffe first wave his fists on the blustery morning of March 24, 1866, in Cork, Ireland, the second son of John and Mary McAuliffe. Ten days later, while being carried to the parish priest to be baptized, he poked one of his dimpled hands into the eye of his godfather, James O'Quinn.

"Sure, John, he's going to be a great fighter," said O'Quinn.

At the age of 5 McAuliffe was brought by his parents to the United States. They lived for a time in Bangor, Me., where the boy, with the exception of a few youthful quarrels, never had a chance to show the great courage and skill that later were to bear out the prophecy of O'Quinn.

In the Williamsburg section of Brooklyn, however, the scion of the McAuliffes found an opportunity to follow his bent for athletics in neighborhood clubrooms. When he was 18 years old there wasn't a boy within fifteen pounds of his weight to stand up to him. He was the best of all the amateurs at 133 pounds and on occasion he would take on opponents up to and beyond the welterweight limit. He had skill and could match any of them in endurance. And he had the will to win.

Spurred On to Pro Ranks

In 1885 Billy Madden conducted a number of amateur boxing tournaments in New York. McAuliffe entered the lightweight competition in each of them and won. He had conquered every lad in his class in the amateurs and, upon the advice of admirers, made bold to challenge Jimmy Mitchell for the professional championship.

Whether Mitchell, having seen the young Irishman in action, hesitated to face him was not stated, but he declined and McAuliffe laid claim to the title, offering to meet all comers.

Jack Hopper was the first to challenge and on Feb. 27, 1886, McAuliffe defeated him in seventeen rounds in New York.

His fame was assured. He had offers at home and abroad. In those days purses were comparatively small and many of the fights were waged for side bets, from $500 a side up to $5,000, occasionally more. And a man had to fight to protect his backers.

Witness, for instance, the long and grueling struggle between McAuliffe and Harry Gilmore in Lawrence, Mass., in 1887. They agreed on $500 a side and a championship belt. Skin-tight gloves were used. Gilmore, a clever boxer, cut McAuliffe's eyes early in the fight. Almost blinded, the Irishman fought on, forcing his adversary to heed the pleas of his backers and quit in the twenty-eighth round. Gilmore's nose was broken.

Saved Backers' Bets

In 1887 McAuliffe was matched with the renowned Jem Carney of England for a finish fight at Revere, Mass. They fought seventy-four rounds and it was declared a draw when no who had wagered $4,500 a side broke into the ring. Some said that McAuliffe was taking a beating when the fight was halted.

In 1889 at North Judson, Ind., the Irishman met Billy Myer for $2,500 a side. In the tenth round McAuliffe, essaying the pivot punch, permissible in those days, broke his arm on his rival's head. But he fought on to a draw in sixty-four rounds to save the stake.

Jimmy Carroll, whom McAuliffe rated as one of his greatest rivals for the title, was knocked out by the champion in forty-seven rounds in San Francisco in 1890.

There were many more who felt the power of McAuliffe's punch and bowed to his superior ringcraft. He retired undefeated in 1896 and Kid Lavigne took over the championship.

McAuliffe was a contemporary of John L. Sullivan and Jack Dempsey (the Nonpareil) and both were his personal friends.

Served With A. E. F.

After retirement, McAuliffe engaged in many pursuits. As a rule he followed some branch of sporting activity. He was a devotee of horse racing and throughout his last years was a familiar figure at the tracks of New York. During the war he went overseas as a secretary for the Knights of Columbus, working among the troops of the American Expeditionary Force.

McAuliffe, as one would expect, had a ready wit and was admired as a spinner of yarns of the ring. In his later years he became corpulent, but still had a flare for elegant yet conservative attire. In 1934 he entered politics as a candidate for the Assembly from the Sixth District of Queens. He established headquarters in Forest Hills, where he had lived for a number of years, and went into training for the stump. His success in the ring found no parallel in politics, however.

Stanford Defeats So. California, 7-6

N.Y. Times

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 6—Stanford, scoring on a pass good for 41 yards, bowled over the favored Trojans of Southern California, 7 to 6, before 55,000 today.

After a tight first ten minutes in which Paulman's long kicks regained ground, Stanford lost through the smashing runs of Schindler and Sangster for Southern California. The Trojans started a drive which took them to the Indians' 22-yard line as the scoreless period ended. Runs of 20 and 10 yards by Schindler marked the advance.

A blocked kick by Stoecker tackle, gave Southern California possession on the 1-yard line as the second period opened and Schindler plunged over for at Trojan touchdown. The kick for point was blocked. Stanford was pushed back to its 8-yard line on another sustained drive but Southern California lost the ball on downs.

Stanford had the ball on the Trojan 45 in the third quarter when Ledeboer rammed the line for four. Groves then uncorked a flat pass to Fay for a touchdown. Luckeitt, substitute quarterback, place-kicked for the extra point. After the kick-off, the Indians marched to the 40, where Hoffman intercepted a pass and was downed on Stanford's 25. The Trojans plugged to the 17 and then lost the ball on downs.

There was no scoring in the last period.

Harris not only directed the pitchers of his team in capable style to contribute to the club's sensational spurt late in the season to forge into third place of the league standings but was a leader in the club's batting attack. He was fifth in the batting standings with a .310 mark, the result of 62 hits in 200 times at bat.

Harris was to be appropriately honored at the opening ceremonies of the first game of the year's championship series between the Giants and the Tigers this afternoon at the Korakuen stadium.

"BELIEVE IT OR NOT"---by Ripley

Suicide Bridge

Only a few years ago the city of Pasadena, and the adjoining cities, ceremoniously opened the Colorado Street Bridge—their beautiful span over the deep Arroyo Seco. It was soon discovered by those who wanted to end it all, that the low walls on the side of the bridge, and the long drop to the canyon floor, offered an easy way out. As a consequence, the bridge became familarly known as "Suicide Bridge". To date, 77 despondent souls have perished by their own will at this attractive spot.

According to a recent report, an attempted suicide was amusingly frustrated by some boys playing in the bottom of the canyon. They noticed a man all poised to jump from the bridge and yelled: "Come on in, the water's fine!" The would-be suicide then and there decided that with such a sense of humor abounding thereabouts, this world was a pretty good place after all.

Sawamura Has 1 Bad Inning And Tigers Top Giants, 4-1 In First Game Of Playoff

By LESLIE NAKASHIMA

Eiichi Sawamura, only dyed in the wool Japanese twirler who looks like a major leaguer in action and was considered good enough for that circuit by the great Babe Ruth on the occasion of the latter's visit here several years ago, was going like a million dollar Wednesday afternoon but he had one bad inning—the eighth—and the Osaka Tigers humbled the Tokyo Giants, 4-1, in the first game of their seven-game playoff series for the year's professional championship at the Korakuen stadium. The two teams were scheduled to meet at 2 p.m. today for the second game on the same diamond after which they were to go to the Kansai for the third and fourth games on Saturday and Sunday.

Sawamura's Start Good

The Tigers, the most dangerous hitting team in the league, had been mowed down up to the eighth by Sawamura. His overhand speed ball was much too fast for many of the Tigers batsmen. Then his drop, thrown with that same overhand motion, and his hooks from his sidearm delivery were most effective. Captain Matsuki of the Tigers, for instance, had struck out on his first three trips to the plate to the great delight of the disappointingly small but enthusiastic crowd of fans who were all pulling for the home team.

Sawamura had been touched for but three scattered hits up to the eighth and was well on the way to get by this frame as well but for the fact that he erred in one pitch to Right Fielder Kageura, who had won the individual batting honors of the fall season. Shortstop Okada started the fireworks for the Tigers by sticking out his bat at a fast one and meeting it for a hit to right field. Matsuki, a good sticker, who had been looking pretty bad by fanning already on three occasions, fared even worse then he bunted for an easy putout by Backstop Uchibori in his attempt to sacrifice Okada to second. Fujimura rolled a slow grounder to third on a hit and run play and was thrown out on a close play at first but Okada, unleashing all the speed he had in him, rounded second and beat the peg back to third. Sawamura worked carefully on Kageura and had two strikes and a ball on him while Yamaguchi stole second to get into scoring position. Sawamura then let loose a chest high straight ball, somewhat wide, but this is Kageura's favorite ball and he banged it for a single to right center to clean up the bags. And up came Left Fielder Fujii who scored a fluke homer to add two more runs. He lifted a high fly down the left field foul line. Mayekawa made a game try and stuck out his gloved hand over the low fence but his backhand attempt failed. The ball hit the glove and then bounced over the fence.

Nishimura Pitches

Right Hander Nishimura, the Tiger's most consistent winner during the fall season, worked the entire route and stopped the Giants with seven hits. The latter had men on the bases repeatedly, as is accounted for by the fact that they had 15 men left on the bags, but they were unable to hit Nishimura in the pinches.

The Giants had a good chance to duplicate the Tigers' scoring in the last half of the eighth but managed to register but one run on the scoring board. Mayekawa, the first man up, walked and Shiraishi singled through second. Matsuki retired Nagasawa with a beautiful catch of his high fly down the right field foul line. Backstop Uchibori slammed one that bounced against the fence in left field but fast fielding held Mayekawa at third. The Giants might have done better had they sent in a pinch-hitter for Sawamura, who is a weak batter. Having shifted to the left box, Sawamura is slow in his swing and lacks power as well. He grounded to short and Third Baseman Igauye, instead of pegging to the plate, tossed to second for a double. That would have been the proper play with a 4-0 lead but there was no time for a double. Uchibori was forced out at second but Mayekawa tallied. The Tigers' management wasted considerable time protesting against interference by Uchibori in the matter of the relay to first. Goh walked to fill the bags again but Tsutsui struck out with the bat on his shoulder as Nishimura's hook cut the heart of the plate.

A homer would have tied the score for the Giants in the last half of the ninth when Ito was sent in to bat for Nagasawa with two men on the bags. Mizuhara had gotten on an infield hit and Mayekawa had singled sharply to left. With the count two balls and one strike, Ito popped weakly to third and the game was over.

The box score follows:

Futabayama Is Only Undefeated Wrestler In Osaka Tournament

Handsome Futabayama, who went through the last two seasons of the professional sumo (Japanese wrestling) tournaments in Tokyo without a defeat and was consequently promoted to the rank of yokozuna or grand champion, is the only undefeated contestant in the tournament now going on at the Osaka bowl. Wednesday afternoon, he defeated Taikyuzan after a torrid match for his seventh straight victory.

Grand Champion Musashiyama, competing for the first time after a long layoff, was pushed out of the ring by the up coming Mayedayama.

Cleveland Signs Vitt For 2 Years

N.Y. Times

CLEVELAND, Oct. 20—The Indians today named Oscar Vitt to replace Steve O'Neill as manager and gave the Newark International League pilot his first managerial opportunity in major league baseball.

President Alva Bradley announced Vitt's appointment under a two-year contract, terms of which were undisclosed. Bradley said O'Neill had been offered a post as a Cleveland scout.

The 47-year-old Californian said at his home in Oakland that the appointment climaxed an ambition he had cherished ever since the end of his major league playing career in 1921. Vitt broke in with Detroit in 1912 and wound up his big-time third base chores with the Red Sox in 1921.

O'Neill, on the receiving end of some of baseball's most noted batteries, had piloted the Indians since August, 1935, when he succeeded Walter Johnson. His replacement frequently had been rumored since last Summer. Cleveland finished fourth in the last American League campaign.

Hopeful of Better Offer

O'Neill said he would not become a Cleveland scout if he could obtain a better offer.

"The owners think they're acting for the best," O'Neill said, "so all I can do is wish them luck. Naturally, I'm disappointed. Nobody likes to lose his job."

Vitt's selection came as a surprise to baseball observers generally. He and Bradley had conferred here late last week, but no announcement was made then.

"We picked Vitt on his record," Bradley said.

The new Tribe chieftain, whose Bears this year wound up twenty-five and one-half games ahead of Montreal for the International pennant and then defeated Columbus (Ohio) in the little world series, started his playing career on the West Coast.

Before Vitt went to Newark he had managed Salt Lake City, Hollywood and Oakland of the Pacific Coast League, the latter club in 1935. He won pennants in 1929 and 1930 with Hollywood.

C. C. Slapnicka, vice president of the Indians, said tonight that the club would seek an outfielder who hits right-handed, an experienced catcher, a second baseman and a southpaw pitcher to bolster the team next season.

Officials of the club have several players in mind and expect to do some dickering at the annual major league meeting in December, he said. The Indians are willing to part with established stars if such deals will strengthen the Tribe. Final decisions will be left to Vitt, Slapnicka said.

Regarding coaches George Uhle and Wally Schang being retained, Slapnicka said: "It is customary for a manager to name his coaches and Vitt probably will announce his decision in the near future."

Mann Has Hopes Japanese Will Head Federation

The hope that Japan will propose a candidate for election as president of the International Amateur Baseball Federation which was founded during the Olympic Games last year in Berlin is expressed by Leslie Mann, president of the Amateur Baseball Congress of the United States, in a letter received by the Tokyo Olympic Organizing Committee.

Mr. Mann's letter will be referred to the Tokyo University Baseball Federation.

Mr. Mann was instrumental for the staging of an exhibition game of baseball at the Olympic games in Berlin. He has also urged the O.O.C. here to include baseball as an event in the Olympic program.

Considering present circumstances, the O. O. C. has tentatively decided to follow the example at Berlin last year and include baseball as a demonstration event in 1940. Sanction for this will be requested from the International Olympic Committee at its meeting at Cairo in March next year.

Including the United States, Japan, England and Germany, almost 20 countries became charter members of the International Amateur Baseball Federation when Mr. Mann put the matter across in connection with the exhibition game played by two American teams.

Indiana Subdues Ohio State, 10-0

N.Y. Times

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Nov. 6—Ohio State's Big Ten championship hopes were trampled into the turf of Buckeye Stadium today as Indiana's Hoosiers won, 10 to 0.

A crowd of 47,000 watched the inspired Hoosiers turn back two Buckeye threats in the opening minutes and then go on to gain a victory as startling as it was impressive.

Center George Miller, who played a great defensive game, stepped back to the 21-yard mark in the second period and calmly place-kicked a field goal for 3 points.

Filchock's Pass Clicks

Quarterback Frank Filchock faded back in the next period, following a long drive down the field, and fired a 12-yard pass to Halfback Frank Petrick, who lunged over the goal line from the 4.

Ohio, after exploding for a 74-yard gain on the first two plays, was halted on the 1 by the stalwart Hoosier forwards. A few minutes later Ohio was back at the Hoosier 12, but two passes and two plunges failed and Indiana took possession.

That was the last time Ohio appeared dangerous, the Hoosiers bottling the Bucks between the 25-yard lines the rest of the way.

Corby Davis, Indiana's great fullback, did not appear in the scoring list, but throughout the contest, his line plunging was powerful, and he backed up the line like a champion. Time after time it was Davis who plunged for first downs.

A punting duel featured the fourth period, with Indiana keeping the Bucks locked deep in their own territory. Kabealo's quick kick gave the Hoosiers possession on their own 46 as Indiana picked up about 15 yards on one exchange.

Buckeyes Take To Air

Ohio opened with a passing attack from it's own 30, but failed to connect, and Indiana hung to line plunges after taking a punt on its 33. Zadworney recovered Filchock's fumble ono the 50, and the Bucks took to the air again.

Kabealo punted out of bounds on the Indiana 3, and then Waslik ran Fowler's return punt back 20 yards to the 30. Olmstead, halted another Buckeye passing attack by intercepting an aerial on the 29, ending Ohio's last threat.

Indiana (10)		Ohio State (0)
L.E.	Kenderdine	Crow
L.T.	McDaniel	Schoenbaum
L.G.	Sirtosky	Magvied
C.	Miller	Wolf

California In Tie With Washington Before 55,000

N. Y. Times

BERKELEY, Calif., Nov. 6—Washington, playing inspired football, held California to a scoreless tie today before a crowd of 55,000 fans.

The Golden Bears entered the game unbeaten and untied, knocking at the door of the Pacific Coast title with four Conference triumphs to their credit. They were strong favorites to vanquish the Huskies, who were the champions last year but already had lost two games this season.

Bears Recover Kick-Off

Herwig recovered the kick-off for California on the Washington 21. The Bears drove to the 10, where two passes failed and Washington took possession on its 9. An exchange of punts followed and Washington passed and smashed to the California 49. Cruver fumbled and California drove to the Washington 36 as the quarter ended.

After an exchange of punts, the Bears advanced to the Huskies' 44, and Chapman kicked out of bounds on the Washington 15. The Huskies then took the ball on their 16 after Evans had failed to gain more than two yards in four ties. Waskowitz punted to the California 39 and Chapman punted out on the Washington 33 as the second period ended.

After another lengthy exchange of punts at the start of the second half, Bottari fumbled Cruver's pass and Washington recovered on California's 44. Waskowitz's pass was intercepted by Chapman, who returned to his 36. Bottari attempted a pass to Sparks but Miller intercepted and raced 20 yards to the California 19 as the third quarter closed.

Huskies Miss Field Goal

Chapman intercepted Cruver's pass on the Bear 16 but California could not gain and twice had to kick out of danger. The Bears recovered Miller's fumble on their 13 to break up one threat. Washington brought the ball to the 23 and tried unsuccessfully for field goal just before the game ended.

The Castle Of Endearment

Archduke Ferdinand of Austria, Regent of Bohemia (1529-1595), son of the Emperor Ferdinand, married, a "commoner," the beautiful Philippine Welser, daughter of a patrician Augsburg family, in 1557. When the Emperor learned of the mesalliance, he forced his son to sign a renunciation of his rights to the greatest throne in Christendom of his time. The young couple lived happily for 23 years. After Philippine died, her romantic widower commemorated their great love by building the Star Castle at Praha, Czechoslovakia. The starlike shape of this castle was to commemorate the fact that the Prince called his wife "my little star" during all their married life.

The English Translation of "Chushingura," the brilliant work representing the Japanese classical dramas, once enjoyed a world-wide fame as an embodiment of the Japanese spirit. Theodore Roosevelt, the late American President, paid a generous tribute to it, saying, "To read this book is the best way, of approaching 'Yamatodamashii' or the spirit of the Japanese. I have presented each of my sons with a copy." It serves to be a guide-book of Japanese plays and may be called a Kabuki reader. Its numerous illustrations, among which twelve colour prints by Hiroshige and Toyokuni are outstanding, realize the scenes and vivify the story. It has long been out of print, but, in compliance with the frequent requests from many quarters, we have undertaken to reproduce it, and it is now out again on sale as an entirely revised edition with a new artistic binding, yet at a moderate price.

Tigers Humble Giants, 7 To 4 For 2 In Row

The Osaka Tigers came from behind to humble the Tokyo Giants, 7-4, Thursday afternoon at the Korakuen stadium to make it two straight victories in their playoff for the year's professional baseball championship. They only need two more games to turn the trick. The scene shifts to the Koshien stadium near Osaka Saturday and Sunday.

Weather conditions were ideal before game starting time but only 5,000 people paid their way in to see the two best ball teams of the country in action.

Sawamura Pitches

The Giants once again assigned Eiichi Sawamura, speed ball artist, to the mound although he had blown up in the eighth on the preceding day. With the exception of a homer into the left field bleachers by Backstop Yoshio (Kaiser) Tanaka in the fifth, Sawamura was going great guns and enjoyed a 3-1 lead at the end of the sixth inning.

But the Tigers pushed over two runs in the first half of the seventh to deadlock the count. Sawamura banged out a three bagger in the eighth and came in on Mizuhara's hit through short to forge into a one-run lead but he was unable to hold it for the Tigers bombarded him for four runs in the ninth to win the game.

All told, Sawamura was touched for 13 blows. The bespectacled Misonou chucked for the Tigers and was nicked for 10 blows.

Turning Point

The turning point of the game was undoubtedly the first half of the seventh when the Tigers tied the count at 3-all. Sawamura started the inning auspiciously by striking out the Tigers best sticker, Right Fielder Kageura. Fujii rolled a grounder to second but was safe on the first baseman's error and then romped all the way to third on Igauye's hit to right. Tanaka came through with a timely hit to center to bat in Fujii. And as Backstop Uchibori let the throw from center go, Igauye and Tanaka advanced to third and second respectively. Misonou rifled a hit through second to score Igauye. On a double steal, Tanaka was thrown out at the plate and Okada grounded out to third to retire the side.

Sawamura tried gamely to maintain his one-run lead in the ninth but Fujii the first man up, nicked him for a hit to center. Tsukamoto was sent into run for him. Igauye forced Tsukamoto out at second and Tanaka struck out. Sawamura was out of a big hole but he got back into one immediately by walking Misonou. Okada, tall man on the batting list, doubled to left to score Igauye to put the count on a 4-all basis. Matsuki walked to clog the bases and what did Fujimura not do but lash out a triple to left center to clean up the bags for Sawamura's finish.

Nagasawa Doubles

Nagasawa doubled to start the last half of the ninth for the Giants but Tsutsui flied out to left. Ito, batting for Uchibori, walked but Sawamura forced him out at second. And Goh, who had knocked one into the left bleachers in the second inning, flied out to left.

Michigan Rallies To Beat Chicago

N.Y. Times

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Nov. 6—Michigan tallied two touchdowns in the last four minutes of the fourth period today to defeat Chicago, 13 to 12.

Stark Ritchie scored the first touchdown on a 41-yard run and plunged over for another from the 3-yard line in the last minute of play. Danny Smick's place kick after the first score provided the margin of victory. A crowd of 25,000 saw the game.

Chicago took the lead midway in the second period, Barclay fumbled and Goodstein recovered for Chicago on Michigan's 25. Fitzgerald took a pass from Sherman on the 21 and ran for a touchdown. Valorz's place kick attempt was blocked.

Daring Play Works

An unorthodox bit of daring set the stage for another Maroon touchdown in the third period. On fourth down with four yards to go on the Maroon 39, Fitzgerald faked a punt and ran to the Michigan 46. Hamity plunged for another first down on the 35.

A 15-yard penalty put the ball back at midfield, but Sherman passed to Wasem, who took the ball on the 27 and ran for a touchdown. Valorz's place-kick attempt was blocked.

Ritchie Replaces Trosko

Ritchie, replacing Trosko in the Michigan backfield in the fourth period swept his left end for 41 yards and the first Wolverine touchdown with four minutes to go. Smick place-kicked the extra point, and Chicago led, 12 to 7.

With a minute to go, Smick recovered Davenport's fumble on the Chicago 21. Ritchie made it first down on the 6, then plunged two yards for the winning touchdown on fourth down.

Canada Beats U.S. By Point For Military Riding Title

By HENRY R. ILSLEY

NEW YORK, Nov. 6—Canada's clever team of riders last night captured the international military competition at the National Horse Show in Madison Square Garden. Thirteen thousand thrilled spectators cheered the splendid jumping of the visitors from across the border, who gained a leg on the perpetual trophy offered by His Excellency Arturo Alessandri, President of Chile.

This result was the culmination of three days of jumping over the international course. The lowest aggregate score won the trophy and the special plate offered by Jansen Noyes for permanent possession by the victors.

It was a thrilling finish. Up to the very last the United States Army team led its four rivals and, when the military judges announced the final score, the wearers of the Maple Leaf had won by the narrow margin of a single point.

How Teams Scored

The final score was as follows: Canada 27, United States 28, Belgium 31½, Irish Free State 41½, The Netherlands 108½

With every box and every arena seat occupied and thousands filling the balconies, it was a different gathering from that which applauded the competitors on the opening night. Here was genuine, unrestrained enthusiasm. Every brilliant performance electrified the crowd.

Seldom has there been more spontaneous response to the animated picture of a great horse sailing over a formidable barrier. It seemed as if every international team had a host of supporters. But the spectators in general were unusually impartial, cheering each performance on its merits.

Canada's brilliant horsemen were Lieut. Col. R. S. Timmis, who rode the bay mare Lady Jane; Lieutenant Marshall Cleland, up on the bay mare Roxana, and Lieutenant Douglas Cleland, mounted on the bay gelding Flying Poet.

Their faults were two knockdowns, a splendid score, with the three horsemen following one another at a safe distance, albeit at a pace, at which anything was possible under the stress of international competition.

Chilean Officer Presents Prize

The massive trophy of victory was presented to the victors by General Diego Aracena, Chief of the Chilean Air Corps, and the piece of plate was handed to them by Miss Shirley Noyes.

Equal glory for the evening's jumping performance went to the Belgian Army team, which also scored 8 points. The United States was third for the evening's jumping with twelve faults, the Irish Free State riders were charged with twenty faults and the Netherlands again was hopelessly in the rear with forty.

The rollicking notes of "A-Hunting We Will Go" ushered in the parade of the hunt teams competing for the Haskell Trophy for teams of three hunters shown by masters, huntsmen, whips of members of the hunt in hunt liverv. It was an appointment class, of course, and the judges were meticulous in their search of flasks, sandwich cases and details of livery and accessories.

Four teams of the five entered took the jumps of the hunter course. The famous team of grays from the hunter stable of Mrs. John Hay Whitney of Upperville, Va., was outstanding. In the team were Grey Knight, Bon Diable and Airy Spirit. It was a first-class performance, with only a single top block off the stone wall marring a perfect record.

Mrs. Whitney headed her team, with Mrs. James Hamilton and Dick Kirby in support. The same riders guided Mrs. Whitney's other entry, which placed second. Third was the Orible Stables' team, with fourth to Mrs. E. Graham Lewis's.

Fast Gait in Test

Slap, bang, dash—that is the tempo of the touch-and-out. You get over or you don't. Every rider in this exciting jumping event has in mind the contingency that every fence is his last, and so the jumping is bold and virile and the spectators get more of a kick from it than from the average jumping competition.

Possibly the top-hat contingent in the boxes got an added punch when Miss Joan Dixon flew over the obstacles of Course C atop Colonel Vadim Mawaroff's upstanding chestnut mare Melody Girl. She gave the veteran timber topper free rein as she dashed about the ring. Not a semblance of a touch could be detected by the eagle-eyed judges at every fence.

Miss Divon, by the way, is only 15 years old and has been riding and jumping for only a year under the tutelage of Colonel Makaroff, who was a member of the Russian Olympic team at Stockholm in 1912.

She outjumped more than half a hundred experts in the game—civilian and army, American and foreign. Second was the bay gelding Flitter of the United States Army team, jumped by Lieutenant Wing. Another army man was third, the brown gelding Billy of the Fort Myer team being jumped by Captain Luebbermann.

Fourth was Arthur McCashin, hero of the challenge trophy competition the second night of the show, who was up on Mrs. Julius Bliss's great gray gelding Greyflight.

Waseda Sending Swim, Track, Cage Teams To Manila

Waseda University's basketball team, national inter-collegiate champions, as well as four swimmers and five track and field athletes, will leave Kobe on December 17 aboard the Nippon Yusen Kaisha liner Atsuta Maru to compete at the Philippine carnival games at Manila.

Captain of the track and field team is Kiyoshi Adachi, who has been coming along in great style in the pole vault. The others are Kiyoshi Nakamura, Kimio Yada, Hiroshi Tanaka and Masao Takizawa.

Shinzo Ashida, coach; Eiichi Sato, captain; Yoshitoshi Tanaka; Kiyohiro Ishizawa, Shigeye Kuroda, Saburo Oka, Uichi Munechika, Kiichiro Oda, Takio Otani, Kenshichi Yokoyama and Sho Kurokawa.

Nebraska Rallies To Tie Kansas 13-13

N.Y. Times

LINCOLN, Neb., Nov. 6—An 80-yard march in the last four minutes of play was all that saved Nebraska's football team from taking a beating at the hands of the fighting Kansas Jayhawks before 34,000 fans today. The final score of the Big Six game was 13 to 13.

A fumble by Callihan in the first period gave Kansas the ball on the Husker 17. A pass, Replogle to Sullivant, and a 5-yard plunge by Douglass gave the Jayhawkers the first score, but Douglass's try for the point was blocked. Sullivant's fumble was recovered by Brock for Nebraska on the Kansas 25. Andrews shot a pass to Callihan, who put the ball on the 3 and Howell lugged it over. English missed the extra point.

Biff Jones sent in a new team in the second period. Replogle intercepted a Nebraska pass on the Nebraska 13. The Jayhawks scored on a pass from Replogle to Divens, a substitute for Sullivant. Douglass added the extra point. On the next kick-off Andrews gave the ball to Dodd on a reverse. Dodd scampered 54 yards to the Kansas 37 but the Jayhawks held.

Nebraska made two first downs at the start of the third period. A behind-the-line pass from Howell to Dodd added 33 yards and put the ball on the Kansas 19 after Amerine, a sub back, pulled Dodd down from behind. The Jayhawk line held and Howell shot a pass to Amen, who ran out of bounds on the Kansas 15. Kansas took the ball on downs on its 15. Kivens punted to Plock, who fumbled but got back to his 45.

An 80-yard march down the field marked Nebraska's play in the final period. Phelps shot an aerial to Dodd on the K. U. 9. The Jayhawk line held but the Huskers took to the air to send Callihan scooting over for a score on a pass from Phelps. Plock's place-kick for the extra point was good, knotting the count.

Minnesota Routs Iowa By 35 To 10

N. Y. Times

IOWA CITY, Iowa, Nov. 6—After spotting Iowa 10 points, Minnesota rushed back with all of its characteristic power and skill to down the Hawkeyes, 35 to 10, today in a Big Ten football game before 40,000 homecoming fans.

After a spirited Iowa line piled up Gopher running plays in the first period Eicherly took Hinnick's pass on the Iowa 45 and sped to a touchdown. Dean's place kick was good.

Dean's field goal in the second period increased the Iowa lead to 10—0 before the Gophers finally swung into action.

Van Every passed to King who lateraled to Reed and the Gopher end dashed 40 yards to a touchdown. Bell's placekick was good.

Van Every then passed another long one to King who fell over the Iowa line for a second touchdown. Bell's placekick again was good.

The Gophers quickly ripped through the Hawk defense for two more touchdowns in the third. From the Iowa 39, Van Every lateraled to Gmitro who scored. Bell kicked the point.

Backed against its own goal, Iowa took to the air. Spadaccini grabbed Kinnick's pass on the 37. Buhler lateraled to Gmitro who dodged his way to another touchdown. Spadaccini's kick was good.

In the last period, the relentless Gophers punched through the Iowa line for a fifth touchdown, Moore carrying the ball over from the Iowa three to culminate a march starting on the Hawk 46. Bell's kick was good.

Alabama Picked To Play Bears In Rose Bowl

(Via Mackay Radio)

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 1—Alabama's Crimson Tide, winner three times of the Rose Bowl football championship to be played on New Year's Day, has accepted the invitation for a repeat performance to meet California, present West Coast conference title holder, for the mythical crown at Pasadena.

Alabama went to the Rose Bowl in 1926, 1927, and 1935. The Crimson Tide will move westward for the January 1 game with an untarnished record of wins for the 1937 season.

Temple Beaten

N.Y. Times

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 6—A savage, last-quarter uprising that yielded two touchdowns gave Michigan State a 13-to-6 triumph over hitherto unbeaten Temple before 17,000 fans at Temple Stadium today.

A block kick and a 71-yard march helped the Spartans topple the thrice-tied Owls from their perch among football's elect.

After a scoreless first period, Temple got under way early in the second quarter. The Owls took a Spartan punt on the Michigan 47 and smashed down field in five plays for a touchdown. Lukac, left half, tallied, going over the Michigan State left tackle on a double reverse. Pappas' try for goal was low.

In the final period, Pingle, with the wind at his back, booted over the Owl's goal line from his own 45 to start the Spartan uprising that won the game. Temple could not gain when it put the ball in play on the 20 and, after four plays, had lost as many yards, Kovacevich dropped back to kick.

Pearson, Michigan State tackle blocked it and McShannock fell on the ball over the goal line for the first Spartan score. Bruckner's kick was wide and the score was tied.

Four minutes later the Spartans scored again on a 71-yard march that ended when Nelson, end, took a shovel pass and raced 25 yards around left end for the touchdown. This time Bruckner's kick for the extra point was good.

The Human Safe

The 90-year-old Burmese is the abbot of the monastery of Kyaukme, Burma. In some strange manner he contrives to introduce silver shilling pieces under his skin without a puncture or opening. The silver is distinctly visible, and the abbot explained that he has trained his skin to swallow the coins after he has immersed them in a mysterious oil.

Mayor Maestri of New Orleans

When T. Semmes Walmsley resigned as mayor of New Orleans, Mr. Maestri was the sole nominee for the unexpired term of two years. Since Louisiana is a one party state—the Republican vote being negligible no election was held and Mr. Maestri was declared nominated. The state legislature was in session at the time and a constitutional amendment was passed abolishing the scheduled election in New Orleans for mayor two years hence, thereby extending the term of the incumbent four additional years without the necessity of holding a municipal election. The amendment received a majority in excess of 600,000 votes, thus electing Mayor Maestri by the largest number of votes ever cast for mayor of New Orleans, although his name has never appeared on a ballot.

Pitt Downs Notre Dame 21-6 Before 56,000 At South Bend

By WILLIAM D. RICHARDSON

N.Y. Times

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Nov. 6—A tremendously powerful Pittsburgh football team kept its 1937 record clean and terminated its series with Notre Dame in glorious fashion today by grinding out a 21-to-6 verdict before a record throng of 56,000 spectators.

For two periods the gallant wearers of the Blue and Gold, fighting their hearts out against odds that were apparent to every one, managed to hold the Panthers in check. One was almost led to believe another football miracle, for which past and present Notre Dame teams are famed, was about to be performed.

And when, in the third period, the fighting South Bend team managed to sneak over a beautiful pass play for a touchdown, the Notre Dame adherents in the stands went wild, certain that for the second week in succession Coach Elmer Layden's men were going to upset the football world. It was just a week ago that they scored a stunning triumph over Minnesota.

Victory Dream Shattered

But it was not long afterward that the Panthers rose to their full height and buried Notre Dame under an explosion of touchdowns. Three scores came in surprising fashion in the closing period as Marshall Goldberg, Pitt's great back, and his worthy mates, Harold Stebbins and Frank Patrick, plowed and tore their way to one of the most decisive triumphs the Panthers have ever registered in the eleven-game series which began in 1909.

During Coach Jock Sutherland's tenure the Panthers have almost scorned the use of the pass. With the type of runners he has at his command this year—Goldberg, Stebbins and Patrick, to say nothing of Dick Cassiano, the fleet Albany (N. Y.) boy who understudies for Goldberg—scoring via the pass is adding insult to injury.

But it was a pass that opened the flood-gates for Pitt this perfect football afternoon. It came like a sudden stab and it had the same effect as a dirk on a Notre Dame team whose strength had been almost drained in holding off the fury of the Panther attack as long as it had.

Hoffman Replaces Souchak

The Panther attack had stalled on Pitt's 44-yard line as the final period opened with Notre Dame leading, 6-0, as the result of a touchdown in the third on Jack McCarthy's pass to Andy Puplis, hero of the Minnesota game. Goldberg, Pitt's spark-plug, suddenly faded back and shot a pass to Fabian Hoffman, a replacement for Frank Souchak at right end.

Running like a deer, Hoffmann grasped the ball on Notre Dame's 28-yard line and, eluding tacklers, dashed down the sidelines to the 5, where Harry Stevenson knocked him out of bounds. That play netted the Panthers 51 yards.

In two more plays Patrick crossed the line as he hit center. Souchak, Pitt's star end, went in and, with Goldberg holding, sent the ball spinning between the posts to give the Panthers a 7-to-6 lead.

The fighting Indians must have realized then exactly how the Gophers felt a week ago when a missed point cost them a tie game, for Puplis, whose conversion made the difference between victory and defeat against Minnesota, had missed his try following his third-period touchdown today.

But in the long run it made no material difference, for mighty Pitt, now forsaking the air and relying solely on the power of its running attack, put two more runners across the line before the game ended.

100th Triumph for Sutherland

The Panthers' second score came on a fake reverse, which caught the South Bend team by surprise and enabled Stebbins to gallop 27 yards down the middle to score standing up. Later on, following the interception of one of Notre Dame's futile passes, Patrick ran 22 yards straight through the center of the line for the final touchdown of the game, which marked Dr. Sutherland's 100th triumph since he took over the coaching reins from Glenn Warner.

That second touchdown for Pitt came after a march that started on the Panthers' 34-yard stripe, where John Michelosen, safety man, signaled a fair catch of Stevenson's punt. The Panthers were unchecked as they drove to Notre Dame's 27. There they resorted to strategy.

With Pitt's forwards opening wide holes in the middle of Notre Dame's line and Goldberg and Stebbins racing and raging off Notre Dame's tackles and around the ends, the Panthers had surged 39 yards in six plays, the longest a 14-yard thrust through the line by Patrick.

Then Goldberg, faking a reverse around right end, handed the ball to Stebbins, who came from the opposite side, cut in toward midfield and was away. So well screened was the deception that Notre Dame was caught completely off guard.

Stebbins Intercepted Toss

The third Pitt touchdown started on the Panthers' 45, where Stebbins intercepted McCarthy's pass and ran 12 yards before he was downed. Twice Notre Dame checked the Panthers, but on third down, with about 3 to go, Goldberg flashed around right end for a 21-yard gain. Then, after Stebbins' smashes at center had yielded approximately 5 yards, Pitt was penalized an equal distance for too much time out.

That, however, made not the slightest difference to Patrick, who on the next play found a hole in the center of the line big enough to drive a ten-ton truck through, and, twisting away from several tacklers, ran for a touchdown.

The only time Notre Dame's attack was able to make even the slightest dent in Pitt's colossal defense was when McCarthy, fading far back to his right, heaved a long diagonal pass which Puplis caught just before the Panther defense man could get him, swerved to the middle of the field and went 25 yards for the score that gave the Irish the lead.

Altogether the pass netted 47 yards, although McCarthy was a good 20 behind the line of scrimmage when he finally let go of the ball.

Teams Are Even

These were the principal episodes of the game that ended the series between the two great football machines—a series that has resulted in five games won and lost for each and one tie. Only once since 1931, when Notre Dame defeated the Panthers, 25 to 12, has the Indiana eleven been able to eke out a victory over its rivals, that being two years ago when the score was 9 to 6 in Notre Dame's favor.

For the first two periods the teams appeared to be headed for one of those scoreless ties for which Pittsburgh and Fordham are noted. During those two sessions neither team got anywhere within scoring distance, although even then Pitt had a big edge, forging to the enemy 29 while the closest its opponent came was to its own 44.

Early in the opening period McCarthy's poor kick gave Pitt the ball near midfield, but the Panthers could not advance and Patrick was forced to kick.

Shortly thereafter the Panthers started on their own 33 and worked 10 yards, beyond midfield before they were checked. They gained two successive first downs in this march, Goldberg making 8 yards, then 5 for one and Patrick completing an 11-yard forward to Souchak for the other.

Penalty Hurts Home Team

Early in the second period Puplis made a fine 18-yard run-back of Stapulis' punt, only to have it nullified by a holding penalty on the play, giving Pitt a first down on its 45. The Panthers got as far as Notre Dame's 37 before they were halted; then the home team, starting on its 20, made two first downs, one on penalties and the other on smashes by Ed Simonich.

Balked when they got to their 44, the South Benders put the Panthers in a hole as Stevenson punted out of bounds on the 11, but got nothing for their effort except a bad scare when McCarthy fumbled on a sweep play, Lozouski recovering for Pitt on Notre Dame's 37.

Here, with the period drawing to a close, the Panthers loosed a barrage of aerials, none of which connected, and Notre Dame took the ball on downs on its 29 as the period ended.

The statistics show how uneven today's game was. The Panthers gained 328 yards from scrimmage, Notre Dame 97; twelve first downs went to Pitt, against three; the visitors made 255 yards rushing against 30.

Goldberg Gains 110 Yards

Goldberg and Stebbins shared running honors, the former carrying the ball twenty-five times for 110 yards and the latter lugging it twenty-six for 92. Neither's average was up to that of Patrick, who made 46 yards in seven rushes.

Pitt played the game without the services of its star end, Bill Daddio, but Paul Shaw, who took his place, left nothing to be desired, while Souchak, on the other side of the line, was invulnerable. From tackle Notre Dame was badly outplayed by the heavy Pitt forwards, who wore down their opponents by the ferocity of their charge.

For Notre Dame, Joe Kuharich, right guard, was an outstanding performer, making tackle after tackle in the course of the game.

Pittsburgh (21)		Notre Dame (6)

Armstrong Stops Sarron In Sixth To Settle Claims

By JOSEPH C. NICHOLS

N. Y. Times

NEW YORK, Oct. 30—Henry Armstrong clinched his claim to the world featherweight championship last night by stopping Petey Sarron, courageous battler from Birmingham, Ala., in the sixth round of their scheduled fifteen-round battle at Madison Square Garden.

A long, looping right-hand punch to the jaw sent Sarron to the canvas in 2 minutes 36 seconds of the sixth, and though Sarron managed to get up on his knees, he remained stunned in that posture while Referee Arthur Donovan tolled ten over him.

The outcome entitles Armstrong to recognition by the New York State Athletic Commission and the National Boxing Association as king of the world's 126-pound boxers. Previous to last night Sarron was regarded by the N. B. A. as champion, while the board in this State recognized Mike Belloise. The latter, however, waived his claim to the crown because of ill health, leaving the field clear for Armstrong.

Over $34,000 in Receipts

A crowd of 14,000 persons, of whom 11,847 paid $34,708, sat in on the battle and saw a thriller.

Although he was thought to have weakened himself by making 124 pounds for the fight, Armstrong entered the ring the choice to win, but Sarron tore into the Los Angeles Negro with both hands flying and easily outscored Armstrong through the first round.

As a matter of fact, that Alabama fighter clearly won the first four rounds of the sizzling battle by eagerly inviting Armstrong's attack and cleanly beating the Negro in counters. Neither fighter paid heed to the so-called finer points of boxing. They merely rushed at each other time and again, both arms swinging, and the encounter was one long succession of thrilling exchanges to the head and body.

The knockdown at the end was the only one of the bout, but Sarron twice touched the canvas with his knees as the result of slips in the earlier sessions.

Sarron stepped after Armstrong and through the first round pounded him with good left hooks to the head and body. The Negro landed only two hard punches in the first, a right and left to the head, but these blows plainly shook his foe.

In the second, which was filled with action, Sarron again outpunched his rival with a fast left. Armstrong seemed to get the range in the third and bouched a number of rights off Sarron's jaw, only to lose the round officially because of a low right.

The Birmingham battler landed the more punches in the fourth, but seemed to be losing strength under the force of Armstrong's steady body blows. And in the fifth the Negro took complete command, forcing Sarron to the ropes and battering him without cessation.

Southerner Takes Cover

When the sixth started Armstrong sprang at his adversary and drove both hands to the body. One punch, a heavy right, apparently robbed Sarron of all his strength, for he was able to do nothing except cover up while Armstrong belabored relentlessly with lefts and rights to the mid-section.

Recovering somewhat, Sarron jumped at Armstrong and traded willingly with him in mid-ring until the latter, releasing his long right, crashed it squarely against Sarron's jaw.

Sarron slumped to his knees and elbows and slowly lifted himself. Referee Donovan picked up the count from the timekeeper at six and shouted the remaining seconds in Sarron's ear while the beaten fighter looked at him in wonder.

The loser quickly recovered from the effects of the punch and waved to the gallery as he left the ring. He scaled 126 pounds exactly for the battle.

Frankie Blair of Camden, N. J., made a strong closing spurt to beat Jimmy Leto, Hartford welterweight, in the eight-round semi-final. They waged an interesting struggle all the way, with Blair's sturdy infighting earning him the verdict. He weighed 149 pounds, as against 144½ for Leto.

Aron Floored in First

Vittorio Venturi of Italy and Milt Aron, Chicago welterweight, battled to a draw in an entertaining eight-rounder. Venturi dropped his rival for a count of eight in the first round with a right to the jaw. But the mid-westerner rallied in the succeeding chapters. Each boxer weighed 146.

Waseda Swimmers And Track Men Cancel Trip To Manila Games

Waseda University after all will send no swimmers and track and field athletes to the Philippines carnival in Manila, it was decided Friday after announcement had been made Thursday that they would accompany the basketball team.

Reason was opposition from the track division that the jaunt of the athletes would disrupt plans for winter training at Kamakura in preparation for next year's season.

The swimming division voted on similar action.

"BELIEVE IT OR NOT"---by Ripley

The Lindbergh Beacon

The Lindbergh Beacon, atop the Palmolive Building in Chicago, is the most powerful aviation beacon ever built. The beacon beam of light is of 2,000,000,000 candlepower, lighted by a high intensity carbon arc lamp. The beam is canted 1½ degrees above the horizon, and normally an airmail pilot flying at a height of 3,000 feet can see the beacon from 250 miles away. 500 miles away, of course, the center of the beam is about 37 miles above the earth, due to the earth's curvature. However, the beam of light has a certain spread which makes the lower edge of it visible to a pilot 500 miles away when flying at the altitude record—about 43,000 feet. A newspaper can be read by the beacon's light more than 50 miles away.

Puppet Show Brings

proprietor, Izumo Takeda, himself was adept at play writing as well as being a wizard in putting us through our paces. The famed 'Chushingura,' the story of the 47 Ronin, was written by him. The play is popularly called the panacea of the Kabukidom: theatrical depression is usually dispelled when 'Chushingura' is put on the stage. Oh, we were a glorious clan in those days, and the Kabuki was but a flickering candlelight to our golden sun beams.

Much Maligned Clan

"But, those Kabuki popinjays, would you believe it but seeing our great popularity they sneaked up and appropriated our 'joruri,' our plays and even our stage technique. Ay, but we're a much maligned clan. Mark my words, a much maligned clan."

Accompanying these sad thoughts with three doleful shakes of his skilfully carved head, the Puppet sank back into silence and could not be induced to further comments.

But he listened with intent interest as he was told of the great wave of popularity currently being enjoyed by their overseas relations, the marionettes of the United States. Led by the genius of Tony Sarg, and taken up on a nationwide scale by Federal Theater Project, the States' marionettes are sweeping the country. Marionettes, of wood and puppets, of cloth are being born into most every American family, to take their places as performers in amateur shows of youthful puppet enthusiasts.

"Yes," the puppet began again, led out of his silence by these glowing accounts of puppet popularity in the States, "however much we are calumniated by the viler elements of the world, our race of puppets will always be beloved by the good people of all lands. But one would notice that the majority of the audience is past middle age: there are hardly a dozen young people. The promoters of the puppet show have been studying means of inducing young people to patronize the show and I hope they will succeed.

Loved By People

"The people do love us dearly, you know. See how many and many come to see us every day. And you should see how happily they watch us when we are playing at our Theater in Osaka!

"Our Bunraku Puppet Theater in Osaka, with all due modesty, is a right grand theater, attesting to the popular acclaim we Puppets still enjoy, although our numbers have been so sadly depleted that we of the Osaka Bunraku clan are the only true remnants of the Golden Age. But every theater has its ups and downs and who can say that we'll not be shooting upward again? Have you not just told me that in America the marionettes are swinging back?

"This present Bunraku Theater was built in 1929. We have spoken of our direct descent from the Takemoto Troupe, but perhaps it should be said that our actual progenitor was puppet show opened at Inari-Kitamon in Osaka in 1811, from which origin there came forth the first Bunraku Theater, erected at Chiyosaki-bashi in 1872. This first theater, alas, was lost to fire.

Song-and-Dance Show

"Then, to go way, way back to the very beginning of things, it has been related down to us through the centuries that it was along about the 'Ocho-jidai' that we started out as 'Kugetsu', a simple song-an-dance show with shamisen accompaniment. From this we advanced into the 'ayatsuri (puppet show proper)' and the took in the 'joruri' through the complex form in which we exist today.

"In our most elaborate performances it takes three men to work one of us large fellows. The chief operator works the head and chest with his left hand and our right arm with his right hand. The first assistant manipulates our left arm with his right hand and with his left hand helps the chief operator. The second assistant tends to our legs. The movements, complex as they are, are perfectly synchronized and we are amazingly life-like. That tall fellow you see over there in that showcase, for instance, can lift his eyebrows. And though there may be three men tending to one of us, the audience has eyes only for us Puppet Players.

"But highly perfected as we are, dolls we remain essentially. That little foreign girl over there will blond hair—our famed name of Bunraku means nothing to her but observe how her eyes shine at sight of us, for in us she sees dolls lovelier than ever she's dreamed of.

"Dolls we are and dolls, ever as always, will be among the beloveds of the world. We Bunraku Puppets have been here a good many years now and we shall be here for many, many more. These 'modern' furniture that surround us here on this floor—when fads and fads of such 'moderns' have come and gone, we'll still be here, the same as ever, beloved always. Mark my words, marks my words."

And all the fellow Puppets about him, filling up on his words, swelled themselves up mighty proud and were a brave sight to behold.

"Yes, But—"

The daughter was in the middle of her singing lesson when her mother came into the room. She listened for a moment or two, and then broke in:

"Ah—er—how is my daughter getting on? D'you think she will make a great singer?"

The teacher coughed and seemed at a loss for a reply.

"It—it's very hard to say," he said at last.

"But surely she posesses some of the qualifications?"

"Well—er—she's got a mouth, certainly!"—Edinburgh Dispatch.

Air Raid To Test London Sky Defenses

LONDON, (INS)—In the early morning hours of November 5, London will experience its first air raid since the terrorizing Zeppelin raids of the Great War.

Over an area of 200 square miles, every light will be extinguished. Air Raid wardens and members of civilan defense corps, wearing protective clothing, will take up their positions.

At the first sign of the raiders approach, sirens will scream, anti-aircraft batteries fully manned will stand alert, while the sky is being pierced by the powerful beams of modern searchlights.

To Test Defense Plans

But there will be no ear-splitting, devastating bombs dropped, for in this case the raiders will be Royal Air Force bombing squadrons, and the purpose of the sham raid will be to determine to what extent of effectiveness the much-discussed and criticized air defense plans in towns on the Kent side of London have progressed.

There will be two raids between midnight and 2 a.m. and observers stationed at key points will note the effects of the raid and the blackout.

The district selected for the experiment, is designated as the "Nore Passive Air Defense Area."

Heavily Populated Area

It is bounded on the Essex side of the Thames by Shoeburyness, Southend and Tilbury; on the Kent side by Gravesend, Chatham, Sittingbourne, Faversham, and Sheerness. The area contains a population of hundreds of thousands of people.

Twelve authorities, including the Essex and Kenty county councils will collaborate with the Home Office, and the Services.

Although this will be London's first experience of the kind, Continental capitals have long been familiar with these great blackouts, and mock air raids.

Torture Cell

"Ha, ha! Ho, ho, ho!"

"Why the laugh?"

"I just put a woman into a room with a thousand hats and no mirror."—Neumode.

LES LIVRES ET LES ECRIVAINS

Autour d'un prix littéraire

Le Grand Prix créé récemment par le conseil municipal de Paris vient d'honorer l'œuvre d'un romancier, M. Roger Martin du Gard, qui, jusqu'à ce jour, n'avait été l'objet d'aucune récompense officielle. S'il n'avait été l'objet d'aucune récompense officielle. S'il ne m'appartient pas de trahir le secret d'une délibération à laquelle j'eus l'honneur de prendre part, je puis assurer du moins qu'elle se développa dans le juste respect des œuvres entre lesquelles hésitaient les voix. Aucune candidature n'avait été posée et ne pouvait être posée. On prononça de grands noms et d'autres noms appelés à devenir grandes. Les conditions du prix qui, l'an prochain, doit couronner une œuvre de poète, ou un travail d'histoire, ou un essai critique ou philosophique, sont parfaitement larges et souples. Un auteur jeune, autant qu'un doyen, peut être désigné. La respectable dotation (25.000 francs) rompt la pratique des ridicules aumônes dont on a prétendu faire des hommages littéraires.

Pour la première attribution, tels maîtres, qui eurent leurs avocats fervents, ont paru suffisamment comblés par leur gloire. Le choix, au second tour, de l'auteur de Thibaut a reçu l'approbation de la cité des lettres. Mais une égale sympathie eût accueilli certains autres noms prononcés dans ce débat. Si l'illustration de plusieurs les mit hors de la discussion et des suffrages, le jury n'en manifesta pas moins son unanimité dans l'admiration des œuvres signées par eux.

Philosophie d'automne

Maurice Maeterlinck poursuit dans un nouveau livre les entretiens auxquels nous avaient conviés ses précédents ouvrages: la Mort, le Grand Secret, la Grande Loi, le Sablier, Avant le Grand Silence. La discussion, la méditation se proposent en ces jours d'automne où les dernières feuilles tombent, où l'on visite les champs de repos, où l'homme, avec une indéterminable appréhension, s'organise pour vivre dans ce sommeil de la nature qui resemble à la mort. Dans la saison grise mieux qu'aux beaux jours notre pensée affronte cet inconnu qui fait notre avenir hors des limites humaines. Devant le noir mystère, le débat de l'esprit continue. Pourra-t-il, cette fois, dans l'ombre opaque mettre quelque lueur?

Le livre, paru d'hier, prend ce titre: Devant Dieux. Deux mots qui soulèvent un monde de sentiments et d'idées. Maeterlinck va-t-il répondre à l'attente spirituelle des uns, aux curiosités intellectuelles des autres? Le philosophe-poète se garde bien de risquer un détermination impossible. Il envisage simplement, humainement, le problème de nos responsabilités au terme de notre vie. Et son propos, ici comme partout ailleurs dans son œuvre nous saisit et nous apaise par sa grâce lyrique et sa rayonnante sérénité. Si Maeterlinck était le juge suprême de la vie des hommes, il ne prononcerait aucune condamnation.

"Si j'étais Dieu, à la vue des souffrances physiques répandues dans l'univers, et notamment parmi les animaux et les hommes, je serais saisi d'une telle horreur que j'anéantirais à l'instant toute ma création et moi-même avec elle."

Parmi les "moi" successifs qui se succèdent en nous, quel serait, à l'heure du jugement, le moi condamnable?

"S'il y a un Dieu et s'il nous reste une forme, sous quelle apparence nous trouverons-nous devant lui?" Serons-nous le vieillard qu'aura touché la mort? Mais, dit Maeterlinck, un vieillard n'est que la fin d'une existence et ne peut représenter l'enfance, la jeunesse et l'âge mûr qu'il n'approuve plus: "Cinquante ou soixante années dont les actes et les pensées se contredisent ne peuvent faire un homme total, dont toutes les parties sont uniformément..."

Le philosophe observe que ce sont surtout les vaines images de notre imagination qui nous séparent de Dieu:

"En cherchant Dieu, je le crée; et en le créant je deviens ce qu'il est." On pourrait dire aussi, comme Voltaire, que "si Dieu a créé l'homme à son image l'homme le lui a bien rendu".

Par l'une de ces contradictions qu'il souhaite voir apparaître dans les débats des philosophes, cet explorateur obstiné de l'inconnu montre la vanité des recherches humaines dans l' "au-delà".

"Croyez-vous que le rocher l'arbre, l'animal se plaignent de ne rien comprendre à l'univers, à la nature, à Dieu, à la vie? De quel droit exigeons-nous d'être seuls dans le secret et pourquoi nous croyons-nous frustrés parce que durant notre existence, et probablement après elle, nous ne comprenons et ne comprendrons rien?"

Que répondre, ou du moins que répondront les esprits les plus simples, sinon qu'ils portent en eux une instinctive certitude que leur vie humaine n'est pas celle du rocher, de l'arbre ou de l'animal?

Ailleurs, nous lisons:

"En fin de compte comme en fin de siècles, c'est toujours la raison qui a raison." Soit, mais qu'est-ce que c'est que la raison humaine, comment la définir, et comment lui erconnaître un pouvoir alors qu'elle porte en soi les contradictions où se trahissent à la fois son impuissance et la loyauté même de son effort?

"Qui n'ose se contredire ne va pas au bout de sa pensée et n'a jamais fait le tour d'une idée... Chaque fois que je me contredis, il me semble découvrir une vérité que je ne connaissais pas encore." Et voici une citation de Firmin Lardet, l'auteur des Méditations sur l'omnitude: "L'impuissance à penser hardiment la contradiction disqualifie la plupart des philosophes."

Relevons cette boutade où il n'y a pas seulement un jeu:

"Au jugement dernier, Dieu n'aura-t-il pas l'impression de n'avoir à juger que des fous?"

Un mot de poète:

"Pourquoi mon regard toucherait-il les étoiles si elles n'avaient rien de commun avec moi, si elles étaient complètement étrangères à ma vie?"

De la mort le sage parle avec cette sérénité qui n'est point accessible à tous:

"Il est très doux, le passage de la veille au sommeil. Pourquoi, si nous savions y préparer notre âme et notre corps, le passage de la vie à la mort serait-il amer?"

"Si la mort, au lieu de faire de notre corps de la pourriture d'où émerge un squelette hideux et ridicule, nous transformait en pétales de rose, la redouterions-nous et serions-nous inquiets du sort de notre esprit? Tout n'est donc qu'épouvante et qu'horreurs physiques?"

Il n'empêche que l'idée du grand passage doit élever notre esprit au-dessus de nous pauvres obsessions humaines et des faibles tentatives d'où nous tirons notre orgueil. L'homme qui pense aux heures graves de la vie juge sans complaisance les écrivains, romanciers ou dramaturges, auxquels on fait une gloire d'avoir discerné, même exprimé avec talent les misères de notre condition terrestre.

"Ils ont détaillé minutieusement les circonstances d'une vie ou d'un événement quelconque et, en reproduisant ou en exposant aussi exactement que possible des conversations, des sentiments ou des pensées médiocre ou imbéciles, ils s'imaginent qu'ils portent ces niaiseries sur un plan supérieur, qu'ils les transfigurent magiquement en y touchant et qu'ils nous intéressent à ce que nous fuyons autant que possible serait pas supportable? L'homme ne dans la vie qui nous entoure."

Fort bien. Mais comment pouvons-nous espérer que notre vie ne sera faite que de préoccupations supérieures? Dans un autre passage de son livre, Maeterlinck ne dit-il point que la vie dans une société exclusivement composée de saints ne peut pas ne pas rester, dans son existence comme dans ses travaux, l'homme qu'il est. Et tout au plus imaginera-t-on que, par instants, il s'élève d'un coup d'aile—poète ou penseur—au-dessus de la fatalité de sa création.

Albéric Cahuet.

"BELIEVE IT OR NOT"---by Ripley

Sister Ships To The Very End

Two sister oil tankers slipped down the ways in San Francisco Bay in 1914 within a few months of each other, with nothing to foretell the strange series of coincidences that fate stored up for them. The "Lyman Stewart" and the "Frank H. Buck" were built from the same plans, by the same shipbuilders, with identical dimensions and specifications, and both went into the same service.

All went well until the Saturday afternoon of October 7, 1922, when the "Lyman Stewart", during a fog and heavy ground swell, collided with a liner in Golden Gate, being struck in the bow and going down by the head. On Saturday afternoon of March 6, 1937, also during a fog and heavy ground swell, the "Frank H. Buck" met exactly the same fate, being struck in the same place, going down in the same manner, beached in exactly the same place, even being surveyed by the same salvage master. The "Frank H. Buck" now rests squarely atop her sister ship, their engine rooms only 30 feet apart. Who could perform such a deed except the Seven Seas?

Waseda Defeats Meiji, 14-11 To Win Rugby Title

That 26-6 victory by Waseda over Meiji Saturday afternoon at the Korakuen stadium in the clash for the Tokyo Inter-Collegiate American Football league championship was a harbinger of the battle between the two institutions Sunday afternoon at the Meiji Shrine stadium for the Kanto University Rugby league title for the Waseda fifteen won by two tries, one goal and one penalty goal (14 points) to two tries and one goal (11 points). It marked the team's second straight championship and its fourth title.

The game, played by the two undefeated fifteens, attracted a crowd of 40,000 fans, who shivered throughout the afternoon as a stiff wind swept across the field. But they were amply rewarded for they witnessed the hardest fought contest of the season which packed many a thrill.

Waseda Smashes Attack

Waseda's victory was accounted for largely by the fact that it smashed Meiji's pasing attack. Although Meiji proved the stronger of the two in the tight scrums during the greater part of the game and repeatedly heeled out, the Waseda team had not only recognized this but had lined up their defense accordingly. So on the tight scrums, they swarmed through the Meiji line to prevent the Meiji players, to whom the ball had been heeled out, from starting a passing play to his team-mates.

Meiji's forwards performed nobly but they were handicapped in their task through the sheer slowness of their three quarters to cooperate.

The splendid running and passing attack of the Waseda three quarters were bright features of the game.

Both teams fought virtually on even terms in the first ten minutes until Meiji broke into the scoring column with a try in the wing by Kazuo Saito. Conversion failed. Meiji then continued to do most of the attacking but on a brilliant pass from Haruo Igawa to Rinichi Ikeda, the latter dropped over for a try in 20 minutes. He then kicked goal to put Waseda into a 5-3 lead. Waseda scored again in 29 minutes when Genji Tanaka scooped the ball from the loose in midfield and romped to the left flank. He was stopped however on the 5 yard line. But Shozo Saito, forward, fell on the ball over the line for a try. Kick for goal failed against the stiff wind.

Meiji rallied to score in the last second of the half when Sazawa crossed the line and planted the ball squarely behind the goal posts after the best passing attack displayed by the team during the afternoon. Wada's kick for the goal was no good.

Igawa Kicks Goal

Waseda did most of the attacking in the second half, and by this time was equalling the work of Meiji in the tight scrums as well. Three times they threatened to score but Meiji punted out of danger. In 29 minutes, Meiji was penalized for holding and Igawa kicked goal from the 25 yard line to give Waseda an 11-6 lead.

From a tight scrum on the Meiji 25 yard line, Waseda heeled out after 35 minutes of play and Kimura passed to Ikeda, who carried the ball over in the right wing after a beautiful piece of open field running. Conversion failed.

Meiji never gave up hopes despite the Waseda lead that continued to grow more impressive as the clock hands ticked and scored in 39 minutes. Saito went over after a beautiful run of 10 yards after passing by the three quarters from the loose on Waseda's 25 yard line. Fuji kicked goal

The line-ups were:

Waseda

Forwards: Yamachi, Takaki, Matsuki, Saito, Murayama, Onishi, Izawa; Halfbacks: Matsumoto, Kimura, Tsunotani; Threequarters, Ikeda, Igawa, Kawagoye, Tanaka; Fullback Ueda.

Meiji

Forwards: Endo, Yamamoto, Senzaki, Kashima, Hatakeyama, Nabeka, Nijjima; Halfbacks: Fuji, Wada; Threequarters: Saito, Sazawa, Otani, Nakagawa, Oka; Fullback: Yamanaka.

Dartmouth Routs Princeton, 33-9

N.Y. Times

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 6—Princeton led unbeaten Dartmouth, 9 to 0, for the first twenty-nine minutes of their annual battle before the astonished gaze of some 38,000 spectators in Palmer Stadium today. But then came the deluge.

The Indians opened the flood gates of their scoring power, rushed over a touchdown in the last fifty-five seconds of the first half and hammered across four more in the final two sessions to flatten the 24-year-old Princeton jinx and the Tigers in the same motion, 33 to 9. Not since 1913 had the Green beaten the sons of Old Nassau, but it paid that debt with compound interest.

Once it started to click, Dartmouth was superb in its broken field running and in its blocking. After a while it began to resemble a bowling exhibition with the Princetonians serving in the role of ten-pins. The Indians, without a tomahawk in sight, mowed down the Tigers with considerable efficacy and elan.

A 58-yard march terminated in the initial touchdown, a drive of 80 for the second, a 76-yard march for the third, a sprint of 37 for the fourth and a measly 10-yard burst after a 67-yard run-back of a kick for the fifth. It was as simple as all that.

Coach Earl Blaik finally cleaned his bench and rushed in substitutes by the wholesale, but still Dartmouth was able to gain at will and Princeton hardly at all. The final statistics revealed the Tigers had gained 77 yards and three first downs to the Indians' 400 and seventeen.

Although the figures tend to prove to the contrary, Princeton actually did better against Dartmouh than in the 34-6 rout by Harvard the week before. It had more fight and spirit, but it was up against a team that outclassed it in any given direction.

For a while, however, the embattled Tigers staged a grand show. They seized two breaks and converted them into points. They caught Dartmouth before it was ready to move and set it back so hard that it seemed for a while as though one of the greatest upsets of the season was in the process of manufacture. In the end, though, Dartmouth began to click and rip off the yardage in prodigious fashion until it finally appeared as though the visitors had decided to stage an autumnal version of the annual Princeton invitation track meet.

Green Supporters Worried

But until that came to pass Princeton was doing very nicely. It pounced on early Dartmouth mistakes and soon had the Green supporters in the concrete tiers wondering if that jinx was going to hold up to the bitter end after all.

Illinois Upsets Northwestern, 6-0 As 42,000 Watch

N.Y. Times

EVANSTON, Ill., Nov. 6—A determined, fighting Illinois team pushed Northwestern all over Dyche Stadium today to score a smashing upset, 6 to 0, victory. A near capacity crowd of 42,000 saw the struggle.

Thus the Illini ruined Northwestern's faint hopes of at least sharing a slice of the 1937 Western Conference championship.

Playing with the same fire and spirit that won them fame in their early season scoreless tie with Notre Dame, the Illini opened with a 52-yard touchdown march in the closing minutes of the game to score.

Attack Surprises Rivals

A busy little jackrabbit, named Tony Mazeika, who has been sitting on the bench all season, spurted through the Northwestern line for a surprising running attack that completely upset the Wildcats.

When Mazeika returned a punt 15 yards to the Illinois 48, the Illini attack got under way with furious momentum. Jay Wardley, Illinois halfback, fired a 24-yard pass to Castelo, who galloped to Northwestern's 23 before he was checked. After Wardley rammed the Northwestern line for 6 yards, Mazeika carried the ball on the next three plays to the Wildcat 4-yard line.

Wildcats Rally in Vain

There Wardley raced around end with Fred Vanzo, Northwestern's crack blocking quarterback, bringing him down six inches from the goal. Jack Berner, Illinois quarterback, plunged over on the next play. Ed Skarda, a big tackle, came into the game to attempt the extra point from placement, but the wind carried the ball wide of the goal posts.

There were two minutes remaining and the Wildcats opened with a furious forward-passing attack in an attempt to score. This bogged down, however, when Center McDonald intercepted a shot from Jefferson on the Illinois 40.

Both teams missed touchdowns in the second period, with Laskay dropping a forward pass from Jefferson on the goal line. Later in the period Illinois stopped two yards from Northwestern's goal.

Giants Win Fourth Game, 6 To 5 To Keep Tigers From 4-Tilt Sweep

Outhitting their rivals by 13 to 8 hits, the Tokyo Giants prevented the Osaka Tigers from making it a four-game sweep in their series for the professional baseball championship of the year Sunday afternoon at the Koshien stadium near Osaka by scoring a 6-5 victory. The Tigers had made it three straight by taking Saturday's game by a 8-2 score

The scene of the seven-game playoff will be shifted to the Korakuen stadium here this afternoon, with play scheduled to start at 2 o'clock.

The Tigers banked on the bespectacled Misonou who had twirled them to victory in the second game last week at the Korakuen stadium but he failed to come through. At that, the Tigers elected to let him finish the game.

Speedball Eiichi Sawamura, who had been beaten twice in Tokyo, was sent to the plate to stop the Tigers from winning their fourth victory in as many victories, and he came through in great style for six innings but he was knocked out of the box in the seventh when the Tigers rallied to score four runs and be only two runs behind.

In this inning, Sawamura lost control to walk the first two men, Misonou and Okada. Matsuki singled to center to fill the bases. Fujimura lashed a hit to left alongside the foul line to bat in Misonou and Okada. Yamaguchi kept up the stick work with a bingle through short to score Matsuki. Kageura smashed one too hot for Sawamura to handle and the bases were filled again. Sawamura was sent to the showers and Narita sent in. As Fujii forced Kageura out at second, Fujimura tallied for the fourth run. But there was no more scoring when Narita tightened up.

The Tigers scored another run in the eighth on a double steal and threatened in the ninth but Victor Stalphin, Russian twirler, came through nobly in the relief role to stop the Tigers.

Field Goal Wins For Alabama, 9-6 Against Tulane

N.Y. Times

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 6—A 32-yard field goal kicked by Sandy Sanford, sophomore end, in the final two minutes of play gave Alabama's unbeaten Crimson Tide a thrilling 9-6 victory over Tulane before 31,000 spectators today.

Trailing in the first half, 6—0, Alabama drove from its 35 to Tulane's 40 in the third period, but Hal clame in to intercept a pass from Kilgrow and raced to Alabama's 38. Tulane was checked and Nyhan kicked out of bounds on the Alabama 14.

The Crimson Tide, displaying terrific driving power, then marched to Tulane's 3, where Bradford crashed through for a touchdown on a quarterback sneak. Kilgrow missed the try for extra point and the score remained tied.

As the final period opened Warren raced for 13 on an end-around, but Alabama was stopped after line plays made 9 and Moseley punted, with Shoemaker grounding the ball on Tulane's 2. Warren blocked Nyhan's kick and knocked it out of bounds on the Tulane 9.

Tulane was penalized for roughness to its one-yard line but the Green Wave stoppd Kilgrow, Holm and Zivich in a great goal-line stand and booted out to the 43, with Kilgrow returning to the 23 where two passes failed.

Then Stanford went in for Shoemaker and booted a field goal from the Tulane 32.

Trojans Tumble U.C.L.A., 19-13 As Season Ends

Via Mackay Radio

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 4—Heavy firing on the football front came to an end today with a few scattering post-season games, mostly in the Southwest and on the Pacific Coast.

The Trojans from Southern California closed their season with a thrilling 19 to 13 victory over the University of California at Los Angeles in the annual "civil war" of Los Angeles, where both schools are located.

The Texas Aggies came up from the plains of San Francisco and scored a smashing 42 to 0 victory over the University of San Francisco, a Catholic institution with a strong team.

In another inter-sectional, Oregon lost at Tuscon to the powerful Arizona Wildcats, 20 to 6.

The Southern Methodist Mustangs ended a poor season losing to Rice, 15 to 7, in their annual grudge battle. Florida scored a surprising 16 to 0 win over Kentucky and Duquesne's strong team battered down the resistance of a stubborn Mississippi State machine for a 9 to 0 win.

The California-Georgia Tech game, which would have thrown a bright light on the coming Rose Bowl classic between California and Alabama has been postponed until next year. Since the Engineers come from Alabama's territory, it has been felt that much of the interest would be taken from the January 1 battle if they played their scheduled game with the Bears this year.

Oregon 6, Arizona 20.
Kentucky 9, Florida 6.
Duquesne 9, Mississippi State 0.
Texas A and M. 42, San Francisco 0.
U.S.C. 19, U.C.L.A. 13.
Southern Methodist, 7, Rice 15.

Y.C.A.C. Triumphs Over Keio Eleven At Negishi, 19 to 0

Y.C. and A.C.'s American football team won its second straight game of the season Sunday afternoon at its grounds at Negishi with a 19-0 triumph over the Keio University team of the Tokyo Inter-Collegiate league.

The club eleven scored a touchdown each in the first, second and fourth periods.

Fullback Bucky Harris was the backbone of the Y.C. and A.C. attack.

The best the collegians from Tokyo could do against the improved play of the Y.C. and A.C. was to advance to the latter's 20 yard line.

"BELIEVE IT OR NOT"---by Ripley

A Frenchman Gave the U.S. Six Million

Napoleon Bonaparte said that Beaumarchais by writing "Figaro," brought about the French Revolution. This same author and dramatist (1732-1799) was also a successful business man, and the head of the shipping concern of Roderigue, Hortalez and Company, owning 40 seagoing vessels.

After the outbreak of the American Revolution, Benjamin Franklin asked the French Government for a loan of 6,000,000 francs (equal in purchasing power to $24,000,000 today). The French declined the loan, and explained that they would prefer to advance the amount to the United States as a gift. At that time Beaumarchais came forward and his offer to donate the amount to the United States was accepted. The money was spent for munitions and supplies for the American armies. Congress later voted a message of thanks to Beaumarchais. The gift was repaid, the last payment being made to Beaumarchais' heirs in 1831.

50,449 Watch Professional Football Game In New York

By ARTHUR J. DALEY

N.Y. Times

NEW YORK, Nov. 1—A 20-yard field goal by Jack Manders, the place-kicking automation of the Chicago Bears, nullified a magnificent 42-yard shot by Ward Cuff as the New York Giants and the unbeaten Midwesterners battled yesterday to a 3-3 tie over the scarred Polo Grounds turf.

Professional football's biggest crowd in twelve years—the second largest in the history of the game—watched the Giants and Bears batter each other to a fare-thee-well without a touchdown being scored. And at the end a gathering of 50,449 left in the belief that it had witnessed a grand game.

The deadlock disturbed neither team in its tenancy of the top-ranking position in the Eastern and Western Divisions of the National Football League. Neither lost one whit of prestige, the only loss being the mere matter of a few percentage points to the runner-up Washington Redskins and Green Bay Packers.

In the mere matter of statistics, the Chicagoans had an overwhelming advantage, 239 yards on the ground, and through the air to 90 for the Maramen, but the cold figures showed nothing of the flaming spirit of the youthful New Yorkers, their eternal pressing to get points and prevent them.

Bears More Experienced

Chicago had too much experience and drive for the youngsters that Steve Owen had nursed to a four-game winning streak and a following with the enthusiasm of a college crowd. The Maramen could not halt he stabbing, quick-opening plays of the veteran troops that George Halas tossed against them.

For almost forty minutes the Bears ripped and stormed. They crashed and passed down to the 12, 17 and 12 yard line again. But the Giant line, on the alert all the way, learned as it played. It charged savagely, tackled fiercely and began to check the onslaughts of the Chicagoans.

Play in the line almost bordered on the hysterical at the end. Referee Tom Thorp said he never had seen anything like it in more than two decades as an official. There was not a second's let-up, just a constant hammering that had a frenzied touch to it as darkness began to settle over the field.

Four times the Giants attempted field goals. Twice the Bears tried their skill at them. Each counted only once. For the New Yorkers perhaps it was just the law of averages all over again. Cuff made his and then Tillie Manton, a more accurate kicker, failed in succession from the 22 and the 17, boots that he ordinarily might have been expected to make with his eyes closed.

New York Attack Halted

That might have been poetic justice. It hardly would have been fair for the Giants to have won, 6 to 3, much as the huge crowd pleaded for just such a result. The Bears, with their rugged 220-pound line, smothered the New York attack, even though they could not open the holes themselves when the chips were down.

The Maramen were alert all the way and tough despite their inexperience as the Halas brigade was to discover to its dismay. The Giants even fought for possession of the ball after the fray, an extra-curricular item that merely went to show that they were willing to battle Papa Bear, Mama Bear and every Bear in sight for everything. Thorp finally halted this incipient free-for-all, gave the ball to the Giants and then had it graciously turned back to Halas by Owen.

Stout Steve used his two-team system for the first half and then began to play his cards a bit closer to his chest by sticking Mel Hein back at center to stem the Bear passing. He used the two teams in slightly modified fashion in the last two quarters.

It was an intercepted forward by the wide-awake Giants that set the stage for the New York score in the first period. Cuff made the interception and when the giant Bears stymied the New York attack on the 33, stepped back and calmly booted the longest field goal of the year.

Chicago Stages March

The Chicagoans drove 36 yards to the 12 in five plays a period later and on the sixth play Manders slammed on his fourth-down placement to tie the score. The Giant attack had no continuity and the Maramen had to be opportunists, but the Bears could rumble along in high until the danger point was reached. Then the New Yorkers turned on the "stop" signal.

When the Midwesterners charged to the 17 and a Manders field goal seemed an absolute certainty, Jim Poole tossed Bernie Masterson for a 24-yard loss to save the day. And when the Bears carried 62 yards to the Giant 12, Tuffy Leemans intercepted a pass to call a halt.

But the really nerve-tingling moments of the fray were compressed into the last few minutes. The Giants definitely had worn down the Chicagoans with their two-team system. The Bear attack had stopped when Ed Danowski punted beautifully down the field an arching 60-yarder.

The safety man wisely let the ball fall, but for no earthly reason Pug Rentner came galloping up and the pigskin caromed off his leg. It was a free ball and Hein, the omnipresent one, was on it in a flash. The Giants had a gift first down on the 18. Kink Richards advanced to the 15 and on fourth down Manton dropped back to try a placement.

He missed, but the Bears were palpably offside. So Manton had another chance from a distance no more difficult than the conversion of a point after touchdown. But his boot went wide again and the scoring opportunities were at an end.

6-Man Football Is New Game Getting Popular

If you want to run off a football game and haven't twenty-two players, try six-man football. There are three backs, and three men on the line off scrimmage. Try it if you are interested in the sand-lot species. Try it if you are interested in rural high-school athletics. The backs: quarter, half, full. The line is: center and two ends.

Six-man football is sweeping the Middle West. Introduced as an organized sport only four years ago, it is played this season by perhaps 700 in twenty-one states. Stephen Epler, then coach at Chester (Nebraska), High School, drew up the first rules in 1933; but many an old-timer will recall that he himself played vacant-lot football in his youth without much concern over the fact that there were five, or fifteen, boys on a side.

Chief merits of this new-old game are cheapness and safety. Adequate equipment to protect the bones of high-school lads of 14 or 15 costs money, twice as much for an eleven-man team plus substitutes as for a six-man team and its subs. And six men tackling a runner are far less likely to cause injury than eleven men.

Players 14 and 15 years old, 7 per cent of the total number playing football during the five years 1931 to 1935, suffered 24 per cent of the injuries. During those years there were 146 football deaths.

In general the rules of standard college football are followed, though emphasis is placed on the passing game. It uses an 80-yard field, with 10-minute quarters.

More than half of our high schools fail to go in for football. Almost half of them, indeed, have fewer than 100 pupils. This six-man game of Epler's may serve to spread the sport minus most of the injuries.

Canada Selects 22 Athletes For Empire Games

TORONTO.—A 22-man track and field force has been selected officially to represent Canada at the 1938 British Empire Games in Sydney, Australia. The organizing committee of the Canadian Empire Games Association has placed the stamp of approval on the team.

Regarded as one of the best-balanced teams ever selected in Canada, the team will be assembled at Vancouver in late December to sail for Sydney, staging the third renewal of the games held first at Hamilton, Ont., in 1930.

Every part of the country is represented, with Ontario placing 13 athletes on the team, British Columbia four and the Maritimes, Quebec, Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta one each.

Among the outstanding performers are three 1936 Olympic point-winners. They are Larry O'Connor, great University of Toronto hurdler; Johnny Loaring, University of Western Ontario quarter-miler and 440-yard hurdler, and Bill Fritz of Toronto, 440-yard ace.

Loaring, who placed second in the Olympic 400-meter hurdles final and sixth in the 400-meter flat event, will carry a double burden at Sydney. O'Connor, whose 14.3s. for 120-yard hurdles is the best time ever recorded in the 220-yard sprint.

The slender Fritz, fifth in the Olympic 400-meter final, will start with Loaring and Lack Orr of Vancouver in the quarter-mile flat race. Orr, captain of the State College of Washington track team, qualified for the Empire Games team in the British Columbia zone trials.

Responsibility for selection of the team rested with the track and field committee of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada, headed by Dr. A. S. Lamb of Montreal. The committee named 22 athletes and the Empire Games organizing committee adopted the list as recommended.

In addition, the committee submitted a supplementary list of 12 names. Athletes on this list were selected for the Sydney games on the basis that they must provide their own expenses. The following are the names of the athletes selected:

Jack Brown, Toronto, 100 yards, 220, 440 relay.

Bill Fritz, Toronto, 440 yards, mile relay.

Jack Orr, Vancouver, 440 yards, mile relay.

Max Lenover, Chatham, Ont., 880 yards, mile relay.

Kongo To Fight Takami In Main Event, Dec. 14

Iwao Kongo, hard hitting battler of the Usuda Boxing Club, will take on Kurazo Takami of the Nichibei Boxing Club in the main event over eight rounds of a smoker to be sponsored by the supporters of the Usuda Boxing Club next Tuesday night at the Hibiya Public Hall auditorium.

Kongo, who early this year, was easily the outstanding fighter of the country among the flyweights and bantamweights, was in a slump during the past several months but he is said to be back in the pink again.

Takami is not only experienced but a hard hitter and the bout should be a humdinger.

Matsuo Amino of the Nichibei Club and Yukito Tanaka of the Usuda Club will mix it up in the six round semi-final.

There will be three other six rounders and three four round preliminaries on the card.

Bears Fall From Undefeated In Pro Grid Race

Christian Science Monitor

CHICAGO, Nov. 8—The fuse is sputtering toward what may be the biggest explosion in national professional football history.

Green Bay's Packers, finally under way after a slow start, touched off the fireworks yesterday by handing the vaunted Chicago Bears their first defeat of the season. A glance at the schedule shows the possibilities of a blow-up which, before many weeks have passed, may hurl the Bears and New York Giants from divisional leads they have held so long.

In the western section, the Bears, after being set back 24 to 14 by the Packers, still lead with five victories, one defeat and one tie. Green Bay has won six, lost two and tied none. On Thanksgiving Day, the Bears have to tackle the Detroit Lions at Detroit, and a victory for the Lions probably would hand the Packers the western title and the Packers second straight league crown.

The Detroit Lions go against the Giants at New York next Sunday. The Giants, who won a 17-to-0 victory over Pittsburgh yesterday, now lead the eastern section with five victories, one defeat and one tie, but close behind are the strong, brilliant-passing Washington Redskins, ready to challenge at any moment.

The Packers, playing before 44,977 cash customers at Chicago, largest crowd ever to see a pro game in the Windy City, scored on a pass to Don Hutson, a field goal by Ernie Smith, and a pass interception by Ed Jankowski before the Bears rallied for two touchdowns in the third stanza. Then a pass to Clark Hinkle clinched matters for Green Bay.

The Giants, operating smoothly before 21,447 spectators at the Polo Grounds, kept the Pirates from scoring territory until the final period. Dale Burnett scored on a pass from Ed Danowski; Ward Cuff booted a field goal and Hank Soar dashed 25 on a aerial interception for the winning points.

Detroit, in winning its fifth game, walloped Cleveland 27 to 7. The Young Rams scored first after a 74-yard drive, but the Lions, taking advantage of Ram mistakes, soon evened the count and went on to win handily. It was Cleveland's eighth loss in nine games.

Big Dave Smukler passed and smashed Philadelphia to a 14-to-10 victory over Brooklyn. Smukler scored the first Eagle touchdown and passed to Bill Hewitt for the second, which gave Philadelphia its second victory against seven losses and one total.

tie. Joe Maniaci, former Fordham star, booted a field goal, scored a touchdown on a 71-yard run and converted the extra point to personally account for the Brooklyn

Giants Tumble Tigers By 11-5 In Sixth Game

Behind the effective pitching by Right Hander Mayekawa, the Tokyo Giants bumped off the Osaka Tigers, 11-5, Monday afternoon at the Korakuen stadium for their second victory in the fifth game of their seven-game series for the year's professional baseball championship. The two teams are clashing this afternoon at 2 o'clock in the sixth game. It will be all over if the Tigers win.

The Tigers sent Kageura, who depends on a fast ball, to the plate in an attempt to score their fourth victory but the Giants, having won their first game Sunday at Osaka and back in their home city, banged him for a total of 14 hits to win. They also played errorless ball afield while the Tigers had a bad day, being charged with six miscues.

The Giants chalked up three runs in the first on the strength of two errors and a sizzling hit through third by Mayekawa. Hits by Yamaguchi and Kageura scored two runs for the Tigers in the third but the Giants tallied three times in the sixth to sew up the ball game. Goh's two bagger, Tsutsui's single, and Mizuhara's double down the left field foul line produced the three runs.

Not content with their 6 to 2 lead, the Giants went on right ahead to score five runs in the seventh inning. Ito and Mayekawa got on by hitting safely and Shiraishi advanced them to third and second with a sacrifice. Nagasawa walked to fill the bags. Uchibori rifled a hit through first and short to score Ito. Mayekawa too dashed for the plate on the same hit and registered when Backstop Hirota dropped the ball. Goh's bingle to center brought in Nagasawa. Uchibori was thrown out at the plate on an attempted double steal, Goh going all the way to third on the same play. Tsutsui poled one into the left field bleachers and romped home together with Goh.

The Tigers rallied in the ninth but scored only three runs.

The Mountain of a Single Night

Jorullo, a volcano 1600 feet high in the state of Michoacan, Mexico, rose from the surrounding plain in a single night on Sept. 29, 1759. The perfectly level plain showed no signs of volcanic activity until that September night, when the earth was shaken by a violent earthquake. In the morning, the frightened inhabitants found that a long chasm was the result of that earthquake. Along the line of that chasm six volcanic cones had formed, the tallest of which was 1600 feet high and named Jorullo. The volcano was active until 1860, since when the activity has greatly diminished. There are a number of hot springs in the vicinity, which is covered with lava fields and volcanic rock. The southern slope of the mountain is covered with luxuriant vegetation extending to the summit.

Tigers Capture Pro Ball Title, Beating Giants

The Osaka Tigers sent their ace pitcher, Nishimura, former star moundsman of the Kansai University team, to the mound Tuesday afternoon at the Korakuen stadium intent on beating the Tokyo Giants and thereby putting an end to the special playoff series for the professional baseball championship of the year. And Nishimura came through to win his third game to give his team the series by four games to two. The score was 6 to 3.

The Giants, in a desperate attempt to stop the Tigers, once again assigned Sawamura, speed ball artist, to the mound despite the fact that he had already been beaten in two games.

But he was unable to turn the trick.

Only a sprinkling of fans braved the chilly weather to take in the game. If it is any indication of the following of professional baseball in Japan, the sport has a difficult road ahead to come into its own.

Awards Made

Following the game, awards of the various trophies were made. The silver trophy of the Japan Professional Baseball Federation was presented by Vice President Ando to Captain Matsuki; the Federation pennant to Wakabayashi; the Yomiuri Shimbun trophy to Nishimura; the Czechoslovakian Minister's Cup to Kageura; and the Yomiuri trophy to Captain Mizuhara to the Giants for second honors.

The Tigers virtually won the game right in the first inning by registering four runs. Matsuki walked and romped all the way to third on Fujimura's hit through second. Yamaguchi rolled a hopper to third and while Mizuhara tossed wildly to first, Matsuki checked in for the first run. Kageura sacrificed in front of the plate to advance the two men on the bases to third and second. Fujii fanned for the second out but Igauye singled over third and Fujimura and Yamaguchi tallied. Tanaka singled to left center to send Igauye to third after which he stole second. Nishimura followed with a bingle to right to bring in Igauye. Okada grounded out to third to retire the side.

The Tigers registered another run in the beginning of the fourth when Fujimura scored from third on Fujii's fly to left.

Giants Rally

The Giants did their only scoring in the last half of the fourth. Ito led off with a hit through second and Shiraishi smashed one too hot for Pitcher Nishimura to handle. Mayekawa, batting for Nagasawa, walked to fill the bases. Sawamura came through with a hit to center to bat in Ito and Shiraishi. Uchibori walked to clog the bases again without a man away. Goh flied out to center. Tsutsui did so too and this time Mayekawa scored after the catch. Mizuhara worked Nishimura for a walk and the bases were filled again but Nakajima, the team's home run hitter, grounded out weakly to second.

Nishimura chucked great ball after that disastrous fourth and the Giants never had a chance against him.

California Routs Oregon By 26 To 0 On Muddy Field

N. Y. Times

PORTLAND, Ore., Nov. 13—The University of California's undefeated football team trounced the University of Oregon, 26-to-0, today in their Pacific Coast conference game played on a muddy, rainswept field.

Twenty thousand fans saw the Bears, favorites to represent the Coast in the New Year's Day Rose Bowl game at Pasadera, punch over three touchdowns for 20 points in the second period and add a fourth touchdown in the third.

Anderson, California fullback crashed to a touchdown from the 2-yard line on the second play of the second quarter, after the Bears had marched from their own 48.

Bottari Starts It

Halfback Bottari ran a punt to the Oregon 23 to touch off the second drive. Oregon Halfback Laselle had been forced to kick from behind his own goal line. Anderson slashed through tackle to the 15. Halfback Chapman made it first down on the 3; then circled the Oregon left side for the touchdown.

Tackle Stoll set up the third scoring chance when he recovered an Oregon fumble on the Webfoot 34. Two passes, Bottari to Quarterback Meek, gained to the 5-yard line. Substitute End Sparks caught Bottari's third heave for a touchdown.

In the third period a substitute halfback, Ingram, gained 24 yards and 19 yards on successive runs to place the Bears on the Webfoot 18. Substitute Halfback Thomas, a couple of plays later, went over from the 3-yard line.

Oregon Forced to Kick

The closest Oregon came to a scoring threat was at the start, of the third period when Halfback Nicholson returned the kick-off 40 yards to the Oregon 48. Oregon marched through California's third team to the California 30, but was forced to punt.

Yale Defeats Princeton, 26-0; Frank Scores 4

Chicago Tribune

NEW YORK, Conn., Nov. 13—Clinton E. Frank of Evanston, Ill., captain of Yale's football team and one of the greatest backs who ever carried a ball, wrote his name in indelible letters in the annals of Yale football today as he churned through mud and water for the four touchdowns that beat Princeton, 26 to 0.

Twice in the first period and twice in the third, Frank, steaming with the speed of a destroyer smashed through to touchdowns. After two of these, the extra point was added and Yale had its thirty-third victory in the sixty-one times this game has been played. His touchdown runs were for seventy-seven, four, fifty-one, and seven yards

Yale Off to Quick Start

The crowd of 35,000 hardly had settled in its seats before Yale started. On the first play of the game following the opening kickoff the Elis had scored and in less than a minute of the first period they had 7 points.

Princeton kicked off, apparently not wanting the ball deep in its own territory with the wind and rain to face. The kickoff was a good one, and Charley Ewart was thrown on the Yale 23 yard line. Frank called the first play. It was a run by himself to the left, with a cut back just off the Princeton right tackle. Once out, he cut a shade to his right.

Frank Away All Alone

Frank then was away all alone. Yard after yard, disappeared under his feet and Yale men blocked all over the field. A lone Princeton figure, Tom Mountain, tried to cross at a diagonal to stop him, but never had a chance and Frank crossed the line standing up.

The second touchdown came about ten minutes later when Mountain, smothered on an atttempt to kick the wet ball, was tackled and Yale took it on downs on the Tiger 15 yard line. Yard by yard, Yale worked up to the 4 yard line and from there Frank slapped through his left tackle, with Al Hessberg heading the interference, to the second touchdown. Ed McLean blocked the try for extra point.

Fumble Leads to Last Score

There was no scoring in the second period, but Yale moved on to two more touchdowns in the third period. On the first Frank, taking the ball beyond midfield—the scrimmage line was on Yale's 49 mark—dashed inside his own right tackle, and then out raced every member of the Princeton secondary to cross the goal line once more without an enemy hand being laid on him.

The final touchdown followed a fumble of the sodden ball by Princeton on its 30 yard line. Martin Tiernan, who played much of the game at full back for Princeton, dropped it on a fake kick and Johnny Miller fell on it for Yale. Here Hessberg led a steady offensive that carried through to the 7 yard line. Frank then called his own signal again and, on third down, fought himself free of McLean who had him in the back field, and went on across the goal line from the 5 yard line, again going off right tackle. Lineups:

Princeton (0)		Yale (26)

10,000 Meter Walk Will Not Be Added To Olympic Program

The suggestion received sometime ago from the International Track and Field Federation to add the 10,000-meter walk to the list of events to the 12th Olympic Games here in 1940 has been rejected by the Japan Track and Field Federation, according to announcement this morning.

A dispatch to this effect was sent Tuesday to the Federation's headquarters in Sweden.

Ohio State Beats Illinois, 19 To 0 Using 34 Players

N.Y. Times

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Nov 13—Ohio State's belligerent Buckeyes converted a pass, a penalty and a plunge into three touchdowns today to defeat Illinois, 19 to 0, before a homecoming crowd of 41,921.

The unexpectedly high score was the second largest an Ohio team ever had run up on the battling Illini. It evened the all-time series at twelve victories and two ties each and kept the Buckeyes in the upper bracket of the Big Ten.

Held to three first downs, all on passes, the Illini never were in the game. They gained only 52 yards by rushing and lost 48 by the same route, winding up with a net gain of 4 yards on the ground and 61 through the air.

Ohio Uses 34 Players

Ohio, despite the fact that Coach Francis A. Schmidt used thirty-four players, with a makeshift line-up in the game most of the time, rolled up nine first downs, five by rushing and four on passes, to advance 91 yards by rushing and 153 on passes. The Bucks completed seven of fourteen passes, while the Illini made good on five of sixteen.

Dick Nardi, senior halfback, playing his last game in the Buck Stadium, counted two touchdowns, both on short line plunges, while co-Captain Jim McDonald, shifted to fullback from his usual signal-calling post, scored the other in the first four minutes on a 35-yard pass Nick Wasylik.

Kabealo Intercepts Pass

The second marker case in the third period after Mike Kabealo intercepted an Illinois aerial on his 35 and raced to the rirval 38. From there Wasylik, Kabealo and Nardi plunged for three first downs, Nardi finally going over.

Early in the final stanza Kabealo made a fair catch of Pezzoli's punt on the Illinois 41, and on the next play passed to Phillips for 20 yards. Phillips then tried a pass to Sarkkinen, substitute end. Interference in the end zone was ruled against Illinois, and Ohio took the ball on the one-yard line. Nardi plunged over on the next play.

The line-up:

Futabayama Wins Championship At Osaka Tourney

Grand Champion Futabayama defeated Grand Champion Musashiyama Tuesday afternoon in the sumo (Japanese wrestling) bowl at Osaka to go through the 13-day tournament without a defeat. He set a new record in the sport by going through the last spring and summer seasons in Tokyo in January and May this year respectively with unblemished records, after which he was promoted to a grand champion or yokozuna.

It was a torrid match ond Musashiyama, who had been out of competition for several seasons, put up a great fight against Futabayama. As a matter of fact, he was on the verge of winning on two occasions. When he made one final bid for victory, Futabayama checked in with his herculean strength and took advantage of Musashiyama's open'ng and threw him down. It was one of those great matches in which the two wrestlers succeed in getting such firm holds on each other neither can take the offensive for the risk of being thrown. In such a case, the "mizuiri" or brief breath'ng spell is given to the contestants, after which they are made to resume the same position and then wrestle.

Tamanishiki went through the tourney with three defeats; Minanogawa with four and Musashiyama with four.

Winning the championship honors among the "juryo" or wrestlers below the upper circle was Hokkai who won 11 bouts and lost two.

"BELIEVE IT OR NOT"---by Ripley

The First Woman Governor

Constance de Cezelli was the Joan of Arc of an older age. She was the wife of the governor of Leucate, France in 1490, when an army of Spaniards invaded France and laid siege to the fortress, capturing the governor in open battle. It was then that Constance organized the defense of the city. Her husband's captors called upon her to surrender the fortress under pain of witnessing her husband's public decapitation. She refused, and successfully defended the city, although her husband was executed. Out of gratitude, King Henry IV of France made Mme. Cezelli governor of Leucate for life.

Notre Dame Downs Army, 7-0 By Score In First Quarter

By ALLISON DANZIG

N. Y. Times

NEW YORK, Nov. 14—Midway in the opening period of their rain-drenched football battle in the mud of the Yankee Stadium yesterday, Notre Dame swooped upon an Army fumble and went 13 yards in four plays to score a 7-0 victory that fell far short of reflecting the Midwesterners' margin of superiority.

A bedraggled crowd of 65,000 spectators, braving pneumonia weather with slickers, umbrellas, raincoats, rubbers and blankets, saw Army wage a game but futile fight in quest of its first triumph over the South Bend eleven since 1931.

That the West Pointers were able to hold their opponents to 7 points, registered by Ed Simonich's touchdown and Chuck O'Reilly's placement kick, was a testimonial to the valiance of their defensive stands as well as to the prodigality of Notre Dame in dissipating scoring opportunities galore.

Play to Army's Left

No less than six times after Fullback Simonich had shot almost unmolested through Army's left tackle and guard from the 3-yard mark Elmer Layden's green-shirted huskies were within striking distance of the goal line.

In the second period they went 51 yards to the 6-yard line, where they were set back by a 15-yard penalty for the novel infraction of having their trainer on the field when no time-out had been called, and then lost the ball on Hartline's interception of a pass as the half ended.

In the third quarter, after Notre Dame went 28 yards with the aid of a 15-yard pass from Harry Stevenson to Elmic Arboit, Joe Thesing fumbled on a plunge from the 1-yard line and the ever-vigilant Frank Hartline recovered 2 inches from his goal line. In the fourth period, which found Army fighting frantically deep in its territory, Notre Dame successively reached the 2, 17, 1 and 3 yard marks.

The drive to the 2-yard line, an advance of 61 yards featured by Mario Tonelli's 34-yard dash through the left side of Army's line, was halted on downs, and again the fierce tackling Cadets took the ball on downs at their 17.

Stopped Yard From Goal

After Arboit had intercepted Jim Craig's reverse pass on Army's 23, the Green went to the 1-yard mark, with Arboit tearing off 16 yards on a weak-side play, and there again the Cadets rose in their wrath, Bob Little stopping Tonelli just short of a first down.

Once more Army stood with its back to the wall after another pass by Craig, thrown from his end zone, had gone squarely into the hands of Arboit at the 15. But after Gottsacker had raced around right end to the 3-yard line on first down, the game came to an end and for the sixth and last time Notre Dame was denied a second touchdown to establish more definitely the margin of its supremacy.

Army's honors in the game were all defensive, and to have stopped a team with Notre Dame's speed and power in the back field so many times was by far the finest defensive performance turned in by the Cadets, who presented a revamped forward wall that had Harry Stella playing at guard, Jim Mather and Captain Jim Isbell at the tackles and John Samuel playing 60 minutes at right end as replacement for the injured Riggs Sullivan.

In addition to Samuel, Isbell, Hartline, Charley Long, Jack Ryan and Jim Schwenk, who was playing in the blocking back position and backing up the line, all stood to their guns for the entire game.

Only Sixteen Cadets Play

In all Army used only sixteen men in the wearing game in the mud, to thirty-six for Notre Dame. Coach Elmer Layden of the winners substituted lines and backfields as units and started his heavier shock troops in the backfield to get more power on the muddy field.

Offensively, Captain Gar Davidson's team was never able to get up steam with either its old stuff or a few new wrinkles. The closest it ever got to Notre Dame's goal line was the 31-yard mark, which it reached in the first period by virtue of two passes from Wilson to Schwenk and from Long to Wilson for a total of 31 yards.

In the second quarter the Cadets never got past their 35-yard line. In the third they reached Notre Dame's 41 after Long had intercepted McCarthy's pass and then taken one from Wilson for 32 yards. In the final quarter, which found Craig twice kicking from deep in his end zone and passing once from there, Army was never past its own 17.

The futility of the Army attack is evidenced by the statistics. The Cadets gained only 27 yards by rushing to Notre Dame's 195 and made only three first downs to thirteen.

Notre Dame's 6-2-2-1 defense, the style employed also by Army, had the West Pointers throttled all afternoon. The surprise play that Coach Davidson had ready to spring on the Green turned into a boomerang, leading to the touchdown.

This play was a variation of the Statue of Liberty hoax of ancient vintage. Wilson, standing in punt formation deep in Army territory, went through the motions of kicking and endeavored to slip to ball to Ryan, who had just intercepted Stevenson's pass. Ryan was unable to get his hands squarely on the slippery spheroid, which he was to have passed forward, and it bounded away.

Succeeds on Third Try

Joe Beinor, Notre Dame's outstanding left tackle, recovered at the 13, and there went the ball game. After Arboit had been stopped without a gain, Simonich, running with great driving power from the fullback position, hit the Army line three successive times and went over.

Before the opening quarter ended another Army fumble had damaging results. After the cadets had passed their way to Notre Dame's 31-yard mark, Samuel fumbled on an end-around play, and again it was the alert, powerful Beinor who recovered, to squelch the only threat the West Pointers offered in the game.

The Japan Fencing Association's request for admittance into the International Fencing Federation has been approved by the latter, according to word received here.

The Association will be formally voted in at the Federation's next meeting to be held at Brussels from March 25 to 27.

Word has been received here that Torao Mori, a committeeman of the Japan Fencing Association, recently won the championship at the Southern Pacific senior fencing championships held at Los Angeles under the auspices of the Los Angeles Athletic Club.

Wisconsin Battles Purdue To Tie, 7-7

N. Y. Times

MADISON, Wis., Nov. 13—Wisconsin's last chance of sharing in the Western Conference football championship was lost today in a 7-7 tie with Purdue.

A crowd of 23,000, held below expectations by unfavorable weather, watched the Boilermakers and the Badgers concentrate their scoring thrusts in the second period and then seesaw back and forth in a wide-open style of play.

Purdue outplayed its rival on the ground, piling up twelve first downs to ten, but Wisconsin repeatedly pulled itself out of tight spots with passes. The Badgers tossed twenty aerials, gaining 102 yards on nine completed, while Purdue tried fifteen, completed three and gained ninety-one yards through the air.

Dorsch, tackle, tallied for Wisconsin easily in the second period when he dropped on a fumble by Cecil Isbell in the end zone. Another tackle, Bob Eckl, kicked the extra point. In the fourth period Eckl missed a field goal try from the 32.

Cecil Isbell helped even the score in the same period when he threw a 45-yard pass to James Zachary, right end, on the Wisconsin 25 and Zachary romped to a touchdown. Isbell kicked the extra point.

The line-up:

Late Drive Wins For Alabama, 7-0 Over Georgia Tech

N.Y. Times

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Nov. 13—The Crimson Tide of Alabama, outplayed most of the way by Georgia Tech, overhauled the Engineers, 7 to 0, today in a whirlwind finish before close to 26,000 spectators.

The closely won decision, coming on a 43-yard drive with a little more than four minutes to play remaining, left only one Thanksgiving Day encounter with Vanderbilt between Alabama and the Southeastern Conference championship.

Georgia Tech, playing an inspired battle under the leadership of Captain Fletcher Sims, twice threatened the Crimson goal in the second period, once on a drive to the 1-foot line where many believed the Jackets scored despite an adverse ruling.

Kilgrow Runs 28 Yards

Captain Joe Kilgrow set the stage for Alabama's winning touchdown after the Tide had advanced to the Georgia Tech 31. The Alabama field general went through tackle, reversed the field and raced 28 yards before being run out of bounds on the 3-yard stripe by Dutch Konemann. Line thrusts netted 1 yard, but on fourth down Kilgrow rifled a pass over center to Tut Warren who caught it barely a yard over the goal.

Aided by the wonderful place punting of Sims, Georgia Tech had the upper hand throughout the first three periods. Only once in that time did the Tide threaten and then it was checked at the 17.

Tech Foiled Twice

In its most serious threat, starting at its 47, Georgia Tech drove to the goal. Sims tossed a 30-yard pass to Konemarn, who made a fine catch at the Tide 22. Then the Tech captain heaved a pass to Jones, who stumbled and fell right on the goal.

It looked as if he had scored, but the officials ruled he touched the ground at the one-foot line. Sims hit center and was across, but a penalty cost the Engineers five yards and on the next play Charley Holm intercepted a pass.

The line-up:

Alabama (7)		Georgia Tech (0)

Minnesota Beats Northwestern, 7-0 Before 63,000

N.Y. Times

MINNEAPOLIS, Nov. 13—A Northwestern forward pass that backfired for a 53-yard Minnesota gain set the stage for a 7-to-0 Golden Gopher victory today, putting the latter team within one game of undisputed possession of the 1937 Big Ten title. A crowd of 63,000 saw the battle.

With the contest less than five minutes old, Captain Ray King grabbed a Wildcat forward on his own 30 and raced down the field to the Northwestern 17.

Then the deadly Van Every-to-King passing combination produced the only score in a fiercely fought battle that found Minnesota dominating the play in all except a few instances.

The only outfit undefeated in Western Conference play, the Golden Gophers can clinch the championship by beating Wisconsin in the season's finale here next Saturday.

Heap's Pass Goes Astray

The spectacular play that sent Minnesota on its victory drive came after Northwestern had smashed directly into Minnesota territory after the opening kick-off. With the ball on the Gophers' 40, Don Heap shot a snappy forward diagonally across the field, intended for Swishes. Instead, the ball dropped into a cluster of three Minnesota men.

On fourth down Harold Van Every, carrying on for the injured Andy Uram, fired a short pass from the 17-yard line over the line of scrimmage. Captain King speared the ball on the 4-yard line and charged over to score. Horace Zell, Negro guard, converted.

Revenge Last Year's Defeat

The Golden Gophers took revenge for that 6-to-0 loss at Northwestern last Fall when the Wildcats snapped a twenty-one game winning streak and became the first team to defeat the Golden Gophers in twenty-eight games.

Minnesota had a slight edge in first downs and a rather decisive margin in yards gained. The Wildcat attack in the second half was hampered by the absence of Bob Swisher, who left the game in the third period with a leg injury. Minnesota's brilliant right halfback, Wilbur Moore, had to be relieved in the fourth because of a recurrence of rib bruises.

The line-up:

Black Beach

If you were to take anthracite coal and pulverize it, you would get material no blacker than the sand of Kalapana Beach on the island of Hawaii. Yet it is as clean and free of dirt as the beach of Waikiki. The black beach and sand is limited to a rather small area where the black lava flows from the volcanoes. Kilauea and Mauna Kea have burned their fiery paths down to the seashore where the lapping surf disintegrates the lava.

Osaka To Have New Pro Nine By Next Spring

The third professional baseball team by a railway transportation corporation will be organized in Osaka.

The latest is the Naukai Railway company which operates between Osaka and Wakayama City. The other two are the Osaka Hankyus by the Hankyu line and the Osaka Tigers, who recently defeated the Tokyo Giants in a special playoff series for this year's championship of the Hanshin line.

Kazuo Takasu, of the sports staff of the Tokyo Nichi Nichi and one of the best third baseman ever to play for Keio in the Tokyo Six University League, has been appointed as coach.

Takasu expects to complete organization of the team by next spring. A number of star players have already promised to sign, it is said.

The club's own grounds will be built at Mozu on the company's line.

Baylor Toppled By So. Methodist

N.Y. Times

DALLAS, Nov. 13—The old time Southern Methodist aerial circus, revived for a few minutes by a sophomore, made the fall of mighty Baylor complete today in a 13-7 triumph.

Baldish, freckled George Ewing, a sophomore they call "Paddle Foot," calmly dropped two long touchdown passes into a bewildered Baylor secondary—one in the first period and the other in the fourth.

The Mustangs trailed for a few brief minutes after Bullet Bill Patterson fired a 40-yard touchdown pass to end Frank Huessner forty-five seconds before the half. But they were good for another surge that brought victory.

Tosses 27 Passes

Patterson tossed twenty-seven passes, but vicious rushing by Methodist ends and jam-up defending by the secondary held completions to nine and gains that failed to penetrate the danger zone.

A sudden break after a kick exchange gave the Methodists their first scoring opportunity. Patterson sent a long spiral downfield from the Baylor 30, but officials called an unnecessary roughness penalty and the Mustangs took the ball over on the Baylor 31.

Ewing passed 16 yards to Big Bill Dewell, end, and on the next play spotted Pete Acker, the other end tearing across the goal line. He laid it right on his finger tips for the score. Charlie Sprague missed the extra point try.

Baylor Takes Lead

On the Methodist 40, after a kick exchange seconds before the end of the second period, Patterson faded back, threw a looping aerial that Huessner snatched on the 2 and carried across. Gernand's kick shoved Baylor ahead.

The tackle smashes of Bob Belville, bulky Methodist fullback, and a 20-yard heave that Ewing completed to Nolan-Johnson on the Baylor 37 put the Mustangs in position for Ewing on the first play in the fourth to send a bullet toss behind the goal line that Jackson speared for a touchdown. Belville's kick for the extra point ended the scoring.

In the fourth period both elevens marched to the 7-yard stripes only to be halted.

Tsuruoka To Lead Hosei Ball Team

Kazuto Tsuruoka, one of the most reliable third basemen in the Tokyo Six University Baseball league, has been elected captain, of the Hosei nine for the spring and fall seasons next year, according to announcement Thursday night.

From the time he was a player of the famous Hiroshima Commercial team of the country's middle schools circuit, Tsuruoka has been giving a quiet but creditable performance at the hot corner. And then he is a good hitter in the pinches. He entered Hosei in 1933.

Sanichi Minemoto was selected the team's manager.

Pitcher Masao Adachi will lead Rikkyo's ball team next year, having been elected captain this week. Fujio Tamiya was named manager.

Adachi hails from Kyushu Gakuin and was originally a catcher but has shifted to the mound in recent years.

Kansas Defeated In Upset, 7 To 0

N.Y. Times

LAWRENCE, Kan., Nov. 13—The Kansas football bubble, which week by week had grown glossier with unexpected success, burst with a bang heard all over the Big Six today, punctured by a 7-to-0 defeat handed it by Kansas State.

A crowd of 19,000 amazed spectators saw the team that beat Iowa State and Oklahoma and tied mighty Nebraska pushed back all afternoon.

So definitely was Kansas outplayed it never had the ball in Kansas State territory. It registered only two first downs and gained a net of thirty-eight yards from scrimmage.

Late in the second period Max Replogle, Kansas back, punted out on the Kansas State 26, and the march was on. Paul Fagler scampered for 10. Bob Riggs ripped through for 25, and Howard Cleveland tossed 24 yards to Ray Ellis on the Kansas 7. Briggs hit center for three and then Cleveland skirted right end to cross the goal line. Jim Brock kicked the extra point.

Kansas State revealed a slashing offensive game and an air-tight defense to knock the Jayhawkers from the Big Six lead.

The upset left Nebraska holding a clear lead for the crown. Oklahoma won from Missouri, 7—0, and still has an outside chance to figure in the championship award.

Hammond To Leave Pro Cricket For Amateur Game

BRISTOL, Eng., Nov. 10—Walter Hammond, England's greatest all-round cricketer of modern times, is leaving professional ranks and next season will play as an amateur for Gloucestershire. It is thought likely that Hammond will be seriously considered as England's captain against Australia next year.

"I am relinquishing professional cricket because I am now 34 and must consider the future," said Hammond who has been made director of a London tire company. Gloucestershire County Cricket Club has released the famous star from a professional contract that expires in 1939. There is no bar to professional cricketers resuming amateur status.

Born at Dover the son of a soldier, Hammond first stood up to the wickets in Malta, with the stumps chalked on a gun shed. His cricketing ability was noticed when he was at school in Cirencester, England, and he made his first appearance in first-class competition for Gloucestershire in 1920.

Kent, his native county, objected successfully to his qualification and it was not until 1923 that he appeared regularly for Gloucestershire. Since then he has represented England against Australia, South Africa, New Zealand and India.

Holder of many cricket records Hammond has scored more than 1000 runs in each season except 1926 when he was unable to play. In topping the averages in 1933 with 3233 runs, he made 1060 in August for an average of 106. On his third trip to Australia he became the first Englishman to score four successive centuries in first-class matches in the commonwealth.

Playing against New Zealand at Auckland in 1933 he made 336 not out, the highest score of his career. On two other occasions he has made more than 300 runs in a single innings.

Hammond is also known as a magnificent slip fielder and at times a deadly medium-paced bowler. His best feat was against Worcestershire at Cheltenham in 1928 when he captured 9 wickets for 23 runs in 10 overs.

Takami To Box Kongo On Tuesday

The eight round main event between Iwao Kongo of the Usuda Boxing Club and Kurazo Takami of the Nichibei Boxing Club next Tuesday night at the Hibiya Public Hall auditorium will go on as scheduled.

Wednesday night, it was announced by the Nichibei Boxing Club that Kintaro Usuda, manager of the Usuda Boxing Club, the sponsors of the smoker, had not obtained Takami's personal approval to fight but his mother's, and that Takami had refused to go on.

Now comes the announcement that the same Takami will after all mix it up with Kongo next Tuesday night, after efforts made by Usuda Thursday.

In connection with Takami's decision to fight, his mother had the following to say Thursday night, according to Domei:

"Kurazo will enter army service next spring and as a mother, I want to see that he leaves his home under the most appropriate circumstances. We have been assisted considerably by Mr. Yamanaka, president of the Nichibei Boxing Club, but since last February when Kurazo failed to get his purse, he has obtained the right to fight as a free lancer. I do not want to see my boy made a cripple in the ring fighting without receiving his money. From Mr. Usuda, we have already received his purse money in advance. Kurazo himself wants to appear in the ring and I will make him do so."

Tigers Nose Out Senators, 2 To 1 In 11-Inning Tilt

The Tokyo Senators put up a good fight against the Osaka Tigers in the opening games of the special elimination series of Japan's professional baseball teams Thursday afternoon at the Nishinomiya stadium near Osaka but were nosed out 2 to 1 in an 11-inning nip and tuck game.

The series is being sponsored by the Tokyo Nichi Nichi to raise funds for comfort kits to the soldiers on the China fronts.

Karita Stars

The good pitching by Right Hander Noguchi, who yielded nine hits, and the scintillating play afield by Second Baseman Karita were largely responsible for the fine play of the Senators.

Karita, who but for a little better sticking would have been voted the most valuable player in the recently ended autumn season of the professional league instead of Backstop Bucky Harris of the Eagles, handled seven assists without an error.

A bit of luck for the Tigers proved to be the turning factor of the game. Third Baseman Iguaye started the eleventh with a hit and went to second on Monzen's sacrifice. Misonou walked. Okada lifted a fly to left field which looked like an easy putout but Outfielder Moriguchi lost the ball in the sun and Iguaye scored the winning run.

The Tigers broke into the scoring column first in the fourth inning when Noguchi allowed two hits after one out and an attempt to pull off a doubleplay on a grounder by Okada failed on Shortstop Imaoka's error.

Misonou, the Tigers pitcher, did not appear to have much stuff on his ball but he managed to check the Seantors to eight hits, allowing the latter only one run which came in the seventh inning.

Lions Win

Behind the airtight pitching of Kikuyo, who yielded but three hits, the Lions blanked the Dolfins, 8-0, in the other game of the day. The Lions also had a good day at bat by pummelling the offerings of Furutani and Suzuki for 12 blows. The two other first round games were scheduled to be played this afternoon as follows: Nagoya versus Eagles and Hankyu versus Giants.

Ellsworth Vines Quite A Golfer

PASADENA, Calif., Nov. 12—Now that Ellsworth Vines, world professional tennis champion, has shot 67 in tournament golf, he feels qualified to tell the world you have to keep your head up on the court and down on the fairway.

After Vines won his second world amateur net title in 1935 he startled the sports world by taking up golf seriously. His 110 dubbing strokes fell to 70 by 1936.

But his real display came in the Pasadena Amateur tournament this week when he shot a 69 and then a 67 on a par 71 course before being eliminated.

"The real difference between golf and tennis," he said today, "is, that you have to keep your head up on the court and down on the fairway.

"That's been my chief trouble, I'm used to hitting a moving ball."

It may be heresy, but Vines says golf is a greater test than tennis.

"Tennis is so much faster that points go by quickly," he said, "and there are only three or four vital points in a set."

Now that Vines is "up" on his golf game, he says, "I must begin building my net game for the winter tour. Tennis still is my bread and butter."

Hatafuku Helps Eagles To Beat Nagoya By 9-0

With burly Hatafuku yielding but three hits, the Eagles ran roughshod over the Nagoya nine, 9-0, while the Giants tumbled the Hankyu ball tossers, 8-2, in the other two games of the opening round of the special series sponsored by the Osaka Mainichi Friday afternoon at the Nishinomiya stadium near Osaka.

Meeting in the semi-finals this afternoon were the Tigers and the Lions in the first game at noon and the Eagles and the Giants in the second tilt at 2 o'clock.

The Eagles hit the ball hard and nicked two Nagoya pitchers, Matsuo and Morii for eight hits, one of them a homer by First Baseman Kojima. He also lashed out a triple.

Sawamura pitched for the Giants and was never in trouble against the Hankyu combination. He allowed seven scattered hits.

Keio Is Favored To Top Kyoto 'U' At Soccer Sunday

Keio University is favored to beat Kyoto Imperial Saturday afternoon at the Meiji Shrine stadium in a game scheduled for the national collegiate soccer championship. The kick-off is scheduled for 2 o'clock.

Captain Mori and 16 members of the Kyoto soccerites arrived by the 7:45 a.m. train Friday and had a workout for one hour the same afternoon at the Meiji Shrine stadium. This afternoon, they will have their final practise at the Tokyo Imperial University grounds.

The line-ups were announced today as follows:

Keio: forward—Inomata, Obata, Ninomiya, Harima, Shinozaki; halfbacks—Matsumoto, Ishikawa, Kasahara; fullbacks—Miyakawa and Kato; goalie—Tsuda.

Kyoto Imperial: forwards—Ichiyama, Ono, Yamanaka, Mori, Ito; halfbacks—Masaiye, Osaki, Yasuhara; fullbacks—Manabe and Inoue; goalie—Okamoto.

As a supposedly invincible University of California team was held scoreless by the University of Washington for the Far West's major football upset. Here grim-visaged Cruver (73), Washington back, helps to prevent Anderson, of California, from making more than three yards through the line.

Nagai Plans Trip To The Hokkaido To Inspect Winter Games' Site

Matsuzo Nagai, secretary general of the Olympic Organizing Committee, will go to the Hokkaido early next spring to solicit local support for the organization of the Fifth Olympic Winter Games as well as to inspect the preparation for the facilities, according to announcement this morning.

Word was given him Friday by Dr. Seishichi Ono, vice president of the Japan Skiing Federation, who had arrived from Sapporo the same day, that the financial circles in the Hokkaido have indicated their intention to cooperate. He also said that at the farewell party given him at Sapporo, the latter's Mayor outlined the city's aggressive attitude in putting the games over.

Dr. Ono will leave next week en route to Helsinki where he will be Japan's delegate at the International Ski Federation meeting.

Werner Klingberg, technical adviser to the Olympic Organizing Committee, gave a 13-minute talk over short radio via JOAK Friday morning at 5:15 o'clock (Berlin time, 9 p.m. December 9) explaining that the 12th Olympic Games in 1940 will go on as scheduled in Tokyo, despite rumors to the contrary particularly in connection with the Sino-Japanese hostilities. It was the first of its kind to Europe and the second such address since the one by William Garland, American member of the International Olympic Committee and chairman of the 1932 Olympic Organizing Committee at Los Angeles, to listeners in North America and Hawaii.

Enthusiasm is high not only among the Japanese athletes but officials of the organization of the 1940 Games, an event for which they have prepared since 1932, Mr. Klingberg said.

The Japanese have no intention of abandoning the Games, he pointed out.

Bucknell Holds Temple To 0-0 Tie

N. Y. Times

LEWISBURG, Pa., Nov. 13.—In a game that saw both teams fumble away apparent touchdowns, Bucknell ended its football season today by holding a favored Temple University eleven to a scoreless tie before a crowd of 6,000.

The game, played in wretched weather conditions after a twenty-four-hour rain, was the fifth tie in the eleven-game series between the Bisons and the Owls and the fourth scoreless deadlock of the year for Temple.

Bucknell's golden opportunity came late in the third period when Baker, back to kick, fumbled on fourth down, giving the Bisons the ball on Temple's 1-yard line.

Nichols Recovers Ball

Two line bucks by Quick gained only a foot and on the next play Lou Tomasetti fumbled when tackled on the goal line. Nichols recovered for Temple in the end zone for a touchback.

Temple's chance came in the closing minutes after a 29-yard punt return by Vince Renzo started a march that carried to the Bucknell 15 where Chris Pappas fumbled and Conti recovered for Bucknell.

On the first play, however, Funair, Bucknell substitute, fumbled and Kolman recovered for Temple on the Bucknell 9, Mike Lukac ran off tackle to the goal line, but fumbled as he was going over and an unidentified Bucknell player recovered in the end zone for a touchback.

Renzo Goes 29 Yards

Temple dominated play in the first period, reaching the Bucknell 32, but after that, Bucknell, aided by Bill Lane's kicking, kept Temple bottled up in its own territory until Renzo's 29-yard punt return in the last quarter.

Temple made six first downs to one and outrushed Bucknell, gaining a net of 109 yards to 29.

Bucknell's record for its first season under its new coach, Al Humphreys, is three victories, three defeats and two ties.

C. E. Hare Advises Canada Challenge In European Zone

MONTREAL, Nov. 15 (Canadian Press)—Charles Edgar Hare, British tennis star, believes Canada would profit more by challenging in the European zone of Davis Cup play, instead of in the North American zone.

Confidence Canadians would gain in surviving early rounds in Europe would help greatly, said the 22-year-old Briton, who stopped off here en route to England after an extended visit in the United States.

Warner Proposes Change In Rules Against Defense

NEW YORK, Nov. 9—Pop Warner, the master offensive strategist of college football, is ready for a rules committee move that will strip the defense of the edge he believes it holds over the attack in the modern game.

When the veteran coach of Temple got up at the meeting of the Football Writers Association yesterday and pleaded for rules changes to eliminate scoreless ties and raise scoring figures, the coaches and writers were listening to a man who has been a leader in building football attacks.

Since the turn of the century Pop has been an outstanding football figure; coach of the fabulous Jim Thorpe and Ernie Nevers, father of the Warner double wingback (or, as Pop calls it, two wingback) system, originator of a dozen plays that have stood the test of time.

"The defense has advanced this year to a much greater extent than the offense," said Warner. "This is due not only to the more general use of a five-man defensive line but to the many variations which an offensive team is up against."

The thought that his own Temple team has played three scoreless ties probably was in Warner's mind when he offered three suggestions to help the offense: (1) Legislation to compel the defense to keep six men on the line of scrimmage; (2) Adoption of the professional rule permitting forward passing from any point behind the scrimmage line (instead of the present five-yard limit); and (3) Restore the goal posts to the goal line.

Lou Little, Columbia coach and chairman of the rules committee of the American Football Coaches' Association, backed up Warner's views, and suggested a solution of current offensive problems: The abandonment of the huddle system of signal calling in favor of the old fashioned quarterback method.

"The offense could then vary its strategy to take advantage of the defensive lineup," Little pointed out. "But if it isn't effective, there's not much doubt the coaches will want remedial legislation."

Field Goal Wins For Indiana, 3-0 Over Iowa Team

N.Y. Times

IOWA CITY, Iowa, Nov. 13—George Miller, Indiana's burly center, whose greatest football delight is to kick a field goal, thoroughly enjoyed himself today as he did his favorite act from the 12-yard line to give the Hossiers a 3-to-0 victory over a fighting Iowa team.

Less than 10,000 shivering spectators, most of them faithful Iowans hoping for the Hawkeyes' first Big Ten victory, sat in silence as Miller stepped back early in the fourth quarter and booted the ball directly between the goal posts.

Hoosiers Outplayed

Indiana, outplayed by a surprisingly revived Iowa team for three quarters, craftily protected its small margin during the remainder of the fourth period. The Hoosiers took few chances with their famed air attack and left it to husky Corby Davis, the Indiana fullback, to carry them out of danger with his low, booming punts into the wind.

With the brilliant Nile Kinnick, sophomore quarterback, doing his triple-threat performances in a slashing manner, the Hawkeyes smashed over the ground and through the air deep into Hoosier territory on several occasions.

Twelve First Downs for Iowa

The final spark, however, never came to ignite an Iowa touchdown drive. The Hawks reached the Hoosier 15 as the half-time gun sounded. Undiscouraged, they roared back in the third period. Kinnick shot a long pass to Bill Gallagher, who fell out of bounds on the Indiana 13.

The Hoosiers held, however, and the wind swept Gallagher's placekick from the 17 wide of the goal posts.

Iowa made twelve first downs to five for the Hoosiers. The Hawkeyes got 152 yards by rushing while Indiana totaled only 106. The losers also piled up 114 yards by passing compared to 12 for Indiana.

Governor's Mansion

"Wickland," the Home of Three Governors, in Bardstown, Kentucky, is reputed to be the only home in the United States where three governors from one family came from one home.

Governor Charles Anderson Wickliffe built the house. His son, Robert, was born and reared there, and later became governor of Louisiana. Governor Charles Wickliffe's daughter married Colonel Beckham, and their son, J. C. Beckham, was born and grew up at Wickland. The latter was governor of Kentucky for two terms, and the last owner of the house which is considered one of the most perfect Georgian homes ever built.

Keio Tops Kyoto Imperial By 3-0 To Win Soccer Title

Keio University's soccer team defeated Kyoto Imperial University, 3 goals to nil, Sunday afternoon at the Meiji Shrine stadium to win this year's contest between the Kanto and Kansai champions, symbolical of the national collegiate championship.

It was Keio's second title, having won it for the first time in 1933 by a 2 to 1 victory over Kyoto Imperial. The games to date since the innovation of this inter-sectional competition follow:

1929—Tokyo Imperial beat Kwansei Gakuin, 3-2.
1930—Tokyo Imperial beat Kyoto Imperial, 2-1.
1931—Tokyo Imperial tied Kwansei Gakuin, 2-2.
1932—Keio beat Kyoto Imperial, 2-1.
1933—Waseda beat Kyoto Imperial, 5-2.
1934—Waseda beat Kyoto Imperial, 6-0.
1935—Waseda beat Kwansei Gakuin, 12-2.
1936—Waseda beat Kobe Commercial, 3-2.

Weather conditions were perfect with a nice sun shining but only 5,000 fans turned out to witness the battle, which was easily the outstanding contest of the season in Tokyo.

Hard Fought Game

Keio entered the fray a heavy favorite but the Kyoto Imperial put up a gallant fight and it was anybody's game up to late in the second half when Keio's forwards managed to score two goals to clinch victory.

But it was Keio that was pressing throughout the greater part of the tilt, especially in the first half. With Olympic player Ninomiya at center forward leading the offensive, Keio's yellow jerseyed forward kept the ball continuously in Kyoto Imperial territory. It was only the superb defense of the Kyoto Imperial backs, particularly that of Goalie Okamoto, that checked Keio to one goal in the first half. This came after 32 minutes of play when the speedy Ninomiya booted one into the goal from a difficult angle.

That play was mostly in Kyoto Imperial territory in the first half can be seen from the statistics—Keio had eight corner kicks as against two of Kyoto Imperial, and the latter's goalie kicked the ball out of danger on 12 occasions as compared with six by Keio's.

Kyoto's only chance for a score in the first half came just before the whistle when on a free kick from the Keio 35 yard line, Fullback Inouye stopped the ball and shot for goal but he booted it over the goal.

The visitors showed great improvement after play was resumed for the second half. Their passing was better than in the first half and they kept the ball in Keio territory consistently for the first time, pressing on several occasions. This was a contradiction of pre-game forecasts and it seemed as if the visitors from Kyoto might not only deadlock the count but even go so far as turning the tables over the Keio eleven.

The tide finally reverted into Keio's favor when on a scintillating passing attack from midfield, Ninomiya split the center of the goal in 26 minutes. This spurred on the Keio soccerites and they kept pressing. Kyoto Imperial's backs and Goalie Okamoto now and then succeeded in booting the ball out to midfield but there were no teammates to work the ball down into Keio territory, and the consequence was that the speedy Keio forwards had the ball back into scoring zone and pressing hard.

Keio Clinches Game

Keio salted the game away in 39 minutes when Inomata scored from close range on a scrimmage in front of the goal following a corner kick.

During the next six minutes of play, the visitors fought hard but found the superior Keio players keeping them busy to prevent another score.

The line-ups were:

Keio: Forward: Inomata, Obata, Ninomiya, Harima and Shinozaki. Halfback: Matsumoto, Ishikawa and Kasahara. Fullback: Miyakawa and Kato. Goalkeeper: Tsuda.

Kyoto: Forward: Ichiyama, Ono, Yamanaka, Mori and Ito. Halfback: Masaiye, Osaki and Yasuhara. Fullback: Yasui and Inoue. Goalkeeper: Okamoto.

Shodai Defeats YCAC At Hockey By 5 To 0

With Oikawa and Ito, who went to the Olympic Games at Berlin last year, leading the attack, the Shodai stick wielders defeated the Y.C. and A.C. hockey team by 5 goals to nil Sunday afternoon at the club grounds at Negishi.

The score at half time was 2 to 0.

The Y.C. and A.C. second team took the measure of the Ikko eleven by 4 goals to 2, leading at half time by 3 to 1.

Ducky Medwick Wins Award In National League

Christian Science Monitor

NEW YORK, Nov. 10—In well-deserved recognition of baseball's classiest clouting sweep since the palmy days of Ty Cobb, the Baseball Writers' Association selected Ducky Medwick as the most valuable player in the National League for 1937.

Although they "split the ballot" and gave Gabby Hartnett of the Cubs more first-place nominations than the Cardinal clouter, the committee of eight writers—one from each city in the league—more than made up for it in Medwick votes for second and third place, which counted heavily in the final point tabulation.

As a result, the No. 1 Gas House Gangster won the award, and the accompanying sporting news trophy, by two points, 70 to 67 for Gabby.

King Carl Hubbell, recipient of the award last year, wound up in third place with 52 points. Surprise of the balloting was the high total cast for the sensational "old man" rookie pitching pair of the Boston Bees, Jim Turner and Lou Fette, who were picked for fourth and fifth, respectively, with 30 and 29 points.

For Medwick the award topped off a year in which he not only achieved his long-desired goal, the batting championship, but cleaned up in just about every other important individual offensive department as well. His classic performance precipitated the season's hottest argument as to whether he or Joe Di Maggio of the Yankees is the best all-round outfielder in the game today.

He batted for 400 for most of the season, then wound up with .374 after a late-season slump. He was the league champion in runs, with 111; hits, with 237; runs batted in, with 154; doubles, with 57, and tied with Mel Ott of the Giants for the home-run crown, with 3. Not since Cobb was taking things apart in his heyday has the game seen anything like it.

With each of the eight voting experts casting a ballot for 10 choices in the order he wanted them selected, Medwick drew two first-place nominations; Hartnett three. Each was selected twice on a second-place ballot. But Medwick collected four third-place mentions, while the rest of Hartnett's votes were strung out, one each for third, fourth and sixth.

A first-place vote counted 10 points, second, 9; third, 8, and so on. In addition to Medwick and Hartnett, first-place nominations were cast for three others, Hubbell, Shortstop Dick Bartell and Catcher Harry Danning, all members of the New York Giants' family.

Third member of the Cardinal cast to win the award since the baseball writers took over the selection in 1931, Joseph Michael Medwick follows Manager Frankie Frisch (1931) and Pitcher Dizzy Dean (1934) into this particular niche of baseball's hall of fame. He has been a powerhouse among National League batsmen ever since he broke in with the Cardinals in 1932, after seasoning at Scottdale in the Mid-Atlantic League and Houston of the Texas League.

His six-year batting average is just under the .350 mark. He has always been at or near the top in slugging and timely hitting, and annually, prior to this year, threatened the batting championship. In his one world series, 1934, he hit for .379. The complete list of candidates, by votes:

Davis Cuppers In '38 To Visit Italy, Germany

Japan's Davis Cup team next year will visit Italy and Germany, signatories of the tripartite Anti-Comintern pacts with Japan, it was decided at the meeting of the Japan Lawn Tennis Association Sunday morning. Directors of the organization attended from all parts of the country.

The trip to the two countries will be made either before or after the Davis Cup matches. It is interesting to note in this connection that members of the German Davis Cup team, Baron Gottfried von Cramm and Henner Henkel, as well as Miss Mary Luise Horn, Germany's No. 1 woman player, recently competed in Japan and took with them when they left the national men's singles and doubles and the woman's singles championships.

Whether the team will compete in the American zone, which it did this year for the first time in many years, or in the European zone, will be decided at the directors' next meeting.

The matter of selection of the Davis Cup players was also left over to the next meeting.

It was tentatively decided to invite a number of world famous players to this country for exhibition matches next autumn.

This year's ranking will be announced at the directors' meeting on January 10.

Hinkle Sets Pace In Scoring Among Pro Footballers

N.Y. Times

NEW YORK, Nov. 4—Individual scoring and pass receiving records in the National Football league may be destined for shattering by the time the professional season, moving into its final month, has ended, it was revealed yesterday.

There are five players very much in the record-breaking race. Clarke Hinkle, Green Bay, leads the scorers with 46 points, being closely followed by Dutch Clark of Detroit, with 45. Among the pass receivers, Gaynell Tinsley, first year Cardinal, is tops, having 28 catches for 503 yards and 24 points. He is being crowded by Charlie Malone of the Redskins and Don Hutson of the Packers, each with 21 catches.

Tinsley Close to Record

Tinsley needs seven more catches and a gain of 27 yards to break two league marks set up last year by Buston. With Tinsley idle for the next two weeks, Hutson has a chance to tie or pass him.

The league scoring record of 75 points, which Hinkle and Clark can break, was made by Jack Manders, Chicago Bears, in 1934.

In ground gaining, Cliff Battles, Washington, is ahead with 507 yards, followed by George Grosvenor, Cardinals, 458, and Hinkle, 361.

Bob Monnett, Green Bay, tops the forward passers with an efficiency of 52 per cent but Slingin' Sammy Baugh of the Redskins, with 47 per cent, has completed thirty additional passes for 298 more yards than Monnett.

Tokyo Giants Capture Flag In Osaka Tourney

Abetted by the airtight pitching of Eiichi Sawamura, who yielded but four hits, the Tokyo Giants blanked the Lions, 4-0, Sunday afternoon at the Nishinomiya stadium, near Osaka, to win the elimination tournament of professional baseball teams sponsored by the Osaka Mainichi to raise funds for the comfort of Japanese soldiers on the China fronts.

The Giants tallied two times in the second frame and scored another brace of runs in the fifth. They touched Kikuya for six hits.

A.A.U. Defers Final Action On Metric System

Christian Science Monitor

BOSTON, Nov. 15—Committee meetings were the chief business Saturday at the annual convention of the Amateur Athletic Union of the United States at the Copley-Plaza Hotel, and one of the most important actions taken by one of these bodies was in regard to the amateur status of an athlete. The legislative committee voted that the clause which says that an athlete making "public announcement of determination to turn professional should be disbarred" be stricken out. In its place was put the following clause disbarring an amateur on "solicitation of employment for gain of his athletic services."

Retention of the metric system and the use of starting blocks were among the important matters considered by the track and field committee. The use of starting blocks will, of course, be subject to approval by the International Amateur Athletic Federation and it is expected that this approval will be given at its next meeting.

The records committee announced that it had approved over 130 new marks. The most outstanding among them was the 100-meter record of 10.2., which was made by Jesse Owens at the National Collegiate Athletic Association championship meet at Chicago, June 20, 1936. This had not been previously passed because it was claimed the track was short; but later evidence proved that it was the measuring tape that was short. This record will now go to the IAAF for approval as a new world record.

Sites for the 1938 championship events were selected as follows:

National senior indoor track and field meet, to be held in Madison Square Garden in February, by the N. A. A. U.

Women's basketball championship—Missouri Valley Association.

National A. A. U. long-distance running dates—15 kilometers, Norwich, Conn., Memorial Day; 20 kilometers, Amsterdam, N. Y., probably held in Yonkers, N. Y. after Boston marathon; national junior cross country run, Ozark Association, St. Louis, Mo.

National senior men's swimming championships, Ohio State Association, indoor; national senior men's swimming championships, outdoor, Indiana-Kentucky Association; national water polo and water soccer championship, Metropolitan Association, indoor and outdoor.

Walking championship awards—10,000 meters, Ozark Association, St. Paul, Mo.; 15,000 meters, Middle Atlantic Association; 20,000 meters, New England Association; 30,000 meters, Metropolitan Association; 50,000 meters, Ohio Association.

Women's swimming championships, junior national indoors—50-yard freestyle, Middle Atlantic; 100-yard freestyle, Pacific Association; 220-yard freestyle, Northeast Ohio Association; 500-yard freestyle, Pacific Northwest Association; 100-yard backstroke, Maine Association; 100-yard breaststroke, Missouri Valley Association; low board dive, Ohio Association; 10-foot dive, New Jersey Association; 300-yard individual medley, New England Association; 200-yard relay, Missouri Valley Association; 400-yard relay, not awarded; 300-yard medley relay, Ohio Association.

Plans Abandoned To Compete In Soccer At Paris

Plans to send a team to the world's soccer championship tournament next year at Paris were abandoned by the Japan Soccer Association at its meeting Sunday morning because of the situation in the Far East, it was announced today.

For sometime now, the Association had been working toward sending Japan's first team to the international competition. For instance, it had been negotiating with the F. I. F. A. to have the finals for the Far East with the Dutch East Indies and India played at Shanghai. But this is virtually impossible under the prevailing situation in China.

The suggestion has been made by the F. I. F. A. to have the finals staged at Saigon, French Indo-China, but it is held that it is impossible to send a Japanese team, which would be based on university students, there for the trials in January. And so for this reason, the decision was taken to abandon competition in next year's tournament.

The season's contest between all-star teams of the Kansai and Kanto will be played at the Koshien stadium, near Osaka, on January 23, it was decided by the association.

L.S.U. Triumphs Over Auburn, 9-7

N.Y. Times

BATON ROUGE, La., Nov. 13—Auburn's fumbles gave Louisiana State breaks enough for the Bayou Tigers to chalk up a 9-7 victory today in a Southeastern Conference football battle witnessed by 30,000 fans.

A field goal Cotton Milner kicked in the first period proved the margin of victory.

Auburn's quarterback, Walker, fumbled a bad pass from center in the first period and Baur, L. S. U. end, recovered on Auburn's 18. After several attempts to gain through the line Milner kicked the field goal.

Bussey, L. S. U. sophomore back, got off a 52-yard quick kick shortly after the fourth period began that rolled down near Auburn's goal line. Kenmore allowed the ball to strike his hands and bounce into the arms of Jabbo Steel, subbing for Milner, on Auburn's 6.

Kelly, substitute Plainsman halfback, ran the kick-off from his 9 to midfield, where Fenton and Sitz, a brilliant Auburn back, took over to plow to the Louisiana 12. Two 5-yard penalties advanced Auburn to the L. S. U. 2 and Sitz plunged over for a touchdown. Thorpe kicked the extra point.

The line-up:

Louisiana S. (9)		Auburn (7)
L.E.	Baur	Harrison
L.T.	Friend	Russell
L.G.	Smith	Sivell
C.	D. Gormley	Antley
R.G.	Clark	Howell

R.E.	King	Whatley
Q.B.	Booth	Walker
L.H.	Rohm	Kenmore
R.H.	Milner	Fenton
F.B.	Morton	Heath

Score by Periods

Louisiana State	3	0	0	6	—9
Auburn	0	0	0	7	—7

Touchdowns—Steel (sub), Sitz (sub). Point after touchdown—Thorpe. Goal from field—Milner.

"BELIEVE IT OR NOT"---by Ripley

Prodigal Bible

Terry Morgan, a customer of Montgomery Ward in far distant Sierra Leone, West Africa, ordered a large family bible on February 24, 1915. It was duly dispatched, and with regular parcel post was put aboard the S.S. "Falaba," bound for West African ports, securely stowed away in a heavy canvas bag. When the "Falaba" was torpedoed, the bible was blown out of the mailbag and eventually drifted ashore on the coast of Scotland. The finder, noting the label, notified the senders of his find, and the bible is now in Montgomery Ward's collection of relics in Chicago. Another bible was shipped immediately, but Mr. Morgan died in May, 1915, before it reached him.

One-Armed Typist

Russel A. Moffit lost his right arm at Cambrai while serving in an artillery unit during the World War. Being right-handed, the handicap was hard to overcome, but Moffit succeeded wonderfully. As secretary of the Amputations Association of Canada and as editor of their magazine, he learned to type with his left hand. Competing with all Canadians speed typists in 1937 typewriting contests in Toronto, Moffit's official score was 66.9 words per minute, including the penalties for errors, for the half-hour's writing. He used no artificial or mechanical aids of any kind.

More Energy Necessary To Prepare For Games, Technical Adviser Says

"Japan must realize more than ever the stupendous task that lies in her way to a successful culmination of the 1940 Olympic Games in Tokyo and more energy and effort must be put into the groundwork which comes before the actual steps toward its realization can be undertaken."

The speaker was Werner Klingeberg, who was technical adviser to the Berlin Olympic committee and is at present in Japan for the purpose of lending a helping hand to the Tokyo Olympic Committee, in an informal talk with a representative of The Japan Times.

Mr. Klingeberg, a pleasant young man with blue eyes and a winning smile, talked interestingly and vigorously.

Other Countries Want Games

"The Japanese must wake up because there are other countries that wish to take the Games away from Japan. Unless this country realizes this fact and works hard, the countries may presently refer the matter to Count Henri Baillet-Latour, chairman of the International Olympic Committee, for action."

"It is the war in China," The Japan Times' reporter countered, "that accounts for the seeming lack of interest. Once the trouble over there is cleared up, the Japanese with their typical energy and speed will set to work and accomplish wonders."

Mr. Klingeberg smiled. "This is a very big world you know," he said. "Perhaps you can take care of matters here, but how about the publicity?" "It takes from six to seven weeks for a letter to reach some of the countries and get an answer back here." "How many seven weeks are there in a year?" he suddenly asked, and just as promptly gave the answer. "About seven." "There are, in other words, less than twenty chances left in which to tell the rest of the world about the Olympic Games here." He gently rapped the table and his blue eyes gleamed. "Do you think that is enough?"

"Of course, the present trouble in China makes it inconvenient for Japan to undertake the Olympic Games work on a large scale, but there is no reason why two or three practical experts, well-versed in the situation could not quietly get to work figuring and planning in preparation for the event. Los Angeles successfully housed and accommodated her guests to the 1932 Games. Berlin had 300,000 beds in private homes besides its numerous hotels to take care of the crowd. How about Japan? The meat problem alone is something to think over because foreigners eat plenty of meat. South Americans consume two thick steaks for breakfast alone. When you have 2,500 hungry athletes more to take care of, it is quite a problem."

Perplexing Situation

Mr. Klingeberg flicked the ashes from his cigarette and relaxed in his chair. Perhaps he expected an answer to this perplexing situation, but presently he arose. "Well, I must be going now," he said.

The golden five-ringed emblem on his coat lapel glistened in the light as he gravely shook hands.

Mr. Klingeberg

St. Mary's Winner, 3-0

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 7—St. Mary's Gaels defeated the University of San Francisco's Dons, 3 to 0, in their annual football clash today.

Lou Ferry, veteran quarterback, was sent in after the Gaels had smashed down to San Francisco's 28-yard line in the first quarter.

From a sharp angle on the 34-yard line Ferry sent the ball sailing through the uprights.

Some 25,000 fans watched a scrappy San Francisco squad hold its heavier and favored rival to a close victory. The teams fought to a scoreless tie last season.

Packers Upset Bears, 24 To 14 Before 44,977

N.Y. Times

CHICAGO, Nov. 7—Green Bay's champion Packers struck a lusty blow in defense of their National Football League laurels today by a spectacular triumph over the Chicago Bears, 24 to 14, before a record throng of 44,977 at Wrigley Field.

The setback failed to shake the Bears from the top of the Western division, but it was their first reverse of the season in seven starts, and the manner in which it was achieved gave ample evidence that the big team from the little Wisconsin town was in full stride. The triumph was Green Bay's sixth against two defeats.

A Thrilling Struggle

The outcome of the battle, a thriller that had the biggest crowd in the history of Chicago professional football on its feet from the second period on, left the Bears with a record of five victories, one defeat and a tie. The previous record attendance was 34,530, set when the Bears defeated Detroit's Lions two weeks ago.

Green Bay's great aerial combination of Arnie Herber and Don Hutson started a 17-point raid in the second period, from which the Bears never quite recovered. Herber passed from deep in his own territory to Hutson, who snatched a 33-yard shot and ran 40 more to score.

A few minutes later a 33-yard Herber-to-Hutson pass took the ball to the Bear 23 and set up a 29-yard field goal by Ernie Smith for another 3 points. Just before the end of the half, Eddie Jankowski grabbed a pass from Ray Buivid as it slipped from Ray Nolting's fingers and ran 23 to tally.

Chicagoans in Rally

Big Jack Manders intercepted a pass from Bob Monnett and raced 55 for a touchdown in the third period and Bernie Masterson shot a 26-yard pass to Edgar Manske, who ran 38 more for a score a few minutes later, to make a game of it again. Bears lost their momentum through penalties and incomplete passes, however, and in the final period Monett tossed 6 yards to Clark Hinkle for the last Green Bay touchdown.

The line-up:

Oriental Games Unlikely To Be Held At Osaka

The first Oriental Athletic Games scheduled to be held next spring at Osaka will be postponed either to the fall of next year to the following year, it was indicated at the meeting of the directors of the Japan Amateur Athletic Federation Monday afternoon.

The reason will be the current situation in China. Among the directors, there were those who favored postponement so that athletes from China will be enabled to participate. It is expected that this will be possible with the establishment of a new regime in China.

Under the Kuomintang Government of Chiang Kai-shek, Chinese athletic circles refused to have anything to do with Japan in the matter of international sports competition.

One group of the Federation maintained that the games should be held as originally scheduled in May of next year with delegations from Manchoukuo, the Philippines, Siam and North China.

Inasmuch as the feeling for postponement is gaining strength among the committeemen in Osaka, it is believed that the Games will be put off to a later date.

Michigan State Wins On Passes

EAST LANSING, Mich., Nov. 13—Michigan State took to the air to down a fighting Carnegie Tech eleven, 13 to 6, today before a homecoming crowd of 20,000.

All of the touchdowns were scored in the first nine minutes of the second period.

With two brilliant halfbacks, Merlyn Condit and Ray Carnelly, lugging the ball, Tech put the Spartans back on their heels with a 60-yard march to the one yard line as the first period came to a close. On the initial play of the second period, Fullback Jack Lee went over from the 1-yard line.

Air Attack Gets Started

State opened up at once with a passing attack, with Johnny Pingel doing all of the tossing and Walter Nelson, big end, most of the receiving. Two completed aerials by the pair gained 28 yards and took the ball to the Carnegie 23. After Haney gained 7 on a plunge, Pingel passed to Halfback Eddie Pearce for the score.

A fumble by Peter Moroz, substitute Carnegie back, set the scene for the second State score. Taking the ball on the Tech 43, Pingel and George Kovacich were spearheads of an attack that carried to the 28. Pingel and Nelson then connected on a touchdown pass.

Rivals Weary Near End

The strenuous first half pace left the rival teams so weary that they were unable to cash in on scoring chances in the last two periods.

In the third period the Engineers flashed a passing attack almost the equal of State's, carrying to the 20 before losing the ball on downs.

The Spartans dominated the play in the final period, smashing deep into Carnegie territory twice. On both occasions Leslie Bruckner tried place kicks that went wide.

Holy Cross Tops Brown, 7 To 0

N.Y. Times

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Nov. 13—Holy Cross remained among the nation's undefeated football teams by downing Brown, 7—0, today in a driving rainstorm.

The wet field forced both teams to resort to straight football, and Holy Cross, which had the wind in its favor, received the first break. After an exchange of punts, it put the ball into play on the Brows 35. A series of line bucks advanced the Crusaders to the 22, from which point Osmanski knifed through left tackle for a touchdown to give Holy Cross a 7-0 lead at the quarter.

Three Kicks Blocked

Three blocked kicks and a fumble gave the Crusaders four scoring chances in the second period, but they were unable to capitalize on the breaks. Hall fumbled once on his 13 and Turner recovered for Holy Cross, but the Bears staged a fine defensive stand. Bogdan, O'Melia and Turner all blocked Brown punts, but each time the Bears held firmly.

With a strong wind in its favor, Brown dominated the play in the third period, but was unable to capitalize on two scoring chances.

With its attack clicking for the first time, Brown marched once to the Holy Cross 35, where the Crusader defense tightened, and soon afterward to the Crusader 32. But Hall fumbled on a spinner play and Shields recovered for Holy Cross as the third period ended.

Brown's Bids Fall

Merely attempting to protect their margin, the Cruhaders stopped determined Brown bids during the early stages of the final period.

Brown threatened when Frank Foster skirted end for 20 yards, going to the Crusader 40. Line drives advanced to the 30, but there his attack stalled.

The desperate Bruins resorted to aerials in the final minutes, but only one clicked and Holy Cross took the ball to kick out of danger.

"BELIEVE IT OR NOT"---by Ripley

Smallest Lot

Workers in the office of the City Engineer, Providence, R. I. experienced mild thrills of discovery this summer when they found out that what they thought was only an ink spot on the map was really privately owned land. Engineers surveying a few years ago during road-building, left a tiny triangular plot, slightly over an square inch, still in technical possession of a railroad. Had they surveyed correctly, to the minutest detail, the plot would have been included in the highway. However, the railroad decided they had no use for the land and the city acquired it through condemnation proceedings.

Yale Routs Princeton, 26-0, Frank Scoring 4 Touchdowns

By ROBERT F. KELLEY

N.Y. Times

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 13—Yale's blue football banner, soaking and draggled in black mud, was pointed north for Cambridge and Harvard tonight at the head of an undefeated team.

Behind, on the floor of the rain-soaked Bowl, was a Princeton team that never had a chance and fought itself out in a hopeless cause and in rain, mud and a biting wind.

At the end the score was Yale 26, Princeton 0, and on the strength of the day's play that was just about right.

A black-haired, stocky young man from Illinois churned through the mud and water to four touchdowns as Clinton E. Frank, Eli captain and one of the greatest backs who ever carried a ball, indelibly wrote his name in the long annals of Yale football.

Victory Thirty-third for Blue

Twice in the first period and twice in the third Frank, steaming with the speed and direction of a United States destroyer, smashed through the mud and water to touchdowns. After two of these the extra point was made and Yale had its thirty-third victory in the sixty-one times this game has been played.

There have been few worse days for football in the long history of this game. Long before what would have been sunrise on a clear day New Haven had a downpour of rain that was blown on the crest of a near-gale almost dead from the south. At game time the rain and wind blew in the faces of the team defending the north goal. Of the 50,000 or so who had purchased tickets about 35,000 descended on the Bowl. The crowd was attired in oilskins, raincoats and souwesters.

The spectators hardly had settled in their seats before Yale was under way. On the first play following the opening kick-off the Elis scored, and in less than a minute of the first period they had 7 points.

Mr. Frank was centrally involved in this. He won the toss and pointed to the south goal, saying he would defend that.

Princeton Kicks Off

Princeton then chose to kick off, apparently not wanting the ball deep in its own territory with that wind and rain to face. The kick-off was a good one, and Charley Ewart was thrown on the Eli 23-yard line. Just as the latecomers—and many held off until the last minute in this rain—were setting in their seats Frank called the first play.

It was a run by himself to the left, with a cutback just off the Princeton right tackle. Johnny Miller, left end, and Dave Colwell, superb punting and blocking back of Yale, sprang the great ball carrier through the line of scrimmage with excellent blocking.

Once there, Frank cut, somehow, on the muddy ground, a bit to his right. Princeton's right wingback, the only man except Tom Mountain who was not blocked out of the play, tried to cut with him. The mud made him slip just a bit and Frank was away all alone.

Yard after yard disappeared under his churning feet and Yale men blocked all over the field. A lone Princeton figure, Mountain, who was a heroic figure in defeat, tried to cross at a diagonal to stop him but by the time Frank had reached Princeton's 35-yard line he had two escorting Ellis 5 yards behind him.

Goes Over Unmolested

Mountain never had a chance to dive for him and Frank crossed the line standing up. Not a hand had been laid on him in his journey of 77 yards. In a jiffy Colwey kicked the extra point. There was never any doubt of the result after that.

There was perhaps a shade of luck in that first run, but not much. Frank had an opportunity and wrung every inch out of it.

To this touchdown he added three. The second came about ten minutes later when Mountain, smothered on an attempt to kick the wet ball, was tackled and Yale took it on downs on the Tiger 15-yard line. Yard by yard Yale worked up to the 4 and from there Frank slashed through his left tackle, with Al Hessberg heading the interference, to the second touchdown. Ed McLean blocked that try for the extra point.

There was no scoring in the second period but Yale popped out to two more touchdowns in the third. On the first Frank, taking the ball beyond midfield—the scrimmage line was on Yale's 49—dashed just inside his right tackle, cut and outraced every member of the Princeton secondary to cross once more without a Princeton hand having been laid on him.

Miller Recovers Fumble

The final touchdown followed a fumble of the sodden ball by Princeton on its 30-yard line. Martin Tiernan, who played much of the game at fullback for the losers, dropped the ball on a fake kick when he took a short pass from center, and Johnny Miller, who was a superb defensive end, fell on it for Yale.

Henssberg led a steady offensive that carried the ball to the 7-yard line and a first down and then seemed to stall in the face of a stubborn Princeton defense.

Frank then called his own signal again and on third down fought free of McLean, who had him cornered in the backfield, and went on across the goal line from the 5, again going off right tackle. On the try for the point the pass from center escaped Bud Humphrey, who had just gone in for Frank, and Colwell never had a chance to kick. He had added the point to the third touchdown.

That is the description of the Yale touchdowns. Around that framework was the concrete of a defense which stood up against a Tiger attack that had been palpably designed for the five-man line and a dry field and found only the five-man line waiting.

It was without doubt one of the worst days on which a major game has been played. The rain was not the greatest handicap. It would not have been so bad with only rain, but the steady wind whipped the water up the field almost horizontally from the south goal to the north.

Colwell's Kicking Sensational

Under these circumstances, Colwell, next to Frank, deserves the greatest credit in this victory. The big punter and clear-out back remained in the game a few minutes longer than Frank and was a really great player. His punts with the wind were sensational, and those against the wind were almost unbelievable.

As in any of the victories such as this one, many names stand out. Up forward, Bill John played great football at tackle. Frank Gallagher passed the soggy ball well and was excellent on defense, and the iron man of the Yale team, Charley Ewart, turned in the same even, tremendously well-played game he has been known for in the last two years.

But even these men were not alone. Yale's entire line, gaining the jump in the cold mud, did a fine job, and even the Yale reserves, who were sent in in great numbers, played good football. It was a group victory for Yale and earned, apparently, without sacrifice of physical condition, so that Yale heads for Harvard at full strength.

Postponement Voted On First Oriental Games

The First Oriental Athletic Games scheduled to be held next spring at Osaka were indefinitely postponed at a meeting of the Japan Amateur Athletic Federation Wednesday afternoon.

The decision was taken because of the current Sino-Japanese situation. Word to this effect will be sent shortly to Manchoukuo and the Philippines and they are both expected to give approval. In this connection, it will be remembered that the Philippine Amateur Athletic Federation first voiced its inability to compete in the games, due to lack of funds, declaring that all efforts were being centered on sending a giant delegation to the 1940 Olympic Games. But through repeated efforts on the part of the Japan Amateur Athletic Federation, which even went to the extent of dispatching a special representative to Manila early this year, the Philippine officials finally reconsidered to send as large a sports delegation as possible to the Osaka games. Ichiro Hata, coach of the wrestling team which left recently to compete in the forthcoming carnival at Manila, has been asked to convey the reasons for the postponement to the Philippines organization.

Representative Sakamoto of the Osaka committee which has been laying the ground work for the game expressed the group's willingness to have them postponed.

Representative Suzuki of the Manchoukuo organization also agreed to postponement.

Time to stage the games will be decided by the Federation after settlement is reached of the Sino-Japanese hostilities, it was unanimously voted at the meeting.

All agreed on concentrating their attention to organizing the games on a scale that they will be truly representing the Orient. Particular concern will be given to have China included in the games.

25 Cage Teams To Compete In 1940 Olympics

At least 25 countries will compete for the basketball championship of the 12th Olympic Games in 1940.

Information to this effect was received by the Japan Basketball Association from the International Basketball Federation Wednesday.

Of the 35 member nations of the Federation, the following are expected to send teams to the 1940 games. Germany, Italy, France, Hungary Estonia, Czechoslovakia, United States, Mexico, Canada, Brazil, Peru Egypt, Philippines, Siam and Turkey. The Federation anticipates other entries for a total of 25, or two more than the competing number in the last Olympic Games at Berlin.

Through the Association, the Federation has suggested that the basketball tourney be staged in 14 days, and asked for information whether play will be outdoors or indoors and whether on a board court.

Tentative arrangements call for play in 10 days as compared with eight at the last Olympic Games Two courts of board floors will be used.

The schedule will be arranged at the meeting of the Federation during the latter part of November of next year at Paris. Ri Sohaku of the Association has been named to represent the Olympic Organizing Committee at this congress.

Waseda University's basketball team, national inter-collegiate champions, will leave Kobe on Friday aboard the Atsuta Maru to play nine games at Manila. They are scheduled to return to Kobe on February 2.

Harvard Tumbles Yale, 13-6 But Frank Was Biggest Star

By STANLEY WOODWARD

BOSTON, Nov. 20—Driving eighty yards through ooze and snowflakes to a late clinching touchdown, Harvard scored its greatest football victory over Yale this afternoon, beating the previously unbeaten men of New Haven, 13 to 6, before a capacity crowd of 57,534 in Harvard Stadium.

Frank Foley scored the touchdown which broke a 6-to-6 tie on a ten-yard "in-and-out" run around the Yale left flank with seven minutes left to play. Chief Boston, big Crimson blocking back and field general, place-kicked the extra point out of a pile of sawdust, leaving Clint Frank & Co. despairing of anything but a tie as they stormed gamely but futilely with forward passes in the concluding minutes.

It was a great football game in which both teams struck at times with devastating force, in which mistakes were rectified by reckless gallantry and victory and defeat hung by a thread.

Daughters Scores for Harvard

Harvard marched sixty-five yards to its first touchdown in the second period, scoring on a cross-over forward pass from the omnipresent Foley to Red Daughters, a right end. Harvard put it all over Yale in this period, missing a second touchdown when Daughters, who had been badly jarred in a collision with Yale's Charley Ewart, dropped a pass from Foley while standing alone on the Yale 1-yard line.

Yale, driven by Frank, its great captain, came back with controlled fury in the second half, marching sixty-six yards from the kick-off. Frank slashed over from the 2-yard line after Al Hessberg had covered nearly sixty yards on two brilliant short side runs.

Harvard's try for its first extra point was wide. When Dave Colwell attempted to convert for Yale, Dick Hedblom, Harvard's sub at center for the damaged Hack Wilson, and Alec Kevorkian, big left tackle, slammed in unmercifully. One of them—we thought it was Hedblom—partially blocked the ball, which dribbled innocuously to the left.

This left the game at six-all and established the situation for Harvard's gallant clinching drive. Vernon Struck, Torbert MacRyan Macdonald and the ubiquious Foley put it over, running savagely behind a line which hit with crunching force, mouse-trapped and cross-blocked with savage finesse.

Crimson Celebrates Wildly

Harvard deserved the game, "out-statisticking" Yale in almost all phases and it may be said with full confidence that the Crimson adherents, starved since 1933 for lack of victory over the dearest enemy, appreciated it fully. Before action was over, after the Crimson combatants had stopped Yale's last desperate passing attack, detached and exuberant sons of Harvard started swaying the goal posts at the bowl end of the stadium.

When the final whistle blew the men of the "Yaad" poured onto the field to embrace and pummel the conquering heroes who were attempting to give a breathless cheer for Yale.

Red fire appeared everywhere as the Harvards tumbled onto the mucky stadium turf. The south goal posts ultimately came down as well. Ultimately the Harvard host, muddy, snow-swept and exuberant, formed behind the band and marched around the field, whooping inordinately, while the Yale adherents, their defeatless record smirched at the eleventh hour, stood bareheaded in the stands singing the New Haven version of "Die Wacht Am Rhein."

Frank Keeps Score Down

The game culminated Harvard's best season since 1915 in the matter of objective victories. Not since 1915 has the Crimson entourage scotched both Yale and Princeton in one season. To go into more psychotic detail, this is the first Harvard team captained by a guard (Russ Allen) which has won over Yale since 1908 (Hooks Burr).

This game was Harvard's fairly and surely. The Crimson had the weapons to move when it got the ball. But the greatest player on the field was Yale's, no other than Clinton E. Frank, of Evanston, Ill. He didn't run wild on Harvard, he was sucked in when Foley circled the flank for the final touchdown, he may have made mistakes in generalship, but we dread to think of Yale in this game without Frank.

He was the greatest defensive player on the field. He made fifty tackles. He kept the Yale team fighting to the finish. He drove and he fought and ultimately, for the first time this season, he lost. But Harvard must be heaving a sigh of relief en masse tonight when it contemplates playing Frankless Yale teams in the years to come.

From Goat to Hero

Foley (Francis F.), 161-pound junior goat of the Navy game when he dropped two touchdown passes was the ranking Harvard hero. Shifted from right halfback, where he started the season, to left a week ago, he proved to be an accurate, cool forward passer, a fierce driver particularly against Yale's last-ditch passes. He threw one touchdown, scored the other.

This was no day for cardiacs nor for those who habitually suffer from chilblains or snuffles. The excitement was continuously uproarious. The weather was damply biting. It rained here all last night although it snowed in the suburbs. It continued to rain in patches this morning, letting up just before the game.

The poorly drained stadium field, scarcely above the level of the historic Charles River, was covered up to half an hour before the game, but when the players came out for preliminary practice it was damp in patches and extensive patches of sawdust marked the concave center.

Snow Starts in Third Period

There was no more precipitation until Yale scored in the third period when snowflakes came wandering down on the damp Northeaster. It snowed lightly but continuously to the end, rendering the ball slippery, the field more treacherous.

But this Harvard team, having decided some time ago that it could beat Yale, wasn't going to succumb to discouraging conditions. So it marched through the worst of the weather to victory.

The line-up:

Harvard (13)		Yale (6)

Hoyt Is Chosen A.A.U. President

Christian Science Monitor

BOSTON, Nov. 16—The unanimous election of a new president and the awarding to the New England A. A. U. the conduct of the 1938 national hockey championships, were the chief events that took place yesterday as the Amateur Athletic Union of the United States closed its forty-ninth annual convention at the Copley-Plaza.

Judge Samuel Eugene Hoyt, the new president, graduated from Yale University with the class of 1897 and from the Yale Law School two years later. He succeeds Judge Jeremiah T. Mahoney as president of the organization in what is termed one of the most harmonious elections in the history of the Union. Hoyt has been state's attorney in New Haven for the past 11 years and before that served as municipal judge in the same city. He has been associated with the A. A. U. for 25 years.

The four vice-presidents of the union, also elected unanimously, are: Col. Frank E. Lowe of Portland, president of the Maine A. A. U.; James J. Richardson of Oregon; Ward Haylett of Manhattan, Kan., and Owen E. Van Camp of Chicago.

The hockey tournament will probably be staged at the Boston Arena, either in February or March, the winner to receive the perpetual George V. Brown Trophy.

The convention also chose nine members to confer in Washington with representatives of the National Collegiate Athletic Association and the National Association of Amateur Oarsmen on the subject of representation on the American Olympic Games committee in track and field, swimming, boxing and eight-oared rowing.

A list of 10 athletes, headed by California's J. Donald Budge, was announced as candidates for the annual James E. Sullivan Trophy, given each year to the nation's outstanding amateur sports star. Budge is the present United States singles tennis titleholder.

The selection of a site for the 1938 convention was tabled for further consideration. Three cities have bid for the sessions—Miami, Fla., Denver, Colo., and Washington.

Hoppe Retains 18.1 Cue Title As Schaefer Bows

By FRED HAWTHORNE

N.Y. Herald Tribune

NEW YORK, Nov. 21—Willie Hoppe, defending world 18.1 balkline billiard champion, retained his title at the Capitol Bowling and Billiard Academy last night as he scored the final carom that brought his total for the six afternoons and nights to 3,000. Jack Schaefer, his challenger, finished with 2,567 points, 433 behind, but the Chicagoan won both afternoon and night blocks yesterday in a great finish.

When they started yesterday afternoon, Hoppe, needed only 500 points while Schaefer faced the almost impossible task of scoring 1,386. The challenger outplayed the veteran champion by more than two to one in the afternoon block, of twenty innings, scoring 598 to Hoppe's 250. In his final inning of this block Schaefer made a high run of 137.

In the night block, the challenger again outplayed Hoppe, 355 to 250. Had Schaefer hit his stride earlier in the week he might have carried off the title.

Hopes had plenty of difficulty holding control over the balls in both sessions, in striking contrast to his dazzling billiards of the previous five days. In the night block his best count, 69, was made in the fifth inning. He added 51 in the eighth and 40 in the twelfth. Schaefer, in the mean time, had started with 56, to which he added 73 in the second inning, 44 in the thirteenth and 62 in the fifteenth. Each failed to count four times in the night session.

To show how hard Hoppe had to struggle to click off his last few points, he needed five innings to gather his last 33 points. Schaefer piled up 95 his last five times at the table. In justice to Hoppe it should be pointed out that a man enjoying a lead of 386 points, with only 500 to go, while his opponent requires 1,336, is naturally not under the urge to score that spurs the trailer. The champion retained his crown and that is enough.

Hoppe's average for the match was not quite 21, for 144 innings, while Schaefer, playing 143 innings, was a bit over 18.

Hoppe announced after the match that he has challenged Schaefer for the 28.2 balkline title, now held by the Chicagoan, who won it from the 18.1 titleholder last year. Schaefer has accepted and the match will be played here at 2,500 points within the next thirty days.

To Pick Delegation To I.O.C. Parley At Cairo By 25th

The delegation to represent the Olympic Organizing Committee for the 12th Olympiad at the meeting of the International Olympic Committee at Cairo next March will be decided on or about December 24 and 25.

Considerable attention is being given to the personnel for the reason that it is expected that the delegation will be on the receiving end of questions galore in connection with the situation arising from the Sino-Japanese hostilities.

In this connection, officials concerned are hoping that Prince Iyesato Tokugawa, chairman of the O.O.C., will personally attend the meeting at Cairo. His prestige and his excellent command of English are considered especially vital factors to strengthen the delegation's front.

Matsuzo Nagai, secretary general of the O.O.C., Chairman Go of the games committee, and General Committeeman Takashima are expected to represent the O.O.C. In addition, Werner Klingeberg, technical adviser to the O.O.C. from Germany, will be a member of the delegation.

From the Japan Track and Field Federation, Dr. Tadaoki Yamamoto is expezted to attend the Cairo meeting. Dr. Seishichi Ono will represent the Winter Olympics committees. Masao Tsuda, now residing in Switzerland, is also expected to be at Cairo for the meeting.

In the event, Prince Tokugawa finds it impossible to go, Jigoro Kano, a member of the International Olympic Committee, is like to be requested to go in his place.

Swanson Blames Naval Delay On Restrictive Law

Secretary Of U.S. Navy Urges More Funds Be Provided

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8—Claude A. Swanson Secretary of the Navy, appealed to Congress this week end for increased appropriations for the Navy, and at the same time, complained of "restrictive" legislation, such as the Walsh-Healy Act.

In his annual report, the Secretary urged that funds be provided for four new auxiliaries as well as additional warships. He said more officers and men would be needed for the new ships that periodically join the fleet, and asked for increases in "inadequate" pay.

The naval survey for the fiscal year ended June 30 reinforced predictions of a forthcoming naval program of record peace-time proportions. It followed official disclosure that funds would be sought for two $60,000,000 battleships in addition to two already authorized, and for two $16,000,000 cruisers.

"Due to various causes, many of them beyond the control of the Navy Department, completion of new ship building by both private contractors and navy yards has continued to be handicapped and delayed," Mr. Swanson reported to President Roosevelt. The Walsh-Healy Act, he said, increased costs and caused difficulties in obtaining adequate bids particularly on steel.

"The Navy Department is definitely apprehensive regarding the results to our national defense of the increasing amount of restrictive legislation dealing with the procurement of material and execution of contracts for naval work," Mr. Swanson said.

"The Department is in favor of efforts to prevent collusive bidding, to prevent excessive profits at the expense of the taxpayer, and to prevent sweatshop methods and exploitation of labor."

Efficiency Expected

"The utmost care should, however, be exercised to insure that attempts to accomplish such desirable ends do not result in such inordinate delays, limited competition and high prices as not only will defeat the purpose of such laws, but will also result in delaying the Navy in reaching that strength, efficiency, and up-to-dateness which this country has the right to expect and demand."

The Navy, headed toward the 1942 goal of a fleet at the full strength permitted by the lapsed 1930 London Treaty, put 38 new cruisers, destroyers and other warships in commission in the last fiscal year, Mr. Swanson reported. It retired 30 obsolete vessels. The goal was set by Congress in the 1934 Vinson-Trammell Act. Secretary Swanson said the fleet remained considerably below treaty strength in destroyers and submarines.

Altogether during the year the Navy operated at sea 349 ships of all types, the greatest armada, in numbers, under any flag. But in actual sea power, Navy Department data indicated, the United States is lagging behind Great Britain, though well ahead of Japan.

Reporting that 71 war vessels were under construction on July 1, the Secretary stressed "the importance of continuing an orderly program of needed additions and replacements from year to year without lapses," as a measure of economy as well as defense.

To Keep Discarded Ships

The navy, after sinking or selling 200 vessels, has decided to keep its old and discarded craft.

Suitable hulks will be used to build up a reserve of scrap metal, Admiral William D. Leahy, chief of naval operations, said in his annual report.

The old destroyers, tugs, gunboats and submarines that have been sold for junk or private use since the now-lapsed London Limitation Treaty was signed in 1930, brought a total of $1,496,156. All the money went into the federal treasury.

British Air Lines Plan Ocean Route To Latin America

SANTIAGO, Chile.—Great Britain, hitherto neglectful of air connections with South America, has decided to join the European competition, on the Europe-Africa-South America route, confident that its trade and investment stake in that continent will justify the attempt. The competition, when it matures, will be a serious financial problem for the French and German companies which operate South Atlantic services, as these depend to a large extent on the large volume of British mail carried by air from the east and west coast republics to London.

The first step in a regular air mail service will parallel existing French and German routes to West Africa; and conferences have recently taken place between Portuguese and British authorities to hasten progress. British Airways is the concern which is identified with the preliminary organization. It operates state-subsidized air mail services to Scandinavia, and early this year it was authorized to make a preliminary survey of the South American service, which will possibly be routed via Lisbon and Bathurst, Gambia.

As in the case of the Air France and the German Condor lines, the British propose to take the shortest route from Africa to Brazilian ports and then on down the Atlantic seaboard to Uruguay and Argentina, with Buenos Aires as the terminus. At the moment, it is not proposed to continue the route across the Andes to Chile, though both the French and the Germans do so. The British, with their overwhelming commercial interests in Argentina, will be content first to have a regular link with that country.

British business interests have long been prodding their government to take more interest in South American air routes, although they realized that home effort must necessarily be concentrated first of all on developing Imperial and northern trans-Atlantic connections. The French, who were the first in the South American field, and the Germans, have a long start, and the latter have also succeeded in operating national air companies within several states by adopting a nationalist complexion. Pan American Airways, of course, dominates the international service between the Americas, in conjunction with Pan American Grace, "Panagra," an allied company operating on the west coast.

British competition will have practically no effect on the American intercontinental service, which serves as an alternative carrier of mail from this continent to Europe. The French mail is weekly, and the German is bi-weekly, to Europe. From certain points of the southern continent the alternative route by "Panagra" to New York, for transshipment on a fast steamship to England, is favored.

A government announcement from London states that provision has been made in an agreement with British Airways to replace its existing fleet with British aircraft at the earliest practicable date. A new four-engined monoplane, the de Hailland Albatross, built for fast long-range transport, may be chosen. The Air Ministry ordered two for trans-Atlantic experiments. The cruising speed is about 200 miles an hour, with new supercharged Gypsy 12-cylinder, air-cooled engines.

When Viscount Shibusawa

count took place. It was the arrest of one Osawa who was charged with espionage. The Viscount's colleagues were hesitant to accept this duty on account of the rumor that Osawa was well prepared to resist the Shogunate agency. The Viscount who had been spending gloomy days felt that the job might give him relief from his depression. So he volunteered to capture the traitor, and admirably succeeded in the discharge of this precarious duty. His fame as a military expert suddenly rose in the army circle. But this exploit was not enough to dispel his daily gloom. In his reminiscences, the Viscount gives his mental picture of that time in the following words: "The Tokugawa regime is now being exposed to danger of down-fall. The time may not be distant when it topples over. If I carelessly remain in my present position, I may become a prey to the doomed system. I should not mind to go down into ruin with the system were I placed in a post of his responsibility. But I am nothing more than a petty officer. It is better to return to the former life of a political wanderer than to die as a nameless person in the fallen government." The Viscount fell into this melancholia in the latter part of the fall of 1866. Could he find a remedy to dispel his gloom?

Iowa Is Added To Nebraska's List, 28 To 0

LINCOLN, Neb., Nov. 20—Taking command in the first few minutes Nebraska's Cornhuskers swept the ends and passed Iowa into a 28 to 0 beating before 27,000 here today. A cold north wind kept the thermometer down to 18 degrees above zero. The Husker linemen wore cotton gloves.

Edward Cecil (Jack) Dodd, Nebraska junior half back, who ran sixty-five yards to score last Saturday against Pitt, was the Husker spark plug throughout the afternoon.

The Iowans made a tactical error at the outset. After winning the toss Capt. Anderson chose the south goal, which forced Iowa to face the wind. The Huskers lost little time in cashing in on this mistake. Paul Amen, Nebraska end, broke through to block Nile Kinnick's first punt and recovered on the Iowa 13 yard line.

Callihan Goes Over

Dodd swung around the Iowa right end for nine yards and the Huskers, with Bill Callihan smashing center, got the four yards needed for a touchdown, an offside penalty giving them an extra down which wasn't needed. English converted from placement. Only 4½ minutes had elapsed.

Bob Mehring intercepted Kinnick's pass on Iowa's 33 yard line to start the Nebraskans goalward again. Marvin Plock got thirteen yards around left end and after a one yard setback, Dodd swung the other end for twenty-one yards and a touchdown. Both runners were aided by effective blocking.

When the teams changed goals Kinnick began mixing passes with the Hawkeye running attack, but neither was effective and finally Nile fumbled away a chance when the Iowans were in Husker territory. With Nebraska 14 points ahead, reserves started parading from the bench, and before it ended there were two Cornhuskers in the game who hadn't played before this season.

Dodd and Plock Stand Out

It was speed that sent the Iowans into one-sided defeat. The fast backs of the Huskers had a field day running the ends, Dodd going one way and Plock the other. The third period was half over when the high point of the game was furnished by the irrepressible Dodd. On a fake reverse he started for the west sideline, reversed as a group of red shirted teammates gathered to form a guard of honor and ran sixty-five yards for the third Nebraska touchdown. Dodd appeared to be stopped at midfield, but managed to pivot away from two Iowa tacklers and break into the clear for the final sweep into the end zone.

Once more the Nebraska first stringers came out, and as the fourth quarter opened Iowa was hammering away on the Husker 10 yard line. But two line plunges by Frank Balazs and Bush Lamb lost ground and two passes thrown by Russell Busk were incomplete and the Huskers took possession on their own 14 yard mark. By this time a full team of reserves was in action and Thurston Phelps began stealing Kinnick's thunder.

Huskers Win Statistics

Phelps started the last touchdown drive by intercepting Kinnick's long pass on his own 28 yard line. Phelps then tossed a pass down the middle to Plock, good for twenty-three yards. After a couple of tries at the line failed, Phelps threw a long pass to Plock, which netted forty-one yards, placing the ball on the Iowa 8 yard line. Plock finished it off with an eight yard swing around the Iowa left end and into the corner for a touchdown. Plock converted with a place kick.

The Huskers "won the statistics," something they've had a hard time accomplishing all season. They made twelve first downs to the Iowans' eleven, and in yards gained rushing piled up 188 to Iowa's 112. In net yards gained the Huskers had 228 to 165 for Iowa. Nebraska attempted eight passes and completed two for sixty-four yards. Iowa's Kinnick, Busk, and Balazs threw twenty-four, completing seven of them for eighty-four yards. Iowa had two passes intercepted.

Nagoya Nine To Meet Senators In Final Of Yomiuri Tourney

Rain Sunday morning postponed the titular clash between the Tokyo Senators and the Nagoya nine to 2 p.m. today in the first annual special series sponsored by the Yomiuri Shimbun at the Korakuen stadium.

Center Fielder Omoda and Second Baseman Karita banged out homers to aid the Senators to vanquish the Osaka Hankyu team, 9-2, while the Nagoya ball tossers nosed out the Lions, 1-0, in the semi-finals on Saturday afternoon.

Nagoya scored its winning run in the last half of the ninth when Pitcher Kikuya, who had been sent into the game to relieve Kondo with two men on, walked another to fill the bags and then hit the next batter with a pitched ball to force in a run.

Notre Dame Tops Northwestern, 7-0 On Blocked Punt

Associated Press

EVANSTON, Ill., Nov. 20—Sweeney—Charles Aloysius Sweeney—told it to Northwestern today.

Notre Dame conquered its Big Ten arch-rival, Northwestern, 7 to 0, today in freezing, wind-swept Dyche Stadium, and it was Sweeney of Bloomington, Ill., hero of Notre Dame's triumphs over Navy and Minnesota, who scored the single touchdown as the result of a second-quarter break. It was Sweeney also who, on three other occasions, contributed defensive gems which helped keep the desperate Wildcats, playing their final game of the season, from scoring.

The bit of South Bend good fortune—and Northwestern misfortune—which led to the only score of a bitterly fought battle that kept the greater part of a crowd of 45,000 seated until the finish, came when a Northwestern lineman was guilty of holding as Bernie Jefferson, star Negro halfback, attempted to punt from deep in his territory. Jeff's first kick went out of bounds on his 40, but the play was called back and Northwestern penalized 15 yards to its 7.

Again Jefferson attempted to punt. This time Sweeney, 6 feet and 188 pounds of brilliant right end, and his partner, Alec Shellogg, smashed through and blocked the kick. Sweeney, hardly hesitating in stride, snatched the ball before it reached the frozen sod and stepped over the goal line for the touchdown. Andy Puplis's place-kick for the extra point split the uprights.

Before his touchdown act, Sweeney, who had tossed Allan McFarland for the safety that meant victory for Notre Dame over Navy, and who had blocked the point after touchdown effort that saved a 7 to-6 trimph over Minnesota, recovered a fumble by Northwestern's brilliant Don Heap who had just caught a pass on Notre Dame's 26 in the first period. He also halted a Wildcat drive in the second by intercepting one of Heap's passes.

In the fourth quarter, he downed one of Harry Stenson's punts on the 1-yard line to put the Wildcats in a hole from which they barely escaped. Then, just before the finish, he dropped on a fumble by Nick Cutlich after the latter had grabbed a pass tossed by Heap from behind his goal line.

The Wildcats gained a share of glory by holding the invaders almost on even terms in the first three periods, outside the touchdown incident, and making two grand defensive stands in the final quarter. The visitors, led by Ennio Arboit, Jack McCarthy and Charlie O'Reilly, penetrated to Northwestern's 4 at the start of the last session before being stopped. The same crew carried to the 7 a few minutes later, but Northwestern again dug in and claimed the ball on downs.

The line-up:

	Notre Dame (7)	N'thwestern (0)
L.E.	Skoglund	Kovatch
L.T.	Beinor	Cutlich
L.G.	Ruetz	Guritz
C.	McCarthy	Haman
R.G.	Kuharich	Goldak
R.T.	A. Shellogg	Voigts
R.E.	Sweeney	Eby
Q.B.	Puplis	Vanzo
L.H.	Stevenson	Heap
R.H.	McCormick	Jefferson
F.B.	Thesing	Laskay

Score By Periods

Notre Dame	0	7	0	0	—7

Touchdown—Sweeney. Point after touchdown—Puplis (placement).

Harold Hackett Dies at 59; Led Davis Cup Team

N.Y. Herald Tribune

NEW YORK, Dec. 21—Harold H. Hackett, former Davis Cup tennis captain and national doubles champion with Fred B. Alexander from 1907 to 1911, died suddenly yesterday at his home, 580 Park Avenue. He was fifty-nine years old.

Mr. Hackett was considered one of the greatest doubles players ever produced in the United States. He was not a hard-hitting player, but was a great tactician.

He first achieved lawn tennis prominence as an undergraduate at Yale when, with J. A. Allen as his partner, he reached the semi-finals of the national doubles. In 1907 he and Mr. Alexander won the doubles title and retained it until 1911, when they were defeated by Theodore R. Pell and Lyle Mahan. Mr. Alexander retired shortly thereafter.

Elected Captain in 1913

In 1913, Mr. Hackett, who had played, was elected captain of the Davis Cup team which was trying to regain the cup from Great Britain. He and Maurice E. McLoughlin, as the doubles team, won a five-set match which gave the United States the series.

Always cool and uswerving in a match, Mr. Hackett was called "the human iceberg." He seldom played singles, but he was ranked eighth in the United States in 1902 and seventh in 1906. With Mr. Alexander, he also held the metropolitan and the New York State doubles championships.

Although he retired from active participation in 1923, he continued to serve in an advisory capacity to Davis Cup captains. He was on the Davis Cup committee for several years.

Walter L. Pate, captain of the 1937 team which won the Davis Cup from Great Britain, said yesterday that Mr. Hackett's advice was "invaluable in the development of the Budge-Mako team."

The 12th Olympic Games in 1940 will be opened on August 24 and will be held during the 16 days following, according to the program prepared by the games committee of the Tokyo Olympic Organizing Committee. The schedule will be presented to the O. O. C. meeting on December 27. Following its approval, it will be submitted to the general meeting of the International Olympic Committee at Cairo next March.

It calls for the opening ceremonies at 4 p.m. on August 24 in the main Olympic Stadium, after which the various events will be held during the next 16 days following. The closing rites will be staged in the main stadium at 4 p.m. on September 8.

Arts Competition

The competition in the arts division of the Games will be held from August 10 to September 8 at the Tokyo Prefectural Art Gallery and the Hibiya Public Hall auditorium.

Whether or not baseball will be included as a regular event of the Games instead of an exhibition will be decided in January. The movement to have this sport, which is the most popular in this country and is on the largest scale, added to the Games is gaining ground.

Civilians will compete in the equestrian events. The Japan Equestrian Federation has gone on record to have entires made in all the events, irrespective of the decision of the Japanese Army not to compete because of the Sino-Japanese hostilities.

The program of the 18 events as adopted by the games committee at its meeting Monday follows:

Track and field events: August 25 to September 1, at main Olympic stadium.

Wrestling: August 25, 26, 27, 30, 31, September 1, 2, at Kokugikan.

Miss Henie Opens 8-Day Engagement At Chicago, Dec. 25

Chicago Tribune

CHICAGO, Nov. 29—Sonja Henie, ice skating and movie star, who within a period of two years has developed into one of the world's greatest box office attractions, will open an engagement at the Chicago Stadium on Christmas night and will remain for eight nights, including New Year's day. It will be the longest engagement for any ice production in Chicago. Last winter Miss Henie appeared at the Stadium for five performances, every one of which was a sellout. The total paid attendance was 90,000, a record for a skating show.

Supporting the dainty former Olympic champion, who now is in motion pictures, will be a company of 100 skaters from Hollywood. The supporting cast and ballet are now working on Miss Henie's third picture, "Bread, Butter, and Rhythm," and will arrive in Chicago several days in advance of the premiere for final rehearsals.

Miss Henie has selected the skaters who will appear in her company and promises several champions from Canada and with Miss Henie in the films "One in a million" and "Thin Ice" is expected to appear in its entirety.

Terrible Reyes, one of the best featherweight fighters in the Philippines, will meet Tsuneo (Piston) Horiguchi, king of the featherweights in this country, in a bout here in the near future.

Reyes caught the Dollar liner President McKinley from Manila on Monday for Japan, according to a telegram received Monday.

Tentative plans call for the bout to be staged at the Kokugikan bowl next month.

Panthers Defeat Duke To Finish Season Unbeaten

N.Y. Times

DURHAM, N. C., Nov. 27—The Golden Panthers of Pittsburgh cashed in on two opportunities afforded by Duke fumbles today to finish an undefeated season with a 10-to-0 victory.

The Rose Bowl champions, high in the running for another bid inspite of an early season scoreless tie with Fordham, found the Blue Devil line tough but showed an overflow crowd of 40,000 that they had punch when needed, even in an intermittent drizzle.

Captain Frank Souchak kicked a 23-yard placement field goal just before the end of the first quarter after he had paved the way by covering Honey Hackney's fumble on Duke's 26. Hackney dropped this slippery ball when hit hard by Ted Schmidt as he tried to catch a punt.

Dick Cassiano made the only touchdown in the second period about four minutes later, when he swept wide off his right end, cut back and raced 14 yards to score standing up. Souchak was rushed in to add the extra point from placement.

Another fumbled punt by Hackney, who saw the wet pigskin slide through his hands on his 13, paved the way. Ed Spotovich covered the ball.

The Blue Devils staged only one real threat. George McAfee, fast-stepping sophomore back, raced brilliantly 47 yards to Pitt's 18 late in the first half. On first down Harwood Smith tossed a pass to McAfee for 6 yards but another flip failed. Smith, back trying a third pass, fumbled when hit by Souchak and Don Hensley covered for Pitt on the 22-yard line.

Pitt accounted for nine first downs while Duke was getting seven, but the Panthers gained 237 yards rushing as the Devils advanced only 60. Pitt tried only five passes, completing two for 5 yards. Duke tried the air twenty-one times, gaining 66 yards on five completions.

Duke kept Marshall Goldberg, Pitt's outstanding backfield candidate for all America honors, closely covered most of the game. He broke loose once for 25 yards around his right end and again for 18, but frequently was thrown for short losses.

Daddio Plays Brilliantly

Bill Daddio and Petro led the Pitt line play. Cassiano was most effective in the backfield.

McAfee's punt return was the longest run of the game as both elevens played alert ball.

Hackney, high-stepping Blue Devil, was kept as well covered as Goldberg but he was always a threat. The entire Duke line showed power. Captain Woodbine Lipscomb, Bob O'Mara, Eric Tipton and Charlie Fischer led the defensive play.

Pitt used two full teams, while Duke made only seven substitutions.

The line-up:

Pittsburgh (10)		Duke (0)
L.E.	Daddio	Hudgins
L.T.	Matisi	Brunansky
L.G.	Lezouski	Badgett

Nagoya Captures Gonfalon In Yomiuri Tourney

Pinchhitter Kojima lashed out a three bagger to center field in the last half of the ninth with two men on and Nagoya defeated the Senators, 4-3, in the final of the Yomiuri's first annual tournament of professional ball teams Monday afternoon at the Korakuen stadium.

Pitcher Noguchi, twirling his final game for the Senators before his entrance into military service next month, was going along in great style up to the beginning of the ninth enjoying a 3 to 2 lead. Shiraki flied out to center but Tanaka nicked Noguchi for a hit through first. Miura walked and Kojima was sent in to bat for Shortstop Kosaka. Noguchi put over a good fast one and Kojima clouted it for a triple to center to bat in Tanaka and Miura and the ball game was over.

The Senators scored two runs off Morii in the first three innings, the second being a homer by Center Fielder Omoda. Thereupon Matsuo was sent to the mound at the outset of the fourth and though Omoda's hit through short sent in another run for the Senators in the fifth, he managed to hold the Senators at bay throughout the rest of the game.

The Lions placed third in the series by beating the Hankyus in the curtain-raiser Monday by a 5-4 score. First Baseman Sakurai of the Lions was the hero of the game by coming through with a homer in the fourth with a man on.

Prince Iyesato Tokugawa, president of the O. O. C. and a member of the I. O. C., will be requested to head the delegation to Cairo.

Werner Klingeberg, technical adviser to the O. O. C., will be a member of the delegation, it has already been decided.

Corinthians Lose Cup Soccer Game

LONDON, Nov. 27—Twenty-five clubs were successful in today's first-round matches for the English cup, soccer's great competition that runs through the Winter sport season. But eighteen of the teams that battled will replay drawn games next week.

Of the sixty-eight squads that sought to hurdle the initial hurdle, forty-one were members of the southern and northern sections of the English League's third division, the remainder being minor leaguers and amateur teams, survivors of many qualifying rounds. Millwall, Notts County and Chester, third division teams, were exempted until the third round.

Outstanding performances sent Scarborough and Guildford, little known elevens, into the second round. The former put Darlington out of the running with a 2—0 decision while Guildford overcame Reading, prominent Southern Section side, 1—0. Corinthians, one of England's most noted amateur clubs, failed to survive, losing, 2—0, to Southend United.

Record 8-to-1 Victory

The surprise of the round was the Queen's Park Rangers' 8—1 victory over the Bristol Rovers. The Rangers sent in three goals in five minutes, then continued to riddle the opposing defense.

Sharing the spotlight in the English League's abbreviated schedule was Brentford's 2—0 shutout by West Bromwich Albion and Aston Villa's hard-earned 1—0 decision over Sheffield United.

Brentford's loss, however, did not materially affect the major circuit standing as Chelsea, runner-up, bowed to Leicester City 1—0, relinquishing the position to Wolverhampton Wanderers, winner over Portsmouth by 5—0.

Art Black, heart of Midlothian's clever center forward, was the toast of Edinburgh after his spectacular performance in Scottish soccer. The circuit's leading sniper towered head and shoulders over teammates, scoring all the goals in his team's 3-to-0 victory over the Glasgow Rangers.

First Defeat Since April 23

It was the Rangers' first defeat since their 3-2 end-of-the-season setback by the lowly Clyde eleven April 23 last.

All down the line form-smashing reversals were recorded in one of the league's most surprising weekend rounds this season. Prominent among point losers were Motherwell, Aberdeen, Patrick Thistle and Third Lanark. Motherwell, now in a point-tie with Hearts at the top, was held to a 3—3 deadlock at Ayr.

Ohio State Beats Michigan, 21-0 As 65,000 LookOn

N. Y. Times

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Nov. 20—Ohio State's Scarlet Tide rolled relentlessly over Michigan's hopes of a winning football season today, vanquishing the Wolverines for the fourth successive year, 21 to 0.

The victory provided some balm for the Buckeyes' Western Conference title aspirations, blasted when Minnesota defeated Wisconsin today to win the championship, and gave them a record for the season of six games won and two lost.

For the Wolverines and their followers among the 65,000 spectators who shivered in freezing temperature and snow, the defeat ended the season on a dismal note. It snapped a four-game winning streak and left Michigan wih a record of four victories and four defeats.

Ohio State, paced by Jim Miller, brilliant halfback, scored two touchdowns through the air and reached scoring position for its third touchdown by the aerial route.

Michigan Braces Valiantly

Its first two points, however, came from a safety scored when Norm Purucker, Michigan punter, was tackled by Charles Ream, Buckeye end, behind the Michigan goal line. The safety came on the first play of the second period, after Michigan had braced valiantly to take the ball on downs on its 3-yard line.

Another Buckeye scoring chance was frustrated when the timer's gun ended the game with the ball on Michigan's 1-yard stripe.

Michigan's only scoring threat ended at the Buckeye 12, where the Wolverines lost the ball on downs. So tight was the Ohio State defense that Michigan had a net gain of only 3 yards from scrimmage and 38 yards from forward passes. The Buckeyes made 194 yards from scrimmage and 91 yards from passes and collected nine first downs to the Wolverines' 3.

Miller scored two of the Ohio touchdowns. Late in the second period he intercepted a Michigan pass, returned it 29 yards, then lateraled to Quarterback Nick Wasylik, who ran another 7 yards to the Michigan 33. On the next play, Miller rifled a pass to Dick Nardi, who was brought down on the 4. Miller plunged over three plays later and Jim McDonald placekicked the extra point.

Takes Ball on Dead Run

Midway in the third period, Wasylik intercepted a Michigan pass on the Wolverine 44. Then Wasylik faded back and shot the ball across the field to Miller, who took the ball on the Michigan 15 on the dead run and raced across the goal line.

In the fourth period Purucker sliced a punt that went out of bounds on the Michigan 29. Wasylik passed to Nardi for a first down on the 13. Then Nardi gathered in Wasylik's fourth-down pass on the 7 and went over for the final touchdown.

"BELIEVE IT OR NOT"---by Ripley

Armored Umpire

June 12, 1912, was the date baseball invaded Europe, when a team of American players, who had been invited to introduce baseball to the German people, arrived in Berlin. On the field of battle were the American players and the German team, made up of nine picked men who had lived in the United States and knew the rules of baseball. The great crowd knew nothing about our national sport, and apparently the Umpire did not either. Adding zest and a bit of European color to the occasion, the latter appeared on the diamond in a complete suit of armor, as if prepared for a real jousting bout. Undoubtedly he had heard of the pop bottle barrages and was taking no chances.

De Soto Discovered His Own Grave

Hernan de Soto (1496-1542) Spanish conquistadore, died in 1542 after penetrating as far north as Kentucky. His companions, fearing that the Indians might dishonor their leader's grave, hallowed out the trunk of an evergreen oak tree, weighted it down with armor, and after placing the body within it, sank it by night in the Mississippi River, which De Soto had discovered.

Notre Dame Downs U.S.C. On Last-Half Attack, 13-6

N.Y. Herald Tribune

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Nov. 27—Striking twice from long range with their "perfect play," Notre Dame's scrapping Irish ended their severest schedule in history today with a 13-to-6 victory over Southern California.

The courageous Trojans, conceded little chance of whipping Notre Dame, stunned 45,000 Notre Dame followers with a thirty-yard touchdown march in the second period. But Notre Dame came back with fury, breaking loose little Andy Puplis for a fifty-nine-yard touchdown run in the third period, and Mario Tonelli for a snaking sixty-nine-yard dash that set up the winning touchdown that set up the winning touchdown with less than three minutes to play.

Tonelli, still out of breath from his long gallop to Southern California's 13-yard line, plunged over for the second Irish touchdown from the 3-yard line. Pupils, who missed the try for point in the third period, booted the thirteenth point.

Seventh Victory in Series

It was Notre Dame's sixth victory of the season and the seventh for the Irish in their unbroken twelve-year series with the Trojans.

Without those siege-gun drives off tackle, it might have been a different story. Notre Dame received the opening kick-off and shot its only offensive thunder of the first half in the first two minutes of play—a sixty-one-yard march that finally ended on Southern California's 34.

From that point on, the Trojans carried the fight to their foes with such power that a touchdown was the only possible result. It came in the second period, shortly after Elmer Layden shot in his second team.

Jack McCarthy, only starter remaining in the Notre Dame line-up, bounced a short punt out of bounds on his own 30. Grenville Lansdell, sophomore quarterback, and Bill Sangster, fullback, hammered the center of Notre Dame's line for a first down on the 20, then another on the 9. Sangster picked up two more and Lansdell dropped back into the tailback position for the second-down attempt.

Hibbs Goes Over

Lansdell took a direct pass from center and flipped a short flat pass to Gene Hibbs, left end. Hibbs dodged away from Ennio Arboit on the 2-yard line and scored in the extreme corner of the end zone.

The Irish were throttled until midway through the third period. Then, taking the ball on their own 21 after an exchange of punts, they moved twenty yards up the field on two bucks by Ed Simonich.

On the third attempt, Puplis took the ball instead of Simonich. He raced far to his right as Simonich and McCormick mowed down would-be tacklers, cut back over right tackle and streaked diagonally across the field for fifty-nine yards and a touchdown with half the Trojans in desperate pursuit.

Charles (Chuck) Williams, U.S.C. captain, blocked Pupils' try for the extra point.

Again in the fourth period a short Notre Dame punt—this one was returned fourteen yards to Notre Dame's 33—put the Irish in a hole. Puplis ended the threat by intercepting Lansdell's pass on the 12-yard line and Notre Dame began to point for another touchdown.

McCarthy and McCormick moved the ball to the 23, but Puplis was thrown back on the 18. Tonelli then burst through a hole at the weak side of the line. Running to his left, he cut back as Harry Stevenson and Jack McCarthy cut down the nearest tacklers, raced to the U. S. C.'s 13 before Owen Hansen caught up with him and tripped him with one hand as Hansen fell on his face.

An offside penalty made it a first down on the 8. Tonelli then plunged over left guard and Puplis place-kicked the extra point.

Tonelli, however, lacked Andy's speed. He was in the clear with a blocker ahead to wipe out the safety man, but Tonelli was caught from behind.

British Poloists To Challenge U.S.

N.Y. Times

LONDON, Nov. 22.—The powers that be in the British polo world have decided to send a challenge to the United States Polo Association for a series of matches in September, 1939, for the Westchester Cup, it was learned tonight.

The challenge will be issued by the Hurlingham Club within the next few months, and although it is too early to predict the team, Britain feels she will be able to win revenge for the lean years since the World War. Great comfort was derived from the British team's good showing in the cup matches of 1936, when the British challengers lost the first game by only one goal and put up a close fight in the second.

It is understood that ways and means are being sought to remedy Britain's troubles with inferior ponies before the new invasion, but the details are closely guarded.

Expected by U. S. Officials

That Great Britain will challenge the United States for a 1939 renewal of the international polo series for the Westchester Cup comes as no great surprise to polo officials here, for it has been expected ever since the September visit of Lieut. Col. R. G. Ritson, chairman of the Hurlingham Club and head of the British Polo Association.

While here to witness the open championships, Lieut. Col. Ritson on several occasions was the guest of Robert E. Strawbridge Jr., chairman of the board of governors of the United States Polo Association. They discussed ways and means for a British challenge, and Mr. Strawbridge reported to his board on these conversations.

Although no commitments to this effect have been made, it is hoped to have the 1939 international series tie up in some way with the New York World's Fair, perhaps as part of the fair's general sports program. This, of course, does not necessarily mean that the matches would be held anywhere other than at the Meadow Brook Club at Westbury, L. I.

Eleven Series Played

The Westchester Cup series between the United States and Great Britain dates back to 1886. Eleven series have been played since that time, the United States having been victorious in eight. The Americans have held uninterrupted possession of the international trophy since 1921, having swept all five of the matches held since that year.

The last match was held in London in 1938. That was the first encounter under a new agreement providing for the matches to be played in the alternate countries at three-year intervals, regardless of which held possession of the cup.

It is known that Great Britain has been planning its challenge with great care ever since the 1936 defeat and that every effort is being made on the other side to develop players and secure ponies of a caliber calculated to insure a successful invasion. Great Britain makes no secret of the fact that it has high hopes this time.

Nebraska Kick Wins, 3-0 Over Kansas State

MANHATTAN, Kan., Nov. 27—Lowell English, a guard, dropped back to the Kansas State 23-yard line in the final twenty seconds of the second quarter today and on a snow-glazed field placed-kicked Nebraska to its third straight Big Six football championship. In a stadium quiet except for the chattering teeth of 6,000 benumbed fans, English calmly scored the only points of a frigid afternoon.

The alert Huskers capitalized on a break for their score. Kansas State, with the ball in its 6-yard line, attempted to kill time by nudging the line. On the second plunge Bob Briggs fumbled and Gus Peters and Paul Amen recovered for the Huskers on the Kansas State 15. Biff Jones, Nebraska coach, sent in Johnny Howell. Howell promptly eased his way around left end to the center of the field, then called the place-kick play which meant the ball game.

It was a vivid Nebraska passing game, with Thurston Phelps on the chucking end. Kansas State presented a ground attack, with Howard Cleveland the chief rambler. Phelps did a remarkable job of passing and numbed fingers of receivers apparently robbed the Huskers of two touchdowns. In the second quarter Elmer Dohrmann dropped a long pass that was squarely in his hand as he surged over the goal. In the final quarter Jack Dodd muffed a forty-yard pass under similar circumstances.

Only once did Huskers fans become really alarmed. At the start of the third period Briggs surged through the Nebraska line for twenty-two yards and Cleveland followed with a fifteen-yard gain to the Husker 25. Here the Nebraskans put the Kansas State offense in reverse.

Personnel To I.O.C. Meeting At Cairo To Be Decided Jan. 10

Indications are that the personnel of the Tokyo Olympic Organizing Committee to attend the general meeting of the International Olympic Committee scheduled to open at Cairo on March 10 will not be decided until the O. O. C.'s session on January 10, for the reason that Prince Iyesato Tokugawa, chairman of the O. O. C., will be unable to decide by next Monday when it meets whether he will be able to go.

Dr. Hiroshi Shimomura, newly elected president of the Japan Amateur Athletic Federation, is expected to be vice-chairman of the delegation. Werner Klingeberg, technical adviser to the O. O. C., will also attend the Cairo meeting.

Drake Tops Miami In Late Drive, 7-0

MIAMI, Fla., Nov. 26—Drake University of Des Moines, Iowa, staged a 45-yard-touchdown march early in the fourth period to defeat the University of Miami, 7 to 0, in an intersectional football game tonight.

After being held at bay within Miami's 10-yard line, Drake's power attack started to work late in the third. A 15-yard dash by Bud Suter and short line thrusts by Pug Manders and Bob Underwood took the ball to the 11-yard line, from where Suter cut through tackle and scored standing up. Phil Manders place-kicked the extra point.

The second period was played in Drake territory, although Miami could get no closer to the Iowans' goal than the 20. Drake made sixteen first downs to Miami's six. The game was witnessed by 8,952 fans.

L.S.U. Defeats Tulane, 20 To 7, Before 40,000

N.Y. Herald Tribune

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 27—Louisiana State's Tigers, stopped cold on the ground, tossed their way to a 20-to-7 victory today over Tulane's Greenies before 40,000 fans.

Deadly flings from the arms of Bussey and Cajoleas put the Bengals in front after Tulane had gained an early lead on Honest John Andrews' fifty-nine-yard touchdown—

Andrews reached high to snatch an aerial flung by L. S. U.'s Pinky Rohm in the opening period, and showed his heels to the Tiger secondary all the way to the goal line. Mattis booted the extra point.

Realizing his running attack was futile against the hard-charging Tulane line, Bernie Moore rushed his shock troops into the battle at the beginning of the second period, and they turned the tide.

With Bussey slinging and Steel and Ken Kavanaugh receiving, the Tigers pushed to the Tulane 9. Bussey suffered an eleven-yard loss on an end swing, but came right back on the next play with a perfect toss into the arms of Kavanaugh across the goal line. Cajoleas' try from placement was wide.

A long punt return in the third period gave the Bengals the ball on Tulane's 44. After slicing through tackle for four yards, Bussey faded back and tossed to Kavanaugh for thirty-one yards on the Greenies' 9. Steel plunged to the 5, and Milner prepared to try a place kick with Cajoleas holding. The pass from center was low. Cajoleas grabbed the ball, dashed back five yards and pitched it straight into the arms of Larry King, Tiger end, who fell across the goal line. Milner converted.

Rohm paved the way for Louisiana State's final touchdown, returning a punt eighteen yards to Tulane's 26. Morton picked up seventeen on line smashes, and Rohm sliced off tackle to score standing up. Milner again kicked the extra point.

Many Hardships

One day Aikawasan might become a great man."

It was in 1900 that he was admitted into the engineering department of the Tokyo Imperial University where he took up mechanics. It was since those days that his peculiar way of observing things and ways of feeling began to reveal his specific character. But all that he thought and studied were confined within the limits of his professional learning. He was not at all satisfied, unless he went into thorough investigation. Not a minute was wasted in his life. He made steady progress towards his object. He never went out if it was not for the purpose of investigation or for the inspection of factories. It was in July, 1903, that he graduated with honors from the engineering department of the Tokyo Imperial University.

Life In America

He studied more than two years at the Shibaura factory as a workman. During his two years' service in the factory he realized the necessity of doing "malleable iron work" in Japan. He determined to go to America to study about "malleable iron." At Shibaura he saved enough money to go to America.

"It is very convenient, for I am thinking of sending my son to America to study, and I shall be very much obliged, if you will take him with you to America." So asked director A. of a certain big company. Accordingly, it was agreed that Aikawa should go with his son. The director told Aikawa that he would pay all the passage fare, if he would go by 1st class, but Aikawa flatly refused. "I am not going to make a pleasure tour to America. I do not like my passage fare to be paid by others. If you insist on me to go by the 1st class, I do not like to go with your son." They went to America by the 3rd class.

When he arrived in America he got permission to work in a certain casting factory of the G. K. Company as a probationer. He received weekly wages of $5. He stayed in the factory chief's house for about a year. Most of the workers in America weighed more than 93 kg. He was awe-stricken because of their large bodies, but he soon was engaged in the work of carrying red ingot iron from the furnace to the mould by means of receptacles. It is the custom of Japanese casters to handle receptacles which weigh 18.75 kg, but the workers in America handle receptacles which weigh even 40 kg. or so. In the beginning he thought it was impossible to continue such laborious work. He thought to himself that to give up the work half way was a national disgrace. So he determined to carry on till the last moment. And in course of time he was able to work like the foreign workers. Finally he was able to realize that the labor efficiency of Japanese was not inferior to that of the Europeans. He came to realize that even in Japan it was possible to carry on the iron industry, if the technique and equipments were ready.

Tobata Casting Company

When he succeeded in acquiring complete knowledge in the technique of "malleable iron," he returned to Japan in 1909, and established the Tobata Casting Company. His house was not rich, but happily he had many rich relatives. He was able to get his starting capital from the houses of Mitsui, Kuhara, Kaijima and Fujita. But several years after the establishment of the company, it had fallen into a very difficult position. In the beginning, he thought that it was possible to carry on the enterprise with a capital of ¥300,000, but even if he increased the capital to ¥600,000, he found it impossible to manage the company, and finally the company was reduced to such a situation that it was impossible for him to save the company from ruin without the additional capital of ¥400,000 or ¥500,000. The condition of the company was such that it was impossible for the company to pay the workers' wages. In those days the house of Kaijima was suffering owing to depression in the coal mining industry, and at the same time the house of Kuhara was suffering owing to the fall in the price of copper. He could not get assistance even from the Mitsuibussankaisha. The only house left for him to ask assistance was the house of Fujita. At that time the master of the house was dead, and the household affairs were managed by the women. In the end he went to this house for consultation. "Are you sure that you can accomplish your enterprise with that extra capital?" The widow asked thus in a calm tone.

"Of course I have confidence," Aikawa said. "Then I shall act according to your wish," the widow answered. She had given prompt consent with pleasure. Then she continued "I remember my husband say, Aikawa is a man who can do the work with sincerity, and therefore I wish to help his work if possible. So I am going to help you simply to follow the will of my deceased husband, and I am sure he will be pleased to know that I am helping you. But I wonder whether it is right for me to help you without consulting the other three houses. Do they not think that you are doing the work for the house of Fujita?"

"It is indeed a reasonable question, but for that point please do not be worried. Originally, I started this work for two reasons. One is for the purpose of developing the mechanical industry in Japan, while the other purpose was to give jobs to a great number of people. If I can save the regular members and the workers of the company, it does not much matter about the source of the capital. Of course as regards this matter I shall inform the three houses."

Thus, with this last ¥400,000 the Tobata Casting Company recovered from ruin. And soon after a boom came owing to the Great World War. It was in those days that the foundation of the company was firmly established. While in a foreign land, he had suffered from severe illness; he spent many sleepless nights because of his misfortunes. But he was able to overcome all these difficulties. Even from his life we can see the great human power.

Loves Plain Life

Even when he had become president of the great company he is not at all particular about his personal appearances. He is satisfied with plain life. His enterprise is his life. He puts on the workmen's grey overalls and works with his workers. Sometimes he is mistaken for a servant. A few years ago his father died, but his mother is still living in Chofu. Whenever New Year comes he takes all the members of his family to Chofu, and spends some happy days with his eighty-year-old mother. It is said that he served his aged parents like a nurse.

Nissan's Capital Is ¥1,100,000,000

It is said that the total capital of all the companies to which he is related amounts to ¥1,100,000,000. The capital of the Nihonsangyo alone amounts to ¥200,000,000. The total number of shareholders of the company is 5,000,000, while the number of employes reaches 130,000. If there are five members in a house, he is said to support 600,000 people. He is now advancing towards Manchoukuo, and the people are paying particular attention to his future activities.

In the case of Mitsui, the shares belong to eleven huoses, while in the case of Mitsubishi, the shares belong to two houses. That is why if the business is prosperous, the wealth of these plutocrats will increase. But in the case of the Nihonsangyo it is not so; the shareholders are scattered throughout the country. Even if the business is successful it is not Mr. Aikawa alone that becomes rich, and if the business is unsuccessful, all the shareholders who are scattered throughout the country suffer. Mr. Aikawa is a man who knows how to differentiate between private and public works. He is a business man who can manage the enterprise rationally.

Viscount Shibusawa

believe the commotion in Japan will not cease for sometime. Nay, the nation will suffer from increasing confusion. Facing such a situation it will be unwise for Your Highness to give up your study just begun and return. It is highly desirable that Your Highness complete your study and increase your knowledge about politics and military tactics, thus enriching your experience and broadening your views." The Prince expressed his hearty appreciation to the minister for the courteous advice and yet told him that it was impossible for him to conform to it. The Prince's reply was as follows. "The ex-Shogun retired to Mito at the behest of the new Government. Moreover, there came an official note from Mito urging my return. It amounts to a command from the last Shogun to which there is no way open for me but to obey. Your Excellency's timely suggestion is deeply appreciated, although I profoundly regret my inability to accede to it." The Minister was disappointed not a little, but the argument was too obvious for him to refute. On the 22nd of September the two men Isaka and Hattori, who had been dispatched to escort the Prince back home, arrived at Paris and the conditions at home were minutely explained to the Prince. From then on the Viscount's time was occupied by the preparation for the departure. Various items had to be attended to. The first one was confer with the French Government on behalf of the Prince. Emperor Napoleon III had pursued the policy of promoting cordial relations with Japan, and purposed to strengthen his policy by keeping the Prince in France as long as possible. The Emperor and his Government seemed to have been in perfect harmony in such a policy. The conference was a delicate one, but the Viscount succeeded in making his point clear in regard to the immediate return of the Prince. Other items discussed were the dismissal of the Prince's tutors; the financial preparation for the homeward journey of the Prince and his party; and the account with the owner of the "temporary residence" for which the Prince had paid rent in advance covering three years. Every thing having been satisfactorily settled, the Prince made his farewell call on the Emperor and the high officials of his Government, and he and his suite left France on board an English steamer in the middle part of October 1868. This concludes the colorful journey of Prince Mimbu and his suite.

Trend of Rayon

with the country seems hopeless.

Trade with the Philippines has increased rapidly in recent years, and amounted to ¥3,600,000 for 1936. The import duties are very high there, but no import restrictions are set. Trade with that place is thought to have a bright future.

Trade has been steadily on the increase with the Federation of South Africa, and ranges yearly around ¥6,000,000. The import tariff is very high there, but imports are not restricted. At least the present volume of business might be retained.

What future will be before the Japanese rayon fabric trade then? The same authority considers that an optimistic view cannot be taken with regard to it. But he proposes a way to meet the present import restrictions and high customs barriers, that the quality of export rayon fabrics should be improved and their value enhanced by it, so that the loss in their exports in quantity might be compensated for by a gain in value.

than three American manufacturers are prepared to build such ships."

The 150,000-pound boats are to be followed "as quickly as traffic warrants" by 300,000-pound boats, the report went on; "thus the development of transocean flying boats may be expected to continue for many years."

The chamber took exception to proposals for government-subsidized airship services. Its report, covering sixty-seven pages, is called "Superiority of Flying Boats in Transocean Service."

Pacific Flights Cited

Summarizing the deevlopment of flying boats since the World War, the report describes the present Pacific service of the Pan American Airways and its plans for Atlantic service.

A table comparing a Zeppelin of 7,000,000 cubic feet with a fleet of six flying boats of the Boeing Model 314 is presented on the basis of cost and performance. The airship's cost is estimated at $4,000,000 and that of the boats at $4,320,000. In transatlantic service the Zeppelin would carry eighty passengers and each boat would carry 30,000 pounds of cargo and the six boats 33,900 pounds.

The "boats can make fourteen Atlantic trips a week as compared to the airship's two," the report added.

Edward P. Farley, president of the American Zeppelin Transport Corporation, said last night that he was "pleased to note the Maritime Commission favors use of lighter-than-air craft."

"We who are interested in airships believe in their continued development," he said. "Our faith is predicated on years of service. Our new plans will be announced in the near future, and meanwhile it ill becomes us to discuss the biased statement issued by the chamber."

Radium

Radium—that rare and highly invaluable cancer-treating element—the best known and most important member of the radio-elements, was discovered by Prof. and Mme. Pierre Curie and G. Bemont of Paris in 1898. To produce even a minute portion of radium, hundreds of tons of uranium ore must be worked, making the cost very high and the supply pitifully small.

By modern mining and refining machinery, however, the cost has been cut from $125,000 to $25,000 per gram, and the available supply is being increased constantly. A new plant at Radium City, northern Canada, produces only 2½ grams per month, under the direction of Dr. Marcel Pochon, former pupil of the Curies. Dr. Pochon says that all the radium ever recovered in the world is less than one-and-one-half pounds, and would not make a cube two inches on a side.

SENROKU FOUNDRY

The Ito Senroku Foundry, one of the leading producers of stoves, heaters, machinery and other foundry products in Kawaguchi City, is located at 2515, Motogo-machi 3-chome, Kawaguchi City, Saitama Prefecture. Capitalized at ¥1,000,000 and employing more than 300 workmen this firm produces 15,000 tons of goods every year.

Stanford Averts Defeat At Hands Of Columbia In Scoreless Tie Game

By EVERETT B. MORRIS

N.Y. Herald Tribune

NEW YORK, Nov. 23—Columbia's battered, schedule-weary football squad closed its soultrying season in the rain and mist at Baker Field yesterday afternoon on the high note of a dramatic scoreless tie with the vaunted Stanford Cardinals from California.

This stand-off between the speed and power of the Palo Alto Indians and the courage and aerial finesse of the Morningside Heights Lions rendered 20,000 spectators impervious to the elements with its furious combativeness, tense situations and flaming heroics.

As though the principals were following the script of a Hollywood melodrama, the action built up to a tremendous fourth-period climax in which Columbia was within an eyelash of a score one moment and desperately defending its own goal from the assaults of the resurgent Cardinals the next.

Running Punt Averts Safety

In those breath-taking last minutes, Columbia missed a touchdown by three yards, was deprived of what would have been a game-winning safety by a sensational running punt out of the end zone by Peter Fay. Stanford's superlative sophoback to its 15-yard mark by the fury and swiftness of the Cardinals' counter attack.

Stalled there by sudden arousing of Columbia's heavily outmanned frontier, Stanford rushed in Bill Luckett, its place-kicking specialist, to try for a field goal from the 20-yard stripe with a minute to play. While the crowd stood tense and silent, Luckett plowed his right foot into the ball and sent it soaring over the upstretched hands of the inrushing Columbia linesmen toward the uprights thirty-five yards away. The kick was high, but way off line to the left and a roar of relief went up from the Columbia stands when the referee signaled "no goal."

Columbia stalled out the remaining time with three slams at the Stanford line and thus ended the third game between the teams that began their rivalry in the Rose Bowl three years ago. Stanford has still to score on Columbia, having lost the two previous games by scores of 7 to 0. And, be it noted, the vile weather which seems to dog these Columbia-Stanford battle still persists.

Statistically there was little to choose between the hard-hitting adversaries. Columbia earned ten first downs to Stanford's nine and made three yards less in running and passing from scrimmage than did the Indians. But the chart reveals that Columbia was within hailing distance of a score four times and that Stanford moved in there twice. Columbia was stopped once in each period at the 17, 16, 24 and 3 yard marks. Stanford drove sixty yards to Columbia's 21 in the first quarter and then went sixty-five in eight plays to the Lions' 14 before Luckett made his unsuccessful try for a field goal.

Fay Stars for Visitors

Stanford did its greatest execution on the deer-like sprinting of Fay and the hard-driving running of Bill Paulman and his fullback understudy, John Brigham. Columbia, as has been its custom all year, moved principally on the sharp-shooting forward passing of Sid Luckman and a sprinkling of downfield laterals breaking out of both running and passing plays.

For all of its dearth of scoring the game had few dull moments. What with Fay running all over the field, Paulman running, passing and punting, Luckman firing the wet ball to the glue-fingered Art Radvilas or galloping off the Stanford tackles and heaving lateral passes to trailers, there was excitement aplenty for those who huddled under umbrellas, newspapers and raincoats in the open stands.

The greatest play of all, though, was that on which Fay averted what looked like an inevitable safety. These are the developments which led up to his unusual play, one that won the admiration of friend and foe and officials for its timeliness, daring and execution.

John Naylor, Columbia's sophomore right halfback, had pounced on a fumble by Paulman, who lost the ball when he was bent in half by a rousing tackle on Stanford's 19-yard mark. One play lost a yard, another made no progress; then, on third down, Naylor scampered off the Stanford left tackle for twelve yards behind the exemplary blocking of Snavely and Seidel. A great tackle by Bill McElroy, right end, dumped a Columbia reverse for a nine-yard loss, but Luckman slashed over the Cardinal left to the 6-yard mark on the next play.

On fourth down with goal to go Columbia resorted to a Luckman-Naylor lateral directed at Stanford's right, but Naylor was stopped three yards out by Louis Tsoutsouvas, 205-pound Indian center. Columbia's best touchdown chance had gone glimmering, but there was still a chance for victory if the Stanford punt could be blocked. Fay dropped back into the end zone to kick. The pass from center was high and to his left. He had to jump for it to prevent it going beyond the end line for an automatic safety.

Fay Performs Miracle

When he came back to earth the Lions were surging toward him. He could not kick, so he tried to run the ball out. He was hemmed in on all sides. It seemed inevitable that he would be thrown for a safety and the resulting two points would give Columbia a victory. But somehow, as he was running full tilt to his right with three Lions reaching for his legs, he kicked the ball through a few inches of daylight and the leather bounced out of play on Stanford's 41-yard mark.

This heroic and most unusual play caused the Columbia supporters to rise and applaud.

Columbia apparently felt after this turn of events that a tie was all it could hope for. Because, on fourth down, with two feet to go for a first down on Stanford's 31, Luckman punted over the goal line. This gave Stanford its last hope and the Cardinals promptly went to town.

The galloping Fay ran a reverse over Columbia's left flank to his 45-yard line and then, as he was stopped, lateraled to McElroy, who went another nine yards before he was tackled. With Fay and Brigham running behind terrific blocking, Stanford went in seven plays to a first down on Columbia's 15. There Columbia's line became adamant, yielded only a yard in stopping three running plays, and Tiny Thornhill had to rush Luckett in to make a placement attempt from directly in front of the posts but thirty-five yards out.

Hanada Beats Motochi Easily In 8-Rd. Bout

Yoichiro Hanada, professional flyweight champion of Japan, proved too clever for Sadao Motochi, the Kansai champion, in their eight round bout Saturday night in the main event of the smoker staged at the Hibiya Public Hall auditorium under the auspices of the Teikoku Boxing Club.

Motochi was game but he was unable to get through Hanada's speedy defense. The latter on the other hand scored with an effective straight left and a right uppercut.

Georgia Tech Held To Tie By Georgia

N.Y. Times

ATLANTA, Nov. 27—Georgia's Bulldogs and the Engineers of Georgia Tech, arch rivals of the gridiron since 1893, battled to a 6-to-6 stalemate today.

Featuring the somewhat surprising outcome which brought the deadlock to a Georgia team that failed to penetrate Georgia Tech territory a single time was Captain Bill Hartman's 93-yard touchdown run on the opening kick-off of the third period.

Although the Engineers five times drove deep into scoring terrain only to be turned back by a determined line and pass defense, Georgia Tech had to capitalize on a Georgia fumble for its lone score.

Pass to 1-Yard Line

Oliver Hunnicutt fumbled and Georgia Tech again recovered on the 17, while some 14,000 Georgia partisans of a capacity crowd of 28,000 that jammed Grant Field yelled for the Bulldogs to rise defensively.

But the Engineers connected with one of their surprisingly few completed passes when Captain Fletcher Sims laid the ball into the hands of Dutch Konemann, who got to the 1.

Sims then plunged over for the score, but his try for the point was blocked by Center Quinton Lumpkin.

In the first period Georgia Tech marched from the Georgia 43 to the 13 and there Sims' try for a field goal from the 21 missed badly. The Engineers came right back, but passes missed their target and Georgia took the ball at the 9.

Tech Presses On

In the fourth period Georgia Tech, behind the fine kicking of Captain Sims, kept Georgia on its heels. On two occasions the Engineers menaced the goal, moving once to the 26 and then to the 15. But the Georgia line would not give, and Sims' passes were batted down by the Georgia ball-hawkers.

The final threat came in the last minute and was killed by Vasso Cate's pass interception on the Georgia 2. This was the fifth deadlock in the long series. Georgia has won sixteen times and Georgia Tech eleven.

Pro Football Is Popular On Pacific Coast

Christian Science Monitor

LOS ANGELES—"Pro" football has come of age here.

Making their debut into big-league competition this year, the Los Angeles Bulldogs are tackling the second half of their American League schedule after having made a clean sweep in their eastern swing to lead the conference.

Football fans are giving their approval by nearly filling the 20,000 seats of Gilmore Stadium on every date. They have shown their desire to witness good play, regardless of eligibility rules, and the promoters are convinced that the sports public can be given what it wants as long as colleges graduate players whose names are known to sports-page readers everywhere.

Sponsored by Legion

Here, commercialism in football has taken a back seat, due to the sponsorship of the schedule by the American Legion. Star players have been attracted by the comparatively high salaries which are netting as much as $100 a week to each of the first-string players on the championship squad. This willingness on the part of the American Legion promoters to share the gate receipts between players and its forms of charity is one of the factors which has built up the title-bound club in a single year.

The present squad grew out of the pick-up "pro" elevens which have been trying to establish the game here for many years. Last year the Bulldogs, in winning seven out of 10 games, made such an impressive showing that they became the first Pacific Coast team to join either the American or National circuits.

In their eastern swing the Bulldogs had much at stake, and the continued attendance at games on their return is the fruit of their eastern success, for a nation-leading team is a big gate attraction. Furthermore, the gate receipts have to be large enough to take care of the added travel expense of league members who ordinarily do not have to go so far for play.

Perfect Eastern Record

Here is the perfect record for the eastern tour: 21 to 0 over Pittsburgh, 27 to 6 over New York, 20 to 9 over Rochester, 14 to 0 over Boston, 13 to 7 over Providence, 28 to 7 over Bristol, and 17 to 7 over Cincinnati.

In their opening game here on Nov. 7 for the home stand, the Bulldogs defeated, 13 to 0, the Salinas Iceberg Packers, an independent team from northern California's garden valley. These Packers are the only other squad of major proportions yet organized on the coast, as indicated by its record of wins prior to that game: 21 to 7 over the Hollywood Stars, 53 to 0 over the San Francisco All-Stars, 42 to 0 over the San Diego Padres, and 32 to 7 over the Hollywood Stars.

In their second home game, the Bulldogs defeated by 48 to 21 the Rochester Tigers in as wild a game as Los Angeles fans have ever seen. The Bulldogs managed to win, but the superlative playing of the day was that of Harry Newman, Tiger back from the University of Michigan, who tossed 32 forward passes, of which 14 were complete and one intercepted.

Players on the Squad

The Bulldog varsity includes Bernie Hughes, 192-pound center from the University of Oregon and the Chicago Cardinals; M. B. "Bert" Pearson, 190-pound guard from Kansas State and the two Chicago professional teams, the Bears and Cardinal teams, the Bears and Cardinals; Harold Wickersham, 196-pound back from Tulsa, where he played under the Bulldogs' present coach, Elmer "Gloomy Gus" Henderson, who was head coach at the University of Southern California before Howard Jones; Homer Beatty, the 192-pound blocking back who intercepted that Notre Dame pass last year to tie the score for U.S.C.; Ray Clemons, 205-pound guard from the Central State Teachers College; Peter J. Mehringer, 210-pound guard from Kansas and the Chicago Cardinals (also 1932 Olympic wrestling title-holder); Stephen Sinko, 235-pound tackle from Duquesne and the Boston Redskins; Gail O'Brien, in weight and place of Sinko, from Nebraska and Boston; Harry Field, 245-pound linesman, Hawaiian-born alumnus of Oregon State College; Ray Richards, 230-pound tackle from Nebraska and Chicago Bears; Malcolm "Ike" Frankian, 205-pound end from St. Mary's and the New York Giants; Jerry Donnell, 203-pound guard from Oregon where he played full-back; W. J. Moore, 190-pound end from North Carolina University who began his pro career last year with the Bulldogs; W. H. Waller, 190-pound end from the University of Illinois; Gordon Gore, 235-pound back from Oklahoma's Southwest Teachers College; Dan Barnhart, 210-pound back from Centenary; William Howard, 185-pound triple-threat back from the University of Southern California; Ed Stark, 165-pound back from Oklahoma Baptist College; Al Nichelini, 215-pound back who starred at St. Mary's; David Davis, 185-pound all-around star for Troy's backfield last year; Verde Boyer, 210-pound all-coast guard from U.C.L.A.; and Cal Clemens, ace backfield star from U.S.C.

Like Open Football

Coast fans who like open football with lots of scoring take to pro football like bees to honey. They are convinced that the difference in rules is as much responsible for the sparkling play as is the advantage in seasoning of pro players as compared with undergraduates.

"Pro" rules require or allow:

The receiving team to line up in any position beyond the 10-yard restraining line at the kick-off; the kicking team to use a natural tee of soil for the kick-off; the flying block and tackle; pazs from any point behind the line of scrimmage, with incomplete pazses behind the line becoming fumbles and free balls; the ball to remain in play until a runner is completely stopped and not when any portion of his person except his hands or feet touch the ground; a clipping penalty of 25 yards; substitutes to communicate with teammates immediately instead of waiting until one play is run; goal-posts placed on the goal line instead of 10 yards back in the end zone; and other variations from amateur rules.

The defending American League champions, the Boston Shamrocks, invaded the local gridiron recently to avenge the eastern defeat.

This similarity to baseball and its opportunity to have return matches make pro football popular with many fans.

Other games scheduled in the near future are the return games with the New York Yankees on Thanksgiving Day, Nov. 25, and the Cincinnati eleven on Dec. 12. Other games are being scheduled, and one each may be played in San Diego and San Francisco against the best opposition available.

Girls Smash 2 Skating Marks In Mukden Meet

Two national records were smashed in the Mukden ice skating championships on December 25 and 26 at the Kokusai Rink there.

Miss Yasko Eshima of the Naniwa Higher Girls School set a new record in the 3,000 meter race for women when she negotiated the distance in the excellent time of 5 minutes 58.1 seconds.

Miss Yasuko Funyo of the Asahi Higher Girls School hung up a new mark of 10 minutes 14.9 seconds in the women's 5,000 meter race. Miss Eshima also finished under the former record when she was clocked in 10 minutes 19.2 seconds

The former records were 6 minutes 14.5 seconds and 10 minutes 20.3 seconds respectively.

Auburn Conquers Florida, 14 To 0

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Nov. 27—Auburn closed out a backbreaking football schedule today with a 14-to-0 victory over Florida.

Diving deep into 'Gator territory on numerous advances, Auburn relied on Jimmy Fenton and Spec Kelly, a pair of top-notch backs, to puncture Florida's fine goal-line defense.

Fenton gave the Tigers their first touchdown in the opening period on a 29-yard jaunt around left end. His dash climaxed a 42-yard drive touched off by Kelly's 25-yard return of a punt.

Capitalize on Short Kick

A short out-of-bounds punt, kicked by Walter Mayberry when the Florida captain was rushed, put the Tigers in position for their other touchdown late in the final period.

A pass, Kelly to Max Harrison, gained 18 of the 31 yards separating Auburn from the Florida goal line. From the 5, Kelly cut around right end on a reverse and outran the Florida secondary to the goal.

Fenton place-kicked both extra points, making his record for the season perfect, with nine out of nine.

Play on Muddy Field

Between touchdowns, Florida managed to hold the superior Auburn team at bay despite the fact the Plainsmen outgained the 'Gaters by a wide margin and ran up thirteen first downs to six.

The field, boggy from a two-day rain, made slippery footing. Some 8,000 persons watched the game.

Boston College Put To Rout By Holy Cross, 20-0

N.Y. Herald Tribune

BOSTON, Nov. 27—Paced by Bullet Bill Osmanski, twice-tied Holy Cross climaxed an undefeated campaign today by smothering Boston College, 20 to 0, in their thirty-fifth annual combat before a capacity crowd of more than 40,000.

The hard-running fullback from Providence flashed all of the form that made him a sensation in 1936 to hand Boston College its worst defeat in the series since 1924. His brilliant running set up the first touchdown. He scored the second and third.

In completing its first undefeated season since 1934, Holy Cross scored once in all but the first period. The victory was the eighth this season, only scoreless ties with Temple and Carnegie Tech marring the record.

For Boston the defeat marked the end of the most disastrous campaign in recent years, with only four victories to show against four defeats and a scoreless tie.

Boston College Crumples

After putting up a dogged fight in the first half, Boston's offense and defense crumpled almost completely in the final half. Statistics showed Holy Cross had the edge in every department except passing and kicking.

The Worcester Crusader piled up fourteen first downs against Boston's eleven and gained 196 yards by rushing against 69 for Boston, which completed eleven of twenty-four passes for 157 yards, while Holy Cross completed five of fourteen for 77 yards.

Two goal-line stands stopped Holy Cross in the opening period after it had advanced first to the 3-yard line and then to the 3.

Holy Cross Uses Laterals

Two Holy Cross touchdown resulted directly from recovery of Boston laterals.

In the second period, Henry Giardi pounced on a grounded lateral on Boston's 46. It required eleven plays for Holy Cross to complete the fifty-four-yard touchdown march, Ronnie Cahill, sophomore, carrying across on a reverse from the 5-yard line. Osmanski carried the ball seven times for thirty-nine yards in this drive.

A sixty-five-yard parade after the second-half kick-off was climaxed when Osmanski swept his left end for a score. Jim Turner place-kicked the extra point. In this advance, Osmanski picked up thirty-four yards on three running plays and snared a Cahill pass that chewed up fifteen yards.

Osmanski paved the way for the final touchdown by recovering Jim Kissell's fumble of a lateral on Boston's 37. Two line plays carried to the 23. Cahill then swept his right end and as he was tackled, lateraled to Osmanski, who raced along the sideline for nineteen yards into pay dirt. Turner again converted.

The line-up:

Holy Cross (20)		B. College (0)
L.E.	Histen	McFadden
L.T.	Walewski	Kidhardt
L.G.	Carr	Schwotzer
C.	Bowman	Logue
R.G.	Turner	Kissell
R.T.	Shields	Janusas
R.E.	O'Melia	Woronicz
Q.B.	Ouellette	Dinatale
L.H.	Cahill	Gintoff
R.H.	Giardi	Guinea
F.B.	Osmanski	Cignetti

Score By Periods

Holy Cross	0	6	7	7	—20

Touchdowns—Cahill, Osmanski (2). Points after touchdowns—Turner (2, place kicks).

Captain Frank Given Yale Cup

By ARTHUR E. PATTERSON

MONTCLAIR, N. J., Dec. 4—"If this isn't the greatest Yale captain we ever have honored here," said Paul Crane, opening the seventeenth annual Nick Roberts old Yale barn party, "then you can have this barn."

Roberts, the next speaker and owner of the barn, did not take back the offer, but none of the 250 Yale men, young and old—representing classes from Yale '75 to Yale '37—stood up to claim the blue-trimmed building, for it seemed to be the opinion of one and all that Clinton E. Frank, all-America, richly deserved the praise heaped upon him. In fact before the night was complete and the clay pipes, pop-corn, beer, pretzels and peanuts were left behind, Frank probably could have picked up the deed of the barn, himself.

As the next best thing, the Montclair-Yale Club gave Frank a silver cup. It was the first time such a presentation had been made. Frank obviously was moved and in a short speech told how proud he was of this Yale team he had led. His biggest thrill, he said, occurred when he read in a New York newspaper this line: "Yale may be beaten but it never gives up." That, thought Frank, was the finest description of "a great Yale team."

Handsome Dan III Makes Team

Frank was not the only member of the football group down from New Haven who received a trophy. Ducky Pond, head coach, received one. But the hit of the evening was a second gift to the mentor. It took considerable unwrapping but when the final paper was removed up popped none other than Handsome Dan III, a new Yale bulldog mascot. Word had reached Montclair that Pond was greatly saddened by the recent death of Handsome Dan II and they have been awaiting this chance to replace him. He is a noble specimen and, having made his debut before such a gathering, should prove a worthy successor.

With Frank, John Heisman trophy winner as the most valuable player of the year, leading a group of football stars, including next season's captain, William V. Platt; David Colwell, the fine kicker; John E. Castle jr., Francis P. Gallagher, Albert Hessberg, co-star with Frank of that unforgettable last-minute play which tied Dartmouth, and Keven and Kevin G. Rafferty, it was a gay gathering.

Luce Receives Trophy

Malcolm Farmer, chairman of Yale athletics; Pond, Earle (Greasy) Neale, Marshall Wells, Ivan Willimson, William Renner and Gerald Ford added lively anecdotes to the football tales, while such notables among the letter-men alumni as Winnie Lovejoy, '25 captain of the unbeaten team of 1924; Firpo Greene, captain in 1929, and Herster Barres, '32, listened or recounted stories of their own.

The accent was on athletics but Henry Robinson Luce, '20, magazine publisher, received the silver Montclair-Yale bowl, as a graduate who had made his Y beyond New Haven's college halls. Luce was the tenth man to receive the award. Sixty-three alumni were on the board which chose him for the honor. The youngest member of the board was John G. Vogy, of the last graduating class and the oldest Eugene Bouton, '75.

Rudy Vallee, '27, joined with Allen M. (Pop) Hirsh, author of the far-famed "Boola, Boola" in leading songs far, far into the night.

Miss Matsuzawa Wed To Doshisha Athlete

Miss Hatsue Matsuzawa, 24, first of the Japanese mermaids to win fame, was married Monday afternoon at Osaka to Tadashi Sugaya, 29, who while at Doshisha University was captain of the sumo and judo teams. The ceremony was performed at the Shinto shrine at Tamamizu, Osaka, after which a reception was held at the New Osaka Hotel.

The bride was coach of the Japanese women's swimming team to the Olympic Games at Berlin in 1936.

Dodgers Want Ott In Deal For Mungo

By JOHN DREBINGER

N.Y. Times

CHICAGO, Dec. 3—As the vanguard of the major league club owners and managers came trooping into this metropolis tonight after their three days of intensive bartering during the minor circuit convention in Milwaukee, the Giants were the first to break away from the barrier with a deal.

Bill Terry announced he had sold Al Smith, left-handed relief pitcher, to the Cardinals. This done, the Colonel immediately closed with the St. Louis club again and obtained Catcher Tommy Padden for the Giants' farm at Jersey City. How much cash was involved in the two deals was not revealed.

The Smith transaction marks the passing of another of the few remaining McGraw-reared players still active with the Giants, and, curiously enough, sends the southpaw to the club from under whose eyes McGraw snatched the young pitcher back in 1931. That Spring Smith came to the Giants as a free agent and sandlotter from the sidewalks of St. Louis, and for several years he showed unusual promise.

Once Listed As Coach

When Terry succeeded McGraw in 1932 he remained impressed with young Al's prospects, so much so, in fact, that in 1933 rather than farm him out to a minor league club he retained Smith on the Giant roster as coach.

But though Smitty for a time continued to show improvement, he never quite came up to expectations as a starting hurler, and gradually drifted back to a relief role.

The deal, while scarcely a momentous one, is regarded as a forerunner to numerous others that are certain to materialize as the major leagues assemble for their three-day conclave, which opens Monday.

For while there was much talk in Milwaukee, little in the way of bartering was done, and the major leagues in general had nothing more to show for their efforts than aggravated cases of shin splints and fallen arches, the effects of standing about in hotel lobbies. Now more action is expected on the trading block.

Like the elusive button in the ancient parlor game, the absorbing question continues to center upon who eventually will get Van Lingle Mungo from those suddenly artful Dodgers, and while the Giants still are considered to have the inside track, a new angle developed today which seems to indicate this track again may run all hands up another blind alley.

Serious Obstacle to Trade

From a source close to both clubs it was learned today that perhaps the most serious hitch of all in the move to bring the big Brooklyn fireball pitcher to the Polo Grounds now has become a growing insistence upon the part of the Dodgers that the Giants include Melvin Ott in the transaction.

Whether Manager Terry would even consider giving up the Giants' perennial boy wonder is a matter he refuses to discuss at this time, but those close to the old colonel are pretty certain that Master Melvin, like Carl Hubbell, is one fellow nobody will succeed in prying loose from the Polo Grounds while the compact slugger is enjoying good health.

The Dodger view, however, is that regardless of how attractive Terry makes his Mungo offer by dressing it up with Hal Schumacher and either Hank Leiber or Wally Berger, along with a liberal supply of cash, it can never quite suit Brooklyn's most urgent need, which is somebody who swings from the left side of the plate and can bash a ball over or against the rightfield wall in Ebbets Field.

Giants Need Ott's Power

Ott, of course, would fill the bill right down to the last requirement, but whether Burleigh Grimes can induce Terry to give up the key man of the Giants' own meager attack is a matter of considerable doubt. In fact, the general opinion is that if Grimes pursues this course in his negotiations with the Giants the entire matter will strike a permanent snag.

This belief was strengthened today when it was learned the Giants could have had Mungo last February, when his trading value was much higher than now, had they seen fit to give up Ott.

However, the matter is expected to be definitely settled within the next few days, as tomorrow Grimes will be joined in this city by the two Dodger directors, Jim Mulvey and Joe Gilleaudeau. In the event the Giant deal for Mungo falls through, Mungo is almost certain to go to the Cubs.

Out to Weaken Yanks

In the American League ranks, which supplied practically all the important dealing that developed here, the movement to help one another cut down on that tremendous Yankee superiority continues to spur the other seven clubs.

The White Sox, who bolstered their battle front yesterday by obtaining Gerald Walker and Marvin Owen in the six-player deal with the Tigers, are now understood to be concentrating upon another tack. Manager Dykes is aiming to get a little more left-handed hitting power in his line-up, which at the moment has a preponderance of right-handed hitters. With this in mind, Dykes is endeavoring to interest Bucky Harris of the Senators in a Zeke Bonura-for-Joe Kuhel deal.

Browns Select Gabby Street For 1938 Pilot

N.Y. Herald Tribune

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 27—Charles E. ("Gabby") Street, former manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, of the National League, was named manager today of the city's American League Club, the Browns.

Donald L. Barnes, president, announced Street was chosen "because of his long experience and uniform success in baseball."

The "Old Sarge," who caught Walter Johnson when the great pitcher was at his prime with Washigton, managed the Cards from 1929 to 1932, leading the team to two National League pennants and to a world championship in 1931.

In addition, he has been manager of a number of minor league clubs, including Suffolk, Va.; Joplin, Mo.; Muskogee, Okla.; Augusta, Ga.; Columbus, S. C.; Knoxville, Tenn.; San Francisco Missions, and St. Paul.

He came to the Browns late last season as a coach under the acting manager, Jim Bottomley, who had just succeeded Rogers Hornsby. In turn, he now succeeds "Sunny Jim," who was released last week.

Barnes said that everything would be done to improve the team for Street and that several deals now pending may be closed at the Milwaukee and Chicago baseball meetings. Street will attend both of them.

Gabby, fifty-five years old, was born in Huntsville, Ala., but now makes his home in Joplin with his wife and two children. He was with the Army and served in France during World War.

Bottomley to Manage Syracuse

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Nov. 27—James (Sunny Jim) Bottomley, for eleven years a star performer with the St. Louis Cardinals in the National League, was named manager of the Syracuse Chiefs of the International League today to succeed Bernard (Mike) Kelly.

French Ace Urges New Ski Technique

N. Y. Times

GENEVA, Nov. 17—Emile Allais of France, the world skiing champion, proposes radical changes in skiing technique and teaching in his book "Le Ski Francais," the first copies of which were printed today in Bellegarde, France, near the Geneva frontier. He would completely suppress all ski turns except the "pure" and "parallel" Christianias. He holds it worse than useless for beginners to learn any of the various "stem" turns—which are the first ones now generally taught novices—or the Telemark.

His method, which he teaches in detail in his book, forms "the new French skiing system," for it has been adopted officially by the French Ski Federation. Beginning this season, all skiing instruction in France will be based on the Allais book.

Will Arouse Controversy

Allais's attack seems likely to cause considerable controversy in other countries. It is especially true here, where the stem forms the cornerstone of "the Swiss skiing system," officially adopted last Winter, and in Austria, which is reported to be on the point of adopting "the Austrian system."

Fraeulein Christel Cranz of Germany, the women's world ski champion, and her brother, Rudi Cranz, one of Allais's closest rivals, told Allais they strongly support his method, according to his manager, Auguste Fournier.

Allais's Christiania last Winter proved their superiority by making him the first man ever to win the combined downhill and slalom tests in both the Arlberg-Kandahar and world championship matches. His book tells not only with words but with photos just how he does these turns.

In Chapter One, on racing, Allais, who averaged more than forty miles an hour in his downhill races last Winter, tells how to avoid "forgetting to breathe." Practice breathing loudly, he says, so when speed, mental concentration and emotion make you forget to breathe, the silence will remind you.

Playboy

It was the monthly meeting of the college debating society. Upon Taxem Major fell the task of opening the proceedings. "The subject under discussion this evening," he said "is simplified spelling. I think there is a growing need for its use. At present it is difficult to grasp the meaning of some words owing to our complicated system of spelling."

"Hear, hear!" applauded Hilife. "Why, I sent a letter to my father asking for £10. He replied that acquiescence meant ruin to him."

O.O.C. To Decide Personnel To Cairo On Jan. 13

Japan's delegation to the International Olympic Committee's meeting at Cairo which is scheduled to convene on March 10 will be selected by the Tokyo Olympic Organizing Committee at its meeting on January 13, it was decided by the O. O. C. at its 19th meeting Monday afternoon at the S. M. R. building.

Among those present at the meeting were Prince Iyesato Tokugawa chairman of the O. O. C.; Mayor Ita Kobashi and Dr. Hiroshi Shimomura, president of the Japan Amateur Athletic Federation, both of whom are vice-chairman of the O. O. C.; Count Michimasa Soyejima and Prof. Jigoro Kano, Japanese members of the International Olympic Committee; Matsuzo Nagai, secretary general of the O. O. C.; Ryozo Hiranuma, vice-president of the Japan Amateur Athletic Federation; and Werner Klingeberg, technical adviser to the O. O. C.

Mr. Nagai reported in detail on the various preparations made toward the 1940 Games during the last four months. He suggested that the O. O. C. hold more meetings in the next few weeks due to pressure of items to be decided in time for the I. O. C. meeting at Cairo in March.

Mr. Nagai also introduced Mr. Klingeberg to the members of the O. O. C.

The games committee of the O. O. C. at its meeting Monday afternoon selected the course from a point near the Toda boat course in Saitama prefecture for 150 kilometers to the turning back point at Honjomachi on the Nakasendo highway for the road course cycling events.

The reclaimed grounds at Shibaura are being favored for construction of a stadium for the other cycling events.

"BELIEVE IT OR NOT"---by Ripley

Father Of 910 Children

An interesting account of Mushidi is found in Pere Labouchere's book "Vingt Ans au Kongo." Labouchere spent 20 years as a missionary in the Congo, and in his account of Mushidi, the King of Budkey, he devotes considerable space to tell of this astounding number of children and the great number of wives. The number of wives could not be ascertained with accuracy but "they probably numbered 5000." The number of children, however, was definitely established as 910.

As Mushidi was a vassal king of the great Sova (Ruler) of Loango, he was obliged to pay an annual tribute to his overlord. This tribute consisted of several hundred wives, which he had to deliver to the Sova each year. In the Congo, nobility is inherited from the mother, and consequently all of Mushidi's children were commoners—not princes of the blood.

Record Run Of 248 Is Made By Hoppe In French Game

By ROSCOE McGOWEN
N.Y. Times

NEW YORK, Dec. 4—Willie Hoppe, 49-year-old cue wizard who has held every title and set up many records in all balkine and cushion billiards last night reached another pinnacle by making a world record high run of 248 in the tenth block of his match with Jake Schaefer in the new French game of 71.2 at the Capitol Bowling and Billiard Academy. He won the block, 250—128, in three innings.

The previous mark of 223 was set by Roger Conti of France, the European champion.

Hoppe's extraordinary exhibition came in the third inning after his rival, scoreless in the first two frames, had tied his own high with a string of 128. The gray-haired Hoppe, who drew a blank in the first fame and counted only twice in the second, never gave Schaefer another chance to get out of his chair.

Gallery Gains Interest

He clicked off point after point and the gallery gave him the usual more or less perfunctory hand when the hundredth point was reached. But as he continued scoring, the casual attitude of the spectators changed to tenseness and from the moment he counted the 150th everybody was leaning forward in his seat.

Hoppe got one obvious break in his long run. That was when, on his try for a two-cushion carom from the corner, he missed, but then his cue ball came back from the other side rail to connect for the point.

Schaefer grinned at this and waved his hands as if to say: "I can't beat a guy like that!"

Willie's face momentarily held an embarrassed smile but he went about his scoring and thereafter there were no accidental points. He played with confidence and skill and three times escaped from tight situations with a pair of three-cushion shots and a difficult masse.

200th Point Difficult

His 200th point was no set-up, the balls having got out of control, forcing him to play a rather long cushion carom off the white ball, frozen to the side rail. This shot immediately was followed by another three-cushion point, but after that Hoppe moved along pretty much on well-controlled balkline shots until the end.

Schaefer, having won the afternoon block, 250 to 93, in six innings for the best game until last night, was in a position to square the match. Now, with Hoppe leading, six blocks to four, Jake must win the remaining two blocks today by one-sided margins to take the match. Since Hoppe holds a point lead of 168, he appears certain to become the first national champion at the new game.

Schaefer gave a fine performance in taking the afternoon block. Hoppe, winning the lag for the third straight time and scoring on the opening shot for the first time, got off to a run of 49 and had Jake 72-3 at the end of their third inning.

Here the Chicagoan got away to his best run of 128, the string breaking on a missed kiss time shot. Hoppe could not find his stroke, scoring only 21 in his last three frames, while Schaefer followed his high with a run of 97 and finished with a string of 22.

Jake's only scoring in the three-inning night block was his duplicate run of 128 in the third frame, a string that ended when he missed a fairly easy short shot off the side rail.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 27—Behind two brilliant touchdown runs on the part of John Pingel, Michigan State College rolled to a 14-to-0 international football triumph today over the University of San Francisco.

The long-legged left halfback gave 20,000 fans their biggest thrills by running seventy-five yards in the third period, breaking a seeming deadlock, and then coming back in the last quarter and dashing thirty-four yards on the same kind of scoring play, a slash through left guard.

Fordham And Pitt Place 2 Each On Kerr's All-Eastern Eleven

By ANDY KERR
Head Football Coach, Colgate University

N.Y. Times

The quality of the football played in the East in 1937 compares favorably with that in any other part of the country. The results of intersectional games have been very gratifying.

The ten best teams in the East seem to be Pittsburgh and Fordham, with three all-stars each; Yale, Villanova, Dartmouth, Holy Cross, Navy, Harvard, Syracuse and Cornell. There is no attempt made here to rank these teams in the order of their strength. This group has sufficient strength to meet a similar group from any other section under equable conditions with fair chances for victory.

In the East this year there is an unusual number of outstanding ends. The selections are Souchak of Pittsburgh and Holland of Cornell. Souchak has all the requisites of a first-class end and has played both right and left wing.

Holland has been one of the real mainstays of a good team. He is exceptionally strong on defense, and a great pass receiver. In addition to this, he has carried the ball on end-around plays, with greater ability than most backfield men.

Wysocki a Fine End

Ends deserving of honorable mention include Wysocki of Villanova, the East's greatest opportunist end; Davis, the Dartmouth captain; Druze of Fordham, Radvilas and Siegal of Columbia, Daly of Manhattan, Miller of Yale, O'Melia of Holy Cross, Dunney of New York University, Hoppock of Lehigh, Snyder of Georgetown, Wemple of Colgate and Markowski of Syracuse. Daddio of Pittsburgh, one of the finest ends in the country, has been handicapped by injuries.

The leading tackle is Matisi of Pittsburgh, a standout all season, who has size, speed, great offensive and defensive ability. His running mate is Babartsky, the fastest lineman at Fordham.

Kevorkian of Harvard and Janusas of Boston College are two of the most dependable tackles. Others above average are John of Yale, Shinn of Pennsylvania, Van Ranst of Cornell, Chesbro of Colgate and Sturges of Temple.

For some season there seems to be a shortage of superior guards, so Franco of Fordham is selected as one. Although Franco has played a splendid game at tackle for two years, he has also been used at guard. He possesses all the qualifications of a great guard. His running mate is McNamara, the Pennsylvania captain, an iron man over a period of three years.

Other outstanding guards are Carr of Holy Cross and Hooper of Cornell. Hooper has taken care of Cornell's punting assignment in splendid fashion. Worthy of mention also are Noe of Harvard and Drulis of Temple. Bateman of Columbia, who has played tackle, also has the qualifications of a splendid guard.

Rams Have Fine Center

At center Wojciechowicz of Fordham is again the leader. Chosen last year, he has been even better this season. He is a splendid passer, a fine blocker on the line and one of the nation's best backers-up.

Other outstanding centers are Hartline of Army, because of his great defensive ability; Mautner of Holy Cross, who has been handicapped by injuries; Eck of Colgate, a real bulwark on defense; Gallagher of Yale, Wilson of Harvard and Miller of New York University, who has played center and in the backfield.

At quarterback, Frank of Yale is an exceptional field general, one of the country's best passers, a fine blocker and a real climax runner. Goldberg of Pittsburgh, possibly the finest running halfback in the East, is strong in every department. Luckman of Columbia is one of the best all-around backs in recent years. He is a splendid passer, kicks well, is a fine ball carrier and an excellent safety man.

Osmanski of Holy Cross, selected last year, would furnish the necessary line bucking ability. He has a sprinter's speed, weighs 195 pounds and is one of the hardest runners in recent years.

Coach Kerr's Team

End	Souchak, Pittsburgh
Tackle	Matisi, Pittsburgh
Guard	Franco, Fordham
Center	Wojciechowicz, For'm
Guard	McNamara, Pennsylv.
Tackle	Babartsky, Fordham
End	Holland, Cornell
Quarterback	Frank, Yale
Halfback	Goldberg, Pittsburgh
Halfback	Luckman, Columbia
Fullback	Osmanski, Holy Cross

Lash In Fourth National Senior Harrier Victory

NEWARK, N. J., Nov. 29—Don Lash, former Indiana University star, won his fourth straight national senior A. A. U. cross-country championship yesterday when he ran 10,000 meters over a rain-drenched Branch Brook Park course in 32m. 57.4s.

Lash pulled away at the start and had the approximately 6¼-mile race to himself throughout, finishing 150 yards ahead of his former Indiana teammate, Tommy Deckard. Joe McCluskey, running for the New York Athletic Club, finished third, another 100 yards behind.

New York's Millrose A. A., paced by 32-year-old Lou Gregory, who finished fourth in 34m. 15s., totaled 25 points to regain the team title, lost to Indiana University in 1935. Indiana, defending champion again this year, was second with 60 points. Manhattan College was third with 78.

Heavy morning rain and showers during the run covered part of the course with ankle-deep mud. Puddles pocked the three-quarter-mile dirt backstretch and grass sections and made footing slippery.

Although his time was 20.4 seconds over last year, Lash bettered the victory record set by Willie Ritola, the fleet-footed Finn, who won three successive races in 1925-26-27.

Redskins Upset Green Bay Team In Pro Football

CHICAGO, Nov. 29—They're putting a lot of pressure on "Slinging Sam" in his freshman year, but he's coming through.

"Slinging Sam" Baugh, former Texas Christian passing star, pitched the Washington Redskins to a surprise 14-to-6 victory over the Green Bay Packers yetserday, and next Sunday he'll be Washington's big hope for a triumph over the New York Giants and a resultant shot at the Chicago Bears for the national pro football championship.

Baugh, whose pass to Gaynel Tinsley helped the collegiate all-stars to victory over the Packers last September, gave Green Bay a fine exhibition before 30,000 fans at Washington. With the Redskins trailing at the half as a result of Bob Monnett's touchdown pass to Don Hutson, Baugh began his flinging act in the third period.

He rifled a 55-yard aerial to Charley Malone, setting the stage for Cliff Battles' touchdown plunge. In the final period Baugh passed 11 yards to Malone for the second Redskin touchdown. The victory sent Washington into a battle at New York with the Giants for eastern division honors. The Giants have won six games, lost two and tied two. Washington has won seven, lost three and tied none.

The Bears, at Chicago, had little trouble defeating Cleveland, 15 to 7, to clinch the western divison title. In winning their eighth game in 10 starts this season, they scored touchdowns in the first and second periods and watched Jack Manders boot a field goal in the third. Cleveland scored its touchdown in the third period on a forward-lateral, with Ralph Miller going over the Bear line.

It was Cleveland's final game and the Rams, in their first season in the big time, won only one game, while losing 10.

U.C.L.A. Attack Sets Missouri Back, 13 To 0

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 27—Kenny Washington, halfback of the University of California at Los Angeles, led the Bruins to a 13-to-0 victory over the Missouri Tigers today. Their first touchdown came on a fifty-six-yard march led and finished by Washington.

The second, in the final thirty seconds of play, came when Washington grabbed a Tiger pass on his own 10-yard line, galloped eighty-eight yards and lateralled, just as he was tackled on the 2-yard line, to Johnny Ryland, center. Ryland fell across the goal for the score.

The line-up:

U.C.L.A. (13)		Missouri (0)
L.E.	Nash	Rouse
L.T.	Wyrick	Hogan
L.G.	Cohen	Jones
C.	Ryland	Kinnison

Coach At Tulane Asks Michigan Player To Come

Chicago Tribune

NEW ORLEANS, La., Nov. 16—While it is permissible to offer Southeastern conference football players board and tuition, the practice was brought more forcibly to the attention of the public today when Bill Bevan, assistant coach at Tulane university, admitted he had sent a telegram to Tom Harmon star freshman at the University of Michigan, asking him to come to Tulane.

Harmon, a half back, gained prominence at Horace Mann school in Gary, Ind., where he was a four sport man. He is one of five freshmen named last week in an investigation of subsidization at Michigan. Bevan says he sent the following telegram to Harmon at Michigan:

"Your help at Simon-pure school will always be subjected to criticism. Our offer still stands. Wire me collect Monday. Can still enter this semester."

Scholarship Only Offer

In commenting on the wire, Bevan, said: "We tried to get the boy last summer and we had heard through his brother that he planned to transfer of his own volition to another school. We naturally would liked to have had him and since his brother is in school here I thought he might want to transfer to Tulane if he was leaving Michigan. The only offer we ever made him was that of an athletic scholarship, which is perfectly legal in the Southeastern conference."

Gene Harmon, the Michigan freshman's brother, is a star basketball player at Tulane. Bevan gained fame at Minnesota as a guard. He was allowed only two years of competition at Minnesota because he played a year of freshman football at Oregon.

Common Practice In South

Southeastern conference officials say it is a common practice in their organization, which includes Georgia, Georgia Tech, Florida, Auburn, Alabama, Mississippi State, University of Mississippi, Louisiana State university, Tennessee, Vanderbilt, and Sewanee, to make deals for and with players. They also declare that what they do in the open, is a common practice in eastern, Big Ten and far western universities.

At Louisiana State university many of the football players are carried on state payrolls, but it is claimed they perform duties commensurate with their pay. Coach Bevan failed to explain today how some of Tulane's best known players are owners of flashy automobiles and apparently enjoy campus activities usually available only to wealthier students.

Daily Speaks Again

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Nov. 16—The Michigan Daily, student paper of the University of Michigan, which today exposed Bill Bevan's telegram to Freshman Tom Harmon, interpreted the Tulane coach's action as openly flaunting investigations of Michigan's rumored subsidization of athletes. Michigan's board in control of physical education last week revealed it was investigating such rumors.

Harmon was termed by Director of Athletics Fielding H. Yost the country's outstanding interscholastic athlete last year. He is the star of the Michigan freshman team, playing full back.

Harmon scored 150 points for Horace Mann last year. He is a triple threat back who has averaged over 50 yards on punt against the Michigan varsity this fall. He runs the 100 yard dash in :09.9 and holds the Indiana State High school 220 yard record with a mark of :22.6 seconds. He also is a star basketball and baseball player.

Harmon has been vehement in his denials of financial aid of any kind. Michigan alumni of Gary last week went on record as "resentful of the adverse publicity" which had accompanied the board's statement and resultant references to "this and other alumni organizations within the Chicago area."

"BELIEVE IT OR NOT"---by Ripley

The Saluting Demon

Louis Otteni, veteran Legionnaire of Detroit, proved to be the living prototype of Wallgrens famous cartoon character, "The Saluting Demon of the A.E.F.", when he marched in the National American Legion parade in Cleveland last year. In 6 hours time, Otteni saluted exactly 2,678 times, and then had to quit. For the next week he carried his arm in a sling.

Still Flying

Two army fliers recently had the strange experience of traveling at 130 miles per hour for half an hour without getting anywhere. Lts. Woodring and Casey of Rockwell Field, Coronada, Calif., took up planes equipped with superchargers for nigh altitude flights, and when they rose to 25,000 feet, their instruments showed they had a ground speed of 130 miles per hour. After 30 minutes, they found they were bucking a headwind of the same speed, and were over Tiajuana all the time.

Rice Conquers S.M.U., 15 To 7, Clinching Title

N.Y. Herald Tribune

DALLAS, Tex., Dec. 4—Rice Institute's greatest "substitute," Ernie Lain, today scored the touchdowns that defeated Southern Methodist, 15 to 7, won the Southwest Conference title and obtained for the Owls an invitation to play in the Cotton Bowl here January 1.

A 218-pound trouble-shooter who never starts a game but who figured in twelve of Rice's thirteen touchdowns this season, Lain gave a crowd of 13,000 a one-man show.

The Owls trailed, 7 to 0, when Lain got the "go" signal from Jimmie Kitts, coach, late in the first period. Five minutes later he had passed and bucked Rice to a touchdown on the first play of the second period.

Early in the third period Lain personally took charge again and threw two passes to Frank Steen and Johnny Neece that netted thirty-one yards, crashed the line down to the 4 and blocked out a Methodist line surge as Jack Vestal kicked a field goal from the Methodist 13 that put the Owls ahead, 9 to 7.

The big halfback plucked off one of Jack Morrison's wild passes in the fourth period on the Methodist 21 and returned to 9, from which point he scored on three drives.

Twenty-two times Lain cracked into the Methodist line and came up with a total of seventy-five yards, while his arm was responsible for nine passes that gained a total of 141 yards.

The victory today gave Kitts his second Conference title in four years.

So. California Beats U.C.L.A. On Early Lead, 19-13

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Dec. 4—Repelling a last quarter comeback attempt which saw two spectacular touchdowns scored against them in four minutes, the University of Southern California football team defeated their crosstown rival, the University of California at Los Angeles, 19 to 13, today before 78,000.

Supreme for three quarters, the Trojans were baffled in the fourth period by the incredible passing of Kenny Washington, sensational colored half back. Washington threw a touchdown pass which traveled seventy-three yards and was caught by Half Back Hal Hirshon for the Bruins' second touchdown.

The pass was three yards longer than that thrown by Brick Muller to H. W. Stephens of California, in the California-Ohio State Rose Bowl game Jan. 1, 1921. That pass has been recognized as the record throw of football history.

Scores First Also

The pass directly followed the Bruins' first tally, when Hirshon also scored on a pass from Washington, thrown from the Trojan 37 yard line.

Grenville Lansdell, the substitute who so capably has filled the gap left by the injury to Quarter Back Ambrose Schindler, scored the first touchdown in the first quarter from the 1 yard line. Lansdell again crossed the Bruin goal line in the third quarter after the Trojans had penetrated into Bruin territory, with the aid of blocking by Hansen and Hoffman. The third Southern California touchdown came on a neatly executed pass, Lansdell to Shell. The three touchdowns were scored while the Trojans were outplaying U. C. L. A. by a wide margin.

Held for Downs

The Trojans bottled up the Bruin passing attack until late in the fourth quarter and held for downs inside the 20 yard line as U. C. L. A. tried for the tying touchdown.

Color was added to the spectacular fourth quarter Bruin comeback, when, after the game, Bruin and Trojan players left the field arm in arm, despite the intense rivalry that had been built up during this season.

Texas Aggies Halt San Francisco, 42-0

N. Y. Times

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 4—Texas A. and M. crushed the University of San Francisco eleven today, 42 to 0. It was one of the worst defeats ever inflicted on the Dons.

The Aggies opened the scoring with a touchdown midway in the first period, Left Halfback Dick Todd, who returned a punt 17 yards to the home team's 45, dashed 11 and 22 yards, then crashed over from the 1-yard line.

He added a touchdown in the second period when he caught a punt on the Dons' 42 and raced on to score.

Jim Nesrsta, substitute right halfback, went over from the 1-yard line in the third period to climax a 39-yard Texas march. A few minutes later Bill Boyd, reserve back, place-kicked a field goal from the 15-yard line.

The Aggies almost doubled the score in the last period, making three touchdowns, two on long pass plays and a third on line smashes.

San Francisco's only threat came in the first period when the Dons recovered a fumble on the Texas 29 and plunged eight yards to the 21, where they lost the ball.

California Places Five Players On Phelan's Coast All-Star Team

By JAMES PHELAN
Head Football Coach, University of Washington

N. Y. Times

We have an oversupply of good centers, fullbacks and quarterbacks on the Pacific Coast this year but are short on outstanding tackles and guards. There are plenty of halfbacks capable of qualifying for an all-star berth and we can raise an argument over the selection of the ends, not from lack of ability but from the closeness of the decision to select the leaders.

The player's performance over the last three years has been the deciding factor in several cases in selecting our All-Pacific Coast eleven. When the decision was close we favored the consistent performer.

The 1937 All-Pacific Coast team is a fast, heavy aggregation that could travel on the ground or in the air. On defense, we could not ask for a better combination.

Big Bob Herwig of California gets the call for the pivot position over Ericksen of Washington and Dougherty of Santa Clara. All three are great players but Herwig has never turned in a poor game in three years.

Close Decision on Guards

The guards present a problem. Steve Slivinski, 210 pounds, of Washington, and Bob Campbell, 200 pounds, of Washington State, get the first call over Frank Mattes of Washington and Vard Stockton of California.

The outstanding tackle on the Coast is Vice Markov, 212 pounds, of Washington. He has speed and takes care of his territory on offense and defense and can play sixty minutes every Saturday. Alvord Wolff, Santa Clara, draws the other tackle job because of his speed, down-field blocking and ball hawking. Nibil of Oregon State College and Feskett of Oregon also are outstanding tackles.

Stanford furnishes one end in Grant Stone and California the other in Perry Schwartz. Strong blocking and great defensive play are the qualities possessed by these two excellent flankers. Dick Johnson, Washington, and Joe Wendlick of Oregon State, are right on the heels of the first-string pair and excel in pass receiving.

A backfield set-up of John Meek of California, quarterback; Joe Gray of Oregon State, halfback; Dave Anderson of California, fullback, and Sam Chapman of California, halfback, would possess every quality with the exception of speed. Chapman and Anderson have enough "swift" to keep the defense honest on the flanks.

Chapman can handle the kick-off and punting duties and there is no better defensive back on the Coast than he. Gray is the best passer in the West.

Reserve Backs Strong

A reserve backfield of much the same type can be made with Newton of Washington, quarterback; Bottari of California and Hoffman of U. S. C., halfbacks, and Cruver of Washington, fullback.

It is not easy to leave off such stellar backs as Schindler, U. S. C.; Groves, Stanford; Waskowitz, Washington; Coffis, Stanford; Littlefield, W. S. C.; Kolberg, O. S. C.; Kaamotic, Gonzaga; Poppovich, Montana; Pavelko, Santa Clara; Miller, Washington; Fay, Stanford, and Rowe and Graybeal of Oregon.

Worthy of consideration in the line are such fine ends as Peters, Washington; Knapp, Idaho; Hibs, U. S. C.; Bates, W. S. C., and Dolman, California.

Other linemen who deserve praise and comment are Guards Ramsey, O. S. C.; Farasyn, Santa Clara; Amato, Oregon; Radovich, U. S. C., and Evans of California.

The tackles given thoughtful consideration for excellent performances were Cope, Santa Clara; Schwartz, San Francisco; De Varona, California, and Zagar, Standford, who has been set back this season because of illness.

The 1937 All-Pacific Coast line averages over 200 pounds from end to end, and the backfield would tip the beam close to the 195-pound mark. A mighty strong representative group for this or any section of the country.

Coach Phelan's Team

End	Stone, Stanford
Tackle	Markov, Washington
Guard	Campbell, Wash. State
Center	Herwig, California
Guard	Slivinski, Washington

Schools In U.S. Urged To Take Up Sport Of Skiing

By HARRY CROSS

N.Y. Herald Tribune

ALBANY, Dec. 4.—It is the prediction of Otto Schniebs, one of the leading ski teachers of the country, that America will in the not far away future have a unified skiing technique. Schniebs also advocated that physical directors of public and private schools make skiing part of their educational program so that the youth of the country could be brought up in the sport and pursue a part of their physical development out of doors in winter instead of indoors.

These sentiments of such an outstanding authority as Schniebs were received enthusiastically today at the New York State Conference of skiing under the sponsorship of the Adirondack Mountain Club at the State Office building. More than two hundred delegates representing fifty-five ski clubs in New York and New England by their presence today gave a tremendous impetus to the skiing season, which is ready for action just as soon as the snow arrives.

The delegates represented a large skiing public throughout the northern sections of the East, and the free interchange of knowledge and experience in promotion of skiing sent them all home tonight impatient for the season to start.

Seeks Unified Technique

The talk which Schniebs gave the delegates was an epitome of good ski sense. He said that there were many different ski schools and different styles and techniques of skiing. Schniebs said that they were all good.

He said, however, that it was the object of the newly organized American Ski School to develop a unified technique, and it would be the object of the school's instructors to teach that skiing was not only a sport but an important recreational diversion, one in which the youth of the land should be thoroughly schooled.

Schniebs deplored the fact that there was so much unpleasant argument about skiing and not enough sane discusssion, an exchange of ideas toward a common goal which would be far more advantageous.

Harry Wade Hicks, chairman of the Adirondack Mountain Club's committee of skiing, presided at the conference. He said that the outstanding development of the past year was the expansion of skiing facilities and the broadening of the base of ski organization. It has resulted in far better service for skiers. The increase of skiing instruction has been of great benefit to the sport, according to the chairman, and he praised the work of the New York State Conservation Department in its wide development of skiing trails and slopes.

Lynn Discusses Equipment

Hicks emphasized the fact that the ski clubs should have the best interests of their own communities in mind in carrying out their plans of promotion.

All phases of skiing were discussed. L. H. Lynn, of Schenectady, discussed the topic of equipment for beginners at some length and it was followed by a general discussion on bindings. At one stage of the discussion, Lynn illustrated his point on bindings, took off his shoe and illustrated to Hal Burton just what he had in mind.

Burton, an enthusiastic member of Adirondack Lodge at Lake Placid, has taken three months off from his business duties so that he can spend the winter on skiis in the mountains. That is a sample of the enthusiasm for the sport that was evident when the delegates got thoroughly warmed up on their favorite topic.

Frederick T. Kelsey, president of the Adirondack Mountain Club, spoke of the objects and activities of the club. Lloyd Kinsey told about the ski situation at Phoenicia, in the Catskills, and William G. Howard, State Superintendent of Land and Forests, told of the many new ski developments throughout the state.

Benefits of Tow Told

Fred Pabst gave an interesting talk on ski tows. He said that it was all right for enthusiastic youngsters to ski uphill, but older skiers are not in proper physical trim to stand much of this strain on stamina. With the ski tow, Pabst pointed out that it was possible for a skier to enjoy 40,000 feet of downhill flights in one day, being able to make a round trip every four minutes on a hill that has a good tow. In other words, the tow makes it possible to have a week's skiing in one day. He advocated the hanger-down arm-rest type of ski tow.

Professor Fay Welch and H. B. Burton spoke on ski trail construction, and Richard L. Emerson represented the United States Eastern Amateur Ski Association.

Arizona's Power Conquers Oregon By 20 To 6 Score

TUCSON, Ariz., Dec. 4—The University of Arizona Wildcats overpowered the Oregon Webfeet, 20 to 6, today, striking with brilliant scoring thrusts in the second and third periods.

Oregon jumped into the lead in the second on a spectacular 90-yard touchdown dash by Halfback Gerald Graybeal, but the Wildcats hit their stride in the same period to score twice and take a 13-6 advantage at half-time.

Quarterback Sidney Woods scored the first Arizona touchdown on a 40-yard slice off tackle. Fullback Walter Neilsen, 210-pounder, figured in the other two Wildcat counters, scoring one touchdown after a long drive and carrying the ball 50 yards to set up the other. He also kicked two extra points.

"BELIEVE IT OR NOT"---by Ripley

Milo

Milo of Crotona in Greece, the most famous athlete of antiquity, was undefeated world champion in wrestling for 40 years, having emerged victorious in 32 athletic periods.

There are many extraordinary athletic feats credited to Milo. He is said to have eaten a whole 4-year-old ox in a single day, after carrying it on his shoulders through the Olympic Stadium. He died trying to rend apart an oak trunk partially split by the woodcutters. The trunk closed upon him and held him fast. In this position, he was attacked by wolves and devoured.

Sumo Tourney Starts Jan. 13 At Kokugikan

Those long-haired giant professional wrestlers (Japanese style or sumo) will open their 13-day "spring" tournament at the Kokugikan bowl in Ryogoku, beside the Sumida river, on January 13.

The tourney will be one of the most exciting in years with the competition by four yokozuna or grand champions—Tamanishiki, Minanogawa, Musashiyama and Futabayama. Musashiyama will be making his appearance after a long absence due to bodily injuries. But he says that he is in the pink of condition and his chief ambition is to down Futabayama, who established a sensational record last year by going through the spring and summer tournaments without a defeat.

This will be Futabayama's first season as a grand champion, and already one of the features of the coming 13-day affair is as to who will be first to stop his winning streak.

Short but quick and courageous Kyushuzan and the well built and up and coming Mayedayama received the biggest promotion in the new rankings just announced for the forthcoming tournament. Both were elevated to the rank of komusubi, which is fourth from grand champion.

Ryogoku and Taikyuzan are the two sekiwake, rank immediately below ohseki or champion.

Missing from the rankings this season is the name of popular Shimizugawa, ohseki, who retired at the end of the last tournament after a brilliant career in the sumo circles. Although he was never elevated to the rank of grand champion, he was always a dangerous opponent and one of the best liked by the fans.

National League Deadens Ball For '38 Season

By IRVING VAUGHAN

Chicago Tribune

CHICAGO, Dec. 8—The two major leagues fell apart yesterday on the matter of baseballs. The National league magnates, in the second day of their annual session at the Congress hotel, performed an operation aimed at removal of some of the liveliness from the sphere used in recent years. Meanwhile the American league, meeting at the Palmer house, decided to forego alterations, pending further experiments.

The difference of opinion, however, over the distance a batted ball should travel legitimately, doesn't mean war between the two circuits is looming on the horizon. It will not be the first time this situation has existed. The National league employed a dead ball in both 1932 and 1933, the American league, meanwhile, refusing to make a change. Before the start of the 1934 season the National accepted the ball made according to specifications established by the junior major league.

Here's Why It's Slower

The National league ball for 1938 will be sewed up in what the manufacturers of the article term a No. 4 cover, whereas the official ball for the last four seasons was a No. 3. The difference in trade numbers means that the No. 4 hide is an infinitesimal fraction of an inch thicker than the other.

The new National league ball also will carry a five instead of a four strand stitch. The heavier cover will operate slightly in favor of the pitchers, who will gain additional cunning by manipulations which are possible with a higher seam. The latter affords the pitchers a better grip, which leads to more deceptive hooks on the curves and improved hops on the fast balls.

The same No. 4 ball was used in the National in 1932 with only a slight contraction of batting averages, so in 1933 the league went for a No. 5 cover but this proved such a killer for hitters that the league adopted the American's No. 3 cover.

It's a Break for Infielders

The National league, in adopting the new ball, wasn't exactly aiming at a drastic curtailment of the home run epidemic. The No. 4 ball, if well hit, will travel as far as No. 3. But giving the pitchers higher seams with which to work means the batters will see fewer bargain pitches and, while the home runs may go on as in the past, there should be a curtailment of rifle drives past the infielders.

The American league was somewhat surprised when word reached its meeting that the National had acted. The former promptly voted to stand pat. It was the understanding of the American officials that neither circuit would take action one way or the other unless in joint conference. The two leagues are scheduled for their annual joint session today, and, while the ball may be discussed, there is slim possibility of either rescinding yesterday's stand.

Makers Submit Samples

At their meetings a year ago the two leagues took their first step toward restoring some authority to the pitchers. As the result of the vote at that time the league presidents were delegated to cooperate with the ball manufacturers.

The makers submitted samples, which were used during spring games. They weren't satisfactory. During the season other specimens were submitted to each of the sixteen clubs, and they were tried out in pre-game practice. They failed to hold their shape.

It was because the samples proved unsatisfactory that the American league yesterday decided to delay making the change.

Try Again Next Spring

Baseballs which the manufacturers promise to produce during the winter will be tried out by the American league clubs in the spring, and if a suitable implement is found it will be adopted for 1939.

The American also voted to continue assigning umpires to work in spring exhibitions and to continue awarding $500 to the league batting champion.

The American leaguers discussed the subject of broadcasts and today will reveal a definite program for 1938. The league will sell exclusive rights to one sponsor, the rights covering all parks except New York and Washington, which do not permit air dispatch of home games. This means that the sponsor, if he wishes, can limit oral accounts to one station in each of the six cities.

The Cleveland club made an inquiry about playing seven night games at home during the season but this was voted down.

Keio Ruggers Swamp Sanko By 80 To 0 In Their 25th Game

In a one-sided score, Keio swamped the Sanko fifteen from Kyoto, 80-0, Tuesday afternoon at the Meiji Shrine stadium in their 23rd game since 1911, the oldest dual series in rugby in the country. Outside of one tied game, Keio has won all of the contests to date.

The score at half time was 32-0 in favor of Keio, having scored four tries and four goals.

Keio functioned even better in the second half and registered four tries, six goals and two penalty goals.

War Admiral Tops All Race Horses, 256 Writers Say

N. Y. Times

BALTIMORE, Dec. 9—War Admiral, unbeaten 3-year-old owned by Samuel Riddle of Philadelphia, today was awarded the turf's highest honor when he was judged the outstanding race horse of the year by 256 sports writers.

Although they never met in what would have been the race of the year, the Admiral and Mrs. C. S. Howard's 4-year-old Seabiscuit staged a close finish in the poll conducted by The Turf and Sport Digest. Only 13 votes separated them in the final count.

War Admiral, a son of Man o' War, polled 621 points, on the basis of three points for first, two for second and one for third. Seabiscuit, himself a grandson of Man o' War, received 603. The pair had the contest all to themselves, as William Ziegler Jr.'s Esposa, who finished third, tallied only 140 points.

Outstanding 3-Year-Old

The Riddle ace, winner of eight races, including the Kentucky Derby, Preakness and Belmont stakes, and $166,500, easily captured the 3-year-old title. He was the first choice of every writer for that honor, and outdistanced T. P. Morgan's Texas-owned Heelfly by 768 to 311 votes. Third place in the voting for 3-year-olds went to the Shandon Farm's Burning Star, with 237.

Although no provision was made for naming the champion of the handicap division, it was decided to award a special plaque to Seabiscuit's San Francisco owner. The son of Hard Tack, purchased for $7,500 late in the 1936 season, piled up a record of eleven victories, two seconds and a third in fourteen starts, and was the year's leading money winner, with $168,642.50 to date. The two races in which he finished second—Santa Anita Handicap and Bowie Handicap—he lost by a nose.

There was no argument over Hal Price Headley's Menow being the outstanding 2-year-old of the year. He faced the barrier only six times, but won three, including a new world record for six and a half furlongs in the Belmont Futurity. His earnings of $67,825 was tops among the juveniles.

The record, which also included two seconds, gave the Kentucky-bred colt a margin of 566 votes to 330 over W. S. Kilmer's Nedayr, a late-season sensation. Menow also received fifteen votes as the best horse of the year. Mrs. Ethell V. Mars' Tiger was third with 246. Then came the Valdina Farm's Teddy's Comet with 124 and Mrs. Mars' ill-fated Sky Larking, with 105.

The race for juvenile filly honors was a close two-horse affair, with Mrs. Edward Friendly's Jacola of Warrenton, Va., getting the decision over the Wheatley Stable's consistent Merry Lassie. The vote was 642 to 524. John Hay Whitney's Inhale, the third horse, polled only 83 votes.

Rankings Are Reversed

Seabiscuit, however, was voted the outstanding horse of the year by twenty-five of the country's leading horsemen, acting for the magazine, Horse and Horseman, The Associated Press also reported. Seabiscuit, in winning eleven of his fourteen starts and finishing in the money in the other three, nosed out War Admiral. The reward for winning the Horse and Horseman honor will be a gold bridle.

Horse and Horseman did not limit its consideration to thoroughbreds. E. J. Baker's Greyhound of St. Charles, Ill., who lowered the world trotting mark to 1:56, came in for strong consideration.

Budge Defeats McGrath Despite Sore Shoulder

N.Y. Times

MELBOURNE, Australia, Dec. 9—Donald Budge, Oakland, Calif., redhead who gained the final of the Victorian tennis championships today with an 8—6, 6—3, 8—6 victory over Vivian McGrath of Australia, underwent medical treatment for a sore shoulder after the match.

Budge, United States and Wimbledon champion, believes that the muscular ailment which hampered his service all week is the result of an injury to the three top ribs on his right side suffered in an automobile accident shortly before he left the United States.

In Saturday's title match the American ace will meet young Jack Bromwich, who defeated his fellow-Australian, Adrian Quist, 6—3, 4—6, 6—3, 3—6, 6—1 today.

In a women's semi-final Miss Dorothy May Bundy of Santa Monica, Calif., eliminated Miss Thelma Coyne of Australia, 6—4, 6—4.

Meanwhile, Count Michimasa Soyeshima, Japanese member of the I.O.C., is also considered to be sent to Cairo, it is reliably revealed here today.

Tennessee Routs Mississippi, 32-0

N.Y. Times

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Dec. 4—The University of Tennessee rolled up five touchdowns today to defeat the University of Mississippi, 32 to 0.

Sophomore Halfback George Cafego sparked the Volunteer ground and aerial attack which clicked with ease through the much heavier Ole Miss line. The game was played in a mist before 7,000 spectators.

A Vol fumble in the first period, recovered by the invaders' captain, Bruiser Kinard, on the Ole Miss 40, set the stage for an aerial attack which penetrated to the Tennessee 19.

Herring Adds Extra Point

The first score came in the second, however, on a pass interception by Halfback Melvin Herring, who took the throw on the Ole Miss 40 and ran for a touchdown. Herring's placement was good.

Cafego, on consecutive plunges and end sweeps, carried the ball from the Ole Miss 44 to the 8. Ray Hapes knocked down Cafego's pass intended for Bowden Wyatt and on the next play the Vols lost 12 yards. A try for a field goal by Herring was short.

Shortly after the start of the third period Cafego ripped through right tackle for 32 yards to the Ole Miss 32. Cafego's pass to George Hunter was good for 14 more, and on the next play the fleet halfback plunged to the 8. Marion Perkins carried to the 1, and Cafego took it over. Herring converted.

Hunter Gains on Pass

Hunter fell on Cafego's punt, giving possession to the Vols on the Mississippi 23. A pass, Cafego to Hunter, placed it on the 8 and Perkins scored.

Coach Robert Neyland, a severe cold forcing him to operate from the press box, substituted his second team after another drive to the 2. Substitute Quarterback Robert Sneed plunged over for a score as the fourth period began. Sneed failed to convert.

A double lateral, Sam Bartholomew to Nick Webber to Red Harp, accounted for the final score. Bill Barnes missed the point.

The line-up:

Waseda University's casaba artists, national collegiate champions, came from behind to down the Philippine University quintet by a 36 to 27 score Tuesday night at Manila, according to a Domei dispatch.

The Manila team got off to a 9 to 1 lead in the first half but the Tokyo five rallied and the first half ended 19 to 14 in favor of the former.

The Japanese forged into the lead after resumption of play and though at one stage of the session, the Filipinos were only a point behind, the Waseda cagers finished strong with a 9 point lead.

Clint Frank Named On All-America Team Picked By Collier's

N.Y. Times

NEW YORK, Dec. 10—Clint Frank of Yale, Samuel Chapman of California and Bryon White of Colorado, all backs, were chosen unanimously for the all-America eleven named by Collier's yesterday. The team was selected by Collier's board and over fifty football coaches.

Only one New York City player, Ed Franco, Fordham tackle, was named. Franco, Frank, Chapman, White and Carl Hinkle of Vanderbilt, center, were "the men who rated the highest average this year from all opposing coaches," according to the report of the judges. Frank is the only one of the Collier all-America who was also listed on the magazine's team last year.

The team:

ENDS—Andrew Bershak, North Carolina, and Jerome Holland, Cornell.

TACKLES—Edmund Franco, Fordam, and Vic Markov, Washington.

GUARDS—Leroy Monsky, Alabama, and Joseph Routt, Texas A. and M.

CENTER—Carl C. Hinkle Jr., Vanderbilt.

QUARTERBACK—Clinton Frank, Yale.

HALFBACKS—Marshall Goldberg, Pittsburgh, and Byron White, Colorado.

FULLBACK—Samuel Chapman, California.

N.Y. Times

ITHACA, N. Y., Dec. 9—Cornell's quintet opened its season tonight with an easy 44-21 victory over Toronto. A crowd of 1,500 was interested mainly in seeing the effect of the rule changes, but the contest was too one-sided to form an opinion of them.

Walt Foertsch, Eastern Intercollegiate League high scorer last season, caged eight field goals and four fouls for a 20-point total.

Tunney Picks Schmeling To Defeat Louis

Chicago Tribune

Summit, N.J., Dec. 7—Gene Tunney came out from behind his favorite double shelf of Shakespeare today and predicted that Max Schmeling would win his heavyweight championship back from Joe Louis next June by a knockout.

Gene, who retired undefeated to his books and travel nine years ago, was mightily impressed by German Max's form as he worked out at Mme. Bey's training camp for his bout at the Garden next Monday night with Harry Thomas of Chicago.

"He could knock out Louis tomorrow," he declared after watching Schmeling maul two sparring partners. "Louis is out of shape, and Max has the greatest right I ever saw on a heavyweight."

Argues Max's Case

"There's no reason why Max shouldn't be the first man to win the title back, even if he is 32," Tunney continued. "Bob Fitzsimmons won the championship at 35, and I hadn't reached my peak when I retired at 30. I'm sure of it, because I was better in my last fight against Tom Heeney than in any other."

Tunney's visit to the camp was quite a surprise, as he has studiously avoided them since his retirement. Gene crowded into the little gymnasium just like anybody else and posed amiably with Schmeling for the photographers. He watched the Teuton closely, particularly after he had finished boxing and was doing some strenuous calisthenics on his back.

"He's in marvelous shape, and he has a wonderful heart," he said. "This is the hardest part of it all—that mat work after you've finished boxing. It takes a strong heart. Nobody ever has accused Max of being a great boxer, but he has plenty of everything else. He'll beat Louis."

Preliminary Bouts Set.

In New York Al Weill, matchmaker for the 20th Century Sporting club, announced preliminaries to the Schmeling-Thomas fight. Lorenzo Pack and Johnny Whiters, both of Detroit, meet in one six round bout. Another matches Ralph Carpenter of Joplin, Mo., and Bob Tow, Washington, D. C., and in a third Freddie Fiducia of Newark faces Lem Franklin of Chicago. Bud Mignault of Worcester, Mass., and Henry Cooper of New York will battle in still another bout set for six rounds.

Trousers Of Human Skin

Louis Philippe of Orleans (1747-1793) was called Philippe Egalite (Equality Phil) for his democratic leanings. One of his eccentric traits, however, was to wear trousers made of human skin. The skin was that of some poachers whom he shot and killed in the act of poaching on his forest preserves.

He wore those gruesome garments on November 6, 1793, when he lost his head on the guillotine in the French Revolution. One of his sons, Louis Philippe, was King of France from 1830 to 1848.

Meiji Skaters Lead In Annual Speed Tournament

Meiji University's ice skaters showed themselves well on the way to another title in the opening day Wednesday of the 13th annual national students ice speed skating championships at the Nagane rink at Hachinoye, Aomori prefecture. In the two events held, the 1,500 and 5,000 meter races, they registered a total of 25 points to assume a nine point lead over Waseda.

Cho Sets Record

Yushoku Cho of Meiji, who competed in the last Winter Olympic Games at Garmisch-Partenkirchen, Germany, won the 5,000 meter event in a new students' record time of 9 minutes 11.5 seconds, eclipsing the time of Seitoku Ri of Waseda of 9 minutes 13.8 seconds set in 1935.

Cho's triumph came in the third heat when with a great burst of speed, he finished two laps ahead of Furuyama of Rikkyo University.

Ryushin Sai, another Olympic contestant from Meiji, took the 1,500 meter race in the rather slow time of 2 minutes 33.2 seconds, although the ice was firm and the best of conditions prevailed.

The results of the two events were:

1,500 meter race: 1.—Ryushin Sai, Meiji, time 2 minutes 33.2 seconds; 2.—Kunio Nando, Waseda, 2 minutes 36.5 seconds; 2.—Soko Kin, Meiji, 2 minutes 38.2 seconds; 4.—Reikichi Nakamura, Waseda, 2 minutes 40.6 seconds; 5.—Nichiko Cho, Meiji, 2 minutes 40.7 seconds; 6.—Hiroshi Okawa, Keio, 2 minutes 44.2 seconds.

5,000 meter race: 1.—Yushoku Cho, Meiji, 9 minutes 11.5 seconds (new students' record); 2.—Kunio Nango, Waseda; 9 minutes 19 seconds; 3—Kanshoku Jin, Meiji, 9 minutes 22.4 seconds; 4.—Juki An, Meiji, 9 minutes 36.2 seconds; 5.—Shoichi Matsuura, Waseda, 9 minutes 54.1 seconds; 6.—Shigeo Hoguchi, 9 minutes 59.8 seconds.

Waseda and Rikkyo entered the semi-finals of the national students' ice hockey championships as the result of the opening contests Wednesday at the Shibaura rink. As the result of the withdrawal of the Kyoto Imperial and Hokkaido Imperial university teams, Rikkyo did so without playing a game.

The games were:

First Round

Keio defeated Keijo University, 2—1 in an extra period.

Tokyo Imperial won by forfeit from Hokkaido Imperial.

Manchuria Medical defeated Tohoku University, 9—0.

Meiji defeated Doshisha, 10—1.

Quarter-Finals

Waseda defeated Kwansei Gakuin, 15—0.

Lee Beats Woods In 10-Round Bout

By FRED VAN NESS

N.Y. Times

NEW YORK, Dec. 2—Glen Lee, Nebraska middleweight, who has done most of his fighting in California, made his first appearance in New York at the Hippodrome last night and gained a decision over Walter Woods of the East Side. A crowd of 3,400, which paid $6,948 to witness the battle, saw the two middleweights fight ten slashing rounds in which there was action every minute.

Lee was not the best middleweight ever seen around here, but he made a good impression. He is a strong, two-fisted fighter who rushes relentlessly. The boxing skill and experience of Woods saved him in the last three rounds when he was tiring badly and was at least twice on the verge of going down.

Lee landed fast and often but his punches did not carry enough force to drop the New Yorker, and up to the fifth session it was a fairly even fight. Lee threw rights and lefts to the body and fought viciously in close, but Walter blocked nicely and used his left jabs with telling effect.

Woods Scores in Second

Woods had a decided margin in the second when he battled toe to toe with Lee and forced the latter to break. Again in the sixth he had an edge when he shook Lee with two hard lefts to the face and outboxed the Nebraskan. Lee would have lost the round in any event as he was penalized for a low blow.

Although Walter continued to outbox Lee through the seventh, Lee staggered him with a hard right to the jaw. Woods looked shaky but he fought back gamely and was pounding Lee on the ropes at the sound of the bell.

In the last three sessions, however, Woods weakened under the tireless attack of his rival and was on the defensive throughout. Lee made Woods buckle with a hard right to the chin but could not follow up effectively, Woods boxing his way out of peril. In the ninth a left hook cut a gash over Woods' right eye and a left to the body doubled him up. He nearly sank to the floor but held on and weathered a fusillade of rights and lefts to the body.

The East Sider was tired and weak as he answered the final bell and only his cleverness enabled him to last. Lee rushed in furiously and twice staggered him with short rights. Woods was purely on the defensive, but he kept Lee from getting set for a finishing punch and was fighting back when the bell halted hostilities.

Lee weighed 145 pounds and his rival 160, an advantage of six.

The only knockout of the night came in the semi-final when Tommy Roman, Bayonne, N. J., 137¼, stopped Johnny Rinaldi of the Bronx, 138¼, in forty-one seconds of the fourth round of a bout scheduled for six.

Early in the contest Roman cut Rinaldi's left eye and it was bleeding so badly that the referee stopped the fight. Until the fourth it was fairly even but Rinaldi was being badly beaten when the referee intervened.

Augustin Gonzales of Puerto Rico, 135¾, and Angelo Cali of Harlem, 138, fought a draw in six slashing rounds.

Tokyo And Hiroshima Enter Soccer Final

Tokyo and Hiroshima were to battle at 2 p.m. today at the Tokyo Imperial University grounds in the final of the 15th annual national higher schools soccer championships.

Tokyo entered the final by taking the measure of Musashi, last year's champions, by two goals to nil, scoring one in each half in the curtain-raiser of Wednesday's semi-finals.

Hiroshima won in impressive style from Mito in the other game by four goals to nil.

Drop In College Football Scoring Seen In Records

N.Y. Times

NEW YORK, Dec. 2—The coaches have been squawking that the defense has become top dog in college football and, this time at least, the figures say they don't lie.

The sixteenth annual Associated Press scoring compilation reveals a comparatively sharp drop under figures for 1936 and a continuance of the downwad trend in scoring that has been more or less steady since 1922.

The 209 teams included in the compilation tallied an average of 107.19 points for the season while the 1,812 games they played produced an average of 12.36. The 168 teams included in the 1936 survey made an average of 113.3 per season while 1,438 games were producing an average of 13.23.

New Rule Aid to Defense

Several factors seem to have combined in making it tougher than ever to break into the scoring column. For one thing the rules committee provided the defense with one big break by its revised interpretation of the forward pass interference rule.

The interpretation seemed innocuous enough, for it simply pointed out that in forward passing plays the defense had an equal right with the offense to seek possession of the ball and that no matter how much bodily contact was involved no foul was to be called against the defending team if its player, or players, made a bona-fide attempt to catch the ball. The result, however, seemed to show officials much slower to call interference than a year ago.

Laterals Less Frequent

Another factor in reduced scoring was the trend against the lateral pass and the so-called razzle dazzle offense. These built up huge scores when they clicked but were so risky that most coaches decided that discretion was the better part of valor and returned to more conservative tactics.

Had it not been for the Southwest and its spectacular passing, this year's decline would have been much more marked. The thirteen Southwestern teams included in the compilation scored an average of 156.54 points per season and 16.68 per game in 122 contests. The next highest average was in the South, where thirty-eight teams scored an average of 124.32 per season and 12.77 per game.

The leadership of the entire country went to the unbeaten Arkansas State Teachers, with 337 points. Marshall College of West Virginia counted 297 and Detroit 253. On the opposite side of the fence, Colorado State scored only 6 and the University of Rochester 7.

Defensively the leaders were three Eastern schools. Lafayette and Albright each permitted the opposition only 6 points and Villanova 7. The tail-ender in this respect was Wake Forest, which yielded 220.

The suspicion that the games were more frequent than usual was confirmed by the survey, which showed a total of 134 draws. This compared with 100 a year ago.

Scoring Highest in 1922

In the sixteen-year history of the compilation, the season of 1922 ranks at the top from a scoring standpoint, with eighty-three teams averaging 133 points per season and 19 per game. The low was reached in 1934, when 154 teams registered an average of 104.2 points per season and 12.19 per game.

The 1937 records:

	Teams.	Gms.	Pts.	Team Av.	Gm. Av.
Nation	209	1,813	22,402	107.19	12.36
Southwest	13	122	2,035	156.54	16.68

Waseda Nine Splits Series In Kansai

Waseda University's ball tossers lost a game and won one Wednesday afternoon at the Fujiidera grounds at Kyoto.

With Pitcher Ishiguro yielding but one hit, Waseda swamped Kwansei Gakuin, 11-1 in the first game.

Moundsman Kin of the Kansai University nine had too much stuff for Waseda, allowing but four hits, and helped his team to a 3 to 2 victory in the second game.

Hoyt Appeases Rival Factions In Appointments

N.Y. Times

NEW YORK, Dec. 7—Appeasement for both warring factions in the Amateur Athletic Union of the United States was seen in the list of standing national committee heads for 1938, announced yesterday by Samuel E. Hoyt of New Haven, recently elected compromise candidate for president.

Hoyt retained in office a number of chairmen appointed by his immediate predecessor, Jeremiah T. Mahoney, and, in several instances, reinstated officers deposed by Budge Mahoney last year when the latter won the A. A. U. presidential contest from the Avery Brundage faction in a bitter campaign revolving around the Olympic participation issue.

Some Notable Appointments

Notable among the reinstatements were those of Dietrich Wortmann of New York as chairman of the weight-lifting committee and Fred L. Steers of Chicago as head of the redistricting committee. Roy E. Davis of Chicago, another deposed by Mahoney, was returned to official status as chairman of the boxing committee, one of the more important of the thirty-one assignments given.

Mahoney himself was named as head of the membership committee, while Miss Charlotte Epstein of New York, women's swimming leader, was among the prominent members of his faction was retained office. In all thirteen 1937 chairmen were retained.

In recognition of his great knowledge of and interest in the sport, Judge Thomas T. Reilley of New York was picked as chairman of the men's track and field committee. A former track and football star at N. Y. U. and one-time coach of the Violet eleven, Judge Reilley is eminently qualified. He has played a leading role in building up the New York Athletic Club as a powerful competing and sponsoring organization in track. He succeeds Louis Di Benedetoo of New Orleans, a stanch Mahoney supporter in the Olympic fight.

Two Chairmanships for Hoyt

Following the precedent established by his predecessors, Hoyt will serve as chairman of both the executive and foreign relations committees.

Hankyus Clinch Series Over 5 Days At Osaka

Banging out a total of 18 hits, the Osaka Hankyus emerged victors in the special five-day series of professional baseball teams at the Nishinomiya stadium near Osaka Wednesday afternoon by swamping the Tokyo Senators, 17-2, in the final.

Right hander Ishida hurled a good game for the Hankyus, holding the Senators to six hits.

The Senators defeated the Dolfins, 5-1, while the Hankyus took the measure of Nagoya, 5-2, in the semi-finals.

Armstrong Stops Chavez In First At Cleveland

N. Y. Times

CLEVELAND, Dec. 6—Henry Armstrong, world featherweight champion, knocked out Tony Chavez, claimant of the Mexican featherweight title, in the first session of their scheduled ten-round non-championship bout before 12,000 spectators tonight.

The fight was hardly a minute old when Chavez hit the canvas for a count of four. He was up and down seven times before the bout was halted in 2 minutes 4 seconds.

World lightweight champion Lou Ambers of Herkimer, N. Y., who had punched out a ten-round decision over Cleveland's Frankie Wallace in the preceding over-the-weight bout of The Cleveland News' Annual Toy Fund show, hardly had reached the rubbing table when the knockout of Chavez was announced.

Short Right Effective

Armstrong did his heavy punching with a short right to the head following some hot infighting which paved the way for the first of the knockdown wallops. The victor weighed 134¼ pounds and his rival 131.

It was Armstrong's twenty-fifth knockout victory in twenty-six fights this year and the second time he stopped Chavez. The first victory over the Mexican was scored last February in Los Angeles, Armstrong's home town. These two knockout defeats are the only bouts lost by Chavez this year.

Wallace had a bad time with Ambers and was bleeding from the mouth after the first round. He suffered a bad cut over his left eye during some toe to toe slugging in the ninth.

Champion Too Fast

Ambers was much too fast and clever for the Clevelander and had him missing badly at various times, but Wallace, always aggressive, managed to give the champion a good argument until the final bell. Both weighed 138.

Carmen Barth, 165, of Cleveland, former Olympic middleweight champion, earned the decision over Eric Seelig, 161, of Germany and New York, claimant of the European light-heavyweight crown, in an eight

Kipke Is Dropped As Football Coach By Michigan 'U'

N.Y. Times

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Dec. 9—The University of Michigan, one of football's strongholds since the turn of the century, was in the market for a new coach tonight.

Harry G. Kipke, one-time All-America pupil of Fielding H. Yost, was notified today by the university board of control of athletics that his contract would not be renewed when it expires on June 1, 1938.

Kipke served as head coach at Michigan for nine years, during which his teams won forty-six games, lost twenty-five and tied four. In the last four years his elevens have been unable to hit winning strides.

The board gave no indication as to Kipke's successor, merely announcing a committee had been selected to interview "qualified coaches" who might apply for the job.

Kipke said the announcement was a distinct shock and that he had not made any plans for the future. He intimated he would consider several offers he had received to enter business.

"I was looking forward to a splendid season next year," he said, "with the help of the good freshman material we had last fall."

Dismissal of Kipke, who is president of the American Football Coaches Association, marks the only change in the Western Conference coaching line-up since the 1937 gridiron season ended.

Failure of recent Michigan elevens to cope with Minnesota and Ohio State successfully aroused alumni dissatisfaction. In the last five years, Minnesota ran up 139 points while holding Michigan to 6.

Kipke was a football, basketball and baseball star at Michigan in his playing days. He captained the 1923 football team. He served as assistant coach at the University of Missouri and at Michigan, and as head coach at Michigan State College before taking over the coaching reins here from Elton E. (Tad) Weiman in 1929.

After an average season in 1929, in which his team won five and lost three, Kipke embarked on a winning streak that lasted until 1934. Michigan tied for the conference title in 1930 and 1931, and captured it outright the next two years.

Prior to the 1937 season Kipke said his team should win four games. One-point victories over Iowa, Illinois and Chicago, and a one-touchdown triumph over Pennsylvania fulfilled his prediction.

Because of the .500 record, it had been felt in many quarters that Kipke would keep his job for at least another year.

Rumors as to the identity of Kipke's successor swept the Michigan campus immediately after dismissal announcement. Prominently mentioned were Irwin Uteritz, former Michigan quarterback, now backfield coach at the University of California, and Charles E. (Gus) Dorais, coach at the University of Detroit.

Complete Course of
JAPANESE CONVERSATION GRAMMAR
By Mr. Orsate Vaccari and Mrs. Enko Vaccari

THE LONDON TIMES
LITERARY SUPPLEMENT
No. 1844, Saturday, June 5, 1937

....this new manual is practical and useful, and what Count Kabayama in his prefactory note calls its "human method" will make it acceptable to the growing number of English students of Japanese. When the student has mastered its sixty lessons he will have completed the equivalent of an ordinary Japanese school education and will be at home in the language and able to proceed to higher things.

A feature of the book is its transliteration with Chinese characters of every Japanese example rendered in English spelling so that the student is gradually familiarized with the appearance of the language as well as with its sound.

Studying Japanese with this Grammar Becomes a Real Pleasure

EXTRACTS FROM THE PREFACE

Written by Count Ayské Kabayama, chairman of the Kokusai Bunka Shinkokai (The Society for International Cultural Relations of Tokyo).

"Mr. and Mrs. Vaccari have brought out what I would like to regard as the most complete book to date for the study of Japanese, and have, thereby, provided an effective and practical guide toward a basic study of the Japanese nation and people ....The method introduced by the authors is not only scientific, but human....the particular of the language, fully treated with practical examples, have been regulated in each lesson according to the measure of a partial effort of the mind....The Japanese taught in the book has struck me as of the best commonly accepted diction today....The authors have introduced a new system of giving all the sentences in the book in Japanese characters and Roman transliteration with their respective English translation, an innovation most likely to prove very helpful....Mr. and Mrs. Vaccari have published a book of high merit and may be regarded as the initiators of a new system for teaching Japanese.

Futabayama Loses To Minanogawa In Benefit Show

Futabayama, grand champion who went through the last two tournaments at Kokugikan bowl in Ryogoku without a defeat in 24 days of wrestling and is the central figure of interest in the forthcoming "spring" tourney scheduled to start on January 13, was defeated by Minanogawa, another grand champion and a giant in physique, Thursday at the Kokugikan in the first day's matches of a special tournament to console the families with soldiers serving on the fronts in China.

With the seating space of 20,000 unable to accommodate those who had turned out, invitations to 4,500 persons to the opening day of the spring tournament were issued.

No sooner had Futabayama and Minanogawa stood up than the former charged with both hands but Minanogawa stood his ground firmly. Each then succeeded in ghining a hold on the other's girdle. Futabayama attempted a throw but Minanogawa checked it. And as they stood in the middle of the ring, waiting for the other to take the offensive, Minanogawa resorted to a throw with his right arm and Futabayama toppled over.

Grand Champion Tamanishiki defeated Grand Champion Musashiyama in the other feature bout. They mixed forridly when suddenly Tamanishiki with a clever arm's throw, sent his opponent sprawling on to the sand.

The results of the main matches after the intermission were:

Kojimagawa defeated Imizugawa.
Tsurugamine defeated Toshuzan.
Akinoumi defeated Tachiwaka.
Katsuragawa defeated Tsukubamine.
Orochigata defeated Banshinzan.

Yale Six Defeats Boston University

N.Y. Times

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Dec. 8—Yale's hockey team found itself tonight after a slow start and defeated Boston University in a thrilling hockey game, 6 to 3. The visitors took a 2-to-1 lead in the initial session, but the Elis counted three times in the middle stanza to lead, 4—3, and then added to their advantage in the closing session.

Davie Boies, with two goals and one assist; Dudley Humphrey, with one goal and two assists, and Gil Humphrey, with two goals, starred for the Elis. Only Doc Howe of the Yale regulars scored a goal.

Al Carvelli, who tallied twice, excelled for the visitors, along with Desrosiers, who figured in a pair of brilliant assists.

Platt, Yale football captain, and Richardson, outstanding Boston University forward, were unable to play because of colds, but both teams presented a stubborn defense throughout the first period. Conarty fell heavily at one time, but resumed play after several minutes.

Boies First to Tally

Boies hammered Goalie Colburn with several stinging drives, which were cleverly repelled, but with five Yale players bearing down heavily a little to the right of the Boston goal, Boies flipped a short poke through for Yale's only score of the chapter, at 13:24.

Kelleher took the rubber close to the Yale goal about two minutes later and switched it past Pearce to even the score. Carvelli put B. U. ahead with only one second left of the session, drawing Pearce out of position before caging the disk. In both cases clever dashes by Desrosiers carried the rubber down the ice.

Howe eluded the Boston defense, and, dashing from the Blue line, drove a back-handed shot into the Boston cage two minutes after the second stanza opened, evening the count at 2—all.

Carvelli again scored for the visitors on a long diagonal thrust at 3:02, but Dud Humphrey's dash from the Blue line midway in the period evened the tally once more.

As the session was drawing to a close, Gil Humphrey's difficult long shot trickled past Colburn at 17:38, giving Yale a 4-3 advantage in the hard-fought and exciting contest.

Eli Lead Goes to 5-3

With the third session well advanced, Boies threaded his way through the Boston University defense and edged a side shot past Colburn, giving Yale a 5-3 lead. It was Boies' second goal.

Eight seconds before the final gong Boies passed to Gil Humphrey for the final goal.

The line-up:

Waseda Quintet Takes 5 In Row At Manila

Waseda University's basketball team won its fifth straight victory in as many games Thursday night at Manila by defeating the Letoran University quintet, 33 to 23.

Depending on its speed and short passes, the Letoran team put up a good fight and it was a see-saw game up to the middle of the second half. At this stage of the contest, Waseda resorted to its set plays. They functioned, enabling the Tokyo collegians to penetrate the opponent's defense, and thus were able to win by a 10-point margin.

Hiroshima Eleven Wins Higher School Soccer Championship

Hiroshima won the 15th annual national higher schools soccer championship Thursday afternoon at the Tokyo Imperial University grounds by winning impressively by 5 goals to one from Tokyo in the final.

The score at the end of the first half was 1-all but the Tokyo eleven's defense fell to pieces in the second half.

The line-ups were:

Hiroshima: Kusaka, Ishihara, Omachi, Okano, Kuwabara; forwards; Nagasawa, Ishii and Oishi, halfbacks; Osaka and Hirano, fullbacks; Doi, goalie.

Tokyo: Niuya, Watanabe, Seto, Mori and Dobashi, forwards; Namikawa, Nonami and Koo, halfbacks; Arimizu and Haga, fullbacks; Kishido, goalie.

Dartmouth Wins, 53-30

N.Y. Times

HANOVER, N. H., Dec. 8—Dartmouth opened its home season by defeating the veteran Amherst quintet, 53-30, before 1,500 spectators tonight.

Amherst led for the greater part of the first half, but with the advent of two Indian football players, Bob MacLeod and Joe Cottone, who made their season's debut, the Green defense tightened. On offense, Captain Bill Thomas and Bob Reno were tied with 11 points apiece, and Moose Dudis, Green center, led a second half spurt which put Dartmouth far in front when he scored 10.

6 Players Figure In Baseball Deal; Tigers Get Walker

By JOHN DREBINGER

N.Y. Times

MILWAUKEE, Dec. 2—Following further intensive and, for the most part, futile bartering, the major leaguers, who have been hovering on the outskirts of the minor league baseball convention, finally moved into the spotlight today with completion of the first player transaction of outstanding importance. The Tigers and White Sox closed a deal which involved no fewer than six players and which both sides fervently hope will make them more formidable rivals of the Yankees in 1938.

The Tigers, after weeks of dickering between Managers Mickey Cochrane and Jimmy Dykes, finally obtained their objective by bolstering their pitching staff with the acquisition of Vernon Kennedy, 28-year-old right-hander. They also obtained Outfielder Dixie Walker and Tony Piet, infielder, from the Chicago club.

Walker a Hard Hitter

In exchange, the White Sox receive Marvin Owen, who has been the Tigers' regular third baseman the last five seasons; Gerald Walker, hard-hitting outfielder, and Mike Tresh, a catcher whom the Tigers had sent on option to Portland last season.

Not to be outstripped by their Detroit and Chicago rivals in the quest to cut down on the Yankees next season, the Red Sox swung a deal late in the evening when Manager Joe Cronin announced he had obtained Joe Vosmik, hard-hitting outfielder, from the St. Louis Browns.

In return the Boston club gave Buck Newsom, right-handed pitcher; Red Kress, infielder, who was with Minneapolis last season, and Buster Mills, outfielder.

Vosmik, who was traded to the Browns by the Cleveland Indians last Winter hit .325 during the 1937 campaign.

Although on a basis of straight player evaluation baseball observers seemed to believe that the White Sox achieved slightly the better deal, there was no denying that, in meeting their most urgent need, the Tigers had benefited considerably.

Rowe Comeback Discussed

Detroit has acquired an exceptionally fine pitcher who is expected to take up the slack caused by the injury to Schoolboy Rowe last season. When to this is added the possibility of Rowe's coming back next year to something approaching his normal form, the Tigers certainly would seem to be equipped to give the Yankees a real battle.

Kennedy came to the White Sox from Oklahoma City at the close of the 1934 season. He had his best year in Chicago in 1936, when he won twenty-one games and lost only nine, a showing which actually had the Yankees offering Charlie Ruffing for him last Spring at one stage of Big Red's holdout siege.

A tendency toward wildness, however, hampered Kennedy last season and his record fell to only fourteen victories, against thirteen defeats.

Batting Power Sacrificed

The acquisition of Dixie Walker and Piet is not regarded as material improvement for the Tigers. Dixie hit only .302 last year against Gerald Walker's .335, while Piet, an exceedingly light hitter, is expected to fill only a utility infield role for the Detroiters.

In addition to the clouting Gee Walker, the White Sox also are getting a third sacker for a serious gap of the Chicago battle front last season. Owen is rated among the foremost defensive third basemen in the game and hit .291 for 1937. Tresh is considered a promising catcher, who hit .271 in 121 games for Portland last season.

So far as the other major league clubs were concerned, all appeared in a stalemate, which seemed to go double for the three New York clubs, Yankees, Giants and Dodgers.

Terry Avoids Grimes

Colonel Bill Terry, resigned to the fact that he can do no further business with Burleigh Grimes regarding the Van Lingle Mungo matter until the arrival of Jim Mulvey and Joe Gilleaudeau, Dodger directors, in Chicago, is giving the Brooklyn manager a wide berth.

The Colonel, however, held several conferences with Jimmy Wilson of the Phillies to revive the Dolph Camilli rumors and talked over possible deals with Bill McKechnie, new boss of the Reds, Casey Stengel of the Bees and Pie Traynor of the Pirates.

Frankie Frisch and Branch Rickey, president of the Cardinals, are cutting a strange figure, with nothing much to keep them busy but their minor league affairs. Nobody, apparently, is interested in Dizzy Dean, who was the talk of the conventions a year ago, and everybody is conceding that Joe Medwick will remain right where he is.

Grimes completed one transaction for the Dodgers when he sold Ben Cantwell, veteran right-hander, to Montreal.

Melillo Coach With Browns

Oscar Melillo, veteran infielder of the Red Sox, at his own request had his playing career come to a close today in a deal which sent him to the Browns to serve as coach under Gabby Street.

Villanova On Top, 39-22

N.Y. Times

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 8—Villanova, led by Jim Montgomery's brilliant shooting, defeated the University of Baltimore tonight, 39—22, for its second victory of the basketball season. It was the first setback for the Bees in three games.

Montgomery made thirteen points, all except one on field goals. The Wildcats led at the half, 14—11.

In the ice hockey competition, the Manchuria Medical and Meiji University sextets entered the semi-finals by taking the measure of Keio and Tokyo Imperial University teams respectively Thursday night at the Shibaura rink.

Staking a 2-goal rally in the third period, the Manchuria Medical six eliminated the Keio stick wielders by 3 goals to 1.

Meiji proved too strong for Teidai in the other game and romped away with a 9 to 1 victory.

Vicarious Ball Carriers Hinder College Elevens

Christian Science Monitor

CHICAGO, Ill., Dec. 11—Vicarious ball carriers appeared more in evidence during the Big Ten football season of 1937 than ever before, according to a veteran observer here. They cut short many potential touchdown runs. Several of these would have made victories out of defeats. Strong teams as well as weak teams were afflicted. They accounted for some of the so-called upsets.

Blockers who play running statue instead of blocking, who watch the ball carrier instead of tacklers, who aim to take out the last opponent instead of the first one, who want to be first to congratulate the maker of a touchdown if one is made—these are vicarious ball carriers. They run with the ball carrier, not at the opposition.

In one big game a fast and elusive back, with good blocking, ran almost the entire length of the field and was way out in front of all opponents. But he bumped into a teammate and fell on the one-yard line. With four downs to go the rest of the way, the touchdown was never made. In another game against a formidable foe the star back ran 30 yards and cleared all opposition. Before him stretched a straightaway jaunt for 40 yards and a touchdown which would have either given a tying touchdown, or put an entirely different color to the offensive efforts of his team. Who brought him down? An opponent overtaking him? No. One of his own blockers clumsily dodging around to find somebody to block. The smart ball carriers who could dodge opposing tacklers by feinting, couldn't feint out his own man.

Many end sweeps failed because the runner, with two and three blockers ahead of him, couldn't get them at act in time. They wanted to run with him to the sidelines, for what reason nobody knows. They were either too slow and he had to abandon them and get caught, or they finally piled up in his path and he fell over them. If each had selected an opponent, the first one handy, and taken him out, the runner would have been away for a touchdown.

In one game a back caught a punt on his 30-yard line, reversed his field twice and dodged the entire array of opponents—all except one tackler who kept fading toward his own goal. Ahead of the ball carrier ran three of his mates—presumably to block. They kept looking at him urging him on. Finally, in anger, he slowed up, swept an arm and a pointed finger at the one remaining tackler and yelled at his mates to take him out. Not until thus publicly reprimanded did these blockers turn their attention to the tackler. They smothered him under a pile and the ball carrier rambled on over the goal. This performance was staged by one of the best teams in the Big Ten.

Some days they block, and other days they don't. Some days they go through the motions, but fail to get results. They don't quite stretch enough to be effective. Other days they stretch and time to perfection, and the team runs up big scores. On some teams, blockers do everything right early in the season, and gradually degenerate until they do nothing right. Overconfidence of a powerful team is manifested most pointed in the crop of vicarious ball carriers it raises.

These instances illustrate once more the old adage, it makes little difference what system a coach uses, as long as he gets good men, and is successful in teaching them to run hard, tackle hard, and block the nearest opponent at the earliest opportunity.

Henry Cotton Is Toasted At Dinner Given At London

Times, London

LONDON, Dec. 7—Last Saturday's dinner to Henry Cotton, so admirably organized by the Langley Park Club, was a remarkable tribute to a golfer not only of great skill but of great character. It was also a most pleasant function, and I think all who were there would agree that one of the very pleasantest things about it was Lord Dunedin's speech. Very simply and charmingly he told of golf as it was played in his youth, and kept an audience of over 500 people half surprised, half amused, and altogether enthralled by his account of a game that must have sounded to many of them prehistoric. If Allan Robertson be taken as the first of the famous golfers, then the whole, long roll of them comes within the scope of Lord Dunedin's memories; for it was in 1857, as he told us, that he had his first toy club; it was in 1859 that Allan died and old, Mr. Sutherland, breaking suddenly out of melancholy reverie, exclaimed: "They may toll the bells and shut up their shops in St. Andrews, for their greatest is gone."

If there is one definite thing more than another to be learned from this speech it is this: that it is utterly vain to compare the achievements of golfers belonging to widely separated generations. In 1744 there was an almost mythical hero called Long Robin, who played for Kent against All-England, when, as I rejoice to say, Kent won by a single wicket. Even those with the most unbridled passion for comparisons would not today argue as between Hammond playing O'Reilly's bowling and Long Robin withstanding the fast sneaks of Newland with a curved instrument which would nowadays be regarded as better suited to ice hockey. Yet it would be just as futile to compare Allan or Young Tommy with Cotton.

Nicked Putts

To take a single illustration, Lord Dunedin referred almost casually to the half a dozen "nicked putts" that a player might encounter in a round, and passed on without further explanation. "What were nicked putts?" some of his listeners whispered to one another. Could it really be that the ball could be found lying in a hole upon the putting green, and that several times? What frightful fate would befall the green keeper if such a thing happened now once in a year! Yet if, we turn to the account in the Badminton Library of Young Tommy we find such outrages treated as a matter of course. "Curiously enough," wrote Mr. Everard, "he was quite unable to use a cleek for a bad-lying putt; then he negotiated with his iron which was very straight in the face."

In fact it is not necessary to go back nearly as far as can Lord Dunedin to remember putts that had to be tackled with a lofted club, but we grow accustomed to the velvety smoothness that is and forget the bumpiness and cuppiness that were. And if they did these things on the green what should they do through the green? In the year before Lord Dunedin was born Allan and Tom played the Dunns and each side had a cheer-leader to lead the shouts of joy when his side had a good lie. Today there ought by comparison to be a curse-leader in case the ball should not lie beautifully.

That sentence on Tommy Morris, which I quoted, is instructive in another respect. Mr. Everard, be it noticed, referred not to his straight-faced iron, but to his iron which was straight in the face. It is to be inferred that this was the only iron he carried, and this is borne out by what Lord Dunedin said. In enumerating the iron club he spoke of the cleek, which was the most important one, the iron and the sand iron, and that was all, save for a temporary reinforcement in the form of a "niblick-brassey," a name which produced rather irreverent giggles. With that exiguous armory pitching was a difficult business, and there was surely infinite scope for skill and for that almost lost art, the improvisation of strokes. And, apropos, I remember the late Mr. James Cunningham telling me of the first time he saw the niblick used for pitching, as distinguished from its rougher tasks, by Young Tommy from the Elysian Fields to the Hole o' Cross on the way out.

A Shot of Peril

That, too, must have been a shot of much nicety and peril. Apart from the fact that the niblick was a bludgeon, a very different instrument from the well balanced "No. 8" of today, it had a face so small that the slightest error must have meant an appailing "socker" to coverpoint. We have only to imagine in addition a leather grip slimy with rain (there was no club-bag to keep it dry) and to be glad in our coward spirits that we have not such strokes to essay.

Lord Dunedin spoke also—and I thought in particular of one friend who would have rejoiced to hear him—of the "disaster" of the rubber-cored ball. "These," as Sherlock Holmes used to say, "are very deep waters and I am not going rashly to plunge into them." There are some regrets for things too long past which it is perhaps vain to utter. Many of Lord Dunedin's hearers did obviously sympathize with him, however, when he complained that the ball had, despite all possible stretching, obliterated much of the character of the links. That pitch from the Elysian Fields is but one illustration.

Today the big hitter smites his way comfortably along the lower ground and so home in 2, just as on the return journey he smites contemptuously over Hell. What may be called the geography of courses has been so changed that that which tested the old champion to the utmost barely troubles the new. It is not, of course, that he has no troubles of his own but assuredly they are not the same ones. We can compare courses as they are and as they were, but not the men who have played on them at different times under different conditions. As to them, to emend Mrs. Malaprop: "Let us have no capparisons! Capparisons don't become a young golfer."

O.O.C. Cables To U.S. Games Will Be Held

The Tokyo Olympic Organizing Committee sent Friday a radiogram to Avery Brundage, American member of the International Olympic Committee and a member of the American Olympic Association, thanking him for his support of the 12th Olympic Games in Tokyo in 1940.

At the same time, the message said the O. O. C. has not abandoned plans of staging the Games and preparations are being pushed through. It was pointed out that a reduction of 15 per cent has been obtained for members of the Olympic delegations on trans-Pacific fares. It was added that efforts to get larger reductions on steamer and railway fares are being made.

The O. O. C. mentioned also that it is anticipating a giant delegation from the United States to the 1940 Games.

Matsuzo Nagai, secretary general of the O. O. C., left Uyeno Station by the 7 p.m. express Friday en route to Sapporo to inspect the facilities for the Fifth Winter Olympic Games in 1940.

Mr. Nagai is expected to be a member of the delegation to the International Olympic Committee's meeting at Cairo, opening on March 10, when chief business on the agenda will be matters relating to the 1940 Games.

Lt. Colonel A. G. Berdez of Lausanne, secretary of the International Olympic Committee, has informed the Tokyo Olympic Organizing Committee that many nations have already declared their intention to send canoeists to Tokyo, according to an announcement made here.

It was learned that Czechoslovakia, Sweden, Switzerland, Belgium, Poland, Austria, Italy, France, England, Germany, Yugoslavia, Denmark and Luxemburg have definitely decided to enter the canoeing events while Finland voiced her inability to send any competitor in this particular event.

Furthermore, Lt. Colonel Berdez revealed that Hungary, Holland, Lithuania and Brazil are still undecided.

Although canoeing is a young sport in Japan, it is popular among both sexes according to Itaro Uraoka, executive of the Japan Amateur Rowing Association, under whose guidance a canoe committee was formed. Simultaneously, Seiichiro Doke, member of the Diet, was named its chairman and Goro Chiba, president of the Delta Ship Building Company, was chosen executive secretary.

It would be the second time in the history of the Olympic Games to stage the canoe race if the International Olympic Committee session at Cairo in March decides in favor of its adoption.

10 Organizations Here

Following the Berlin Olympic Games in 1936, Japan became more or less canoe-minded in the way of creating canoe clubs in various parts of Japan, and there are nearly ten organizations at present.

It is very interesting, Mr. Uraoka declared, that there are about 40 girl canoeists, many of whom successfully participated in the Meiji Shrine Rowing contests last fall.

In view of the present situation, Japan is more than confident to stage the canoe race in 1940 according to Mr. Uraoka, who covered the distance from Tateyama from Shinagawa, a distance of nearly 40 miles, on July 11 last year with many other canoe-lovers.

The Toda rowing course, which is now under construction, will be used for the 10,000-meter and 1,000-meter canoe contests, it has been revealed by the Japan Amateur Rowing Association.

Georgia Triumphs Over Miami, 26 to 0

N.Y. Times

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 10—The University of Georgia presented retiring Coach Harry Mehre with a 26-0 victory over the University of Miami tonight before a stadium-dedicating crowd of 14,625 persons.

The Bulldogs, who dedicated this final game to Coach Mehre, struck for touchdowns on three sensational pass plays and scored a fourth after a long punt return that set it up. Late in the game Miami moved 84 yards, only to lose the ball by a fumble near Georgia's goal.

A Miami boy, Knox Eldredge, provided a dramatic touch by scoring the first Georgia touchdown. He took a lateral pass from Captain Bill Hartman, who had caught a 21-yard aerial from Bill Hunnicutt, and dashed 23 yards to score.

Punt to 1-Yard Line

Midway of the second period Hartman paved the way for another score with an amazing punt that went out a scant foot from the Miami goal. Vasa Cate received Lou Chesna's return kick and romped 38 yards to the Miami 4, from where he circled end for the touchdown.

A Miami aerial attack backfired later in the quarter when Bill Badgett, Georgia tackle, intercepted a pass on the Hurricane 30. Three plays later Mathews rifled a pass to Marvin Gillespie on the goal line.

Late in the third Georgia drove 29 yards to the Miami 32, from where Billy Mims whirled the ball to Cate in the end zone.

Miami Fails Near Goal

The Hurricanes came roaring back after the kick-off. A couple of short passes thrown by Eddie Dunn and steady line gains by Dunn and Chesna took the ball to the Georgia 2. Dunn, trying a third-down sneak over center, fumbled and Hartman recovered for a touchback in the end zone.

The line-up:

Dublin Defeats Cambridge, 6-5 In Rugby Game

Times, London

LONDON, Dec. 15—Dublin University's "colours" match against Cambridge University in the College Park, Dublin, was played yesterday in rain mixed with snow, and on the treacherous ground any accuracy in handling was ruled out from the start. There was a great deal of kicking ahead and loose forward rushes, nearly all of the latter being accomplished by the Trinity forwards, who may fairly be said to have won the game for their side by a penalty goal and a try (6 points) to a goal (5 points).

The Cambridge backs impressed as being much the faster and as having much greater possibilities as an attacking force, and they would probably have won had they taken more chances than they did. The forwards, though getting possession more often than Trinity frequently adopted the negative policy of keeping the ball in the back row, only to lose it in the end.

For most of the first half R. B. Bruce-Lockhart persisted with a short kick along the ground as a mode of attack, but later on, when he discovered that he had the measure of his opposite number, he made a few delightful runs, swerving and side-stepping his way through at top speed, only for a pass to go begging or be knocked-on. There were also glimpses of how dangerous J. G. S. Forrest (who went off injured 10 minutes before no-side) might have been under favorable conditions, and R. W. T. Ritchie gave an excellent display at full-back. He was given plenty of chasing about to do, but was always first to the ball and kicked well with both feet.

W. B. Young Missed

The forwards stuck to their guns well, but had no counter to Trinity's rushes in the loose and a fast break-away player of the type of W. B. Young was missed. E. L. A. Folker did a lot of useful stopping and covering work but the most genuine workers appeared to be L. Newton-Thompson, P. A. R. Lindsay, and P. F. C. Bateman-Champain.

The Trinity backs attempted very little in the way of passing, which was perhaps just as well, but the most useful of them were S. W. McCall, at scrummage half-back, C. V. Boyle and J. C. Martin, in the three-quarter back line and T. E. Guy, who, like Ritcie, was severely tested at full back and gave nothing away.

The forwards fully realized their responsibilities and played with desperate energy from start to finish. In the second half they took complete control, sweeping through time and again with their rushes, in which the ball was well controlled. The leader nearly every time was T. Clements, and one dribble of his from halfway was only stopped by a scrambled touch-down. W. A. Pike, M. F. Graham, and T. F. Roche were others, who could be picked out.

Trinity kept the play for the greater part of the first half near the Cambridge "25," but on their few excursions to the other end Cambridge were more dangerous. Once Bruce-Lockhart and Forrest combined well to get J. S. Moore clear, but the wing man dropped his pass, and on another occasion, following a long kick ahead, Forrest was just beaten by Boyle. A penalty goal by Pike and a try by Martin gave Trinity their six points before Low slipped over from a scrummage for Cambridge and Forrest converted.

The teams were:—

Dublin University—T. E. Guy, back; C. V. Boyle, J. C. Martin, F. W. Parke, and E. McG. Cochrane, three-quarter backs; N. J. Hogan and S. W. McCall, half-backs; T. Clements, J. O. N. Donnellon, M. F. Graham, W. Jones, G. E. Neville, W. A. Pike, T. F. Roche, and J. N. Wilkinson, forwards.

Cambridge University—R. W. T. Ritchie, back; J. S. Moore, J. G. S. Forrest, A. D. T. Mallet, and E. D. E. Reed, three-quarter backs; R. B. Bruce-Lockhart and J. D. Low, half-backs; F. M. N. Heath, P. R. Spencer, J. Steeds, P. A. R. Lindsay, L. Newton-Thompson, E. L. A. Folker, P. F. C. Bateman-Champain, and F. A. Way, forwards.

Hasegawa Leads In Students' Figure Skating

Tsugio Hasegawa of Keio University sprung a surprise in the opening day of the national students' figure skating championships Friday afternoon at the Shibaura rink by assuming a 46.3 point lead over the champion, Toshiichi Katayama of Kwansei Gakuin, in the school figures.

Hasegawa was in beautiful form from the moment he appeared on the ice and there was no letup in his performance. Katayama, on the other hand, committed a glaring fault in the first figures, the rocker, and was unable to offset Hasegawa's lead.

The free skating competition, scheduled for 6 p.m. today, will decide the winner between Katayama and Hasegawa.

Team honors were virtually clinched by Keio by placing three men within the first five in the school figures.

The scores were:

1. Tsugio Hasegawa, Keio—788.7 points.
2. Toshiichi Katayama, Kwansei Gakuin, 742.4 points.
3. Zenjiro Watanabe, Keio—740.3 points.
4. Arisaka, Meiji—643 points.
5. Hoshino, Keio—623.4 points.
6. Shimagawa, Waseda — 583.1 points.
7. Kobayashi, Meiji—525.3 points.
8. Kimura, Meiji—480.4 points.
9. Kojima, Waseda—235.7 points.
10. Kawamura, Doshisha — 209.3 points.
11. Imano, Waseda—156.9 points.

The Waseda and Rikkyo sextets will clash at 7:30 p.m. today at the Shibaura rink in the final of the 13th annual national students' ice hockey championships.

Rikkyo, with the combination of Koyanagi and Sunada proving too powerful, ran roughshod over the Manchuria Medical six by eight goals to one Friday night in the first game of the semi-finals. The Tokyo collegians registered a goal in the first session, four in the second and three more in the third. The Manchurian team's only tally came in the first period.

A goal in the third period gave the Waseda stick wielders a 1-0 victory over Meiji in the other contest of the semi-finals.

Both teams fell down on their passing attack, resorting too much on individual sallies. Time and again, a player would penetrate the other's defense but with no teammate to follow up the attack.

The winning score came after one minute of play in the third period when Forward Nakagawa dribbled down the left flank. He was checked momentarily but the puck fell in front of the goalie where he picked up the disc again, maneuvered it to the left and expertly pushed it into the goal.

Sarron Triumphs In Guggino Battle

By FRED VAN NESS

N.Y. Times

NEW YORK, Dec. 9—Petey Sarron of Birmingham, Ala., former world featherweight champion, made his first appearance as a lightweight at the Hippodrome last night and gained a decision over Carl Guggino of Tampa, Fla., in ten slashing rounds before a crowd of 2,500. Sarron weighed 133½ pounds and Guggino 130½.

Apparently stronger at this weight, Sarron set a fast pace from the first round to the end. With his awkward style and no attempt at boxing he threw punches relentlessly and though he missed many he landed enough to earn the unanimous verdict. He was not too impressive, but he fought so savagely that Guggino could not withstand his attacks without backing up.

Petey lost the first round with a low blow, although he had the better of the fighting. In the second he was so anxious to even the score that he was swinging and missing most of his punches.

Sarron Slips to Floor

Sarron continued so wild with his punches that in the fourth he went to the floor as his right missed its target by more than a foot. As he got up he rushed Guggino to the ropes and flailed with both hands, but Guggino parried the blows with a series of rights and lefts to the face and slipped out of danger.

Guggino had a good round in the fifth when he staggered Sarron with a hard right to the jaw, driving him across the ring. Petey rushed back in a desperate effort to land but still was missing his punches badly.

From the fifth to the end Sarron had the better of the battle, although it did not seem he could continue the pace to the finish. He seemed never to tire and finally Guggino showed signs of wear after the eighth. Just before the final bell, Petey started a wild, right swing, lost his balance and sat down on the floor again.

Paid admission was only 1,518 for a gross gate of $3,099 and a net of $2,573. The State tax was $180.

Judo, Fencing Artists To Exhibit In Italy

To reciprocate the arrival in Japan soon of a group of Italian goodwill envoys, it has been decided to send to that country a team of 12 judo and fencing artists. They will be selected from among the best in this nation and will tour the country giving exhibitions of their skill in an endeavor to introduce to the Italians, some idea of the Japanese spirit.

The Foreign Office at present busy with the selection and the group, when chosen, will set sail sometime in early March. Professor Jigoro Kano, the noted judo authority, will most likely lead the contingent.

Baugh's 81 Passes Set League Record In Pro Football

N.Y. Times

NEW YORK, Dec. 11—Final statistics for the 1937 National Football League season as announced yesterday reveal that four new individual records were established and that only two of seven leaders retained top ranking in their specialties. Passers and aerial receivers accounted for the new marks.

Figuring in the creation of several of the records were three freshmen in the professional ranks, namely, Slingin' Sammy Baugh of Washington and both Gaynell Tinsley and Joe Reed of the Cardinals.

Baugh completed eighty-one passes to shatter the standard of seventy-seven made last year by Arnie Herber of the Green Bay Packers. Tinsley gained 675 yards on the receiving end of aerials to surpass the mark of 552 set by Don Hutson of the Green Bay Packers.

Hutson's Mark Shattered

Last year Hutson gained 526 for a league record and broke it in his final game of the 1937 season, only to have Tinsley top his standard last Sunday.

A pass from Reed to Tinsley that was good for ninety-five yards against the Bears broke the old mark of eighty-three established on a Herber-Hutson aerial in 1934. Hutson also accounted for a new standard, catching forty-one passes to better the record of thirty-four that he made last year.

Hutson in pass-receiving and Jack Manders of the Bears in field-goal kicking were the only men to retain distinctions they gained in 1936. Cliff Battles of the Redskins ousted Tuffy Leemans of the Giants as the leading ground gainer and thus became the first league player to take the title twice. Battles won it first in 1933 and this Fall made 874 yards in nine games.

Manders Displaces Clark

Manders wrested the scoring crown from Dutch Clark of the Lions, tallying sixty-nine points. Twenty-four of them were made with eight field goals as Manders also took the leadership in that department.

In addition to breaking Herber's completion mark, Baugh became the 1937 leader in yards gained by passes, being successful on eighty-one of 171 heaves for 1,127 yards. Herber's yardage last year was 1,239 for a new league record.

Meiji Clinches Second Place In Rugby Ranks

Meiji University's ruggers clinched second place in the national rugby standing Friday afternoon at the Meiji Shrine stadium by coming from behind to down Kyoto Imperial, 15-11. The score at half time was 8-0 in favor of the Kyoto team.

The ruggers from Kyoto broke the ice in the scoring column after 18 minutes of play in the first half when Ikeda caught a punt by Wada of Meiji in mid-field and romped the rest of the distance for a try squarely behind the goal to give Kyoto a 5-0 lead.

Wada Scores

Yura and Ikeda of Kyoto dribbled in 20 minutes to a tight scrummage on the Meiji 10 yard line in the right corner. It was Meiji's ball on the out of bound play and as Fujii of Meiji attempted to recover the ball, Wada beat him to it to fall over it across the goal line for a try.

Meiji scored after nine minutes of play in the second after on a penalty goal, Wada booting it through the uprights from the Kyoto 10 yard line.

Meiji's first try came in 12 minutes when on a passing attack by the three-quarters, Wada, Uyeda and Nakagawa from the loose on the Kyoto 25 yard line. Nakagawa was tackled but his team-mate, Niijima, was following him closely and took the ball for a try in the right corner.

Meiji was pressing hard at this stage of the game and scored again in 15 minutes, when Endo crossed the goal line after a brilliant passing attack. It was Endo again that tallied in 17 minutes to give Meiji a 12-8 lead. Kyoto had an opportunity to score in 27 minutes when it was awarded a penalty kick on the Meiji 40 yard line. Fujii's kick was well-aimed but the ball unfortunately hit the crossbar.

Fast Playing

Play was fast and furious and Kyoto registered a try in 33 minutes when Wada crossed the line. Thus was Kyoto only one point behind but Meiji clinched the game in 39 minutes. Uyeda took a return pass from Nakagawa and scored in the right corner for a Meiji 15-11 lead.

The line-ups were:

Meiji: Senzaki, Kawamoto, Endo, Fukuda, Hatakeyama, Nabeka and Niijima, forwards; Fujii, Wada, halfbacks; Saito, Sazawa, Uyeda, Nakagawa, Oka, three-quarters; Yamanaka, fullback.

Kyoto: Samejima, Takita, Tokida, Ikeda, Shibata, Kawamoto, Kobayashi, forwards; Wada, Anto, Hirasawa, halfbacks; Miyao, Yura, Tsugawa and Ikeda, three-quarters; Fujii, fullback.

Tokyo Girls Win National Cage Championship

The girls from the post office insurance department of Tokyo rallied in the second half to defeat the Niigata Higher Girls School quintet, 27-22, Friday night at the National Gymnasium at Hitotsubashi, Kanda, to win the national women's basketball championship. The score at half time was 16 to 9 in favor of the Niigata girls.

Niigata suffered heavily in the critical dying moments of the game when Miss Ono, forward who single-handedly had scored 14 points, was disqualified because of the maximum of personal fouls.

Miss Suzuki, guard of the Tokyo quintet, was largely responsible for her team's victory with long brilliant shots that registered a total of 14 points.

Counting By Ear

No matter if you buy 6 or 600 postcards through the stamp window of the Prescott, Arizona, Post Office, George Krauss doesn't count them out for you. He merely grabs a bunch of cards, riffles them past his right ear, and hands you the exact number asked for. Business men of Prescott have tried time and again to catch him in error, but Mr. Krauss has been correct every time, counting as many as 400 cards a minute, timed by a stop watch.

America Dislikes Popular Envoys, Thinks Dr. Bitter

Tension Over Panay Incident Now Over, Says Jochi Daigaku Professor

Special to The Japan Times

YOKOHAMA, Jan. 8—Father Bruno Bitter, professor at Jochi Daigaku, returned this afternoon from a six-week lecture tour of America on board the Empress of Japan.

According to Dr. Bitter, the American public has been led to believe the Chinese propaganda simply because the Japanese have failed to make them believe otherwise. True, he said, official and unofficial envoys have been sent but Americans are prejudiced against them.

The Japanese Government, Dr. Bitter said, should send men abroad but not let it be known that they are envoys. Rather, he continued, they should mix with the public and clarify Japan's stand. If such methods were adopted, Father Bitter believes that a change of attitude would be registered.

The Panay Incident is over officially, but there still exists among the public a bitter feeling, is the opinion of Father Bitter. But even this feeling can be overcome, he said, if explanations are made by envoys who mix with the public and do not make known their positions.

Throughout the United States, Dr. Bitter said, there is a strong movement led by labor unions and which seems to be backed by capital to boycott Japanese goods. This movement however is showing no signs of gaining strength.

American business is against the present incident and sympathizes with the Chinese, continued Dr. Bitter. The reason according to Father Bitter is that should Japan gain strong foothold in China, it means the end of the white man's position. This would be ruinous to American as well as other foreign business.

The Catholics are however remaining strictly neutral, he said. Unless there is evidence that the Communists have a hand in the present fighting, they have no intentions of mixing. But if Communist influence is present, they will strongly sympathize with Japan's efforts.

As a means of creating better feeling abroad, Father Bitter suggests kinder treatment of foreign visitors. He believes that many foreigners are prejudiced against Japan simply because of the treatment accorded them. Thus many are reluctant to land here when just passing through.

Among the other passengers disembarking here are:

Dr. E. Heinrichs, Mrs. Heinrichs, R. Frimal, B. Stibbe, J. M. Thomson, C. H. Thorn, Mrs. Thorn, A. Winterbottom, Mrs. Winterbottom, W. S. Burns, Mrs. Burns, Miss I. M. Fleet, A. J. previously reported, the fund would be handled by the Bank of International Settlements, each country contributing one per cent of its gold reserves and pooling exchange equalization funds.

This evening's communique was unexpected in view of previous indications that no official announcement would follow the Belgian statesman's meeting with Premier Chamberlain. The text of the statement was as follows:

To Make Contacts

"Before completing his report on the mission with which he was entrusted by the French and British Governments, Van Zeeland desired to make contact with the Prime Minister in order to ascertain his views on the general situation and particularly the prospects of international action in the economic and financial spheres.

"In the course of the discussion, Van Zeeland summarized the results of the investigations which he has been conducting during the past year, and it was agreed that he should now complete his report. He anticipated that it would be ready for presentation to the British and French Governments in the course of the next fortnight.

"So far as he was concerned, Van Zeeland agreed that the report might be published as soon as the British and French Governments have had an opportunity to consider it."

Ottawa May Protest China Consul's Speech Before Service Club

By The Domei Tsushin Sha

OTTAWA, Jan. 7—An official protest is being contemplated by the Canadian Government to China over the speech made by Dr. Chang Lo-chen, Chinese Consul-General here, on January 5 before members of the Canadian Service Club.

Dr. Chang was reported to have declared at that time that "Canadians, who depend on the British Navy and the Monroe Doctrine to protect the west coast and fold their own arms will be in a position similar to China which relied on the Kellogg anti-War Pact."

It is understood that the speech brought immediate protests from Canadians who claimed that Dr. Chang had no right to interfere with the domestic problems of Canada.

Dirigible Service Across Atlantic Will Be Resumed

Sister Ship Of Hindenburg Being Rebuilt To Use Helium

By The Domei Tsushin Sha

BERLIN, Jan. 7 — Temporarily suspended due to the terrible Hindenburg disaster at Lakehurst on May 6, 1937 when the largest airship in the world exploded causing the death of 36 persons, trans-Atlantic dirigible service will be resumed sometime this summer, Zeppelin Company officials disclosed today.

Originally designed to use hydrogen gas, the sister ship of the ill-fated Hindenburg is now being rebuilt in order that helium gas may be used, officials said.

It was recalled that the disaster which overtook the Hindenburg at the New Jersey naval air station, was due to the combustion of hydrogen gas then being used in the gas cells of the dirigible.

Later, after it was ascertained that the use of hydrogen gas would be too dangerous for use in dirigibles, negotiations were conducted in order to enable the Zeppelin Company to purchase helium gas from the United States which virtually has a monopoly of that element.

Officials revealed today that helium gas is already being imported and that the new ship, officially known as the LZ-130, will be fully completed in the near future. The new airship will have a crew of approximately 60 and will have passenger space for forty.

It was also announced that another new airship, the LZ-131 will be constructed soon for southern Atlantic service. It is understood that the LZ-131 will be 16 meters longer than the LZ-130 and will be able to accomodate 100 passengers. The LZ-131 is scheduled to be completed in 1939.

Hungarian Cultural Envoy Meets Japan's Leading Children's Worker

Dr. Istvan Mezey, Hungarian cultural envoy and vice-president of the Japan-Hungarian Society who is staying in Tokyo, was entertained on Thursday evening at the home of Denichi Ishii, at Nishi-Gokencho, Ushigome. Mr. Ishii is the managing director of the Imperial School Children's Association.

A dinner consisting exclusively of Japanese dishes was served and the Japanese was used for conversation at the request of Dr. Mezey who wished to see a Japanese home as it really is. Mrs. Ishii, her son and two daughters were also at the dinner to entertain the guest.

Dr. Mezey, who speaks Japanese fluently, said during the dinner: "This is my happiest evening since I came to Japan. Japanese home life is so much like ours that I feel as if I am in my own country.

"Hungary resembles Japan in scenery, custom, and tradition. For instance, our farmers has at his home a mortar like the one used here for making rice-cakes. The Hungarian language has a number of words which mean the same things as the Japanese. Hungarians are Asiatics and we want to go hand in hand with Japan.

"The other day, I saw a performance of the Toho girls' opera and was happy because a Hungarian dance number was the most acclaimed of the whole program."

Dr. Mezey will speak over the radio on the evening of January 14 and give lectures at Senshu University in Tokyo on January 17 and at Nagoya, Osaka and Sendai later. He will then travel in Chosen, Manchoukuo and North China and visit Prince Teh. He is expected to visit Japan again in the spring to see cherry-blossoms.

Prison School Reclaiming Youthful Belgian Criminals

TURNHOUT, Belgium—Belgium's juvenile prison at Hoogstraten, not far from here, has become a sort of place of pilgrimage for European jurists, juridical officials, probation officers and all those who are interested in the regeneration of criminals.

It is an institution for reclaiming offenders between 16 and 25 years of age. The leading thought of the Prison School is to give offenders the chance to get a moral and social re-education, at the same time preparing them for useful work in the world by professional training.

The school is divided into four progressive grades, Grade A is the observation section, with prison cells, which, however, have lost much of the dreary, depressing character of ordinary prisons. Not all of those who enter Grade A are promoted to a higher grade. A relatively large number of them are found ineligible for promotion and these are sent after two months or so to ordinary reformatories or prisons to serve the rest of their sentence.

Re-education Begins

Re-education begins in Grade B for the others. Starting from the assumption that surroundings rather than natural disposition have contributed to the making of the criminal, the education begins with improving the material conditions of the offenders and making them familiar with law and order. The boys are united in groups of a dozen each, headed by a guard, who is at the same time a certificated teacher. The boys have to become accustomed to a regular life and to heed each other's interests. They are given marks for their general conduct and behavior. When these marks are very satisfactory, and only then, are they promoted to the third grade.

"Broken Chains" League

Grade C is called the section of self-government. Although there are still guards in the background, the one-time criminals enjoy a certain measure of liberty. They have cozy rooms of their own, instead of cells. The French windows of their rooms have no bars. It is a great privilege and honor to become a member of the C-group, which is a sort of corps d'elite. The C-group enjoys many favors. One of the greatest of these is permission to become a member of the Boy Scout club. The Scouts are on parole not to try to escape when they are out camping on a day's excursion with a Scoutmaster. Sometimes they go to within a few steps of the Netherlands frontier, but not one of the Boy Scouts has yet tried to escape. Every troop of 20 has only one Scoutmaster.

These youths have formed a "Broken Chain" League, financed largely by proceeds from their journal. In the first place, the league aims to provide financial assistance to poor prisoners' families. Secondly, when the time of release approaches, for a member who has acquired professional skill but has no tools, the league may grant him a loan for the purchase of tools. Thirdly, the league may support aged inmates, who, even years after their release, have come into financial difficulties through no fault of their own.

Finally the league may loan lesson fees for postal courses for members. The governor of the school prison has to grant permission for every expenditure made by the league. This permission is usually granted. The funds and the accounts are in the hands of the members of the league, but the administrator of the school prison audits the books.

The last grade, D, is a final preparation, a transition stage of six months, the last part of a sentence, before the young man returns to the community. Only those who had long sentences to serve are allowed in this grade of semi-liberty, and only then, when the governor is able to find them jobs with private persons.

Attempt Made To Mass $400,000 To Bring U.S. Athletes To Tokyo

By The Domei Tsushin Sha

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—On the eve of the executive commitee meeting of the American Olympic Committee, Avery Brundage, chairman of the A. O.C., disclosed plans to raise $400,000 to finance American participation in the 1940 Olympic Games at Tokyo.

Mr. Brundage added that discussion of the plans will be the chief topic of the executive committee meeting. He pointed out that the United States had decided not to avail itself of the transportation subsidies offered by the Japanese.

Other topics to be taken up, it is understood, will include the formation of policies, the setting up of committees and the adoption of those committees whose members have already been nominated.

Referring to rumors of shifting the Olympic Games from Tokyo due to the present unsettled conditions in the Far East, Mr. Brundage declared, "There can only be two grounds for not holding the games in Tokyo.

"First, Japan could release them voluntarily, and secondly, the International Olympic Committee which is meeting in Cairo in March could decide that the preparations in Tokyo are not sufficient to proceed with the Games."

He added, "However, neither is anticipated since if the Games were not held in Tokyo, there won't be any Olympics because it would be too late to choose a new venue."

La Maison Internationale Des P.E.N.

Les P. E. N.-Clubs, rassemblés en une Fédération internationale présidée par M. Jules Romains, sont nés au lendemain de la guerre en vue de renouer des relations normales et confiantes entre les représentants de l'intelligence, que la lutte des nations avait séparés, quand elle ne les avait pas jetés eux aussi les une contre les autres.

Toutes les littératures nationales sont représentées maintenant aux P. E. N.-Clubs, et par les auteurs les plus éminents. Cinquante et quelques sections sont répandues sur le territoire de plus de quarante Etats. Grâce à l'initiative de M. Jules Romains, qui a obtenu du gouvernement le concours désirable, la Fédération P. E. N. a maintenant sa maison commune, en réalité un grand apartement clair et aéré au quatrième étage près des Champs-Elysées. Cette résidence se compose de quelques salons et de quelques chambres mises gratuitement à la disposition des members des P. E. N. Clubs étrangers de passage à Paris. Ils auront la faculté d'y rencontrer des amis, d'y lire et même d'y travailler s'il leur en prend envie. De petites fêtes y seront organisées de temps en temps pour donner aux hôtes du moment—dont plus d'un sera illustre, dont aucun ne sera sans mérite—l'occasion de prendre contact avec l'élite de la société parisienne, et à celle-ci le plaisir de les approcher. C'est ce centre international que le président de la République a inauguré cette semaine.

2-Volume Book On Native Culture To Be Published

Task Undertaken By Body To Fete Anniversary Of Nation's Birth

The board of directors of the Society for Commemoration of the 2600th Anniversary of Japan's Birth has decided to publish a two-volume book entitled, "A General Review of Japanese Culture," at a cost of ¥1,000,000.

The work, which will cover the period from Jimmu Tenno, founder of this nation down to the present will be in such form that a glance through its pages will make clear how the present culture was developed.

The table of contents is now under consideration by a section of the Education Ministry and the work will start in March. As the first step, an editing committee composed of 60 members chosen from academic circles will start collecting materials.

This will be carefully seeded by a supervisory group and then referred to an advisory board composed of older members of the educational world. All material that is accepted, will next be passed along to a group whose members are the foremost printing and binding experts in the country. The volume will be octavo in size and will contain 2,000 pages including appendices and maps. Printed in four languages, Japanese, English, French and German, it will be truly representative of modern Japanese publishing skill.

The volumes will be made available to the public as a souvenir of the celebration commemorating the nation's 2600th anniversary, and it also will be sent to foreign countries to proclaim Japan's cultural advance.

At the society headquarters the following comment was made: "The publication of this work and the erection of a national historical museum are the two great aims of this society. Spending ¥1,000,000 on one venture, we think, is the biggest thing that has happened in this country's publishing history, and by these two volumes we are expecting to produce a medium that will clearly bring out the nation's cultural development. All the planning has been left to the Education Ministry. Since we are taking two years for the work, we expect to get a wonderful result."

Panama Will Cancel Fishing License

By The Domei Tsushin Sha

PANAMA CITY, Jan. 7—As a result of frequent complaints brought against foreign and especially Japanese fishing monopolies, the government has decided to suspend or cancel all fishing privileges to foreigners inside territorial waters and confine fishing grants only to native citizens, the Associated Press learns today.

President Dr. Juan D. Arosemena, it is understood, personally proposed the ban. The action will deal a hard blow to Japanese fishermen who practically control the fishing industry here through the medium of Portuguese wholesalers.

The alien fishing ban is expected to be published within the next few days.

The House Of Death

The most dreaded building in all Russia is the prison of the Ogpu or G.P.U., situated at No. 2 Lubianka Street in Moscow. It is the head office of the all powerful Russian Secret Service. The mere mention of Lubianka inspires terror in 160,000,000 Russians. For 6000 nights after its foundation in 1918, it has been estimated that a nightly average of 50 prisoners have been executed in the cellar of this House of Death. It follows that 300,000 have been killed here, the usual Soviet execution being a shot from behind in the back of the head, to make the victim's face unrecognizable.

Only the terror of the Ogpu made the maintenance of the Soviet regime possible.

Kuramitsu Ranked No. 1 Net Star In 1937 Season

Yasuo Kuramitsu of Kansai University, who was eliminated in the semi-finals of the national singles championships last November at Koshien, Osaka, by Baron Gottfried von Cramm, is No. 1 ranking player for the 1937 season, according to the annual official rankings announced Sunday night by the Japan Lawn Tennis Association.

Former Davis Cuppers Abe and Kawachi of the Tomon club were ranked No. 1 in the doubles competition.

Jiro Yamagishi of Keio University, who without question is the best player in the country today, and Fumiteru Nakano of Hosei University, 1937 members of Japanes Davis Cup team, were not considered in the rankings because of insufficient competition at home. They left the country in the spring to compete against the United States in the North American zone of the Davis Cup play at San Francisco, and it was not until late in October that they returned after competition at Wimbledon and in various tournaments in America.

Yamagishi and Nakano completed in the national championships at Koshien in which the former lost to Baron von Cramm in the final.

Matsumoto Ranked No. 2

Takeo Matsumoto of Hosei University was ranked No. 2 in the singles. This drew considerable attention as he had not been ranked for the 1936 season, and was considered a testimonial to his fine consistent play throughout the year.

The outstanding rise in the rankings was made by the youngster, Tetsuo Takamuku of Fukuoka, who was placed in No. 3 position. While he did not emerge as winner in any of the year's major tournaments, his was a brilliant performance throughout the season.

Shunji Ikushima of Kwansei Gakuin and Yasuo Tsuruta of Keio were ranked No. 4 and No. 5 respectively.

Katsumi Matsuoka of Keio, who ranked No. 6 in the previous year, failed to be placed among the first 20. He had a disastrous season, losing to weaker players in all of the tournaments.

Masatomo Tsukada, No. 1 player of Meiji, dropped from 11th to 14th place. Taisuke Yokoda, No. 1 player of Tokyo Imperial University, failed to make headway from his 19th seat of 1936.

The doubles teams of Yamagishi and Reizo Murakami of Keio and Nakano and Matsumoto of Hosei were declared ineligible for the rankings because of insufficient play in domestic tournaments.

Their all-around effectiveness and consistent scintillating play, particularly in the national championships, were factors that put Abe and Kawachi in No. 1 place in the doubles. Murakami and Tsuruta of Keio and Uyehara and Horikoshi of Osawa were ranked second and third respectively. The latter team was second in the rankings as of 1936 to show little variation in the general trend of performance in the season last year. In some respects, this is taken as an indication of little progress in the doubles competition.

Miss Kimata No. 1

Miss Toyoko Kimata was ranked No. 1 in the women's singles.

It is interesting to note that Miss Betty Pearce was ranked sixth.

Mrs. Naoko Yamagishi and Miss Hisako Yamagishi were ranked No. 1 in the women's doubles.

Fusei Team Captures National Cage Title; Beating Enki, 43-41

It was an all-Korean affair in the final of the national men's basketball championships Sunday afternoon at the National Gymnasium at Hitotsubashi, Kanda. Despite a strong comeback by the All-Enki quintet, the Fusei team emerged victorious by the difference of one basket, 43-41, in a rip-snorting battle before an enthusiastic crowd. The game was broadcast by JOAK.

To the winners were awarded the Prince Takamatsu, Soyejima, Kishi and Grew trophies.

The score at half time was 26 to 17 in favor of the Fusei team but the All-Enki casaba artists staged a strong rally in the second half and put the score on a 39-all basis with three minutes left to play. But the Fusei combination managed to win by 43-41.

No Need To Go To The Mountains

The specially built schanze at the Koshien stadium near Osaka where on Sunday afternoon was staged the first All-Japan Koshien ski jumping championships under the auspices of the Osaka Mainichi Shimbun, which served also as the Kinki district tryouts for the national championships. Snow was transported from the foot of Mt. Myoko. Some difficulty was experienced by the jumpers in landing because of the insufficiency of snow. Takaichi Kimura of Otaru won first place with 338 points. Hoshino and Miyajima, both also of the Hokkaido, were second and third respectively with 337 and 331.3 points.

90,000 Are Victims Of Lure Of Winter Sports At Show At Madison Square Garden

By HARRY CROSS

N.Y. Herald Tribune

NEW YORK, Dec. 12—More than ninety thousand spectators have succumbed to the inescapable lure of skiing during the five-day Winter Sports Show which ended at Madison Square Garden last night before another overflow crowd of thirteen thousand. The only translation of such unprecedented interest is that the town has become infected with a slight form of snow madness.

Skiing parents took their children to the Garden Arctic Regions at yesterday's matinee and the eight thousand youngsters had to be restrained from jumping out of their seats into the Kilpatrick snow drifts. The boys and girls set up a din of approval at the start and the tumultuous appreciation of rampant youth continued to the end.

Last night's crowd came in style. The arena box row was a stretch of sable, mink and top hats.

Sverre Kolterud, the versatile Norwegian, carried off the slalom racing honors, his sixth victory in the nine races. Kolterud made a brilliant down-hill flight through the flags, making the fastest time of the week, 8.7 seconds. Hans Hauser was close behind with 8.9 seconds.

Ole Hegge, the veteran Norseman, captured the cross-country honors for the week by winning the event again last night in 1:49. Hegge won the $25 prize offered by Mrs. R. Graham Bigelow, of the Norfolk Winter Sports Association.

Standing Areas Packed

Many ski aspirants who have been a bit tardy in their enthusiasm were turned away last night because inside the big Eighth Avenue igloo, even the standing areas were populated.

The show this year, even more than a year ago, awakened a genuine enthusiasm for skiing, probably because the demonstrations of jumping and downhill running were executed by such accomplished experts. The best that Europe and this country can produce on the wooden runners made the sport look easy.

There was a time when snow used to be non-essential, but these refrigerated bazaars have raised it to the importance of a commodity. The rural districts have discovered they can sell it.

Considering the limitations of the snow knoll at the Garden, the skiers have given a vivid portrayal of the sports' possibilities.

The daring of the jumpers and the exhilarating speed of the downhill riders easily catch the crowd's imagination, and there were few among the thousands who saw the Garden slopes of pulverized ice during the week who didn't have a sneaking idea that they would like to get out this winter and try it.

The fact that skiing has been going on a long time elsewhere makes little difference in New York's new judgment of it. That it has been brought to their attention so realistically makes it brand new.

Exhibits Arouse Interest

The element of the circus which was injected caught the spectators' fancy, and they applauded most when the jumpers came off the hill in double and triple jumps. The performance of the two Norwegian girls who jumped just as well as the men proved a popular high light. Miss Ella Gulbrandsen and Miss Johanna Kolstad were responsible for engendering a lot of courage among the women spectators who have been a bit shy about adopting the snow sport, for they figured that if these girls can travel through the air on skis they certainly should be able to ride along on the ground.

The exhibits of winter sports clothes and equipment, the attractive display of the railroads and tourist bureaus and the honeyed words of the demonstrators in the exhibition hall have all done their share in working up the present wave of ski interest.

The slalom racers were in fine fettle last night and the big crowd enthusiastically applauded the ski stylists as they did their jump turns through the flag-marked course. Otto Furrer, of Switzerland, and Hans Hauser, of Austria, two ski riders who have won sensational downhill races in Europe, were favorites with the crowd while Sverre Kolterud and Tomm, Mustad the Norwegians, showed in their slalom performances that the Norsemen can race as well as they can jump.

That Americans are fast approaching the Europeans in racing was shown by the downhill and slalom feats of Charley Proctor and Norwood Cox.

There was a marked gracefulness in the final performances of the Austrian runners, Otto Lang, Sig Buckmayr, Benno Rybizka.

Miss Rawls Rated No. 1. Woman Athlete In U.S.

NEW YORK, Dec. 14—Katherine (Kitty) Rawls, diminutive Florida swimming queen who captured six national titles this year, achieved the added distinction today of being rated the No. 1 athlete of the year among feminine competitors in the seventh annual Associated Press sports poll.

The 18-year-old aquatic star won the closest voting contest in the history of the poll, participated in by the nation's leading sports writers. Only one point separated Miss Rawls from her two closest rivals, Anita Lizana of Chile, the new holder of the United States tennis title, and Estelle Lawson Page of Chapel Hill, N. C., the national golf champion.

Miss Rawls led in first place votes, with 11, to Miss Lizana's 10 and Mrs. Page's 8. Tabulation of points, on a 3-2-1 basis as each expert rated three women performers in the order of preference, gave Miss Rawls the No. 1 honors, with 53. Miss Lizana and Mrs. Page had 52 points each.

Although this trio dominated the balloting, the 44 participating experts gave mention to the performances of 21 feminine headliners, including Sonja Henie, Babe Didrikson and Eleanor Holm Jarrett. Miss Didrikson, now concentrating on professional golf, was winner of the 1932 poll.

Miss Rawls, the first mermaid to top the poll since Helene Madison was rated the outstanding feminine athlete of 1931, has had an amazing career. She won two out of three title bids at the national indoor A. A. U. meet last winter. She hopped off a boat from Japan, in midsummer, to capture four national outdoor championships in two days at San Francisco. This increased to 27 her total of national title triumphs. She has for years proved supreme in the medley swim, but this year added honors in the breaststroke, besides the 440, 880 and mile freestyle events. Here's the tabulation of poll results:

	Pts.
Katherine Rawls, swimmer	53
Anita Lizana, tennis	52
Estelle Lawson Page, golf	52
Alice Marble, tennis	22
Jadwiga Jedrzejowska, tennis	17
Helen Stephens, track	14
Patty Berg, golf	13
Marion Miley, golf	10
Babe Didrikson, golf	6
Lenore Kight Wirsard, swimmer	4

Three points: Mrs. Opal S. Hill, for shooting record 65 in Missouri title golf; Mrs. Charles Newbold, Wichita (Kan.) golfer.

Two points: Stella Walsh, Polish track star; Betty Jameson, Texas golfer; Glenna Collett Vare, former national golf champion; Dorothy Forbes, Philadelphia girl who won national indoor 100-yard backstroke swimming title; and Eleanor Holm Jarrett, former backstroke swimming queen.

Brundage Names Subcommittees For Olympics

By The Domei Tsushin Sha

NEW YORK, Jan. 8—Twenty-seven committeemen to perfect American plans for participation in the 1940 Olympic Games at Tokyo were named by Avery Brundage, chairman of the American Olympic Committee, at this morning's session of the specially-convoked executive committee meeting.

The comittee chairman include the following: A. C. Gilbert, New Haven, track and field; Robert J. Kiphuth, Yale University, swimming; Harry Radix, Chicago, figure skating; John Brown, New York Y.M.C.A., basketball; Charles Hunter, Chicago, wrestling; Gustavus Kirby, New York, fencing and equestrians; Roy Moore, New York, gymnastics; Alexis Thompson, Chicago, field hockey; W. P. Hodus, Cleveland speed skating, Owen van Camp, Chicago, canoeing, and Roger Langley, Barre, Mass., skiing.

No chairman of the hockey committee was ratified pending the discussion of amateurism, while the baseball committee was authorized to become enlarged to include 18 representatives of the United States amateur baseball congress.

The meeting this morning discussed the advisability of appointing a feminine manager to take care of the women and girl contestants on the next Olympic expedition and prevent a recurrence of a case such as the one in which Eleanor H. Jarrett, pretty and young swimmer, was dropped from the team because of violation of training rules.

To Spend $400,000

By The Domei Tsushin Sha

NEW YORK, Jan. 8—Working on the assumption that the situation in the Far East will have returned to normal by 1940, the executive committee of the American Olympic Committee, at its afternoon session here today, decided to raise a fund of $400,000 to finance U. S. participation in the forthcoming Olympic Games at Tokyo. The sum is by $100,000 larger than the amount spent to send the delegation to the last Olympic Games at Berlin.

The decision was made immediately following a plea by the chairman, Avery Brundage, an ardent supporter of Japan, who declared that he felt confident that the Japanese people would justify all the hopes put in them by the American nation.

Two-In-One Fish

When Dr. Roy Chapman Andrews, now Director of the American Museum of Natural History, was a naturalist aboard the exploring ship "Albatross," he brought up many strange and bizarre deep sea creatures in his dredges, but even Dr. Andrews was astounded by a specimen arriving at the Museum recently from Panama waters.

It is a small female fish which carries her husband permanently attached to her head. The wife is six times the size of her mate, and is the sole support and provider of the family. The male is attached to the female through his mouth, and shortly after the larval stage, he actually grafts himself onto her body. The outer skin of the two is continuous, and the blood systems are blended; thus, the male is fed without having to hunt or even eat his food. In some cases more than one male becomes attached to a female, and she supports several husbands.

Kano Selected Head Of Group To Cairo Parley

Professor Jigoro Kano, dean of the judo experts of Japanese member of the International Olympic Committee, will be Japan's official delegate to the International Olympic Committee's general meeting to open at Cairo on March 10, because of the inability of Prince Iyesato Tokugawa, a member of the I. O. C. and chairman of the Tokyo Olympic Organizing Committee, to attend because of pressure of official business.

Nomination of Professor Kano as the official delegate will be made at the meeting today of the O. O. C.'s directors committee and a formal vote will be taken at the O. O. C.'s general meeting on Thursday.

Already decided to accompany Professor Kano to the Cairo meeting are Dr. Matsuzo Nagai, secretary-general of the O. O. C., and Werner Klingeberg, technical adviser from Germany to the O. O. C.

Yoshinori Suzuki is expected to be sent as a secretary. Representatives of the Tokyo Municipality are also expected to be members of the delegation.

The forthcoming parley at Cairo is important for the reason that a formal decision will be reached whether or not sufficient preparations have been made at Sapporo for the organization of the Fifth Winter Olympic Games in 1940 and the time and schedule of the summer games in 1940 will also be adopted.

Dr. Nagai returned to Uyeno Station Monday night by the 7:05 p.m. train from the Hokkaido, satisfied with the preparations of the facilities for the Fifth Winter Olympic Games. He said in part:

"All of the athletic sites are in the city of Sapporo proper or in its vicinity within five minutes by automobile. The plans are to make the Sapporo athletic grounds the site of the opening ceremonies of the games and with it the center of the hub will be built the bobsled course, the schanze and the downhill skiing courses. For the skating events an artificial outdoor rink has already been constructed alongside the Nakajima park. Tentative plans call for the construction of an indoor rink between the aforesaid outdoor rink and the Nakanoshima lake by the time of the Winter Games.

"The construction committee is going full speed ahead with the enthusiastic support being received from the Government officials and the public as well. It's plans now are to borrow 50,000 yen temporarily with the view to pushing through the preparations.

"At the Cairo conference, it is my intention to make a detailed explanation of the facilities so that a formal decision in favor of Sapporo will be reached."

A 30 per cent discount will be allowed athletes and officials of the foreign delegations and members of their families by the Manchoukuo Air Transport Corporation during the 12th Olympic Games in Tokyo in 1940 and for the one month preceding and following the Games, according to announcement today. This discount will be extended those with the special passports issued by the Olympic Committee's office.

British To Train Young Net Stars

N.Y. Times

LONDON, Dec. 10—As a preliminary step in a program designed to regain the Davis and Wightman Cups from the United States, the British Lawn Tennis Association today decided to set up a training system for promising young players.

Somewhat similar in plan to the junior Davis Cup squads established in the United States last Summer, the system calls for a thorough survey of all the material available. These players signifying willingness to devote sufficient time to practice will be groomed carefully for international competition.

At its annual session today the British L. T. A. also took protective steps against "shamateurism." It empowered a council to inspect the tournament accounts of member clubs in order to "keep amateurs from fattening on the game."

Most of the discussion, presided over by Sir Samuel Hoare, who was re-elected president, centered about this proposal. The opposing faction contended it would not work, since clubs could "cover up" illegal expenses.

The formation of the special council finally was approved by a vote of 81 to 1 after the minority group had moved the matter be referred to the committee and asked that amateurs be allowed expenses eight weeks out of each year, as now is done in the United States.

Sir Samuel, in outlining the new player-training plan, said:

"We are very much alive to the urgent need of leaving no stone unturned to get back the two great international trophies. We have already communicated with a number of players, asking whether they would be available for practice. As soon as we get the answers, the selection committee will start intensive training for both the Davis and Wightman Cup teams."

3 Filipino Boxers Coming On Jan. 20

Three Filipino scrappers will make their appearance at the Kokugikan wrestling bowl, on the night of January 26 in a triple 10-round main event show sponsored by the Fuji Boxing Club of which Fujl Okamoto is manager.

They are: Johnny Wells, welterweight, who will take on Motoshige Murata; Terrible Reyes, featherweight, who will meet Toshiro Aoki; and Fighting de Guzman, who will mix it up with Tadatsune Tsuruta. All three Japanese fighters belong to the Fuji Boxing Club.

The Filipino pugilists are expected to arrive at Kobe on January 20.

Miss Colledge Wins Skating Laurels Again In Britain

Times, London

LONDON, Dec. 15—The Figure Skating Championships of Great Britain took place at Wembley on Monday. The ladies' school figures took place in the morning, and Miss C. Colledge, the holder, and Miss M. Taylor, last year's runner-up, again showed themselves to be in a class apart.

Miss Colledge's figures were as usual skated with astonishing precision, and, although some critics think them to be rather on the small side, the shape of the circles is so perfect that Miss Taylor's bolder style and larger figures, good though they are, were shown to be somewhat distorted in shape by comparison. The skating of the others in the school was a little disappointing, and none of them seemed to reproduce their practice form. In the men's compulsory figures it was clear that G. Sharp had completely regained the form that he seemed to have lost last year, and he skated them with the ease and accuracy that mark the true champion. F. Tomlins and G. Yates, his two nearest rivals, well though they skated, could not approach him.

Prodigious Jumps

In the evening the free skating provided a delightful spectacle. The Scottish skater, I. Currie, who has improved a lot since last year, opened the proceedings and gave a first-class performance. His program is a difficult one, with excellent jumps and really good foot-work. He is a most promising skater. H. Tarrant gave a pleasing program. Yates, whose style in the figures is so good, skated well, though he is still inclined to rush a little, but considering that he now has very little time to practise he did very well. The only flaw in a truly magnificent exhibition by Tomlins, the runner-up, was the missing of a terrific double Salchow. Performed at an amazing speed, in good style and rhythm, it was, with its prodigious jumps and beautifully controlled spins, one of the finest exhibitions of free skating ever given by a man in this country. It was not easy for Sharp to follow such a great performance, and he began a little shakily. But with splendid courage and self-control he pulled himself together and gave a magnificent performance. He brought off his double Salchow with consummate ease, as well as some beautiful combinations of jumps and spins, with a speed and assurance that showed him to be a true champion.

The ladies' free skating was opened by Miss Taylor. It is a pity that so beautiful and talented a skater, possessed with such natural grace, should spoil her skating by a quite unnecessary straining after speed, which often causes her to mistime her jumps or spins, thus giving an impression of unsteadiness. Miss Stephany showed what a splendid exhibition can be given by a tall, powerful girl who refuses to fall into this error, and the consequent effortless speed rather concealed from some people the very real difficulty of her program. Miss P. Sheridan skated a difficult program with a delightful freshness and vigor. She was making her first appearance in the championship. Miss D. Walker captivated the public and judges alike by her faultless performance of a program of the most formidable difficulty with an ease and naive charm (she is only 13, and looks less) that was quite delightful. Miss J. Leonard-Smith gave a quiet and elegant performance of real intrinsic worth, but Miss B. Stroud did not produce her best form, for she is a really good skater.

Miss Colledge showed once more that she is still in a class by herself. She has never given a better performance. Difficulties do not seem to exist for her—in fact her superb command, the effortless speed at which she covers the ice, her splendid dignity and unhurried rhythm tend to deceive the onlooker. It is almost impossible, unless one is able to recognize them at a glance, to realize the extreme difficulty of the movements that she performs. Miss G. Jagger, who had done quite well in the figures, retired after a stumble.

L. H. T. Cliff and Mrs. Cliff, the holders, skated first in the Pairs. They gave a most polished and charming performance. They have wisely refused to rest on their laurels, and have once more added to their considerable accomplishments. Miss Wallis and R. J. Walkie skated well, but their lifts are overlong, and this gives an impression of heaviness. H. Constantin and Miss Howels skated a difficult program, and when they have been together a little longer should do very well.

Canadiens Beat Americans At Montreal, 4-3

MONTREAL, Dec. 11—George Mantha's last-second goal gave the Montreal Canadiens at 4-to-3 overtime decision over the New York Americans tonight and undisputed possession of first place in the International Division of the National Hockey League. Frank Calder, league president, went into consultation with Johnny Mitchell and Mickey Ion, referees, and the timekeepers before the winning goal was allowed. Red Dutton, manager of the Americans, protested hotly that time was up when Mantha found the cords on a double relay from Paul Haynes and Johnny Gagnon.

A milling crowd waited around the referees' room until Calder came out with the decision on Mantha's goal and the time was announced as 9:59 in the overtime session.

The Canadiens had been ahead twice before they finally came through. Then Mantha's marker came on a return sally just after Sweeney Schriner had missed getting the winning goal at the opposite end of the ice. Mantha scored three of the winners' counters. He put the club ahead in the first eleven minutes and Gagnon added another before the close. Art Chapman and Schriner scored for the Americans in the second period, and after Mantha's second goal in the third Schriner tied up while Marty Burke was serving a major penalty. Burke came to the club from Chicago last night in a trade for Bill MacKenzie.

Johnson Draws First Penalty

Ching Johnson was penalized for checking Mancuso shortly after the game's start and soon was joined by Joe Lamb, who checked Johnny Gagnon. The habitants bore down repeatedly and their first goal came on a mass effort. George Mantha scored and assists went to Red Lorrain and Gagnon.

The Americans contended that the puck was dead before the score, but Johnny Mitchell, referee, shook his head. Chapman and Joliat were penalized for high sticking each other and while they were away Gagnon whipped a high shot past Robertson at the 12-minute mark.

Schriner was in alone but Cude flopped to save. Haynes was sent off for tripping Murray and the Americans applied pressure for the first time. The power play reduced the Canadiens' lead to 2-1 when Chapman found a corner from fifteen feet out, aided by Stewart.

Canadiens Take Lead

Chapman slipped a pretty pass through the defense to Schriner, flashing in, and the wingman tied the score with a shot that cleared Cude's shoulder as the goalie fell.

The home team went ahead, 3 to 2, two minutes after the third session's start. Buswell made the play, passing to Haynes who handed Mantha the puck directly in front of the net. Mantha found a corner promptly.

Wiseman suffered a bad knee injury when he tried to crash the Canadien defense and the crowd booed when no penalty was handed out. But Siebert was sent off a moment later for tripping Shill and the Americans bore down again. Stewart and Burke followed Siebert for engaging in a high sticking duel.

Wiseman needed a doctor's attention for his knee injury and for a cut over one eye, but neither was believed serious. The Americans piled in even when the sides were at full strength, but the defenders made them shoot from angles. Then the Americans were given a chance for a mighty closing offensive when Burke received a major penalty for cracking Lamb over the head with his stick.

Schriner tied the score on a combination effort, with Chapman skating right in before firing home the goal at 15:33.

Wiseman came back to aid in the drive with a big slice of adhesive tape across his face. Burke came back thirty seconds before the third period ended but could not score and the contest went into overtime.

Cliff Goupille led a desperate Canadien foray that failed to click in the early minutes of the extra session. Habitant hopes were raised when Anderson was chased for checking Lorrain but the Americans held off the attackers while he was absent.

Schriner just missed a corner as Cude fell with only twenty-five seconds left and on a return sally Mantha dashed in with the winning goal as the final bell rang.

The referees and Frank Calder had to go into a huddle before the goal was allowed and Red Dutton, the Americans' manager, was protesting hotly as the teams left the ice. The line-up:

G.	Cude	Robertson

Csic recently won his degree in medicine. He intends to continue research until June of next year at Berlin, after which he will return to Hungary for a short visit and then leave in September for the United States to enter Yale University.

Pointer Judged Best Dog In New York Show

By KINGSLEY CHILDS

N.Y. Times

NEW YORK, Dec. 6—Capturing a best-in-show award for the twenty-sixth time in his brilliant competitive career, the striking liver and white pointer, Ch. Nancolleth Marquis, yesterday provided the Giralda Farms of Mrs. M. Hartley Dodge of Madison, N.J., with top honors in the Bronx County Kennel Club's all-breed exhibition for the second straight year.

The Giralda German shepherd dog Ch. Dewet von der starrenburg scored in 1936.

Marquis, called Mickey by his handler, McClure Halley, was put down in fine condition for the grand finale of the club's twenty-third annual show at the 105th Field Artillery Armory.

Occupying No. 1 stall on the benches, where more than 800 contestants were quartered, Nancolleth Marquis lived up to the role in grand style, giving an impressive performance to take the premier prize.

By the victory Marquis succeeded where he failed last year, for in the club's 1936 event he was the sporting group winner only to be beaten by his kennel mate in the concluding number.

Adds to Breed Laurels

Before picking Marquis for the chief laurels, J. Macy Willets of New York, who judged the group winners in the best-in-show competition, looked them over carefully.

One of the leading contenders was the black and tan smooth-haired dachshund bitch Ch. Heidi Flottenberg from the Ellenbert Farm of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Bertrand of Greenwich, Conn. Shown by Gordon Forsyth, Heidi earlier in the day scored her twenty-seventh best-of-breed victory and her seventh division success.

Another strong rival was the smooth-haired fox-terrier Ch. Nornay Saddler, owned by the Wissahoo Kennels of James M. Austin and Miss Madelanie West of Westbury. Saddler recorded his fourteenth terrier group triumph, being selected in a formidable field. He was handled by Leonard Brumby.

Others qualifying for the climax event were the orange-colored pomeranian Ch. Little Sahib, a consistent toy winner for Mrs. Vincent Matta; Mrs. C. L. Norton's fawn-hued bulldog Ch. Berton's Jack Tar, victor in the non-sporting division, and the show's premier working dog, the Barmere Kennels' boxer Ch. Bastel Vom Elbuffer of Barmere.

Competition is Keen

Selections in all the groups were made by Louis J. Murr of Spring Valley, N.Y., the well-known borzoi fancier, and he was faced with the task of making several close decisions, for there was keen competition in most of the half-dozen divisions.

One of the oddities was the victory of the young French bulldog La France Piccolo, a fawn dog, over his sire, Ch. La France Model III, for best of breed. Charles G. Hopton, who made the choice, classed Mrs. Juliette R. Slote's winner as exceptionally fine specimen.

Heading the cairn terriers was the attractive and sound English champion Treblig Rita of Eastcote, making her debut in this country. This promising 2-year-old is owned by Mrs. Howard Lee Platt of Norwalk, Conn.

Thousands thronged the armory throughout the day and in every respect the show topped all others in the club's history. Representatives of sixty-three breeds were benched.

Makino Defeats Sanada On Eve Of Army Service

On the eve of his entrance into the Army for service, Takeshi Makino, featherweight of the Toho Boxing Club, scored a convincing victory over Kintaro Sanada of the Minato Club in one of the double main event Monday night at the Hibiya Public hall auditorium in a smoker sponsored jointly by the Kokumin, Minato and Shinko Boxing clubs.

Makino scored a knockdown in the second round with a straight right to the jaw. This sent Sanada into a shell. He crouched and clinched continuously. Makino, however, piled up points with body blows and an effective right uppercut. In the eighth and last round, Makino landed a low blow that nearly put his opponent away but he had too much of a lead to lose the fight.

Motomitsu Soda of the Minato Club won the other eight round bout of the evening. He not only landed too many blows for his opponent, Hajime Sakamoto of the Tokyo Boxing Club, but had too much of a weight advantage. He weighed in at 117 pounds as against 108 pounds for Sakamoto. The latter was equipped with gloves two ounces lighter than those of Soda's, but they didn't help him much. On top of it, he seemed to lack fighting spirit.

Soda almost put his man away in the fourth round when completely checking his opponent with an effective left jab, he followed with hard lefts and rights to the head and body.

Kikuchi of the Shinko club scored a technical knockout over Sotobayashi of the Kokumin club in the third round of the semi-final slated for six rounds. They weighed in at 118 and 119 pounds respectively.

3 World Champions Lost Ring Crowns

By PAT ROBINSON
International News Service Sports Writer

NEW YORK—(INS)—Three world champions were dethroned in the ring in 1937; five others successfully defended their titles.

Small Montana dropped his flyweight title to the Britisher, Benny Lynch.

Henry Armstrong knocked out Petey Sarron to win the featherweight title.

Lou Ambers retained his lightweight bauble by turning back his chief rival, Pedro Montanez, in a dull bout.

Barney Ross had his hands full in gaining a close decision over Ceferino Garcia to keep his welterweight crown.

Freddy Steele, the middleweight boss, and John Henry Lewis, the light heavyweight king, had no trouble retaining their thrones, chiefly because of lack of sufficient competition.

The outstanding fighter of the year was Armstrong. This little negro went along week after week, fighting anybody and everybody who would meet him, featherweights or lightweights, and scoring one sensational knockout after another.

Many veteran judges of boxing believe Armstrong could have won the lightweight and welterweight title, if he had had a shot at Ambers and Ross. He probably will get a crack at Ambers next year.

The year also saw Max Schmeling, the German ex-heavyweight champion, who knocked out Louis two years ago, get the prize runaround of the year.

Max thought that when he and Braddock signed a contract to fight for the title, the contract was something more than a scrap of paper.

But by the time the powers that be in the fight racket, a flock of lawyers, and a court got through with him, he discovered he was still out on a limb.

Louis got the title shot and the title and Max got another contract for a title fight in 1938.

More important than any fight, however, was the retirement of Madison Square Garden from boxing and the rise of Mike Jacobs and his 20th Century Club to the spot held for so many years by the Garden.

So long as the Garden controlled the heavyweight champion—as it had since the days of Tex Rickard—it held the whip hand in boxing. When the Garden's expensive battery of legal talent failed to make the Schmeling-Braddock contract stick, the Garden decided to get out of the game.

The Garden leased its arena to Mike Jacobs and that wily promoter took charge.

Jacobs says the game is slowly coming back. He estimates fights throughout the country this year drew gates approximating $5,000,000.

This seems like a lot of money to pay for fights until one recalls that in four fights—two with Gene Tunney and one each with Georges Carpentier and Jack Sharkey—Jack Dempsey drew exactly $7,427,151 or almost half as much again as the combined total of all the fights held in the United States in 1937.

Basketball Ass'n Names All-Star Team For Season

With the view to encouraging players, the Japan Basketball Association for the first time has selected an all-star team for the past season, and will probably make it an annual practice.

The selection of the association's committee was based on the 1937 national championships, the Kanto and Kansai students leagues and the Kanto and Kansai intersectional games.

The team follows:

Guards: Kin Tei Shin, Enki College, and Go Ju Retsu, Fusei College, Korea.

As substitutes, the following were named:

Centers: Ren In Gen, Kyoto Imperial; Kin Oh Ko, Enki College.

Forwards: Ri Ko Zen, Fusei College; Rokuya Nagata, Tokyo Imperial.

Guards: Kin Sei Ko, Rikkyo University.

Army Eleven Slated To Play 9 Games In 1938 Season

WEST POINT, N. C., Dec.—(INS)—Army's 1938 football schedule, as announced by Lieut. Col. Jacob L. Devers, graduate manager of athletics, contains nine games, only one of which is with a new opponent. Columbia, Harvard, Notre Dame, and Navy again appear on the schedule, as does Princeton, last played in 1908, Virginia Polytechnic Institute, last played in 1905, Boston University last played in 1936, and Franklin and Marshall, last played in 1927. The University of Chattanooga is the newcomer on the list.

Army will again play four games away from home; meeting Harvard at Cambridge, Notre Dame at New York, Princeton at Princeton, and Navy at Philadelphia.

The complete schedule follows:

Oct. 2, Virginia Polytechnic Institute; 9, Columbia University; 16, Harvard University (At Cambridge); 23, Boston University; 30, Notre Dame University (At New York City); Nov. 6, Franklin and Marshall; 13, University of Chattanooga; 20, Princeton (At Princeton); 27, Navy (At Philadelphia).

Yamashita Appointed Coach Of Hankyus For The 1938 Season

First Baseman Minoru Yamashita of the Osaka Hankyus will lead the team in the professional circuit during the 1938 season. His appointment as coach was announced by the team management Tuesday night.

As a member of the Keio nine, Yamashita was the leading home run hitter in the Tokyo Six University Baseball league several years ago.

Yamashita is expected to pull the team out of its sluggishness during the 1938 season.

500,000 To See 800 Cage Teams In Indiana Loop

By PHILLIPS PECK
International News Service Staff Correspondent

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind.—(INS)—An army of 800 high school basketball teams again is on the march in Indiana, battling over the winter sports trail before the plaudits of an estimated 500,000 fans.

Such a concentration of hardwood forces seem commonplace to the average American sports fan but to the Hoosier it is always new. In no other state has the off-spring of venerable Dr. James Naismith taken such a firm hold.

The trail is long; it sometimes is repetitious and always is difficult. But to the half-million spectators who witness the activities during a season of Hoosier basketball it never grows dull.

The teams bear the same names; the same coaches are back of many schools and the schedules present the same old rivalries in their 1937-38 version. What is more important, the same interest, thrills and excitement are in every city and town in the state.

Until the 800 quintets complete their 20-game schedules and the four-week state championship tournament next March the undercurrent of excitement will be flowing strong through the minds and conversations of the Hoosier sporting public and on the state's sport pages.

Indiana High School Athletic Association officials estimate that 300,000 persons witness the four-week state tournament as it progresses through sectional, regional, semi-final and final stages.

A sell-out crowd of 15,000 always is assured for the four final games at Butler University fieldhouse here, leased annually by the association as the site of its colorful, thrill-packed finals.

The 1937-38 presentation is a far cry from the humble beginning 34 years ago when 15 schools were listed as charter members of the Indiana High School Athletic Association. Although supervising all high school sports, The association has come to be thought of almost solely for its basketball extravaganza.

Only a few more than 100 schools play football in the state but IHSAA's entire membership participates in the hardwood program. Why? Commissioner Arthur L. Tester simply states:

"Anyone can play basketball, that's why they do. Just like automobiles; anybody can drive a car, that's why they do. Any of our schools with a dozen boys or even less can have a basketball team; it takes a large school to equip and maintain a football squad."

The annual tourneys being the first week-end in March with 64 sectional tournaments. On succeeding week-ends, the 16 regionals and four semi-finals are conducted and then the four survivors come to Indianapolis for the finals.

Mark Was Moving

One day Mark Twain arrived in a Canadian Hotel, and glancing over the register, took note of the signature of the last arrival:

"Baron——and valet."

Twain signed, and when the clerk looked at the register, this met his eye:

Clipper Smith Close To Rockne Standard

By DAVIS J. WALSH
International News Service Sports Editor

NEW YORK, Dec. (INS)—What do you think of a football coach who has his punters standing at midfield for an hour each day and kicking for the "coffin corner" in practice, instead of waiting to do their practicing in the game? Who keeps sending three men into the pit in tackling practices, one to hit the dummy and the other two to recover the resultant fumble? Who leaves so little to chance that once, when suddenly matched with another team for a post-season game, he drove his automobile for two nights and a day in order to scout the new opponent?

That's funny. That's what I think too.

I think it sounds like the late K.K. Rockne all over again and, in case you don't agree, you can get yourself a few spare hours of debate in the City of Philadelphia and, notably, around the campus of Villanova College. By this time, both are quite convinced that when they hired Maurice J. "Clipper" Smith they got themselves a football coach who not only has the winning tradition but comes very near to the Rockne ideal.

Just for the purpose of the record, this was the first "Clipper" Smith to come out of Notre Dame. The second is doing all right at Duquesne, too, but Clipper No. 1 has more or less stolen the show among the Notre Dame Smiths. I'm not so sure, in fact, that he hasn't stolen the show from just about everybody this year.

He's the only coach I know of who has not just one undefeated football team for 1937, but at least part of another. There's no attempt to belittle Buck Shaw at Santa Clara in saying that more than a few of the unbeaten Broncos are legacies from Clipper's regime. Nor am I backhanding Harry Stuhldreher—perhaps rather the contrary—with the statement that Smith took over five or six of Harry's players this year in moulding the currently undefeated Villanova—and the reason is pretty much the same that applied in the case of the Old Master of South Bend, namely: (a) Ingenuity and imagination; (b) unremitting attention to detail.

It was the latter, as much as anything else, that made Rockne great. He never scrimmaged his team after the first week in October. Why? Because mostly he wanted to give each man each day his individual attention, drilling him over and over again in his assignments. You can see the same thing almost any day at Villanova, with added touches like Stopper, Earle, Mellus, Stoviak and Verbitsky, five first class punters, working on the coffin-corner kick, sometimes for hours on end.

When the game comes, the play is no longer a gamble; it's a precise strategem. The tackle-and-recovered-fumble idea is generally in line with the Old Man's way of figuring, too, the Old Man having been a great hand at concentrating on the quick score by the simplest route possible. In this connection, Chick Meehan, Manhattan coach, said ruefully after Villanova had beaten him this Fall: "Why, they even scored two touchdowns while we had the ball."

He meant that Villanova recovered one fumble in mid-air and, on a second play, Wysocki and Mellus teamed perfectly to block a punt and score.

The outstanding merit of Smith's methods, however, really made itself plain in the last two games of the season in which Villanova took a couple of really fine defensive teams, Temple and Loyola, and ran up scores of 33 to 0 and 25 to 0 respectively, the latter after a trans-continental jaunt from the chill of Philadelphia to the heat of Los Angeles. Rockne always was quite a man for getting his teams rolling in their final climax games.

He also was quite a man for knowing what he was about when confronted by sudden crises. Last year, when Villanova was matched with Auburn for a post-season game in Havana, Smith was attending a Thanksgiving Day game in New York. Upon receipt of the news, he drove his automobile throughout that night, the following day and most of the next night in order to see Auburn play its final game.

Rockne was a coiner of quaint but expressive and vivid phrases. Here are some of Smith's:

"Put a little more bulge in that muscle" (when he wants extra power); "hit that guy with resilient hips and hang him" (when he wants a player to put a real block on an opponent); "he likes leather" (referring to anybody who revels in bodily contact); "they have primitive action" (meaning that his line is charging hard and making quick openings).

The Sage of South Bend will never be duplicated, of course. But the record seems to indicate that Mr. Clipper Smith is not without possibilities. Anyhow, he's doing pretty good right now as an assistant sage.

Will Futabayama Win The Sumo Tourney Again?

Which one of the four yokozuna or grand champions will emerge winner of the 13-day sumo (Japanese wrestling) tournament which opens at dawn Thursday at the Kokugikan bowl at Ryogoku is the biggest sports question in the capital today.

Interest is at a high pitch as it is the first time in 25 years that four yokozuna will be wrestling in one tourney. From this afternoon all roads will lead to the bowl near the Ryogoku bridge with the sole view of getting a ticket. With the exception of the reserved "sajiki" or mat sections, all seats will be 50 sen, first come first served, on the opening day. That is why, people will disregard the cold tonight and stand in line all through the night waiting for the ticket windows to open at dawn tomorrow.

Will handsome Futabayama, youngest and latest to be promoted as yokozuna, be able to win the championship for the fourth straight season? That is another very interesting question at the moment. For had he not gone through the last two tourney in 24 days of torrid wrestling without a defeat? He has grown bigger, so much so that he sports a fairly large protruding belly now well worthy of a grand champion, and is considered even stronger than he was at the last tournament last May. He is said to have the best chance of winning the championship.

But, then, the other three yokozuna, Tamanishiki, Musashiyama and Minanogawa, are all reported to be in the pink of condition, each intent on winning the coveted championship.

With all four wrestling against each other, all four of course cannot win all bouts, and so evenly are they matched that experts are of the opinion that none of the four will be able to go through this series of bouts without a defeat.

Tamanishiki suffered from a touch of diabetes during the last season but he says that he has gotten over it and he is in fit condition to take anybody.

Musashiyama is making his appearance for the first time in several seasons, and though his right arm has not completely returned to normal, he is optimistic and confident of a good showing.

Minanogawa, biggest of them all and certainly the strongest of all wrestlers in physical strength, is reported to have acquired some speed and a few intricate holds, and like the other three yokozuna, doesn't see why he shouldn't emerge winner of this tournament.

Hungarian Experts At Table Tennis In Debut Saturday

Miklos Szabados and Stefan Kelen, the two Hungarian table tennis experts who arrived Tuesday at Moji, will make their debut in Tokyo at the Hibiya Public Hall on Saturday night when they will take on the All-Japan students team. Then on Tuesday night of next week, at the same hall, they will clash with the All-Japan team.

The schedule for their matches against the All-Kansai team will be decided later.

Kazama Asked To Coach Filipinos At Wrestling

Eichi Kazama, invincible amateur wrestler of Japan who is now in the Philippines with the Japanese wrestling team that has been making a sensational record, has been requested to coach the Filipino amateur wrestlers with the view to developing this sport there, according to a Domei dispatch.

Inasmuch as Kazama is still a student at Waseda University, he was unable to comply, the report said.

The Rocking Stone of Tandil

Tandil is a town in the province of Buenos Aires, Argentina. The site of the famous rock, called "The Sentinel" by the natives, is about 3 miles outside of Tandil. The 700-ton boulder was so delicately balanced that it obeyed the touch of a finger. While it was swaying to and fro, it was possible to crack a nut under it without crushing it. It was the strangest of all rocking stones on earth. A few years ago it was removed by order of the authorities.

Nagai Asserts 1940 Olympics Will Be Staged

Dr. Matsuzo Nagai, secretary-general of the Olympic Organizing Committee, went on the air for 15 minutes Wednesday afternoon, addressing the western part of the United States in a prepared English speech that the O. O. C. is pushing plans ahead for the staging of the 12th Olympic Games in 1940.

Dr. Nagai made an especial attempt to eradicate any misgivings in the United States that the Olympic Games might not be held because of the prevailing Sino-Japanese hostilities. He attributed such a misunderstanding abroad to vicious propaganda by the Chinese that the Japanese were incapable of any peaceful endeavors such as the Olympic Games. He stressed that the Japanese Government's policy is one for permanent peace in East Asia. He pointed out that the sports events for last fall, despite the aggravation of the Sino-Japanese situation, were staged according to schedule, and that the various sports for this spring will be held as of ordinary years.

Since the selection of Tokyo as the site of the 1940 Games at the International Olympic Committee's meeting at Berlin in 1936, Dr. Nagai said the Japanese Amateur Athletic Federation, the Tokyo Municipality and the Government cooperated in the organization of the Tokyo Olympic Organizing Committee, after which preparations have gone on smoothly for the 1940 Games.

Dr. Nagai pointed out that work on the construction of the boat course at Todabashi and the yachting course at Yokohama is well under way. Of the ¥15,000,000 appropriation for the facilities, he said that the Government has already advanced ¥750,000. The Tokyo Municipality too has given considerable assistance. Construction of the Kishi Memorial gymnasium and the equestrian course is progressing, he added. Specifications are being prepared for the Olympic Village, he said.

There should be no misgivings about the housing facilities in Tokyo for the visiting foreign delegations and visitors, Dr. Nagai said. If necessary, apartments, school dormitories, and hotels and Japanese inns at Kamakura, Zushi and even as far as Atami could be put to use, he explained.

As concerning the matter of the travel expenses of the athletes, Dr. Nagai said it is under consideration of the O. O. C. So far as reduction on transpacific steamer and railway fares is concerned, he said the matter has already been settled favorably.

In connection with the supposition that it will be impossible to hold the 1940 Games on the scale of the last Games at Berlin because of the China situation, Dr. Nagai said he is not concerned about the matter, because if found necessary, the Olympic Games could be held in their true spirit with the present existing sports facilities in Tokyo.

Dr. Nagai's speech is to be broadcast this afternoon by electrical transcription to Europe.

The personnel of the Japanese delegation to attend the International Olympic Committee's meeting at Cairo opening on March 10 was to be formally decided at this afternoon's meeting of the Olympic Organizing Committee. With Prince Iyesato Tokugawa, chairman of the O.O.C., unable to go because of pressure of official business, Professor Jigoro Kano will head the delegation. Dr. Nagai and Werner Klingeberg, technical adviser to the O. O. C. from Germany will accompany him. Gensaburo Shirayama and Yoshinori Suzuki are expected to be appointed members of the delegation from the O. O. C.'s general office. Messrs. Ono and Tsuda now in Europe will represent the O. O. C. on the Winter Games. Chairman Nakatsuka of the Tokyo Municipality's Olympic Committee is also expected to go to Cairo.

Olympics Defeat Harvard Six, 5-4

N.Y. Times

BOSTON, Dec. 13—The Boston Olympics, national A. A. U. hockey champions defeated Harvard, last year's American college titleholder, 5-4, in a thrill-packed game tonight at the Boston Arena.

Play was fairly even in the opening period with Harvard holding a slight edge as Austin Harding scored on Alex Kevorkian's rebound after thirteen torrid minutes of play.

Thereafter the Olympics stormed the Harvard cage, finally scoring just before the end of the period. The goal featured three former collegiate captains, as Paul Guibord, ex-Dartmouth leader, caged the tally on a pass from George Ford, last year's Crimson captain, and Frank Spain, one-time Green leader.

Not long after the second period opened Harding received a penalty which proved costly, as the Boston clubmen took advantage with Art Smith and Ford scoring a pair of quick goals. The Olympics' fourth goal came when Smith fed Junie Allen a neat pass. Allen scored from fifteen feet out.

The Crimson pecked away and Captain Traf Hicks tallied at 18:32, with Jack Harris in the penalty box.

The first part of the third period was slow, but the last half was fast and furious, with the losers scoring two tying goals on fine plays by George Roberts and Harding.

The winning rally came with only two minutes to play. Ford caught his former teammates up the ice, grabbed the puck and went in over the blue line to flip a forward pass to Guibord, who scored.

The line-up.

The Sumo Season Is On!

The cold snap Wednesday night did not keep these rabid sumo fans away from the Kokugikan bowl at Ryogoku, where they stood in line for hours to purchase tickets for the opening day today of the 13-day tournament. With the exception of the seasonable reserved sections, all seats today were at a blanket 50-sen rate, first come, first served. The enthusiasm was so great that the Kokugikan officials, who had planned to open the doors at 1 a.m. today, surrendered and allowed the ticket purchasers to trek into the bowl at 10 o'clock last night. Even the Sino-Japanese hostilities will be relegated to the background for the next 13 days with the Yedokko. And why not, when four yokozuna or grand champions—Tamanishiki, Minanogawa, Musashiyama and Futabayama—are competing for the first time in 25 years.

Australians Vanquish U.S., Reich Net Stars

The two world's greatest tennis doubles teams J. Donald Budge and Gene Mako of the United States, and Baron Gottfried von Cramm and Henner Henkel, the Reich duo that performed last fall in Japan and captured the national doubles crown at Koshien, were defeated by the Australians in recent tournaments down under, according to a mail story received by the Yomiuri.

At Brisbane, the Australians took the measure of the Baron and Henkel by three matches to two. Then at Sydney, they vanquished the Americans, four matches to one.

The Reich-Australian matches were:

Von Cramm defeated Crawford, 6-3 and 6-4.

McGrath defeated Henkel, 4-6, 6-4 and 6-4.

Von Cramm defeated McGrath, 6-2 and 6-4.

Crawford defeated Henkel, 6-2 and 7-5.

Crawford-McGrath defeated von Cramm-Henkel, 8-11, 6-2 and 11-9.

Budge's victory over Adrain Quist was the American team's victory in the match against the Australians.

Budge, the world's. No. 1 ranking player during the 1937 season, won the singles title in the Australian championships.

By virtue of the victories over the German and American teams, enthusiasm is running high in Australia for the forthcoming Davis Cup matches.

This year's challenge round in the Davis Cup tournament will be played at Philadelphia on September 3, 4 and 5, according to a special dispatch to the Yomiuri from New York dated January 11.

46 Home Runs Give DiMaggio Slugging Title

By ARTHUR E. PATTERSON
N.Y. Herald Tribune

NEW YORK, Dec 12—Henry Lou Gehrig, eminent leader of the Bronx Bombers, may have been somewhat saddened by the fact that he took neither the home-run nor the batting championship during the 1937 American League baseball season, but if he and his rooters will make a thorough investigation of the circuit's official figures, released yesterday, he and they will discover that the Iron Man did all right in the way of adding walloping prestige.

Charlie Gehringer, the league's most valuable player, finished at the high clip of 371, exactly 20 percentage points ahead of Gehrig, and Joe DiMaggio rammed forty-six homers, nine more than Larrupin' Lou, but the sturdy first baseman concentrated on records—marks which have been piled up during his amazing string of 1,965 consecutive ball games.

Veteran's Streak Goes On

The skein goes on and on, and apparently so do all of Gehrig's batting accomplishments. Briefly, he achieved the following during the 1937 campaign:

1. By driving in 159 runs he made it seven years above 150 in that vital statistical column, a six-year record tie with Babe Ruth. It was Gehrig's twelfth year over 100, slipping him out of a deadlock with Al Simmons and Goose Goslin.

2. By playing out the full quota of games for the eleventh season, he jumped away from Eddie Collins' mark of ten seasons without a day off.

3. With an even 200 hits, Gehrig moved to within one such season behind Ty Cobb's all-time record of nine years.

4. By scoring 138 runs he finished his twelfth consecutive season over 100, tying Ruth.

5. He drew 127 passes, running his career total to 1,398 and making it the tenth year he drew over 100.

Clips Total-Bases Record

6. With 366 total bases, Gehrig broke a record he had shared with Ruth by hitting for 300 or more bases for the twelfth time.

7. His thirty-seven homers put his total at 465 and stretched the number of seasons of more than thirty homers to ten.

7. He hit a homer with the bases loaded for the twentieth time.

9. He hit for the cycle, single, double, triple and homer, August 1.

So it would seem Gehrig wasn't exactly shaded by the mechanical Gehringer and the flashy DiMaggio, after all.

Nevertheless that pair played a vital and devastating part in making the league season another great "hitters' year." The smooth Tiger second baseman was the sixth successive infielder to take the circuit's batting crown, being preceded by Luke Appling, Buddy Myer, Gehrig, Jimmy Foxx and Dale Alexander. He made a total of 209 hits, including forty doubles, one triple and fourteen homers, and it was his fifth straight year with more than 200 safe blows.

DiMaggio for some time was ahead of the famous 1927 pace set by Babe Ruth when he set the record of sixty, but a late season slump in long-distance walloping spoiled his chance of putting a new mark in the books. Still his sophomore year showed beyond any argument he was no freshman flash in the pan.

Three Grand Slams

Once he hit three homers in a game and three times he cleared filled bases during the season. Another afternoon he hit a double, a triple and two homers, tying a record for four extra-base slams. Mike Kreevich, of the White Sox, tied that mark with four doubles.

Detroit was the team batting champion at .292, with the Yankees at .285. No wonder the Yankees look with disfavor upon any strengthening of Mickey Cochrane's pitching corps.

It was a "homer year," however, with 806 batted and the Yankees, with 174, enjoyed their thirteenth season over 100.

Billion Is Spent A Year On Sports In United States

By PAT ROBINSON
International News Service Sports Writer

NEW YORK.—(INS)—Financial experts tell us there has been a shrinkage in stock market values and that a buck travels faster now but doesn't go as far as it once did.

The financial experts may be right on both counts. But did the financial experts ever take a gander at SPORTS, PFD?

Now, there's one stock—unlisted in any market—that seems to have no peak for it forever keeps on mounting. And in it Uncle Sam's nieces and nephews have invested more than a billion dollars this year.

A billion a year for sports? Seems fantastic, doesn't it? But let's break it down a little, and perhaps we shall find we are too conservative.

The Army and Navy football game at Philadelphia attracted 102,000 at $4.40 a head. That's running up toward the half million mark, isn't it? But that's only the beginning. Some 35,000 went to that game from New York. Thousands of others went from Baltimore, Washington and other points. These spent plenty for rail fares, lunches, dinners, drinks, taxis and hotel bills.

Any New Yorker who took his wife to that game must have ruined a $50 bill. And hotel men figure that such a game means at least $2,000,000 spent in the town that day. That hundred thousand million is fading fast, isn't it?

But hold on a minute. There were thousands of college games this fall. A rough estimation puts the football attendance at 40,000,000. Now multiply that figure by the cost of tickets, transportation, incidentals, etc., and you will begin to get a hazy idea of what staggering sums we lay out to gratify our love of sports.

Some 10,000,000 saw major league ball games last summer, to say nothing of those who laid it on the line for minor league games.

Now multiply—but wait—we forgot about polo, tennis, hockey, golf, and everything from archery to track and field, horses racing, bike racing, bowling, yacht racing (ah, there's a honey for getting rid of money), tennis, basketball, auto racing and whatnot.

Phew, it gives you a headache to try to imagine the sums spent on these sports, even without taking into account the many millions spent on huge stadia and tracks, the cost of equipment, travel, coaches, training, etc., etc.

Did I say we spent a billion? Shucks, that's chicken feed. Oscar, lend me two bucks until Saturday.

S.I.A.A. Official Sees Collapse Of College Football

CORAL GABLES, Fla., Dec. 17—Dr. J. W. Provine, president of the Association, said yesterday he believed collegiate football "eventually will collapse" unless something definite was done to check a trend toward professionalism.

"Unless the colleges can make football a sport again, instead of a big business," Dr. Provine, of Mississippi College, said in an interview, "I do not see a bright future for it.

"They are ultimately coming to professionalism. When that stage is reached, professional football—which has grown tremendously in the last several years—will overshadow the collegiate game."

Dr. Provine indicated indirectly that football might become a "racket" in some colleges.

"Whenever a college is driven to the point that it must use a group of its fine students to make money to replenish the college treasury," he said, "at that time it becomes a racket, harmful both to the college and the student and a disgrace to amateur athletics."

"The colleges, in subsidizing athletes to win more games and attract more spectators," he said, "are defeating their own purpose when the public comes to think of college football as a professional sport. I fear it eventually will collapse. Spectators then will turn to the organized professional game, with its better teams and more attractive style of play, and the college football crowds will decrease."

Th S. I. A. A., oldest of the South's athletic conferences, embraces a number of smaller colleges. The University of Tampa became a member yesterday when the association, in annual convention, voted unanimously to admit it. Tampa had been supervised by the S. I. A. A. during a probationary period of three years.

Dr. Provine said the feeling among smaller colleges was to avoid the athletic pressure experienced by larger universities.

"I believe," he said, "that the smaller colleges are, on the whole, free from the evil of subsidization."

Waseda Cagers Beaten, 42-39 By Santo Thomas

Staging a furious rally in the last two minutes of play, the Santo Thomas University basketball team defeated the Waseda University quintet, 42-39, Tuesday night at Manila for the Japanese team's second defeat there, according to a Domei dispatch received here.

Functioning brilliantly from the opening whistle, the Japanese collegians were soon leading 9-1 but the Filipinos rallied and at half time were only 3 points behind on the short end of a 22-19 score.

After resumption of play, Waseda again assumed a nine point lead and seemed well on the way to victory. But the Santo Thomas contingent cut the lead to five points with two minutes left to play. Then it rang three field goals in succession to emerge into a point lead and the game turned into a battle royal. Santo Thomas was charged with a personal and Yokoyama made good a free throw to put the score on an even basis. When an extra period seemed necessary, the Filipino combination succeeded in its long passes and scored two field goals in rapid fire order to clinch the game.

Strikeout Record

Thirty strikeouts in a single baseball game is quite a record—at least nothing better has been heard of in the St. Louis area.

Leslie Mueller, pitcher of the Belleville High Maroons, performed that feat in a 5-to-4 12-inning victory over Livingston, May 10, 1937. And on top of that, just to prove it wasn't a freak, three days later Mueller followed with 16 strikeouts against Murphysboro and won, 12-1, in 7 innings, allowing just on hit. That made a total of 46 strikeouts in 19 innings—and, needless to say, aroused the interest of Big League scouts.

Grand Champion Thrown As Upsets Feature Sumo Tourney Opening

By LESLIE NAKASHIMA

It was a day of one surprise after another, Thursday's opening of the 13-day sumo (Japanese style wrestling) tournament at the Kokugikan bowl at Ryogoku before a packed crowd of more than 25,000 howling fans. Starting from the first light of day, the bouts lasted until past seven o'clock at night. With all wrestlers anxious to start the tourney in auspicious style with a victory, they naturally were tense. The consequence was that most of the bouts within the "makunouchi" or first ranking wrestlers required the maximum time limit of 10 minutes in the "shikiri" or process of getting started.

There were upsets galore with the more strongly considered wrestlers thrown and it was easily the most exciting opening day of a season in recent years.

Minanogawa Loses

One of the four yokozuna or grand champions was thrown. He was Minanogawa, biggest of all wrestlers, at the hands of Dewaminato. And now it is for the three other grand champions, Tamanishiki, Musashiyama and Futabayama, to fight it out for the championship. All three won their matches in convincing style.

Particularly was Musashiyama, who is superbly built physically, outstanding in his first performance after a rest of several seasons because of injuries. He was stacked up against Banjaku, who next to Tamanishiki has the biggest belly of them all and scored a royal upset on the opening day of the "summer" tournament last May when he threw Tamanishiki. No sooner had the two stood up than Musashiyama thrust through his two arms for firm holds on Banjaku's girdle. Although the latter attempted to use his big stomach as a lever to raise Musashiyama with the view to carrying him out of the ring (a wrestler is beaten the moment he is put of the ring, or any part of his body with the exception of his feet touches the sand), Musashiyama not only checked the offensive but he in turn lifted his opponent and threw him out of the ring for an impressive victory.

Through his spectacular performance Thursday, it seems as if Musashiyama will be the man Futabayama, who went through the last two tournaments without a defeat, must beat to clinch his fourth championship in a row.

Futabayama Wins

Futabayama, who not only is strong but is a handsome fellow, performing for the first time as a grand champion, showed that he is even stronger than last year by winning easily from burly Oshio, who was once an ohseki, or champion, immediately below yokozuna. They came together in the center of the ring, made a half circle and Futabayama had already obtained a hold with his right arm on his opponent's girdle. Then he quickly stuck his left hand at Oshio's throat and pushed him out of the ring.

Tamanishiki, who this time is completely recovered from an attack of diabetes and is determined to replace Futabayama as the champion in the tournament, took the measure of Asahigawa without much trouble.

That all is not strength in this indigenous sport of Japan was amply displayed in the bout between Minanogawa and Dewaminato. Minanogawa, a grand champion and much bigger than Dewaminato, was a heavy favorite to win. As they charged at each other, having become spiritually united to wrestle, Dewaminato was the quicker of the two to thrust his two arms through Minanogawa's defense for advantageous holds on the latter's girdle. Ignoring this, Minanogawa started pushing. But Dewaminato checked the drive, and suddenly pulled downward with his right arm, at the same time attempting a throw with his left. The throw succeeded and the mighty Minanogawa went sprawling on to the sand to the surprise as well as dismay to the fans. It was too much to see a grand champion lose on the opening day of a 13-day tournament.

Kagamiiwa Strong

Kagamiiwa, the only ohseki on the list for both the east and west sides this season because of the retirement of the popular Shimizugawa, disposed of Kasagiyama, the so-called intellectual wrestler, having attended Waseda University, in convincing style. He shoved his opponent out of the ring.

Taikyuzan, Ryogoku and Tamanoumi, who had been promoted to the rank of sekiwake, third from grand champion, after the tournament last May, suffered black marks in their columns. The first named should have won but failing in an attempt to outsmart Tatekabuto, the latter literally crushed him onto the sand for an upsetting victory. Ryogoku, in the day's most talked about match against the up and coming Mayedayama, must have been a bit too confident. He got an equal hold with Mayedayama but before he could do a thing, Mayedayama had thrown him out of the ring with a herculean effort with his two powerful arms. And then it was Tamanoumi, who fell at the hands of Nayoriiwa, prized stable-mate of Futabayama. Here it was again, a case of sheer strength that proved the winning factor. Tamanoumi was the aggressor, essayed two throws. Nayoriiwa not only checked them but in turn became the aggressor and lifted his opponent out of the ring for victory.

Case of Dynamite

It was a case of dynamite against dynamite—the bout between Kyushuzan, who hails from Kyushu, and Tomoegata, from the Hokkaido. Kyushuzan, one of the fastest and aggressive wrestlers of them all, executed the prettiest throw of the day but only after a torrid bout.

A quicker thrust through with his favorite left arm for a firm grip on his opponent's girdle won for Haguroyama against Ayanobori in one of the feature bouts of the day—so much talked about that the Tokyo Nichi Nichi and the Teito Nichi Nichi offered silver trophies. The younger Haguroyama threw Ayanobori out of the ring before the latter could resort to his strength and clever throws.

The veteran Hatasegawa scored an upset by throwing Shachinosato, considered the handsomest wrestler and who only a few weeks ago took unto him a bride. They flung away at each other with their arms when suddenly Hatasegawa grabbed one of Shachinosato's legs and promptly threw him down.

Kaikozan used his great protruding belly to good advantage and pushed Wakashima out of the ring for victory.

Aobayama, another up and coming wrestler, proved too strong for the husky Takanobori, who once was considered he might develop into a yokozuna. Twice the latter was on the verge of shoving his opponent out of the ring. One time, Aobayama's body was bent like a bow in weathering a furious attack. With a mighty force, he virtually threw Takanobori over his shoulders and won.

The results of the matches after the intermission, when the four grand champions made their formal entries into the ring, follow:

Tamanishiki defeated Asahigawa.
Futayabama defeated Oshio.
Dewaminato defeated Minanogawa.
Musashiyama defeated Banjaku.
Kagamiiwa defeated Kasagiyama.
Tatekabuto defeated Taikyuzan.
Mayedayama defeated Ryogoku.
Nayoriiwa defeated Tamanoumi.
Kyushuzan defeated Tomoegata.
Aobayama defeated Ayanobori.
Kaikozan defeated Wakashima.
Itsushima defeated Kaneminato.
Dewanohana defeated Onami.
Aobayama defeated Takanobori.
Hatasegawa defeated Shachinosato.
Banshinzan defeated Kinkazan.
Komanosato defeated Katsuragawa.
Tsurugamine defeated Tsukubamine.
Orochigata defeated Toshuzan.
Kojimagawa defeated Imizugawa.
Ayanishiki defeated Fujigadake.

336 Wrestlers Seen Daily On Sumo Card Now On At Kokugikan

The elaborate or gigantic scale of the sumo now going on at the Kokugikan bowl at Ryogoku—there are 168 bouts with 336 contestants being offered daily.

The beginners start the ball rolling at 4 o'clock in the morning when the temperature very likely is below freezing point with impromptu matches.

Then after a while, the scheduled matches of day begin, and there are six different classes. First are the lowest ranking wrestlers, or those in the "jo-no-kuchi," and there are 26 of these matches. Then follow 36 bouts of the next higher rank, "jo-no-nidan." Next come 37 bouts of those in the "sandan-me" and 30 bouts of the "maku-shita."

By this time, it is noon. Next on the program are 17 bouts of the "juryo" after which is the intermission when the four grand champions make their formal entries into the ring, called dohyo-iri. Then are the 22 bouts between the first ranking wrestlers held.

Pittsburgh Has First Chance At Colorado's White

CHICAGO, Dec. 13—Pittsburgh's Pirates of the National Professional Football League were awarded the right to negotiate with Byron "Whizzer" White, Colorado's sensational all-America halfback Saturday at the annual draft meeting of the league.

The names of 113 players were posted for draft, some of whom may decide not to prolong their football careers in the interest of financial gains. Conspicuously missing was Yale's all-America Clint Frank, the only all-star eligible for the draft who was not selected. Frank had stated he would not play professional football.

In addition to White, the Pirates were awarded Tony Matisi Pittsburgh's all-America tackle. The Cleveland Rams, baby member of the league, also drew two all-America selections—Joe Routt, guard from Texas A. and M., and Joe Franco, Fordham tackle.

The other eligible all-Americas were disposed as follows: Carl Hinkle, Vanderbilt center, Philadelphia; Leroy Monsky, Alabama guard, Brookyln; Chuck Sweeney, Notre Dame end, Green Bay; and Sam Champan, California fullback, Washington.

The farm system question, so familiar in major league baseball, made its appearance in the pro gridiron game when the club owners suggested that a rule be adopted to give each club the right to place a maximum of three men, provided they are first year players, on farms with the understanding they shall not be subject to the waiver list and may be recalled at any moment. Such players must either become permanent members of the club or be granted their releases after one year.

The magnates also moved toward a modificatiton of the "Shaughnessy play-off" system in vogue in the International and American Association baseball leagues. Under the recommendations, the team finishing first in the western division would meet the second place team in the eastern section on the western club's home field. A similar game would be played between the eastern winner and the western runner-up on the eastern team's field.

His First Formal Debut As A Grand Champion

Handsome Futabayama as he made his formal entry (dohyo-iri) into the ring Thursday afternoon at the opening day of the 13-day "spring" sumo tournament at the Kokugikan. Biggest interest of the tourney is whether Futabayama will emerge champion for the fourth consecutive season, despite the presence of three other grand champions—Tamanishiki, Musashiyama and Minanogawa.

Pitt Millionaire For Subsidization As Sound And Fair

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 14—The University of Pittsburgh's first "paid" football player (he's a millionaire now) went on the record today in favor of subsidization, declaring he owed "whatever material success I may since have attained" to financial help in college.

Joseph C. Trees, associate of M. L. Benedum in world-wide oil operations, said last night at a varsity club banquet in honor of Pitt's undefeated 1937 grid squad that "subsidization is eminently sound and fair," provided:

"That education is the primary objective; that the boy really wants an education, and that the institution sees to it that he either gets that education or is removed from its student rolls."

Declaring there is nothing new about the controversy surrounding subsidization of athletes, Trees added:

"To my own personal knowledge, it is almost 50 years old, because when I was playing with the Pitt teams of 1891, '92 and '93, certain alumni groups of Harvard, Yale and Princeton sought to persuade me to enter their alma maters and their offers were tempting."

He recalled that "certain alumni of old Western University of Pennsylvania (now Pitt) paid by tuition and contributed toward other expenses incident to obtaining a college degree."

Trees referred to the plan of strict amateurism advocated by James Hagan, Pitts athletic director, and said:

"My plea is not for the adoption or rejection of any policy, but that the educational institutions of the country drop the mask of hypocrisy about college football."

1940 Olympics At Tokyo Or None At All, Avery Brundage Declares

By The Domei Tsushin Sha

CHICAGO, Jan. 12—If the Japanese Government has been too preoccupied with its military campaign in China to have done the work that should have already been done, there won't be any transfer of the Olympic Games to another nation—it is too late for that.

That in short was the answer given to press interviewers by Avery Brundage, Chairman of the American Olympic Committee, who returned here today from a busy three-day session of the American Olympic Association's executive committee held at New York. He denied that the committee was gravely worried over the possibility that Japan may formally declare war on China and added that no nation besides Japan can adequately stage a giant Olympic contest because it takes more than two years to get ready for such a big event as Tokyo has promised to stage.

Commenting upon reports that athletic associations like other groups should boycott highly militaristic nations, Mr. Brundage declared that "whether the Olympic Committee or the athletes like or dislike Japan's military policy is beside the point. The only concern is to be sure that Japan is able to prepare the forthcoming games adequately."

The International Olympic Committee, he continued, has a representative in Japan and is studying the question to report to the next meeting of the committee at Cairo next March. "The Association's position has been consistent with the belief that sports transcends all political and racial considerations. We stuck to this principle in 1936 and it shall be unchanged."

Budge Receives Heavy Vote For Leading Athlete

NEW YORK, Dec. 13—Redheaded John Donald Budge, who carried the tennis torch so dazzlingly for Uncle Sam, rates well off by himself as the No. 1 athlete of the year, in the opinion of the nation's leading sports writing experts.

For his championship exploits at Wimbledon and Forest Hills, topped off by playing the star role in recapture of the historic Davis Cup, the lanky Californian received a thumping majority vote in the seventh annual Asssociated Press sports poll.

Now the world's No. 1 tennis player, but not even mentioned in last year's poll, Budge was put at the top of the all-sports list by 28 out of 48 experts in recognition of his highly dramatic achievements. He totaled 95 points under the 3-2-1 system of scoring for the three entries posted by each contributor to the poll.

Chief contenders for the runner-up honors were those two major league rivals for all-around honors, outfielders Joe Medwick of the St. Louis Cardinals and Joe Di Maggio of the New York Yankees. Medwick finally outpointed the Yankee sophomore, 39 to 35, but each received three first-place votes and the margin was not enough to settle an argument that raged all year between their partisans.

Yale's Clint Frank and Colorado's Whizzer White, all-America backfield stars of 1937, shared the chief honors accorded gridiron heroes. Frank took fourth place with 28 point but he had only two votes for first place to White's four.

Ralph Guldahl, the United States open champion, led all golfing rivals in the poll.

Klingeberg, Kano And Nagai Named To Go To Cairo

Professor Jigoro Kano, member of the International Olympic Committee, Dr. Matsuzo Nagai, secretary-general of the Tokyo Olympic Organizing Committee, and Werner Klingeberg, technical adviser to the O. O. C. from Germany, were formally selected as members of the Japanese delegation to the I. O. C. meeting at Cairo in March at the O. O. C. session Thursday afternoon at the S. M. R. building.

Prince Iyesato Tokugawa, chairman of the O. O. C., expressed his inability to attend the I. O. C. session because of pressure of official business, but he was asked to reconsider. He thereupon replied that he would give his definite answer in the next few days.

Members to accompany the delegation will be announced sometime today. Tentative plans call for departure from Kobe on the Fushimi Maru on February 3 with arrival at Port Said on March 7.

Buddha Walk

Siddhartha Gautama, afterward called Buddha, or "The Enlightened", was the son of the Sakya clan ruler who lived in Southern Nepal. He enjoyed every luxury, he was protected from all harm and evil, sorrow and pain, and it was not until he reached the age of 29 that he became aware of mankind's troubles. Then it was that he decided upon his great renunciation.

He spent years wandering about trying to attain his soul's salvation. He fasted, prayed, mortified the flesh in every way, went through struggle and temptation, until at last at Bodh Gaya he received the enlightenment, sitting six whole years under the Bho tree. Today the Bho tree is the holiest of all earthly objects to millions of Buddha's followers, and by its side they have built the Great Temple of Maha Bodhi, in front of which runs "Buddha's Promenade". Here the Blessed One spent seven whole days and nights walking up and down in deep meditation after having obtained enlightenment and the bliss of Nirvana, and his footprints turned to stone.

Klingeberg To Sapporo

Werner Klingeberg, technical adviser to the Olympic Organizing Committee, is scheduled to leave Uyeno Station by the 7 o'clock express tonight en route to the Hokkaido to inspect the sites and facilities at Sapporo for the Fifth Winter Olympic Games in 1940. While there he will also witness the national skating championships. He is expected to return to Tokyo on January 31.

Futabayama Too Strong For Kyushuzan; Sellout Marks Sumo's 2nd Day

By LESLIE NAKASHIMA

It was terribly cold Friday but this did not stop sumo fans from making the second day's show of the 13-day tournament at the Kokugikan bowl at Ryogoku another sellout affair. And they were well rewarded with a large number of thrilling matches.

Grand Champion Futabayama, who went through the last two seasons without a defeat, took on the up and coming Kyushuzan in the last bout of the day at 7 in the evening, and more than ever established himself as the strongest candidate to win the season's championship, which would be his fourth in a row for an unprecedented record in the sumo annals. He won impressively from this wrestler, who had given him the hardest match in the last tournament in May of last year.

Both Cautious

Both were cautious and it was not until after 13 false starts that they finally stood up to do battle. Kyushuzan, one of the most dangerous wrestlers in competition and with enough ability to defeat the strongest, charged flinging away with both arms. Futabayama, like a true grand champion, was calmness itself, pushed Kyushuzan back and waited for the latter's next move, giving the impression that he was capable of taking care of himself against whatever trick his opponent might resort to. They suddenly grasped each other by the two hands, both standing in the middle of the ring. And thus did they wait for the other's next move to send the fans into a frenzy. The aggressive Kyushuzan, unable to wait, the opposite of the calm and confident Futabayama, then thrust his right arm through for a hold on Futabayama's girdle. This ordinarily would be an advantageous hold but Futabayama was not disturbed in the least. He checked a throw attempted by Kyushuzan, then himself took the offensive and threw Kyushuzan down with as beautiful a body throw as has been in many a season. One of the features of the tourney is the question—who will be first to throw Futabayama to put a stop to his winning streak?

Grand Champions Win

Grand Champion Musashiyama won impressively again. As the burly Tatekabuto started pushing him toward the edge of the ring, Musashiyama checked the drive, then suddenly let himself loose from his opponent, and the latter went sprawling onto the sand on his own momentum. Thus did Musashiyama show that he not only is strong but knows every trick of the sport.

Grand Champion Tamanishiki also won his second straight victory, his victim being Ayanobori. The latter is one of the outstanding wrestlers in competition and this was one of the prize bouts of the day. As they stood up, each started pushing the other with their hands, then they suddenly fell into a clinch. Ayanobori got a grip on his opponent's girdle with his left arm, his favorite hold, and elected a throw. The mighty Tamanishiki was spun half way around but he held his ground, and using his large protruding belly to good advantage, he pushed Ayanobori out of the ring for victory.

The other grand champion, Minanogawa, who tasted bitter defeat on the opening day at the hands of Dewaminato, proved too strong for Nayoroiwa. He shoved the latter out of the ring in quick time. Nayoroiwa did not even have a chance of grasping Minanogawa.

Kagamiiwa, ohseki or rank immediately below grand champion, who is very much in the running for the championship honors, won his second match. The bullet charging Tomoegata lost when his knee touched the sand as he charged into Kagamiiwa.

All three sekiwake, rank below ohseki, who lost on Thursday, redeemed themselves with victories. Ryogoku defeated Oshio after a torrid bout. Taikyuzan pushed Asahigawa out of the ring. Tamanoumi proved too clever for the up and coming Haguroyama. The latter tried too much to get his right arm through for a grasp on Tamanoumi's girdle. Tamanoumi pulled downward with his two arms and pronto, there was Haguroyama rolling onto the sand to be defeated.

Mayedayama Beaten

Mayedayama, who staged an upset by taking the measure of Ryogoku on Thursday, suffered defeat at the hands of Itsutsushima. The most interesting thing about this bout was that Itsutsushima pulled off the unexpected by defeating Mayedayama at the latter's own game—charging with both hands and not giving the other an opportunity for a body hold.

Banjaku's great belly came to his assistance in defeating Kasagiyama. No sooner had the two stood up than Kasagiyama thrust his two arms through and started pushing, all the aggressor. He pushed Banjaku to the edge of the ring and needed one more push to win, but he was not equal to it. Banjaku checked the drive, then in turn started pushing Kasagiyama, and using his belly as a lever, lifted Kasagiyama out of the ring.

Dewaminato won his second straight victory impressively, pushing Kaikozen out of the ring before the latter had any chance.

One of the best bouts of the day was that between Akinoumi, a newcomer into the "Makunouchi" or first ranking circles, and Shachinosato. It was a ripsnorting affair. Akinoumi was first to attempt a throw, Shachinosato checked it and in turn tried a throw. Akinoumi held his own ground and they mixed furiously in the middle of the ring. Then it was that Akinoumi with a mighty effort threw Shachinosato out of the ring but in doing so, it appeared as if his right knee had touched the ground. The judges conferred as was expected and victory was awarded to Shachinosato.

The results of the matches after the intermission follow:

Futabayama defeated Kyushuzan.
Minanogawa defeated Noyoroiwa.

Waseda Cagers Beaten By La Salle 'U,' 30-25

Waseda University's basketball team lost its third straight game Thursday night at Manila, falling before the onslaughts of the La Salle University's quintet by a 30-25 score.

Weariness from too much play is believed to have been the reason for the slump the Waseda collegians are in. They won their first five games in succession.

Waseda led 9-1 soon after opening of play but gradually lost its shooting eye and the score stood 20-all at half-time.

The Filipino cage artists outscored the tired Waseda cagers, 10 points to five in the second half to win.

Keio, Meiji Lose In Tilts On Ice

Handicapped in their play on an outdoor ice, both the Keio and Meiji teams were eliminated Friday in the opening day's contests of the ninth annual ice hockey championships at the Nakajima rink at Sapporo. For the past five years, the championships had been staged at the Shibaura rink here.

Keio, which drew a bye in the first round, was beaten by the Oji Paper Company six by three goals to one.

Meiji fell before the Tomokamai Technical School team, national middle school champions, by four goals to two in a royal upset. The Tokyo collegians found their stick work and passing difficult on the uneven ice and were for the most part on the defense against the spirited charges of the home team. The latter clinched victory by taking a 2-0 lead at the end of the first period.

Waseda entered the semi-finals by taking the measure of the Hokkaido Imperial University sextet by nine goals to one, scoring seven of them in the third period.

Rikkyo, the other team from Tokyo, was scheduled to meet the Nikko Furukawa team in the remaining quarter-finals game at 8:30 this morning. The Furukawa six eliminated the All-Sapporo Normal combination by five goals to four on Friday.

Miss Yayeko Ejima of Manchuria set a new national record in the women's 3,000 meter speed race by negotiating the distance in 6 minutes 12.4 seconds. She also won the 500 meter race in 53.9 seconds.

Sai Ryushin of Meiji, last year's champion, defended his title successively in the men's 500 meter race in 45.9 seconds. Ri Seitoku of the Meiji O. B. was second.

Tokugawa Unable To Go To Cairo

Prince Iyesato Tokugawa, Chairman of the Olympic Organizing Committee, Friday afternoon formally announced his inability to head the Japanese delegation to the general meeting of the International Olympic Committee at Cairo, scheduled to open on March 10. Accordingly, Professor Jigoro Kano, who like Prince Tokugawa is a member of the I. O. C., will lead the delegation, which will include Dr. Matsuzo Nagai, secretary-general of the Olympic Organizing Committee, and Werner Klingeberg, technical adviser to the O. O. C. from Germany.

It became known Friday too that Dr. Tadaoki Yamamoto, vice-president of the Japan Track and Field Federation, will be unable to attend the meeting of the International Track and Field Federation scheduled at London prior to the I. O. C. session at Cairo, because of his duties at Waseda University. For this reason, Ryozo Hiranuma, vice-president of the Japan Amateur Athletic Federation, was formally requested Friday to substitute for Dr. Yamamoto. In case Mr. Hiranuma accepts, he will sail from Yokohama on January 25 aboard the Heian Maru for Seattle and go to London via the United States. After the London conference, he will proceed to Cairo where he will be a member of the Japanese Olympic delegation.

Budge, Riggs Placed 1 And 2 In U.S. Tennis

NEW YORK, Dec. 17—Two tennis success stories with J. Donald Budge and Bobby Riggs as heroes are reflected in the recommendations of the rankings committee of the United States Lawn Tennis Association, which would place Budge at No. 1 and Riggs at No. 2 in men's singles.

Budge easily retained his status in the ranking, which will go to the U.S.L.T.A.'s 57th annual meeting at Miami Beach, Fla., on Jan. 15. No. 1 a year ago, he is No. 1 again on a series of smashing triumphs in Davis Cup, Wimbledon and national play.

Riggs, who raised his ranking two notches from No. 4 to No. 2, couldn't match Budge's grand slam but he did oust Frankie Parker of New York from the secondary spot and forced Parker and Bitsy Grant, of Atlanta, third last year, to take No. 3 and No. 4 on the ranking list.

Although she did not enjoy the glittering victories with which Budge embroidered American tennis history, Alice I. Marble of Beverly Hills, Calif., kept pace by holding her post at the top of the woman's ranking.

Miss Bundy Third

Just behind the blonde stylist in the No. 2 and No. 3 spots are the veteran Helen Hull Jacobs and the youthful Dorothy May Bundy, two other Californians who helped retain the Wightman Cup this year.

Riggs had a big year. Starting with Budge, Parker and Grant on the Davis Cup junket, he won notable victories in the New England, southern, national clay courts, Seabright, Meadow Club and eastern grass court tournaments.

Joe Hunt, of Los Angeles, took fifth place in the standings, an advance of four places, while Wayne R. Sabin, of Hollywood, jumped from No. 17 to No. 6. Harold Surface Jr., of Kansas City, Mo., took over No. 7 with Gene Mako, of Los Angeles, Budge's doubles partner, in No. 8, Don McNeill of Oklahoma City ninth and the veteran Johnny Van Ryn of Austin, Texas, tenth.

Greg Mangin, fifth last year, is out of the first 10 because of insufficient data.

In addition to approving the ranking lists, the U. S. L. T. A. will take up a number of amendments, submitted by other committee, both to the constitution and the playing rules. The most important of the former will add to the executive committee four regional vice-presidents—north Atlantic, southern, central and Pacific.

U.S. May Not Enter Hockey Team In '40 Winter Olympic Games

The American Olympic Association will not enter a team in the ice hockey competition in the Fifth Winter Olympic Games unless the taint of professionalism now prevailing in the various amateur circuits is eradicated, according to a sensational announcement made Thursday by Secretary Rubien, a Domei report from New York says.

The Customer

A salesman was dismissed because of a lack of courtesy to customers. A month later the sales manager spotted him walking about in a police uniform.

"I see you have joined the force, Jones," said the sales manager.

"Yes," replied Jones. "This is the job I have been looking for all my life. On this job the customer is always wrong."—Montreal Star.

Rifle, Pistol Shooting Gains In Popularity

WASHINGTON, D.C., Dec. 18—Rifle and pistol target shooting as a competitive sport has achieved its greatest popularity throughout the nation during 1937. Over 10,000 registrations were made in close to a hundred officially sanctioned and registered tournaments of the National Rifle Association during '37, the number of these tournaments being raised from 42 to 1936 to near the hundred mark this year to take care of an additional 6000 small bore rifle and pistol marksmen drawn into this top-flight competition.

The National matches alone this year, with an attendance of 3,500 actual participants, showed an increase of 10 per cent over last year's record attendance. These annual matches held at Camp Perry, Ohio, are now by far the greatest shooting matches in the world, and serve as a barometer of the revival of this traditionally American sport.

National Rifle Association headquarters has noted a similar increase in minor tournaments of local or sectional attraction through the listing of these events in its magazine, "The American Rifleman." This listing again has kept pace with the major tournaments noted above to indicate a wholesale distribution of inter-club and inter-league competition.

This year marked the renewal of international small bore rifle competition when a team of 15 of America's top ranking sharpshooters went to Bisley, England, to compete for the famed Pershing Trophy. England's two-point victory with a team score of 3961 left them in possession of the trophy. A small squad from this American team roster, however, later managed to shoot their way to a world's championship for prone position firing in the international matches at Helsingfors, Finland, thus compensating for the loss to Britain's shooters and helping to maintain the prestige of American marksmanship. An International Pistol Team Match, inaugurated this year, showed the Americans easy winners over their British rivals.

Outstanding performances were credited to the Detroit police team, which broke two world records during the season's shooting. They raised their old record of 1092 with the .22 caliber handguns by one point, and then established a new high of 1400 for five-man teams with the .38 caliber revolvers—four points better than the record formerly held by the Los Angeles police team. The national champion Los Angeles outfit, however, was able to stay in the limelight by setting an unbelievably high total of 1346 with the big .45 handguns for five-man teams, which was 25 points above their old mark.

The only rifle record of importance to fall during the season was that of the Grand Aggregate for the national tournament. Malcolm J. Holland, U. S. M. C., set a new high of 639 x 655 points for the six individual matches of the aggregate. While records otherwise remained unbroken, it is thought that seasonal scores will show decidedly higher averages when tabulations are completed on the individual rankings of all small-bore riflemen. These rankings soon to be released by the National Rifle Association will be based on records of approximately 6,000,000 shots fired in registered tournaments, including the world's greatest National at Camp Perry, Ohio.

"BELIEVE IT OR NOT"---by Ripley

Wrigley Clarifies Status Of Lazzeri

CHICAGO, Dec. 13—P. K. Wrigley, owner-president of the Chicago Cubs, said today that Tony Lazzeri, former New York Yankee infielder, and Catcher Gabby Hartnett would act as advisers next season to Manager Charlie Grimm.

Answering reports that either Lazzeri or Hartnett might succeed Grimm as the Cub pilot, Wrigley said Grimm, who was made a vice president of the club two years ago, would be asked to devote his entire attention to the "baseball end of his job." Hartnett, Wrigley added, has earned a "definite place in the Cub organization" and probably will not be asked to catch as many games as he did last season.

Commenting on the Cubs' failure to make a deal at the recent major league baseball meetings, Wrigley remarked that no trades were possible, and that the Cubs "have made too many deals in the past—just for the sake of making a deal."

The Cubs today drafted Anthony York, 24-year-old infielder, from the Tulsa, Okla. club of the Texas League. He is a right-hander, 5 feet 11 inches tall, and batted .286 last season.

George (Mule) Haas, utility outfielder with the Chicago White Sox, has been unconditionally released, leaving Jimmy Dykes, manager of the club, as the only survivor of the $150,000 purchase that brought Dykes, Haas and Al Simmons from the Athletics to the Sox in 1932.

Simmons was sold to Detroit for $75,000. Haas, 34 years old, played in only a few games last season.

Cancer Aid Found By Applying Chill

Apparent Easing In Hopeless Human Cases Is Reported By Physicians

N.Y. Times

CHICAGO, Oct. 26—A preliminary report on the results of treating several hopeless cases of cancer by a new technique, which involves direct or indirect lowering of the temperature of the affected parts or of the body as a whole, was presented today at the annual clinical congress of the American College of Surgeons.

The work was described by Dr. Temple Fay, head of the department of neurology and neurosurgery at the Temple University Schools of Medicine, Philadelphia, in collaboration with Dr. George C. Henny, director of the Department of Physics, and Dr. Augustus McCravey.

It was emphasized that the work was still in its very early preliminary stage, that it could not be applied at present to other than hopeless human cases, for which all other standard means of treatment were of no avail, and that the results so far obtained, which included a reduction in the size of the cancers and alleviation of pain, might be due entirely to coincidence.

The new treatment involves two methods. One consists in the application of refrigeration directly into the tumors. The other method consists in lowering the temperature of the body as a whole by "hibernation," that is, the lowering of the body's metabolism, accompanied by a drop in the bodily temperature.

Temperature Factor in Growth

The new treatment is based on the observation that proliferation of cells and growth in animal and plant take place only at certain "critical" temperatures. Since the cancer process involves a high rate of cell proliferation, it was decided to investigate whether or not such malignant processes were correlated in any way with a rise in temperature.

Dr. Fay and his associates devised delicate instruments for the measurement of bodily temperatures and found, they reported, that certain segments of the body had higher surface temperatures than other segments. On comparing these areas of high temperatures with parts of the body in which malignant tumors usually spread, a process known as metastasis, they found that "a striking correlation appeared to exist between the location of rapidly growing types of metastatic malignancy and the segmental areas of relatively high surface temperature."

"The locations favoring metastatic growth," Dr. Fay stated, "fell almost entirely within the segmental areas of highest body temperature, whereas it was extremely rare to find records of such lesions in the distal portions of the extremities, where the segmental temperatures are lowest, even though metastatic tumors were shown to be widespread and, in certain instances, undoubtedly blood-borne.

"It is universally recognized that temperature has a direct influence on growth in all forms of cellular life, and that in seeds and eggs particularly a certain range of critical temperature is required to activate the normally fertilized single cell. One of us began a close investigation into this factor, as it might apply to the problem of abnormal cell growth and activity in the human body.

"Examples of arresting growth and preserving food-stuffs through sustained measures of induced low temperatures are so common in our agricultural, industrial and economic life that they need no mention. The ice-box and refrigerator serve this purpose in every home.

Relevant Phenomena Cited

"The fact that a fertilized hen's egg lies dormant as a single cell until activated alone by the influence of a critical temperature around 103 degrees Fahrenheit (39.4 degrees centigrade) is worthy of far deeper consideration than would appear at first glance. The knowledge that we may prevent this event by cold storage, or determine its initiation by controlled means of incubation, places temperature as the prime factor of consideration.

"The striking fact remains that temperature alone is required to bring into existence the activation of the rapid embrayological cellular division that, in the instance of the egg, follows normally differentiated patterns, if allowed to persist.

"Again, a suggestive analogy appears in the clinical history of certain types of malignancy. The slower-growing, more mature forms of squamous carcinoma (skin cancer) of the exposed hands, where temperature is lowest and sunlight exposure greatest, are in distinct contrast to the more rapid activity of squamous carcinoma of the cervix, where a temperature of from one to three degrees Fahrenheit, above the normal temperature of the mouth, exists."

Following on this line of reasoning, with the encouragement of Dr. James Ewing of Memoral Hospital, New York, one of the world's most noted cancer authorities, and with the aid of a grant from the International Cancer Research Foundation, Donner Fund, a line of investigation was undertaken to determine whether or not temperature played any role in the growth and spread of cancer, and if so, whether a lowering of temperature would not create conditions unfavorable to its growth and spread.

Cancer starts as a local disease. It is now generally believed, and if its growth can be stopped before it metastizes to distant parts of the body and infiltrates many vital parts of the organism, the cancer can be removed by surgical means or by radiation, or both, and the victim's life saved. After metastatis, the case is generally considered hopeless, the only measures then available being amelioration of pain.

To lower the temperature of the cancer itself, the Temple physicians devised new instruments, consisting of thin hollow tubes through which a liquid is circulated that keeps the temperature of the affected part at 50 to 60 degrees Fahrenheit. This is known as the refrigeration treatment.

Five patients have so far been treated by this method. These patients, Dr. Fay stated, were considered hopeless cases of extensive metastatic carcinoma (cancer) and were referred to our care only after all other available means had been considered either unavailable or useless."

Dr. Fay's Report of Results

Dr. Fay reported the results on these five hopeless cases as follows:

"Definite relief of local pain followed the application of subnormal temperature in the region of active growth, complicated by pain. There was apparent gross retardation in growth, as well as a diminution in the size of the carcinomatous lesion in the cases so far treated. Temporary improvement in the general nutritional state of the patient was also noted.

"Where the principle of refrigeration has been applied directly to the region of the malignant growth, certain favorable gross clinical and pathological changes have been noted in those cases so far studied."

The other method, bringing about a lowered temperature of the body by "hibernation," was tried so far on four cases. The results of the case of hibernation, induced by means of X-ray radiation to the pituitary, thyroid and ovarian glands, as described by Dr. Fay, were as follows:

"A fall of 29 per cent in the basal metabolic rate followed, with a corresponding fall in the segmental surface temperature. Widespread metastatic lesions disappeared within three weeks and at the present time (nine months following treatment) the patient is free of the symptoms of malignancy."

In one case, Dr. Fay reported, the patient had been blinded as a result of the infiltration of cancer cells in the region of the optic nerve. Now she was able to read a newspaper. The size of one tumor, located in the breast, was reduced by one-half after five days of treatment by the refrigeration method.

Dr. Fay presented his report at a symposium on cancer, in which a number of authorities participated. These included Sir George Lenthal Cheatle and Dr. J. P. Lockhart-Mummery of London, Dr. John H. Garlock of New York, Dr. Harold L. Foss of Danville, Pa.; Dr. Charles C. Higgins of Cleveland and Dr. Bowman C. Crowell of Chicago, associate director of the college. Dr. Charles A. Dukes of Oakland, Calif., chairman of the committee on the treatment of malignant diseases, presided.

Record of Cured Cases

Dr. Crowell presented the latest tabulation of five-year cancer cures, the latest figures bringing the total of such cures to 23,195. Dr. Crowell remarked that all the cures had not yet been tabulated, as new cancer clinics throughout the country had not had time to report on their work.

The cures are tabulated as part of the college's program to educate the public on the thesis: "Cancer is curable provided it is detected and treated in its early stages." A cure is not regarded as such unless the patient is still alive at least five years after treatment.

Of the cures reported, Dr. Crowell said 1,035 were cases of cancer of the stomach, whereas ten years ago less than 100 such cases were known in the entire world. Cure of the early forms of skin cancer, he added, had become common.

Japanese To Return

Meanwhile, five hundred Japanese residents, who evacuated this city following the outbreak of the current China incident, are expected to return on January 21 aboard the N. Y. K. liner Suwa Maru to take part in the reconstruction work.

Ikutaro Tanabe, president of the Japanese Chamber of Commerce and Industry here, in an inverview with the press today, estimated that a fund of ¥150,000,000 would be the minimum required for the rehabilitation of the nine Japanese-owned cotton mills in Tsingtao which had been completely destroyed and looted by the Chinese.

Peace and order are now completely restored following the occupation by the Japanese forces, and Tsingtao is virtually smiling in a reviving atmosphere.

Well-informed quarters revealed here today that a group of leading Chinese members are energetically planning the organization of a peace maintenance committee for the complete restoration of peace and order.

Quiet Time Expected At Anglo-Irish Meeting

By The Domei Tsushin Sha

LONDON, Jan. 14—The forthcoming Anglo-Irish conversations scheduled to open here next Monday will be favored by a more friendly atmosphere than have previous meetings to iron out differences between the two nations, authoritatively informed quarters declared today.

The all-important problem of defense will undoubtedly loom large in the forthcoming conversations.

The thorniest problem, however, it was pointed out will be the question of partition of Ireland, regarding which observers declared that feeling has recently been intense.

Observers declared that there is certainly strong opposition in Britain to any attempt to coerce the north into union with the south.

It was pointed out on the other hand that President Eamon de Valera, also known to oppose coercive tactics, favors giving the north full autonomy leaving all major problems to an all-Ireland Parliament to meet in Dublin.

Avenol Requests

the new development has interrupted the negotiations which Secretary Avenol was carrying on with various member governments regarding a proposed declaration reaffirming general loyalty to the League, but provisionally suspending the operation of Articles 10 and 16 of the Covenant.

The object of the declaration, it is understood, would be to satisfy the small Powers who wish to be absolved from all obligation to enforce sanctions, and at the same time to avoid a possible open split over the issue of a formal amendment to the Covenant.

Accord Is Reached By Yugoslavia, Rumania

By The Domei Tsushin Sha

BELGRADE, Jan. 11—Complete accord between Rumania and Yugoslavia on all European political issues was announced here this evening in an official communique concluding one day of conversations between Premier Milan Stoyadinovitch and Istrate Micescu, visiting foreign minister of the new Bucharest cabinet.

The talks, it was revealed, covered both general European problems and specific issues concerning the two Powers. Premier Stoyadinovitch and Foreign Minister Micescu, said the communique, reached a full agreement reaffirming Rumano-Yugoslav cooperation and fidelity to the League of Nations.

Owing to the brevity of the Rumanian minister's stay, conversations were held only this afternoon. He left late tonight en route back to Bucharest.

In a statement to the press prior to his departure, Mr. Micescu declared that there has been no change whatever in Rumania's foreign policy as a result of the accession of the Goga cabinet.

"There has only been a change in persons," he said.

Unofficial Air Corps Are Banned By Chiang

By The Domei Tsushin Sha

SHANGHAI, Jan. 15—Organization of unofficial flying corps without the permission of the Central Government was strictly banned by a decree issued yesterday by General Chiang Kai-shek, it was reported today from Hankow. The decree was dispatched to all the provinces and cities under the Kuomintang regime.

It is believed here that the decree was issued in view of the harm being done to provincial peace and order by numerous unofficial flying corps, which had been formed following the announcement that the Chinese military authorities would resort to such tactics. It is understood that the unofficial flying corps already in existence will be disbanded.

Important Shake-up Likely In Spanish Leftist Government

By The Domei Tsushin Sha

PARIS, Jan. 11—An important shake-up in the loyalist government of Spain, probably involving the exclusion of Communist ministers from the cabinet, was reliably reported impending here today by circles in close touch with political developments at Barcelona.

Confidential advices received from the leftist capital, these circles revealed, indicate that Premier Juan Negrin is planning an early reorganization of the cabinet in which Mr. Jesus Hernandez and Mr. Vicente Iribe, Communist ministers of education and agriculture respectively, will be asked to resign their posts.

The anticipated shake-up is believed motivated by the desire of Premier Negrin and War Minister Indalecio Prieto to convince Britain and France that the loyalist government is inclined toward the center rather than the extreme left.

Handprint Of Guru Nanak

The spring of Baba Wali, or as the Sikhs call it, Panja Sahib, is one of the most sacred spots in the world to the followers of the spiritual gur-gadi of Shri Baba Nanak, founder-prophet of Sikhism. It is located in the small city of Hassan Abdal, India, where I saw it last year.

Sikh legend has it that their prophet Nanak was imprisoned by a Musalman saint, Baba Wali, who attempted to deprive him of water unto death. Whereupon Nanak in great anger smote the rock mountain-side with his hand and summoned forth a clear cool spring of mountain water. The handprint in the rock, from which the spring bursts forth, is supposed to be the original handprint left by the great Guru Nanak more than 400 years ago, about the time Columbus discovered the New World.

Sumo Bowl Filled Before Dawn On 'Yabuiri' Day; Minanogawa Loses Again

By LESLIE NAKASHIMA

Sunday plus "yabuiri day," the one day of the year when the "kozo san" or apprentices and maids are given a holiday by their employers, accounted for an overflowing crowd yesterday at the fourth day's matches of the 13-day sumo tournament at the Kokugikan bowl at Ryogoku. The place was a sellout before dawn with two thirds of the spectators having paid their way in the night previous. The metropolitan police saw fit to dispatch an emergency crew. Yes, there must have been near 40,000 rabid fans, filling every available sitting and standing space, jamming even the corridors and stairways to the four stories.

The matches too were honored by the presence of Their Imperial Highnesses Prince and Princess Takeda and His Imperial Highness Kitashirakawa.

Minanogawa Beaten

Grand Champion Minanogawa, huskiest of all wrestlers, suffered his second defeat in the tourney when Ayanobori showed himself the better grappler and threw him down. It was Ayanobori's second brilliant victory in two days. On Saturday, he defeated Kagamiiwa, ohseki or champion, after a torrid match.

Ayanobori was mighty cautious in the "shikiri," process of getting started against Minanogawa. But once the two stood up, he was quick to thrust his right arm through Minanogawa's defense for a firm hold on the latter's girdle. All chance for a victory against a stronger man physically, and a higher ranking wrestler at that, depended on this hold for Ayanobori. Minanogawa too had a similar hold, and depending on sheer strength, he attempted to lift Ayanobori out of the ring. But the latter put leverage into his body and checked his opponent's offensive. Both wrestlers got holds with both hands on the other's girdle to be on even footing in the middle of the ring. Here then was a situation in which the better man should turn out victorious. As each waited for the other to take the aggressive role, Ayanobori suddenly attempted a throw from left to right and down went the great body of Minanogawa.

The other three grand champions—Tamanishiki, Musashiyama and Futabayama—won their fourth straight victories in convincing style and each is a contender for the championship honors.

Of the three, Musashiyama had the toughest bout, having had to tackle the up and coming fearless Haguroyama. Both were cautious and the shikiri went to the maximum 10 minutes. Haguroyama rushed into Musashiyama and grasped the latter's girdle with two arms closely together near Musashiyama's belly. Musashiyama was at a disadvantage, holding Haguroyama from the outside of the latter's arms. But as he attempted to unloosen Haguroyama's hold, the latter started a drive with his powerful legs and forced Musashiyama to the edge of the ring. But Musashiyama, the clever wrestler that he is, resorted to a body throw, succeeded and thereby won after a torrid match.

Dewaminato, who is strong enough to have thrown Minanogawa in the present tourney, was no match for Tamanishiki. It was a pushing duel with the heavier Tamanishiki getting the better of the exchange. Dewaminato pushed to the edge of the ring, attempted a body throw in a desperate hope to win, but Tamanishiki was very much on his guard and pushed his opponent out.

Futabayama Wins

Futabayama, who went through the last two tourneys without a defeat and is out to win his fourth straight championship, was too strong even for the powerful Banjaku. No sooner had they stood up than he started pushing. Banjaku tried to stop it with his feet touching the straw marking the ring, but Futabayama stretching his arms to the full, pushed his burly opponent out without trouble to win easily.

With Futabayama looking on, Nayoriwa, the former's understudy in the Tachinami camp, scored an upset by winning impressively from Kagamiiwa. As they rushed at each other, Kagamiiwa stuck his left arm through to get his favorite hold on his opponent's girdle. But Nayoriwa took the offensive, and started pushing. Kagamiiwa momentarily checked the drive at the edge of the ring, but was unable to hold himself against the pushing of the impetuous Nayoriwa and finally gave ground.

In the most exciting match of the tourney to date, Itsutsushima registered a royal upset by defeating Tamanoumi, a "sekiwake" or third ranking wrestler from grand champion. They mixed furiously in the middle of the ring with Tamanoumi the aggressor. Intent on scoring a quick victory, he began pushing Itsutsushima. The latter was forced back but he managed to check the drive. Each slipped in his right and they were on even terms in the middle of the ring. Time was briefly called as the referee tightened their girdles. Then it was Itsutsushima who became the aggressor. This time it was Tamanoumi who stopped his drive. Once more on even terms were they in the middle of the ring as the fans cheered deliriously. Tamanoumi then forced Itsutsushima to the edge of the ring and seemed well on the way to victory when Itsutsushima suddenly whirled Tamanoumi around and it was the latter out of the ring to lose.

Asahigawa had good news to convey to his bride of a month Sunday night because he shattered the dope sheet by defeating Ryogoku, a sekiwake. They lost very little time in getting started. Each grasped the other's girdle to be on even terms. Ryogoku pushed and Asahigawa seemed on way to defeat. But at the edge of the ring, he put all the strength capable in his arms and lifted Ryogoku out of the ring.

Another For Tatekabuto

Tatekabuto, who has a big protruding belly and looks clumsy, scored his third victory by turning the tables over the spectacular Kyushuzan. They fell into a clinch and once Tatekabuto started pushing, there was no hope for Kyushuzan to save himself.

The results of the bouts after the intermission were:

Musashiyama defeated Haguroyama.
Tamanishiki defeated Dewaminato.
Futabayama defeated Banjaku.
Ayanobori defeated Minanogawa.

Hiranuma Not Going To Meeting At London

Ryozo Hiranuma, vice-president of the Japan Amateur Athletic Association, Sunday notified the Japan Amateur Track and Field Federation of his inability to head its delegation to the general meeting of the International Amateur Track and Field Federation scheduled to open at London on February 24. Pressure of business was the reason given.

Mr. Hiranuma had been requested to substitute for Dr. Tadaoki Yamamoto of Waseda University, vice-president of the Japan Amateur Track and Field Federation, who is unable to go because of his duties at the university.

Hungarians Win At Table Tennis

Miklos Szabados and Stefan Kelen, world famous table tennis experts, won all five matches in their debut Saturday night at the Hibiya Public Hall auditorium against an all-star Japanese team, but only after they had been given a battle royal. They will make their next appearance at the same hall Tuesday night.

Szabados defeated Kelen, 21-19, in an exhibition match which opened the program.

The first international tourney to be staged here since the introduction of this sport here some 40 years ago, the hall was jammed to capacity by rabid followers of the game.

Takashi Kon of Waseda University, national singles champion since 1935, led 20-19 in the third game against Szabados, needing but one point for victory, but the Hungarian star rallied and finally ran through the game, 22-20. Kon took the first game, 21-19 and Szabados, the second by 21-17.

The results follow:

Singles—Kelen defeated K. Kawamura (Rikkyo), 21-14, 21-16; Szabados defeated Kon, 18-21, 21-17, 22-20; Szabados defeated K. Miyakawa (Doshisha), 21-16, 21-14; Kelen defeated K. Inoue (Keio) 21-13, 21-12.

Doubles—Kelen and Szabados defeated T. Imai and K. Inoue (Keio), 15-21, 21-15, 21-17.

Temple Wins, 51-38 From Illinois Five

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Dec. 20—Temple dealt Illinois, co-champion of the Big Ten conference, its first defeat of the season tonight, 51 to 38, in the windup of a basketball double-header in the Arena.

In the first game La Salle beat St. Thomas, 47 to 43. During the first half the Illini managed to break through the Owl defense for close shots, but after losing a 6 to 5 margin with seven minutes gone, they trailed the rest of the route.

The game continued fairly close and at the intermission Temple was out in front, 26 to 15. After ten minutes of play in the second session this lead was increased to 40 to 20.

Waseda Wins Ice Hockey And Meiji, Speed Events

Waseda University's stick wielders won the ice hockey title in the ninth annual national ice championships Sunday at the outdoor Nakajima rink at Sapporo by defeating the Rikkyo University six in the final by three goals to one.

Ryushin Sai of Meiji University, last year's champion, defended his title successively in the men's speed skating events when he clinched second place in the day's 10,000 and 1,500 meter races. With his first place in the 500 meter race and a second place in the 5,000 meter competition, he topped all others in the series with a total of 209.422 points. Kunio Nango of Waseda was second with 212.020 points and Juntetsu Boku of Fushun third with 212.098 points.

Miss Ejima Wins

The women's speed skating title went to Miss Yaeko Ejima of Manchuria for the second straight year. She turned the trick Saturday by making a clean sweep in the scheduled events by winning the 5,000 meter race in 10 minutes 36 seconds. She scored a total of 236.217 points. Miss Kiyo Nakagawa of the Hokkaido was second with 243.267 points and Miss Yasuko Funyo of Mukden, third with 243.547 points.

Rikkyo and Waseda entered the final of the ice hockey competition by eliminating the Tomokomai Technical six, the national middle school champions, and the Oji Paper Company squad by respective scores of nine goals to four and five goals to three on Saturday. The game between the two on Sunday for the title was a battle royal all the way through. Having already defeated Rikkyo in the inter-collegiate championships, Waseda entered the tilt with high optimism, determined to turn the trick once again.

With clever body checking, the Waseda stick wielder bottled up the Rikkyo attack. At the same time, they flashed a brilliant brand of teamwork. Lack of sufficient substitutes told heavily on Rikkyo as well.

Rikkyo broke the ice in the scoring column after five minutes of play in the first period on a short by Tanaka after he had taken a pass from Sunada. Waseda evened the count in 10 minutes. Yasuda dribbled through the Rikkyo defense and attempted a long shot. The puck hit the stick of one of the defense players. Osuda of Waseda was Johnny on the spot and picked up the puck to push it into the net for a goal. Waseda forged into the lead in 14 minutes as Yasuda, Osuda and Onikura worked the rubber into Rikkyo territory, with Onikura tallying.

The other goal of the game came after 7 minutes of play in the second period. Goalie Kimura of Rikkyo checked a long shot by Tanaka but the latter followed it up and pushed the puck, which had caromed off Kimura's stick, into the goal.

Snow Falls

Snow began to fall in the third period and seriously handicapped the play of both teams.

The teams were:

Waseda: Nakagawa, Shichida, Onikura, Soda, Osuda and Suzuki, forwards; Ichikawa and Yasuda, defense; Nakazawa, goalie.

Rikkyo: Tanaka, Omura, Sunada, Goto, Koyanagi and Mayeda, forwards; Ohashi and Tani, defense; and Kimura, goalie.

Juntetsu Boku of Fushun won the men's 1,500 meter speed event in 2 minutes 32.5 seconds. Ryushin Sai of Meiji was second in 2 minutes 33.8 seconds and Juki An of Meiji third in 2 minutes 33.8 seconds.

Yushoku Cho of Meiji was victor in the men's 10,000 meter event Sunday in 18 minutes 44.9 seconds. Sai, his team-mate, was second in 18 minutes 52.3 seconds and An third in 18 minutes 52.8 seconds.

Oxford, Cambridge Split In Downhill, Slalom Events

Times, London

DAVOS, Dec. 20—Oxford won the Downhill and Cambridge the Slalom Race, which formed the combined event in the annual Inter-University Ski contest which was begun here today.

Oxford were winners of the combined event with 88.80 points, to Cambridge's 125.68 points.

R. B. Readhead, the Oxford Captain, who was first home in the Downhill, finished fourth in the Slalom, but his combined performance was the best of the day. Two other Oxford competitors, D. H. Garrow and D. L. M. Robertson, finished second and third respectively for the combined event, with R. D. Wilson (Cambridge) fourth.

The weather was sunny and the snow fast for the downhill race in the morning. Readhead, who was a reserve for Great Britain's Olympic Games team in Germany last year, ran a magnificent race to win in 14 min. 30 sec. Oxford also filled the next two places. D. H. Garrow, who covered the course without a spill, and D. L. M. Robertson, who made a steady trip, were second and third respectively.

The Cambridge team were handicapped by their poor knowledge of the course. In addition to this A. Faweus lost a ski near the finish and J. G. Appleyard also lost a ski, both losing time. Cambridge were further handicapped by having to put a weakened team into the field on account of their captain, J. W. H. Cunningham, and two other competitors being injured while practicing.

Appleyard was compensated for his bad luck in the downhill race with an unexpected victory in the Slalom, in which he returned an aggregate time of 102.8 sec. for two runs over an excellent fast and open course. Readhead, who covered the first run in 50 sec. looked like winning the "double," but he fell on his second run down and incurred a penalty. His time for the first run was the best of the event, being equalled only by Wilson on his first run.

The jumping event has been cancelled because Oxford cannot raise a team.

Today's results were:—

Downhill—R. B. Readhead (New College, Oxford), 14min. 20sec., 1; D. H. Garrow (Trinity College, Oxford), 15min. 35sec., 2; D. L. M. Robertson (University College, Oxford), 15min. 43sec., 3; A. C. R. Albery (Trinity College, Cambridge), 16min. 14sec., 4; D. I. Davies (New College, Oxford), 16min. 44 sec., 5; A. Faweus (Trinity College, Cambridge), 17min., 6; J. N. O. Curle (New College, Oxford), 17 min. 10sec., 7; the Hon. R. D. Wilson (Pembroke College, Cambridge), 17min. 10sec., 8; M. M. Moir (Sidney Sussex, Cambridge), 17min. 22sec., 9; J. G. Appleyard (Caius, Cambridge), 17min. 45sec., 10.

Slalom—Appleyard, aggregate time 102.8 sec., 1; Wilson 108.2sec., 2; Garrow, 110sec., 3; Readhead, 112.6-sec., 4; Faweus, 117sec., 5; Davies, 117.8sec., 6; Curle, 122sec., 7; Robertson, 122sec., 8; Albery, 125.6sec., 9; Muir, 126.6sec., 10.

Gabby Hartnett Leads National League Fielding

Chicago Tribune

NEW YORK, Dec. 20—Gabby Hartnett, big catcher of the Chicago Cubs led all National league backstops in the official 1937 fielding averages released today. It was Hartnett's fifth straight year at the top of the league, and also marked his twelfth consecutive season at catching 100 or more games. His work in 103 contests allowed him to break his own all-time endurance figure. The talkative Gabby was charged with only two errors while handling 503 opportunities, giving a season fielding average of .996.

Whitney Makes Comeback

Bill Jurges, one of Hartnett's teammates, paced the league's shortstops with a fielding mark of .975, one point better than the .974 with which Burgess Whitehead of the champion New York Giants led all second basemen. The remainder of the infield honors included Big Dolf Camilli, who was in front of all first basemen, and Pinky Whitney, his third base colleague who led the third basemen. Camilli was charged with only eight errors in handling 1,363 chances for a record of .994.

Whitney made the finest comeback of the year among the leaders. In addition to batting .341, Pinky, who had been considered on the way out after a mediocre performance in 1936, rallied for a .982 fielding mark, gained with only seven errors in attending to 381 chances.

Ott Averages .939

Joe Medwick, big outfielder of the Cardinals, who had monopolized practically every league batting record for the season, was also the defensive star among the fly chasers. Medwick committed only four mistakes while handling 342 chances in 156 games, concluding the season with a fielding average of .9883. He was pressed closely by Lloyd Waner of Pittsburgh, with .9876, while Terry Moore of the Cardinals had .9875.

Mel Ott of the Giants might have outdone the entire trio of Medwick, Waner, and Moore if he had not been transferred to third base after he played in the outfield 91 games, nine short of the required 100 limit.

Ott's performance at third base dropped to a meager .939, one of the lowest fielding marks in the league, after he had fielded 1.000 while working in the outfield.

Twenty of the National league's pitchers were credited with 1,000 per cent fielding feats, with Van Lingle Mungo of Brooklyn and Boston's veteran Guy Bush taking care of 53 chances each without error.

Jim (Rip) Collins, first baseman of the Cubs, established a record for a leisurely afternoon on June 29, when he played through a regulation nine inning game with no fielding chance at his position, lowering the former record of one. Catcher Al Todd of the Phillies set up another league mark by permitting no passed balls in 128 games. Mickey Owen, young Cardinal catcher, was the third National league backstop in history to score an unassisted double play.

Largest Sundial

One of the most interesting things I saw during my sojourn in the Philippines, was the huge sundial in the center of the University of Manila campus, 65 feet wide and 40 feet high. It is a very accurate timepiece, with every minute of the day from 6 a.m. to 6 p.m. clearly marked. The dial is made of heavy timbers and latticed framework, attractively covered with blossoming vines.

The Sun

The mean, or average, distance of the sun from the earth is 92,900,000 miles. In the summer time it is 94,452,000 miles away, and in the winter it is 91,342,000 miles. The reason our climate is colder when the sun is actually nearer is due to the revolution of the earth on its orbit around the sun. The sun strikes the earth at an angle and also for a shorter time each day than during the summer time.

3 Of 4 Yokozuna Beaten In Day Of Major Upsets; Futabayama Wins Again

By LESLIE NAKASHIMA

Three "yokozuna" or grand champions were humbled Monday afternoon in the fifth day's bouts of the 13-day sumo tournament at the Kokugikan bowl at Ryogoku, and the capacity crowd of more than 25,000 rabid fans nearly went crazy. They were Minanogawa, Musashiyama and Tamanishiki. Only one yokozuna now remains undefeated—Futabayama, who went through the last tournaments last year without a defeat and now has the best chance to win the championship, which will be his fourth consecutive one if he turns the trick. And the indications now are stronger than ever of such eventuality, inasmuch as he and Tsurugamine, a newcomer, are the only two among the "makunouchi" or first ranking wrestlers with unblemished records.

The setbacks of Musashiyama and Tamanishiki, their first for the current season, were unexpected as they had won their four matches up to Monday in convincing style, far different from Minanogawa who had already been thrown twice. Their defeats Monday were all the more surprising because they were strong favorites to win.

Oshio Springs Surprise

Musashiyama was matched with Oshio, who without doubt has passed his heyday in the sport, but at that is always a dangerous opponent for the reason that he knows all the tricks of the game and has a fine physique. His is a belly almost as large as Tamanishiki's. Musashiyama's defeat can be attributed to over-confidence on his part. As a matter of fact, some of the fans were shouting to Musashiyama to lose because Oshio had fet to break into the winning column. At any rate, no sooner had the two stood up than they attacked each other with their two hands. Oshio charged and Musashiyama met him squarely in the center of the ring. Musashiyama shoved him back and as Oshio charged again, Musashiyama attempted to twist him down onto the sand. But the burly Oshio, despite his weight, managed to hold his ground and took immediate advantage of Musashiyama's slight loss of balance. He began pushing and within a fraction of a second had Musashiyama on the edge of the ring. The latter momentarily checked the drive but Oshio shoved once again with everything he had and out went Musashiyama for his first defeat, as the fans howled.

Tamanishiki's defeat was even more unexpected. His opponent for the day was the up and coming Kyushuzan. None of the experts had conceded him any chance of beating the great Tamanishiki. The chief interest was how much trouble he would give Tamanishiki for he is one of the most capable wrestlers in the sport today. Two days previously, he had given Futabayama considerable trouble. A well-laid out strategy won for Kyushuzan. Tamanishiki, despite his impressive avoirdupois, is one of the quickest starters in the sport. Most often, he charges into his opponent with such lightning speed that the latter never has a chance. He is pushed out before he knows what it is all about. Well, Kyushuzan had apparently thought it out in his head that if he effected a quick sidestep and dodged, he might succeed in letting Tamanishiki go by and at that instant, push him from the back, and accordingly score victory. He did exactly that. They stood up at Tamanishiki's cry. The latter charged low with his head bent. In a flash, Kyushuzan stepped to the right and Tamanishiki found no opponent meeting his charge. Before he could break himself, Kyushuzan shoved him from the back and the large body of Tamanishiki fell onto the sand, and it was Kyushuzan's victory.

Minanogawa Beaten Again

Minanogawa suffered his third defeat in five days of wrestling when he was thrown by Ryogoku in a match that proved the last named as the better man of the two. Each obtained a hold on the other's girdle but Ryogoku more advantageously from a lower position. Minanogawa attempted to lift Ryogoku with the view to carrying him out of the ring. Ryogoku not only checked it but maneuvered himself close to Minanogawa's body and depending on his strong arms, resorted to a body throw and down went Minanogawa to his own amazement.

Futabayama took the measure of Tamanoumi so easily that the thought—just how strong is Futabayama—flashed through the minds of the crowd. Their "shikiri" or process of getting started required the maximum time of 10 minutes. It was a push, push affair as they stood up. Then they fell into a clinch when Futabayama started a drive. Forced to the edge of the ring, Tamanoumi tried desperately to lift Futabayama but the latter turned aggressor and shoved Tamanoumi out for victory.

Another upset was the victory of Mayedayama over Kagamiiwa, an "ohseki" or rank below yokozuna. Kagamiiwa succeeded in getting a grip on Mayedayama's girdle with his left hand but Mayedayama too had obtained a similar hold. Kagamiiwa probably saw an opening, he started a drive, forced Mayedayama near the edge of the ring and attempted a body throw. Mayedayama made a spectacular check and using his height to good advantage, hooked his right leg on to Kagamiiwa's left, and exerting leverage, threw Kagamiiwa down to knock the dopesheet to smithereens.

Tomoegata Wins

Tomoegata, whose nickname is "dynamite" because though small he charges like a bullet and he depends entirely on pushing to win, scored a major upset by shoving Ayanobori, who on the previous day had thrown Minanogawa, out of the ring. It was his first victory in five starts.

Another upset was the setback of the veteran, Hatasegawa, considered the smartest wrestler of them all, at the hands of Tsurugamine. This bout drew especial interest because both had yet to taste defeat for the season. Tsurugamine, who is competing for the first time in the makunouchi division, pushed and pushed and outpushed Hatasegawa to win.

The results after the intermission were:

Kyushuzan defeated Tamanishiki.
Futabayama defeated Tamanoumi.
Ryogoku defeated Minanogawa.
Oshio defeated Musashiyama.
Mayedayama defeated Kagamiiwa.
Taikyuzan defeated Banjaku.

Waseda Five Downed By Visayan Institute In Final Manila Tilt

Waseda University's basketball team lost its fourth straight game Sunday night at Manila, downed by the Visayan Institute five, last year's Philippine champions, by a 32-26 score in the Rizal Stadium.

The Filipino cagers came from behind with a spirited rally in the second half to win.

The Waseda players, who made a spectacular start by winning their first five games, were scheduled to leave Manila aboard the Kamo Maru on Monday.

Hungarian Table Tennis Stars In Final Appearance

The two visiting Hungarian table tennis experts, Miklos Szabados and Stefan Kelen, will make their final appearance in Tokyo tonight, beginning at 5:30, at the Hibiya Public Hall auditorium. The matches are sponsored by the Japan Table Tennis Association and the Asahi Shimbun.

The Hungarians, who won all five matches in their debut last Saturday night, are favored to win but they are expected to meet keen competition from the Japanese players, who have been studying their lines of attack for tonight's matches.

Jugo Watanabe of Kwansei Gakuin, national singles champion, will meet the two Hungarian players as will Takashi Kon of Waseda, who forced Szabados to an extra point last Saturday in the third game.

Horikawa and Kawamura, national doubles champion, will take on the Hungarians in the doubles and expect to win. Their match went to three hard fought sets last Saturday night.

N.Y. Times

NEW YORK, Dec. 16—The outstanding athletic team of 1937, the experts have ruled, was the New York Yankees, champions of the baseball world.

1940 Olympics Now Sure To Be Held On Small Scale

The 12th Olympic Games in 1940 will be held on a small scale.

This has become certain with the decision reached by the shrine bureau of the Home Ministry to abandon the program for the renovation of the Outer Gardens of the Meiji Shrine at an estimated cost of ¥4,880,000 into the center of the facilities for the 12th Olympic Games. A principle item was the reconstruction of the present track and field stadium near the swimming pool into the main Olympic stadium with a seating capacity of 75,000 persons.

The decision of the shrine bureau, which last summer announced its intention to take complete charge of the renovation work after a controversy between the Home Ministry and the Olympic Organizing Committee, is attributed to the statement issued by the Government on Sunday, which virtually withdrew its recognition of the Chiang Kai-shek Government. Interpreted as a definite turn to preparations for war with China on a long-term basis, the shrine bureau decided to approve a suggestion made sometime ago by the O. O. C. that only a part of the Outer Grounds facilities be renovated with the view to holding the games in 1940 on a small scale.

This suggestion was made by the O. O. C. because of the uncertainty of the development of the Sino-Japanese situation. Consequently, the shrine bureau suspended work on the preparations that had been started last summer. Now it is believed that even if the ¥4,880,000 program for renovation were to be carried through, actual work could not be started for completion in time for the games because of the time required for preparation of the final specifications, purchase of land and removal of the present buildings on the spot.

Takashi Go, chairman of the athletic committee of the O. O. C., said Monday he was not surprised at the decision of the shrine bureau inasmuch as there had been some doubt from the start about the realization of the large program. Preparation of the facilities on a small scale would make possible the accommodation of 70,000 to 80,000 spectators in the main stadium, he said.

Under the aforesaid small scale plans, the present track and field stadium would be left as it is, with the addition of a second story and construction of annexes on each end. The grass slope on the opposite side would be excavated so that the running track could be switched to the eastern end of the field and the jumping pits laid out outside of the track. Temporary bleachers would be constructed on the grassy slope so that in toto, a crowd of 75,000 persons could be accommodated.

Under such a plan, the cost would be lowered to half of the original program, it is said, and construction could be completed in 18 months.

After completion of the plan, the O. O. C. expects to present it to the Home Ministry for formal approval.

Best Comeback Made By Gomez In 1937 Season

N.Y. Times

NEW YORK, Dec. 19—The country's sports writers put their stamp of approval yesterday on Vernon Gomez as the hero of 1937's most amazing athletic comeback.

Casting their ballots in the seventh annual Associated Press poll, the writers gave the Yankees' star southpaw pitcher a decisive edge over Ralph Guldahl, United States open golf champion, and Joe Louis, king of the world's heavyweight boxers.

In Slump Two Years

Nineteen of the fifty-three participating writers cast their first-place ballots for Gomez, who, after two lean years, came back to lead the American League in effectiveness and pitch the Yankees to two world series victories over the Giants.

All told, Gomez had 69 points in the balloting against 40 for Guldahl, who received nine first-place votes. Louis was third with 34 points and Johnny Goodman fourth with 26.

Although the writers mentioned no fewer than forty-two individuals, only four of these were women.

Dancing Quality Urged By Expert In Figure Skating

By TOURNEBROCHE
Observer

Although Daphne Walker, Cecilia Colledge and others showed up extremely well during the evening at the Empire Pool, Wembley, in the free skating section of the championship struggle, I found "that dancing quality," so prominently associated with some of our greatest sportsmen, distinctly lacking among most of the competitors in the compulsory figures at the morning and afternoon sessions. It is the compulsory figures that I regard as the real test of a skater.

Why is it that most of the competitors appeared to skate these compulsory figures as if they were not interested in them? Surely the skating of a delightful though difficult figure like the "Rocker-Turn—Change—Rocker-Turn" is as glorious as any toe-spinning for two minutes on end—in my view much more glorious.

Many of the competitors of both sexes were so weak with their "change" movement in the eight-form figures that the impetus obtained at the start faded out into mere trickles at the center. (N.B.—The change is a movement in which one changes from an outside to an inside edge on the same foot, or vice-versa, by means of body-swing or by a thrust of the unemployed leg.) Cecilia Colledge, for a champion, has a feeble change, but among the lesser lights the change was often so weak that in the final curves many of them wobbled on their edges as their impetus petered out. Without indulging in the exaggerated "twists" of a Bror Meyer, the famous teacher at St. Moritz, it is possible to gain additional impetus—and gain it quite gracefully though forcefully—by a proper skating of the change.

In the first season in 1929, at the Richmond Ice Rink, an elegant skater (a Miss "P.") watching me execute on one foot a Bracket—Change—Bracket, asked me how exactly I obtained the extra impetus at the change. I showed her, and eventually, I believe, she developed into a top-notch skater.

In the "Compulsory" section Cecilia Colledge and Graham Sharp superimposed their figures splendidly—each figure has to be skated three times. They did their work efficiently as one would expect, but with not much joie-de-vivre, as compared with little Belita Japson-Turner at the International Skating Championships last February, at Earls Court. Megan Taylor was often astray in her arm-work. In general, the ladies were well above the average standard of the men; in Austria or Sweden half of them would not have been in the competition.

Graham Sharpe, as against his competitors, well deserved his position at No. 1. But I derived no pleasure from watching him, owing to his mannerisms of carriage (deportment); and my companion, also a figure skater, agreed with me. Graham Sharpe shares with the other reigning champion, Cecilia Colledge, the doubtful "honor" of committing a serious solecism. In their skating of those lovely but difficult figures: "The Rocker" and "The Counter-Rocker," both lift their shoulders at the turn, thus interrupting what should be a smooth, rhythmic flow. No great skaters that I have watched, either abroad or here, committed this fault. It was never indulged in by Ethel Muckelt (a former champion), nor by Sonja Henie when I last saw her.

In both sessions there was only one skater who displayed—at least in one figure—that elan or "dancing quality" which all skating enthusiasts should try to achieve. This was G. S. Yates. In his skating of the "Double-Three—Change—Double-Three" he superimposed well, his change was strong; his pace in consequence never petered out, and his elan was excellent. So much was this the case that before the five judges started awarding their marks I stood up and applauded him vigorously, to the bewilderment of the whole rink. The five judges marked him very well, the average being 5.2 (six marks is the maximum award, rarely achieved). With slightly more attention to leg-control Yates should go far. As he was almost the only competitor that dared to smile when he was practising in the intervals, I hope that in future competitions he will help to spread this awful disease of "smiling" and thus prevent the dreadful "frozen-face" of the Wimbledon Lawn Tennis tournament.

Futabayama Only Unbeaten Contestant In Sumo; Musashiyama Loses Again

By LESLIE NAKASHIMA

Grand Champion Futabayama proved too strong for the up and coming Mayedayama in Wednesday's feature bout of the seventh day matches of the 13-day "spring" sumo tournament at the Kokugikan bowl at Ryogoku, and remains the only wrestler within the "makunouchi" or first ranking circle still undefeated.

Tsurugamine, a newcomer in the makunouchi division who had been keeping pace with Futabayama with a clean slate, tasted defeat for the first time Wednesday at the hands of the strong Akinoumi, who hails from Ujina, Hiroshima prefecture, and is also making his first appearance in the makunouchi class. No sooner had they stood up than Akinoumi started a furious pushing attack and out went Tsurugamine from the ring.

Princes Attend

The bowl was a sellout again, the sale of tickets being stopped at 9 a.m. Among the spectators were Their Imperial Highnesses Prince Higashikuni, chief of the headquarters of the military air force, and Prince Kunihisa Kaya. So enthusiastic was Prince Higashikuni that he left the Imperial box and sat at the ringside, with Kasugano, a former champion and now one of the directors of the Sumo Association, explaining the art and the characteristics of the contestants.

In the section for dignitaries were Miklos Szabados and Stefan Kelen, the world famous table tennis experts from Hungary, who played an all-Japan students team last Saturday and an All-Japan combination Tuesday night at the Hibiya Public Hall auditorium.

The more than 25,000 fans present were congratulating themselves that they were witnessing the most interesting bouts since the beginning of the tourney a week ago Thursday.

Nayoroiwa, under-study of Futabayama of the Tachinami camp, pulled off the greatest prize of the day by defeating Grand Champion Musashiyama, who had been making a stellar comeback after a long rest until his setback at the hands of the veteran Oshio two days previously. They required the full time for the "shikiri" process of getting started, and no sooner had they stood up than Nayoroiwa thrust his left arm through for a firm grip from underneath on Musashiyama's girdle. Musashiyama tried desperately to get his left arm through Nayoroiwa's defense for a hold on the latter's girdle. But Nayoroiwa stretched his body horizontally to the full and cleverly prevented his opponent from getting a grip on his girdle. Suddenly catching the preoccupied Musashiyama off his guard, Nayoroiwa, who is noted for his herculean strength in his arms, lifted Musahiyama clean into the air and carried him out of the ring for an impressive victory. What could the chagrined Musashiyama do but to effect a wry smile? Certainly, it was no fitting way for a grand champion, who is supposed to be as strong as the Rock of Gibraltar, to lose.

Futabayama Wins

Mayedayama, who is performing as a "komusubi" or rank third below grand champion and is one of the quickest to have attained that promotion, was expected to give Futabayama a keen fight. But he probably was in too much of a tension from the cheers ringing through the bowl for him to stop Futabayama's winning streak for three seasons and now extending into a fourth. He usually charges furiously with both hands at his opponent's face and either pushes him out or gets a favorable hold to win. But he lacked his usual fire against Futabayama. After eleven false starts, they stood up and Mayedayama attacked with both hands. But Futabayama was quite ready for him. With his right foot thrust forward and his left acting as an anchor, he easily stopped Mayedayama's rush and grasped Mayedayama's girdle. Now desperate because he well knew he had no chance against Futabayama on an even basis, Mayedayama hooked his left leg on Futabayama's right and attempted to swing him down onto the sand. Futabayama not only checked it but turned aggressor, himself resorting to a body throw and down went Mayedayama.

Grand Champion Tamanishiki sent the fans into a frenzy when he attacked furiously with both hands at Oshio's face and never gave the latter any chance. It was a bang bang affair between the two but Tamanishiki, the younger and faster despite his great protruding belly, shoved Oshio out of the ring.

Kyushuzan Beaten

Already with three defeats not befitting a grand champion, Minanogawa faced the elusive and clever Kyushuzan who had already been responsible for Tamanishiki's lone defeat thus far in the day's last bout. Kyushuzan resorted to a pushing attack but the giant Minanogawa stood his ground well, and they fell into a clinch. Here was a situation in which the smaller Kyushuzan had little chance. But the courageous and aggressive wrestler that he is, he attempted a body throw. Minanogawa checked it with ease. Kyushuzan then staretd pushing, forced his much heavier opponent to the edge of the ring and when it seemed as if he might win with a clever throw, Minanogawa threw him down with a push of his powerful arms.

A near riot among the excited fans was caused by a boner pulled by the referee in the bout between Banjaku, he with the protruding belly, and Ayanobori. They fell into a clinch, each grasping the other's girdle with both hands. Ayanobori was at a disadvantage in the respect that he had his left arm underneath through Banjaku's defense instead of his favorite right. Using his stomach as a lever, Banjaku attempted to lift Ayanobori with the view to carrying him out of the ring. He almost succeeded, raising Ayanobori to the tip of his toes. The latter checked the bid for victory on Banjaku's part and resorted to a trick throw with his right foot. They clinched in the middle of the ring for several seconds, each waiting for the other to take the aggressive role. Once again, Banjaku attempted to lift Ayanobori out. Once again, Ayanobori checked it and essayed his leg throw. After another momentary rest in the middle of the ring, Ayanobori started pushing and forced Banjaku to the edge of the ring. Now it was Banjaku on the defense, and he swung Ayanobori around to save himself from being pushed out. They maneuvered themselves to the middle of the ring. At this junction, the referee separated the two, declaring that in the skirmish near the edge of the ring, one of Ayanobori's feet had stepped out and therefore he had lost.

Referee Pulls Boner

There was an immediate protest. The five judges conferred amidst the howling of the fans. The referee tried to find a footprint outside of the ring, but in vain. The two wrestlers were made to take the same hold at the time of their separation, and the bout was resumed. Once again, Banjaku attempted to lift Ayanobori into the air and he almost succeeded. Ayanobori suddenly lifted the heavier Banjaku into the air and elected a body throw, but wearied from the long fight, he fell instead, crushed by Banjaku's avoirdupois.

Kagamiiwa, whose rank is immediately below that of a grand champion, defeated Taikyuzan after a torrid match. The latter pushed and pushed and was within the verge of victory when Kagamiiwa threw him over his shoulders.

Tamanoumi and Ryogoku were evenly matched. The latter tried to get a hold on his opponent's body but the latter tossed him off. Then it was a free for all affair. Tamanoumi had the better of the exchange in the furious pushing that followed. Gradually forcing Ryogoku to the edge of the ring, he stuck his left hand at Ryogoku's throat and shoved him out.

The results of the bouts after the intermission follow:

Minanogawa defeated Kyushuzan.
Nayoroiwa defeated Musashiyama.
Futabayama defeated Mayedayama.

Greenberg Excels In Runs Batted In

By JOHN DREBINGER

N.Y. Times

NEW YORK, Dec. 16—Hank Greenberg, hard clouting first baseman and long-range siege gun of the Detroit Tigers, topped the hitters in the American League for runs batted in with a near-record total of 183, according to the official figures released for publication yesterday.

Greenberg's total missed by a single run the mark of 184 which Lou Gehrig of the Yankees established in 1931.

Following in the wake of the slugging Detroiter come the Big Three of the world champion Yankees with Joe DiMaggio placing second with 167, Gehrig next with 159 and Bill Dickey fourth with 133. Hal Trosky of the Indians, who drove in the most runs in 1936, follows Dickey in fifth place with 128.

Surpasses Ruth's Mark

Gehrig's total gives Columbia Lou a record of having driven in 150 or more runs for seven seasons, a feat surpassing Babe Ruth's mark of six. It was also the twelfth season in which Gehrig has driven in 100 or more tallies to break his tie at eleven with Al Simmons and Goose Goslin.

Team honors again went to the powerful Yankee clouters, although the world champions fell off slightly from their record mark of 995 which they set in 1936. Last season the Yanks led in runs batted in with 922. The Tigers placed second with 873 and the Red Sox third with 769.

Only fifteen players went over the 100 mark in runs batted in during the 1937 campaign, a drop of three from the record mark of eighteen set in 1936.

To Gehrig also went the distinction of receiving the most bases on balls, Lou drawing 127 passes to give him a lifetime total of 1,398 walks. It marked the tenth time that the Yanks' durable first sacker had drawn at least 100 free tickets to first.

Crosetti Fans 105 Times

After holding the dubious honor of leading his circuit in strikeouts for six straight years, Jimmy Foxx of the Red Sox vacated that title in 1937 to place third with 96. Frankie Crosetti, lead-off man of the Yanks, was the leading victim on strikes during the year, fanning 105 times. Greenberg suffered the next highest strikeout total with 101.

Crosetti also seemed to provide the best target for opposing pitchers to shoot at, the Yankee shortstop getting hit on fewer than twelve times to lead the league in this respect by a wide margin.

A new modern American League record for runs batted in during a single inning was set by Bob Johnson of the Athletics in the first game of a double-header against the White Sox on Aug. 29 when he singled to drive in two runs on his first time up in the first inning and later hit a homer with the bases full in the same round, a total of six.

In the same game and the same inning Lou Finney, also of the Athletics, tied the record for walks in a single inning by drawing two passes for his two times up.

Prince Higashikuni Sees Sumo

An enthusiastic ringside spectator at the sumo Wednesday was His Imperial Highness Prince Higashikuni chief of the headquarters of military air force, (in middle with civilian suit). Bottom: Nayoroiwa registering a major upset by carrying Musashiyama, a grand champion, out of the ring for victory.

Purdue Five Tops Loyola, 55 To 41 As 3,300 Look On

Chicago Tribune

CHICAGO, Dec. 21—Thirty three hundred basketball fans marched into Alumni gymnasium at Loyola university last night to find out just what kind of a team this Purdue outfit, which had won its four previous starts, is. They found out. Passing with the precision of machine guns and shooting with the same accuracy, the Boilermakers turned back a powerful Loyola quintet, 55 to 41.

The defeat was especially painful to Loyola, which had a record of 15 straight triumphs on its home court before the Boilermakers started firing.

Purdue Gets Fast Start

Purdue expended all the effort necessary to win the battle in the first half, which ended with the score 29 to 15. After that it was content to match basket for basket with the Ramblers, stalling when opportunity offered and, when the desperate Loyola men charged in to break up this waiting game, the Boilermakers went beneath the hoop to make their total still larger.

Jewell Young, who established a Big Ten scoring record last season with 172 points, was the high man of the evening with nineteen points. Kautz, who was forced out on fouls with only three seconds of play remaining, was the Ramblers' ace with five baskets and four free throws.

Purdue's superiority on offense in the first half became evident before three minutes had passed. Brennan's free throw on a foul by Young sent the Ramblers off on the right foot, but the inevitable Young made up for his fault with a short basket. Kautz counted a basket and Lynch a free throw before the Boilermakers could hit their stride.

Purdue Turns on Power

Dickinson connected twice before Novak arched a high one in for Loyola, but Young came back with a hook from near the side line. Kautz matched this one for the Ramblers, and then the Purdue juggernaut started to roll in earnest.

With the score standing at 10 to 9 in Purdue's favor, the Boilermakers proceeded to count fifteen straight points before Loyola, whose passing disintegrated completely at this point, was able to aid its total with a free throw by Kautz.

Brennan followed this with a basket from close in and Anderson dropped in one for Purdue. Hogan and Lynch came to the rescue then with a basket apiece for Loyola, but Malaska dribbled in just as the half ended to make the score 29 to 15 at the intermission.

The Ramblers, apparently refreshed by their rest, came back with a rush as the second half opened to count five points while holding the visitors to two in the first minute and a half of play.

Loyola Rally Checked

This left the Ramblers still eleven points behind, a deficit they cut to 35 to 42 after twelve minutes of the half had elapsed, when O'Brien dribbled past the capable Purdue defense for a pair of quick baskets. That proved to be the high water mark of the Loyola rally. Anderson arched in a pair and Young contributed two hook specialties. These more than matched two short ones by Wibs Kautz and a free throw by the gigantic Mike Novak. To make the margin still more convincing, little Pat Malaska scored from outside the foul line as the battle ended.

Miss Inada Expected To Win Figure Skating Without Much Trouble

Miss Etsuko Inada of Osaka, who despite her youth placed tenth in the women's ice figure skating championships at the Fourth Winter Olympic Games at Garmisch-Partenkirchen in 1936, is expected to be an easy winner in the 9th national figure skating championships to be held Saturday and Sunday at the Sanno and Shibaura rinks. Chief interest in her performance is to what extent she has improved.

The men's competition is expected to be a battle royal between Hasegawa of Keio and Katayama of Kwansei Gakuin. The former recently won the national students' title through a better performance of the compulsory figures. Katayama will be out to defend his national title.

Redskins Hail Baugh Leading Pro Freshman

CHICAGO, Dec. 13—Professional football doffed its helmet today to "Slinging Sammy" Baugh.

Older and long-established stars of the gridiron's toughest class—the National Professional League—paid tribute to the youth whose passing performance yesterday stamped him the greatest aerial marksman in the game.

Earl (Dutch) Clark, Detroit Lions' brilliant playing coach, and Ray Flaherty, Washington coach, agreed that Baugh's passing in Washington's 28-to-21 victory over the Chicago Bears for the championship "was the greatest one-man show ever put on by professional football."

There's a story behind the sensational rise of the Texas youth as the most brilliant freshman ever to crack the pro league ranks. It's the story of a boy who'd much rather run with the ball than hurl a touchdown pass, but who, once he knew he could throw a football, was determined to throw it better than anyone else.

All one summer before his sophomore year at Texas Christian, Baugh practiced throwing footballs at an old tire he hung from a tree in the backyard of his Sweetwater, Texas, home.

Yesterday, some 15,000 fans saw the result of those long hours of drilling as Baugh pitched three spectacular touchdown passes which ran the league pennant up the Redskin flagpole.

Washington scored first on a smash by Cliff Battles, with Baugh's short passes setting the stage. The Bears tied the count on Manders' 10-yard smash and went ahead late in the first period on a touchdown pass from Bernie Masterson to Manders. Then, after a comparatively dull second period in which Manders twice missed long field goal tries, Baugh went to work.

He passed 20 yards to Wayne Millner, who ran 35 yards to score. The Bears came beck to go ahead on a short touchdown pass from Masterson to Manske, but Baugh enabled the Redskins to tie the score when he passed 28 yards to Millner, who ran 50 yards to score. The winning touchdown came late in the third stanza, Baugh hurling a 20-yard aerial to Ed Justice, who scampered 15 yards over the Bear goal line.

Baugh hurled 34 passes, making good on half of them for a total gain of 352 yards. In addition, he ran well when called on and played a big part in ruining a last-period aerial attack by the Bears, twice batting down passes near his goal posts.

Washington's victory climaxed a great late-season drive to the eastern division title, won with eight victories and three defeats in the regular schedule. The Bears won the western title with nine victories, one defeat and one tie.

Futabayama Wins 50 Bouts In Row For Sumo Record; Musashiyama Loses Again

By winning impressively from the dangerous Taikyuzan, Grand Champion Futabayama not only registered his eighth straight victory in as many bouts Thursday afternoon in the sumo tournament at the Kokugikan bowl at Ryogoku but set the amazing record of 50 straight wins in the championship matches, which includes three undefeated seasons. Now he is well on the way to his fourth championship and it will be no surprise if he hangs up another clean sweep, although he was to take on Ryogoku, a powerful wrestler, this afternoon, and Kagamiiwa, an "ohseki" or rank immediately below "yokozuna" or grand champion, Minanogawa, Musashiyama and Tamanishiki, three yokozuna, in the remaining four days of the tourney.

Musashiyama Beaten

Tamanoumi, ace pupil of Tamanishiki, scored a grand upset by out-pushing Musashiyama from the ring to account for the latter's defeat. Now Minagowawa has someone to share the criticism from the fans against a yokozuna losing "so often".

Minanogawa surprised the rabid fans by pulling off a clever throw to win when he was on the verge of being pushed out by Kagamiiwa. As a matter of fact, he was unaware of the fact that one of Kagamiiwa's knees had touched the sand to lose and he proceeded to carry his opponent out of the ring to the great amusement of the spectators.

Kagamiiwa did everything he could during the "shikiri" or process of getting started to get Minanogawa disgusted with the view to putting him in no mood to wrestle. This is what he did. He took "ages" in drinking his water. Then he blew his nose, wiped his face, limbered his leg muscles, and snapped his fingers. Minanogawa, at the opposite corner, gave him a glare. This stimulated Kagamiiwa to take more time. Unable to stand it any longer, Minanogawa mounted the ring without waiting for Kagamiiwa. But once they got started, it developed into a great match. Kagamiiwa thrust his left arm through Minanogawa's defense for his favorite hold but the physically stronger Minanogawa started pushing him back. And as Kagamiiwa attempted to check this dangerous drive, Minanogawa did the unexpected by pulling with his powerful arms instead of pushing and down went Kagamiiwa's left knee onto the sand. Here he was already defeated but Minanogawa, unconscious of it, proceeded to lift Kagamiiwa into the air and leisurely carried him out of the ring while the fans howled.

Futabayama Wins Easily

Taikyuzan charged furiously with both hands at Futabayama's face but the latter broke through and they grasped each other. Taikyuzan, ever the aggressor, grabbed Futabayama's neck with his left arm and attempted to lift Futabayama out but the latter resorted to a body throw to check Taikyuzan's attack. Then he essayed a body throw with his right and as Taikyuzan faltered, Futabayama threw him outside of the ring.

Tamanishiki was wary against Ryogoku, who had thrown him over his shoulders at the edge of the ring in the tournament last May, and won without much trouble. Each had a grip on the other's girdle to be on even terms, and under such circumstances, Ryogoku had very little chance to win. Tamanishiki crushed him at the edge of the ring for victory.

The most spirited match of the day was the bout between Kyushuzan and Mayedayama, both of "komusubi" or fourth rank from yokozuna. It was a battle royal between these two evenly matched wrestlers Mayedayama finally won by lifting Kyushuzan out of the ring after a series of offensives on the part of each.

Nayoroiwa, understudy of Futabayama, proved too strong for Tsurugamine, a newcomer within the "makunouchi" or first ranking circle but had been making a spectacular showing with but one defeat in seven days.

Kasagiyama Loses

Kasagiyama, who formerly attended Waseda University and is known as the "intellectual" wrestler, lost to the lanky Onami, whom he should have beaten without much trouble.

The results of the bout after the intermission follow:

Tamanoumi defeated Musashiyama.

Minanogawa defeated Kagamiiwa.
Mayedayama defeated Kyushuzan.

U.S. Athletic Body Clamping Down On Hockey Sextets

NEW YORK, Dec. 15—The Amateur Athletic Union today warned hockey teams and players subject to its jurisdiction against jeopardizing their amateur standing by playing against the five clubs of the so-called Eastern Amateur League and three Michigan clubs.

In a letter addressed to the officers, chairmen of registration committees and hockey committees, Samuel E. Hoyt, A. A. U. president, and Frederick W. Rubien, chairman of the A. A. U. hockey committee pointed out that these eight teams had been suspended last year and that any amateur teams, club or college, playing them would disqualify themselves.

The eight teams listed were the New York Rovers, Atlantic City Sea Gulls, Hershey Bears, Baltimore Orioles and Bronx Tigers of the Eastern Amateur League and the Holzbaugh, Pontiac and Muskegon teams of Michigan. Any other teams not registered with the A. A. U. or which have affiliated themselves with the suspended teams also are included in the ban, which is recognized by the Ligue Internationale de Hockey Sur Glace, the international governing body.

"Last year the Amateur Athletic Union declared these teams ineligible for amateur hockey in the United States," the letter explained, "however, since they are good gate attractions for the rink owners, it was decided to take away the control of ice hockey from the Amateur Athletic Union and force all teams desiring to play in their rinks to become affiliated with their outlaw group a few of the teams joined as their only interest is having an opportunity to play their favorite game. These teams have also disqualified themselves."

It also was pointed out that permits must be obtained from the A.A.U. and the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association when teams from the United States and Canada meet and that the international association has cautioned the Canadians against playing "outlaw" United States teams.

The A.A.U. has tentatively accepted an invitation to send a team to the world's championships at Prague in February and plans to send either the winner of the A.A.U. championship or an all-star team.

Vanderbilt Coach Conference's Best

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Dec. 15—Jesse Ray Morrison, who makes a living fooling the opposition, was selected today as the "best coach" in the southeastern conference for 1937. Conference coaches and Dixie sports writers decided he turned in the finest job of tutoring at Vanderbilt. They voted in a poll conducted by the Nashville Banner.

Morrison, a teacher of deception and the spectacular on the gridiron, earned the honor by taking a lightly-regarded group of commodores through a hard schedule with only two defeats. Georgia Tech battered Vanderbilt, 14 to 0, and Alabama turned Morrison's squad back with a fourth quarter field goal, 9-7.

The veteran coach received eight out of a possible 20 first place votes, Jack Meagher and Frank Thomas of Auburn and Alabama vying with him for the top honor.

Thomas was given five votes for first place, Meagher two, but the latter also received several ballots for second place. Josh Cody of Florida, whose Gators made a good comeback; Bill Alexander of Tech and Bernie Moore of L. S. U., were the only others given consideration by the voters.

Meagher won the first "best coaching job" award in 1935 and Bob Neyland of Tennessee took the prize last season.

The Ritual Of A Grand Champ's Entrance

These four pictures show part of the centuries-old ceremony with which a "yokozuna" or grand champion in sumo makes his formal entrance into the ring, escorted by two attendants, one of whom carries a sword. The central figure is Handsome Yokozuna, who remains the only undefeated wrestler after eight days of the 13-day tournament now going on at the Kokugikan bowl at Ryogoku.

Editor's Note: The above selection of all-star teams for the recent Tokyo Inter-collegiate American Football League was received from Akinori Tatekawa, a student attending Rikkyo University. His letter follows:

Here is my all-star football line-ups for both first and second teams. An all-star team has already been published in The Japan Advertiser which I think is not properly chosen for each position. There are many ways in picking an all-star team of any kind. I pick my all-star team according to how many quarters he played in the season and whether he played his position well instead of playing little of that position and this position. I know there will be some dissatisfaction in my all-star team, however, I am sure my all-star will come much closer than the Advertiser all-star team in pleasing the public.

All these players have played full two quarters of every game during the season and have shown that they deserve to be chosen on the all-star team.

R. E. Murayama:—Rookie football player who made splendid showing in tackling and catching passes.

R. T. Shimamura:—A player who could talk and play just as much. Sometimes called "Tarzan" of Nisei. Always getting through the line to smash plays.

R. G. Kurokawa:—Veteran football player who would rather play football than anything else. Who made great improvement compared with his first year. A man who takes football seriously.

C. Fukuda:—A newcomer for Waseda but a real veteran as a football player. Even went as far as making a touchdown.

L. G. Uyeno:—A quiet football player who plays harder than he looks and always gets in the play.

L. T. Nishioka:—Broke through every defense in every game.

L. E. Machida:—A player that plays hard and fulfills every duty of an end. Fast and good on catching passes.

Q. Yasuda:—A good football player. Says nothing and plays very hard. A good tackler, runner and a pass catcher. For quarter back position he was well chosen and had good judgment on plays to be called next.

R. H. Naito:—A hard hitting football player who was the main player and the most valuable player of the season. The man that brought the championship for Waseda. He would rather lose his shoulder than to see his team lose.

L. H. Nakamura:—The best punter of the League, a good passer and a good runner. A silent man who does his stuff. As Nakamura goes Rikkyo goes.

F. Ebisu:—A veteran football player. Good blocker and a good passer. Who stopped many plays and played a good game.

Kasai To Broadcast From New York On 12th Olympic Games

Juji Kasai, M.P., now traveling in the United States as a people's envoy of the independents of the Lower House to explain Japan's stand in the Sino-Japanese conflict, is scheduled to broadcast from NBC in New York for 15 minutes beginning at 7:45 p.m. today, New York time, or 9:45 a.m. Saturday, Tokyo time, on the 12th Olympic Games in Tokyo, according to information received here.

Mr. Kasai will be introduced by Avery Brundage, president of the American Olympic Association.

It is expected that Mr. Kasai will point out that the Tokyo Olympic Organizing Committee is steadily pushing plans for adequate facilities for the Games as well as means for contributing to world culture. At the same time, he will ask the officials concerned of the United States not to be misled by loose talk that the Games will not be held in Japan. In conjunction with this, he is expected to request the sending of as large a delegation possible from the United States to the 1940 Games.

Trinity College Severs Relations

HARTFORD, Conn., Dec. 15—Trinity College announced yesterday the severance of athletic relations with Connecticut State College.

A statement from the Trinity Athletic Association said rivalry between the two schools, dating back to near the beginning of the century, had not "shown evidence of promoting "good sportsmanship and friendly feeling" in recent years.

Trinity's action cancelled two basketball games scheduled for the current season and two baseball games to have been played next spring.

"This action is not to be construed as the result of circumstances regarding any one game or any one sport," the association's statement said.

"The athletic advisory council feels that one of the main reasons for encouraging intercollegiate athletics is to promote good sportsmanship and friendly feeling; the rivalry between these two colleges has, in recent years, shown evidence of defeating this purpose."

The Hartford Times said the athletic councils of the two schools reviewed the situation "amicably" at several meetings before the break was announced.

Futabayama Wins Again But Only After Ryogoku Forces Him To A Re-Bout

By LESLIE NAKASHIMA

It took the mighty Futabayama, who is performing for the first time this year as a "yokozuna" or grand champion, two bouts to beat tough Ryogoku Friday afternoon in the ninth day of the 13-day spring sumo tournament at the Kokugikan bowl at Ryogoku. It was Futabayama's ninth straight victory and he alone remains undefeated of some 330 wrestlers, including the beginners to those in the first ranking division. This afternoon, Futabayama was to meet Kagamiiwa, an "ohseki" or rank immediately below grand champion, and then he has to take on Minanogawa and Tamanishiki, two grand champions. Musashiyama, the other grand champion, withdrew from the tourney on Friday on his doctor's advice that he had not completely recovered from the arm injury he sustained during the May tournament in 1935. Another contestant will substitute for Musashiyama against Futabayama. Biggest question of the tourney now is who is strong enough to beat him.

Tamanashiki Protests

Two bouts were necessary for Futabayama Friday for the reason that Tamanishiki, who was acting as a second for Ryogoku, insisted that Futabayama had stepped out of the ring with his right foot when he threw Ryogoku, falling on top of the latter. The two wrestlers had taken little time in getting started. As they stood up, Ryogoku thrust his left and right arms through for firm grips on Futabayama's girdle and depending on his strong arms, he lifted Futabayama's body and attempted a throw. Futabayama's great body fairly sailed through the air but he landed on safe ground and then turned aggressor. He in turn lifted Ryogoku. The latter momentarily checked the attack at the edge of the ring and attempted to pull Futabayama out of the ring. Futabayama held his own and fell on top of Ryogoku outside of the ring. The referee ruled in favor of Futabayama but Tamanishiki claimed that Futabayama had stepped outside the ring. He was supported by Minanogawa, who was another second on Ryogoku's side of the ring.

The five judges mounted the ring, conferred, then went into a huddle with Tamanishiki. The latter was adamant. The judges then consulted Minanogawa and back they went to Tamanishiki. Finally, the latter consented to having the two contestants wrestle over. The judges walked across the ring and consulted Nayoroiwa, who was Futabayama's second. Incidentally, Nayoroiwa is Futabayama's under-study in the Tachinami camp. Nayoroiwa agreed without argument to a re-bout, and amidst the wild cheers of the ninth day's consecutive sellout crowd, Futabayama and Ryogoku mounted the ring.

Futabayama Wins Easily

After only four false starts, the two stood up to do battle. Ryogoku thrust his right arm through for a grip on Futabayama's girdle but before he could maneuver himself into a favorable position, this time Futabayama was all aggressor. He promptly lifted Ryogoku high into the air and carried him outside the ring for an impressive victory. It settled without argument any question as to who is the better man.

The bout between Minanogawa, biggest of all wrestlers, and Tamanoumi, ace pupil of Tamanishiki, was a battle royal, certainly one of the hardest fought matches of the entire tourney. As they came together, Tamanoumi was quick to grasp Minanogawa's girdle with his left arm. As he maneuvered to get a grip with his right arm, Minanogawa took a vise-like grip of Tamanoumi's arms from the outside and attempted throwing Tamanoumi with a body throw, swinging from left to right. Tamanoumi checked the attack but he was being forced to the edge of the ring. Once again, Tamanoumi displayed his merit as one of the strongest wrestlers in competition today by saving himself from defeat and pushed Minanogawa to the center of the ring. Strong as he is Minanogawa could not keep up that vise-like grip and he switched to a hold on Tamanoumi's girdle but from the outside. It had been furious seconds of wrestling and the referee called "mizuiri" or a temporary halt to give the two wrestlers a short rest. They went to their corners for a drink of water and then resumed the identical positions, the referee seeing to it that they did, and time was in. Slipping in his left for a hold on Minanogawa's girdle, Tamanoumi had the better chance of the two and he attempted a body throw. Minanogawa rolled half over but he held his ground. He then started pushing and did not stop until he had the smaller Tamanoumi out of the ring to win.

Cheers Shake Bowl

The huge bowl almost shook with the cheers and laughter of the fans when Tamanishiki and Nayoroiwa kept glaring at each other during the shikiri. After the time limit of 10 minutes was out, there were two more false starts with Tamanishiki demurring to get going, obviously with the intent of angering the quick-tempered Nayoroiwa, angry for the reason that Tamanishiki had tried to keep Futabayama from winning in the previous bout. When they did get started, Tamanishiki, although he is much the fatter man than Nayoroiwa, proved the faster man in the charging, and the bout was over in less than 10 seconds with Tamanishiki shoving Nayoroiwa out of the ring.

Kagamiiwa displayed his worth as an ohseki in his bout with Asahigawa. Grasping the latter's girdle, he pushed him from one edge of the ring to the other. Asahigawa kept himself from being pushed out but Kagamiiwa did not let up with his charge. Once more he started pushing and before Asahigawa could brace himself to effect a stonewall, Kagamiiwa lifted him and deposited him outside the ring.

Kanemimato, the smallest wrestler in competition and who would not be admitted into the sport today under new regulations because of insufficient height, scored the biggest upset of the day, and probably of the season, by defeating Kyushuzan, the very wrestler that had outwitted Tamanishiki for the latter's only defeat up to Friday. He pushed and pushed and before Kyushuzan, who too is one of the quickest wrestlers in the game, could get set, he grasped his right leg. Kyushuzan broke the hold but as he did so while being forced back, Kaneminato kept pushing and succeeded in shoving his opponent out.

Ayanobori pulled off one of the cleanest throws of the day when he hooked his leg onto Kaikozan's, another one of those wrestlers with great protruding bellies and threw him with a body throw.

Banjaku, he with a "taiko bara" or stomach protruding as large as a Japanese drum, proved altogether too strong for Tomoegata, the "bullet" wrestler from the Hokkaido. Tomoegata charged furiously but Banjaku was like the Rock of Gibraltar. Banjaku then with sheer strength threw Tomoegata onto the sand.

The results of the bouts after the intermission follow:

Tamanishiki defeated Nayoroiwa.
Futabayama defeated Ryogoku.
Minanogawa defeated Tamanoumi.

Miami Bids For Pro Football's Annual Playoff

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Dec. 23—There is a chance, President Joe F. Carr of the National Professional Football League said today, that the loop's 1938 playoff game will be staged at Miami, Fla., instead of on some frozen northern gridiron.

Carr, who "doubles in brass" as promotional director of baseball's minor leagues when not engineering the professional gridders, said he had received an offer "tempting in the extreme" to shift the annual classic between the eastern and western division champions to the southland.

Damon Runyon, sports writer, news columnist and author, made the offer on behalf of "wealthy sports interests in Miami," Carr said.

The league prexy said the verdict as to whether the game would be moved was up to the league's directors, and that the decision would be made at the annual meeting to be held in February, probably in New York or Philadelphia.

"The big question is whether winners would care to take the game away from their home towns, where the fans had supported the teams all fall," Carr said. "The offer is a very flattering one, involving a guarantee with a privilege of a percentage of the gate receipts.

"Those behind the venture at Miami stated that they would like to make it the outstanding sports spectacle of the country. They are very anxious to get the playoff game as an annual sports feature."

Carr said there was an outside possibility that the playoff might be placed on a "two-out-of-three" basis, and that if such a plan materialized Miami might get one of the contests.

Should the Florida city get the playoff, the country's two winter "garden spots" would hold a monopoly on the late-season football classics. California holding the collegiate spotlight with the annual "Rose Bowl" fixture between the collegiate "greats," and Florida getting the top-notch attraction of the up-and-coming professional game.

Manchuria Beats Hokkaido Skaters In Dual Tourney

The All-Manchurian team defeated the All-Hokkaido combination in both the men and women's speed skating events in the two-day competition that ended Friday at the Tomokomai rink after a day's interval because of inclement weather.

The final scores were:

Men's Events	Manchuria	Hokkaido
500 meters	14	7
10,000 meters	14	7
Relay	6	0
	34	14
First day	29	13
Total	63	27
Women's Events
500 meters	11	10
5,000 meters	15	6
Relay	0	6
	26	22
First day	24	22
Total	50	40

Rain from early morning which turned into sleet as the day wore on put the ice into bad shape, and the times registered were poor. Besides there were many spills by the contestants.

Juntetsu Boku of the Manchurian team proved to be the big individual star again. He won the 500 and 10,000 meters events in times of 50.9 seconds and 21 minutes 59.2 seconds.

Miss Yaeko Ejima too of the Manchurian squad made a complete sweep in the women's races by taking first place both in the 500 and 5,000 meters events. She negotiated the former in 56 seconds and the latter in 11 minutes 37.4 seconds.

The Manchurian team of Hiromoto, Ishizuka, Boku and Mishiro won the men's 2,000 meter relay in 3 minutes 28.6 seconds.

But the Hokkaido squad of the Misses Sakamoto, Nozawa, Odaka and Nakagawa took the women's relay in 4 minutes 5.6 seconds.

Washington Redskins Win U.S. Pro Football Title

By ARTHUR J. DALEY

N.Y. Times

CHICAGO, Dec. 12—The passing wizardry of Slingin' Sammy Baugh shot the Washington Redskins into the championship of the National Football League on the frozen tundra of Wrigley Field today. The Indians, as accustomed as Eskimos to their arctic surroundings, toppled the Chicago Bears, 28 to 21, with a three-touchdowns onslaught in the third period.

The gridiron was like a skating rink. The players skidded despite their basketball shoes while some 15,878 citizens who braved frostbite and chilblains had nothing but the heart-warming exhibition of football skill to ward off the 15 degree cold.

But that hot house flower from Texas, Slingin's Sammy, gave one of the hottest exhibitions of his career. The mighty Cliff Battles was hobbled by the uncertain underfooting. But Baugh pegged passes with either the softness of drifting snow or the fury of a North Pole gale.

Passes Gain 352 Yards

No matter which style, however, he pitched them accurately and well. Half of his passes were completed, 17 of 34, for the prodigious yardage of 352. He twirled one to Wayne Millner for 55 yards and a touchdown, to Millner again for 77 yards and another score and to Justice for 35 and the clincher.

It was amazing, the way Baugh worked. Without him Washington would have been buried deep in the drift of Bear touchdowns. For this was weather and these were conditions that were hand-tailored for Chicago.

The quick-opening Bear plays that had power as their keynote were ideally suited to the situation at hand. It was a day for straight-away running, bullet bursts through the middle of the line, and Jack Manders, Bronko Nagurski and Ray Nolting could gain yard after yard by this method.

These plungers hammered 71 yards for one touchdown in four plays, went 50 more in four plays for the second and 73 in twelve for the third. It was the bludgeon against the rapier, and the more deft weapon of the two triumphed.

Throws While Off Balance

Baugh threw passes that had to be seen to be believed. He pitched them while in full flight and hung them on a nail. He tossed them as tacklers were carrying him to the ground, but so accurate were they that a blind man could have caught them.

The Bears were out to get him. They sent him from the game in the second period, but Slingin's Sam limped back with one sound leg and one injured one in the third quarter and threw the Bears dizzy with his superlative aerials.

And it was Baugh who was the innocent cause of a free-for-all fight in the last quarter, just one more enlivening incident in a spectacular game. Dick Plasman had just caught a pass from Bernie Masterson, and, with a clear field ahead was dumfounded when the wonder-worker Baugh nailed him from behind and whirled him out of bounds at midfield, plumb in the middle of the Redskin bench.

They spun into a mass of substitutes. Then Plasman injudiciously tossed a gentle punch at Baugh, the idol of the Washington squad. In a flash the Chicago end was pummeled by every one within reach and in trice Bears and Redskins were firing away at each other with gay abandon.

A Rough Contest

This was no football game played under the strict code of the football rules committee. It was a bitter knock-'em-down-and-drag-'em-out battle. Slingin' Sammy said afterward that it was the roughest game he ever had been in.

But this was Sammy's ball game, the greatest individual triumph any person ever achieved in the history of the National League. At times it almost looked as if he did it with mirrors.

The straw that broke the Bears' back was the touchdown play that brought about the downfall of the Giants the week before. Chicago had been playing for Charlie Malone, the favorite Baugh receiver.

But with the score tied at 21-all in the third period Sammy faded back. Malone cut to the middle, and a cordon of Chicagoans surrounded him. But the smart Mr. Baugh never passed to him. Instead, he whirled a perfect pass to Ed Justice for 35 yards in the right flat, and there it was, the first championship that any Eastern team but the Giants ever gained.

Futabayama Sets All-Time Winning Streak In Sumo As He Beats Minanogawa

By LESLIE NAKASHIMA

Twice Minanogawa had Futabayama on the verge of defeat Sunday afternoon in the first bout of two grand champions in the 11th day of the 13-day sumo tournament at the Kokugikan bowl at Ryogoku, but Futabayama rallied to win—his 51st continuous victory in the official matches for an all-time record.. He virtually clinched his fourth successive championship inasmuch as the up and coming Mayedayama registered a major upset by throwing Grand Champion Tamanishiki to account for the latter's second defeat. This afternoon, Futabayama was scheduled to meet Kasagiyama, the "intellectual" wrestler from Waseda, and was a topheavy favorite to win. A victory, and even if he loses to Tamanishiki Tuesday in the climax of the tourney (indications are that he is too strong even for Tamanishiki), he will be crowned champion.

Futabayama's Record

Here's Futabayama's phenomenal record: January tournament, 1936 lost first day to Shinkai; lost to Tamanishiki on sixth day, for nine victories, two defeats; May tournament, 1936, won all 11 bouts; January tournament, 1937, won all 11 bouts; May tournament, 1937, won all 13 bouts, the tourney extended for two extra days under new regulation; January tournament, 1938, won 11 straight bouts up to Sunday.

With two grand champions scheduled to meet for the first time in the tournament and the day being a Sunday, the bowl was a sellout at 2 in the morning. Corridors and stairways, they were all filled with spectators. The 30,000 persons present would have been trapped had a fire broken out. Of course, the bowl, constructed of concrete and steel, is considered fire-proof.

In the Imperial box were nine Princes and Princesses.

Minanogawa, who had been criticized for his three defeats early in the tourney, redeemed himself with the great fight he put against Futabayama. The latter's supporters certainly had the greatest scare of their lives, fearing Futabayama's winning streak would finally be broken. Youth, that was it that weathered the storm for Futabayama and turned him into the victor.

The two grand champions were calmness itself when they stood up after nine false starts. But it quickly developed into a furious bout. Minanogawa attacked fiercely with his two hands and seemed to have the better of the exchange. Having the longer reach, he stuck his left hand at Futabayama's throat and threatened to push Futabayama out of the ring. The latter checked the drive and bending his head low, charged and slipped in his arm through Minanogawa's defense. Minanogawa too got a grip on Futabayama's girdle and he started pushing. Considerably the bigger man, Minanogawa's attack forced Futabayama to the edge of the ring. Minanogawa pushed with all his might and Futabayama's body bent like a bow, and while the fans gasped in excitement, Futabayama straightened himself and pushed Minanogawa back to the center of the ring. This time it was Futabayama who attempted a body throw but Minanogawa was like the Rock of Gibraltar. Futabayama then started a drive with his two powerful legs and Minanogawa was forced to the edge of the ring. The two were giving everything they had. Minanogawa resorted to a body throw, and so did Futabayama froni left to right. It was a case of which would succeed. It looked mighty dangerous for Futabayama but with his right arm he took hold of Minanogawa's left leg, put pressure on it and Minanogawa's great body heaved over outside the ring for Futabayama's victory.

Tamanishiki Beaten

Mayedayama showed himself the better man than Tamanishiki so far as Sunday was concerned, for he not only defeated him in one bout in two. The point was that the referee awarded the first bout (only one is held by the wrestlers a day) to Tamanishiki when even to the layman, it seemed that Mayedayama had clearly thrown Tamanishiki out of the ring after a torrid match. Thereupon, Futabayama, who was Mayedayama's second at the time, protested. (This was a reversal of the case on Friday last. Then it seemed as if Futabayama had clearly thrown Ryogoku and the referee so ruled but Tamanishiki, then Ryogoku's second, protested and the two wrestlers were forced to wrestle it over). The judge conferred and Tamanishiki and Mayedayama were ordered to re-wrestle. Mayedayama was unwilling but Futabayama coaxed him to consent. The majority of the fans were of the opinion that Tamanishiki would win without trouble in the re-bout but Mayedayama surprised everybody by executing a body throw with his powerful arms and Tamanishiki went sprawling outside of the ring.

The two wrestlers required the full time of 10 minutes in the "shikiri" or process of getting started. Mayedayama was the quicker of the two and he thrust his two arms through from underneath for advantageous holds on Tamanishiki's girdle. It forced Tamanishiki, the shorter man, to assume a near perpendicular position and checked him from using his protruding belly as a lever to lift Mayedayama out of the ring. The best Tamanishiki could do was to start a drive with the view to shoving his opponent out. But the latter attempted to lift Tamanishiki and the latter went to the tip of his toes but managed to stay on to the ground. Mayedayama, however, did not let up with his attack and forced Tamanishiki to the edge of the ring. Tamanishiki attempted to save himself but the impetuous Mayedayama pushed harder than ever and he fell on top of Tamanishiki out of the ring. The referee, however, ruled Tamanishiki, instead, had thrown Mayedayama out and awarded him the verdict. As mentioned in the foregoing, Futabayama protested. The fans were pretty irked about it, yelling that Mayedayama had won, and clamoring for the referee to quit. When the decision for a rebout was announced after consultation of the judges, there were sarcastic cries from the crowd for Mayedayama "not to win this time."

Starting Takes Time

Both wrestlers were cautious for the second bout. Once again, they took the full 10 minutes for the start. This time, Tamanishiki was the quicker of the two to slip in his left for a hold on Mayedayama's girdle. Just how Tamanishiki allowed Mayedayama to get a similar hold a fraction of a second later is difficult to understand. For that turned out to be the factor for his defeat. Mayedayama feinted with a leg kick but Tamanishiki ignored it. Once again, Tamanishiki attempted to lift Mayedayama but the latter held his ground. Then as the two waited for the other to take the offensive, Tamanishiki started pushing and gradually began to force his opponent to the edge of the ring. But the latter put everything he had in his two powerful arms and with one swing, threw Tamanishiki's 300 pounds body outside the ring for a sensational victory, this time without any argument.

Haguroyama, up and coming stablemate of Futabayama, scored an upset by turning what seemed certain defeat into victory by heaving Kagamiiwa, an "ohseki" or rank immediately below grand champion, out of the ring. It was Kagamiiwa's sixth defeat.

Tomoegata, nicknamed the "bullet" wrestler because he charges with lightning speed, won his second bout in the tourney, upsetting Ryogoku, the chap that had given Futabayama plenty of trouble last Friday. He did so by charging fiercely and Ryogoku found himself shoved out before he had a chance to get a body hold.

Taikyuzan scored a well-earned victory over Tamanoumi by outpushing him. Both are "sekiwake" or third rank from grand champion.

Fastest Start

The fans could hardly believe their eyes when Nayoroiwa, Futabayama's under-study who had had carried Grand Champion Musashiyama out of the ring for a sensational victory, and Kaikozan, he of the great protruding belly, wrestled after only one false start. It was easily the quickest start of all bouts in the tourney. Kaikozan stood up and gestured a charge. The fearless Nayoroiwa had no intention to wrestle so soon but he was not to demur, so up he rose and the two charged at each other. Kaikozan had the better hold of the two, having thrust his two arms through Nayoroiwa's defense for holds on the atter's girdle. Nayoroiwa attempted to lift Kaikozan but it was too much to ask with his poor hold and in view of Kaikozan's big stomach. The upshot of the whole thing was that Kaikozan scored an upset by crushing Nayoroiwa outside the ring.

Itsutsushima won his tenth victory defeating Ayanishiki, to be runner-up to Futabayama.

Headed by Professor Jigoro Kano, Japanese member of the I. O. C. the following delegates will reassure Japan's readiness for the 1940 Games.

Professor Jigoro Kano, Japanese member of the I.O.C., chief delegate; Matsuzo Nagai, secretary-general of the O.O.C.; Werner Klingeberg, technical adviser to O.O.C.; Eijiro Nakatsuka, Masatsune Miyagi, Yoshinori Suzuki, Masashi Mifuji, Masao Tsuda and Teruo Shimizu, all members of the O.O.C.; and Dr. Seiichi Ono, vice-president of the Japan Winter Sports Federation.

Mr. Nagai Saturday definitely decided to attend the International Track and Field Federation session to be held in Paris on February 25 instead of London at the personal invitation of J. Sigfrid Edstrom, president of the I.T.F.F. He will leave Yokohama aboard the Empress of Russia with Mr. Klingeberg on February 3. They are scheduled to arrive at Paris on February 25. It is expected that Mr. Nagai will make necessary preliminary arrangements with numerous athletic leaders.

Baseball Scribes Cast Annual Votes

NEW YORK, Dec. 15—The signs point to Grover Cleveland (Pete) Alexander, Eddie Collins and Wee Willie Keeler as most likely to move into the company of diamond immotals when members of the Baseball Writers Association of America cast their annual ballots for hall of fame nominees.

The writers, who already have selected eight towering super-stars for inclusion in the hall of fame at Cooperstown, N. Y., birthplace of the game, will make their latest nominations on or before Jan. 12. Each writer names the 10 players he thinks most deserving of a place in the hall of fame. Those names appearing on at least 75 per cent of the ballots automatically are selected

The first poll, in January 1936, saw Ty Cobb, Babe Ruth, Honus Wagner, Christy Mathewson and Walter Johnson selected. In January of this year, Napoleon Lajoie, Tris Speaker and Cy Young, who had ranked sixth, seventh and eighth in the previous poll, mustered sufficient additional support to take their places with the first five.

With approximately 150 votes needed to qualify in the last poll, Alexander, great right-handed pitching star of the Phillies, the Cubs and the Cardinals, polled a total of 125 and Collins and Keeler were close behind with 115 each. The chances are that all three will draw enough additional votes this time to send them into the hall of fame. Another possibility is George Sisler, great first baseman of the St. Louis Browns, who received 105 votes in the last poll.

In addition to the eight players so far selected by the writers, the two major leagues, at the recent Chicago meetings, selected five others whose service to baseball had extended beyond the actual playing of the game. These included George Wright, guiding hand of baseball's first professional team, the Cincinnati Red Stockings of 1869; the Hon. Morgan G. Bulkeley, first president of the National League; Ban Johnson, organizer and first president of the American League; Connie Mack, manager of the Philadelphia Athletics from the start of the American League to the present day; and John McGraw, for 30 years manager of the New York Giants.

The baseball writers' selections must be made from among players in active service in the major leagues since 1900. Men listed as active players during 1937 are not eligible.

Austrian Captures 3,000 M. Skating Event At Oslo

By The Domei Tsushin Sha

OSLO, Jan. 22—Outdistancing the world's fastest skaters from Europe and America, Max Stiepl of Austria today sped to victory in the 3,000-meter race after the European Speed Skating Championships got off to a gala start here in the presence of King Haakon and Crown Prince Olav.

Ten thousand spectators watched the Austrian flash across the finish line in 4 minutes 53.6 seconds, the fastest time ever achieved by a skater from that country. Charles Mathieson, of Norway, placed second, while Ivar Ballangrud, Norwegian Olympic champion, was third.

In the first event of the meet, Engnestangen, of Norway, won the 500-meter championship, establishing a new Norwegian record of 42.4 seconds. Freisinger of the United States was second, and Krog of Norway third.

Fine weather favored the opening of the two-day competitions, and the condition of the ice was excellent.

Skaters All Set

By The Domei Tsushin Sha

OSLO, Jan. 21—Crack representatives of the leading skating countries of the world, with the exception of Soviet Russia, gathered here tonight to await the opening gun of the European speed skating championships, which will run off 16 big events tomorrow and Sunday.

Most of the outstanding ice skaters of Europe as well as three of the United States' leading skaters are participating in the two-day contests. They include Ivar Ballangrud, of Norway, the Olympic champion; Michael Straksrud, Norwegian holder of the European and World championships; Marvin Swanson, American champion, and two other American stars, Freisinger and Wallace.

Although rain has been threatening for the past two days, the condition of the ice is excellent owing to a recent cold spell. More than 10,000 spectators are expected to see the contests.

Kanto Eleven Wins

Kanto defeated Kansai in the seventh annual inter-sectional soccer clash Sunday afternoon at the Koshien field by four goal to one. The score at half time was 3 to 1 in favor of the Kanto eleven.

Miss Inada Wins Figure Skating Title With Ease

Miss Etsuko Inada of the Osaka Skating Club, who placed tenth in the women's figure skating championships at the Fourth Winter Olympic Games at Garmisch-Partenkirchen in 1936, defended her national championship easily in the two-day 9th annual championships which ended Sunday afternoon at the Shibaura rink before a capacity crowd of fans. Now no longer the tiny star that thrilled the sport public with her scintillating skating but a most presentable young lady, Miss Inada showed heaps of improvement over her past performance, which was outstanding in both the school figures and the free skating held on Saturday at the Sanno rink and Sunday at the Shibaura rink respectively.

Toshiichi Katayama of Kwansei Gakuin won the men's championship as expected, facing virtually no competition with the non-entry of Tsugio Hasegawa of Keio University, the national collegiate champion, and Zenichi Watanabe of Keio, another skater who competed in the last Winter Olympic Games.

Miss Inada, with place number 5, scored 191.34 points in the compulsory figures and 151.48 points in the free skating for a total of 382.82 points.

Katayama was credited with 186.40 points in the school figures and 133.56 points in the free skating for a total of 319.96 points.

The results follow:

Men's skating: won by Toshiichi Katayama, Kwansei Gakuin, place number 5, school, 186.40, free, 133.56, total 319.96; second, Hiroshi Kanda, Kobe Skating Club, 12, 174.04, 124.32, 298.36; third, Fujimaru Shozushima, Osaka Skating Club, 16, 156.16, 132.44, 288.60; fourth, Takasuke Arisaka, Meiji, 17, 164.68, 122.24, 285.92; fifth, Hiroshi Shimakawa, Waseda, 25, 149.65, 101.08, 250.74; sixth, Yoshinari Yamamoto, Meiji O.B., 30, 111.16, 94.80, 205.96.

Futabayama Wins Fourth Straight Title In Sumo

Grand Champion Futabayama pushed Kasagiyama out of the ring without trouble Monday afternoon at the Kokugikan bowl at Ryogoku for his 42th straight victory in the 13-day spring tournament which closes this afternoon, and thereby won his fourth straight championship. If he downs Grand Champion Tamanishiki in the final bout today, he will have established the amazing record of capturing four successive tournaments undefeated.

In the second match between two grand champions, Tamanishiki defeated Minanogawa, crushing him outside the ring for his 10th victory. But for his defeats at the hands of Kyushuzan on the fifth day and Mayedayama on the 11th day, Tamanishiki would have been meeting Futabayama today for the tourney's championship.

Mayedayama Shines

The up and coming Mayedayama established himself as a strong candidate for promotion to the now one vacant position of "ohseki" or rank immediately grand champion through the retirement of the popular Shimizugawa at the end of the last tournament in May of last year, by taking the measure of the mighty Tamanoumi, ace pupil of Tamanishiki and a "sekiwake" or third rank from a grand champion. It is said there will be no question about his promotion to ohseki if he succeeds in vanquishing Taikyuzan today, who like Tamanoumi is a sekiwake. Only two defeats of Mayedayama in the current season have been in the bouts against Itsutsushima and Futabayama. Now a "komusubi" or fourth rank from a grand champion, Mayedayama's elevation to an ohseki at a stroke is considered a brilliant record, equalled only on a few occasions in the past.

Shachinosato, considered the best looking of all wrestlers and who recently became a benedict, scored a major upset by executing a beautiful body throw to defeat Itsutsushima, who had lost only one bout up to Monday afternoon.

Haguroyama and Nayoroiwa, both stable-mates of Futabayama in the Tachinami camp and 24 years old, born in the year of the tiger (this is a tiger year and for that reason they are considered to have a lucky year), gave a good account of themselves by scoring victories over Ryogoku and Taikyuzan, both sekiwake respectively.

Banjaku, he of the great protruding belly and who has the physique and ability to become at least an ohseki but has been in rather a slump, hurled Kagamiiwa, an ohseki, onto the sand to win in most impressive style.

Tamanishiki Wins

Tamanishiki showed himself a real grand champion in his victory over Minanogawa, who on the previous day was twice on the verge of stopping Futabayama's sensational winning streak. No sooner had they stood up than Tamanishiki was the quicker of the two and he thrust his right arm through Minanogawa's defense from underneath for a firm grip on Minanogawa's girdle, his favorite throw to either effect a body throw or push his opponent out of the ring. Then grasping Minanogawa's girdle from the top, he started pushing with his more than 300 pounds body. The even larger Minanogawa was forced back to the edge of the ring. Minanogawa attempted to effect a turn to the right with the view to getting into the center of the ring, but Tamanishiki did not let up with his attack and when Minanogawa persisted in turning to the right, Tamanishiki shoved him out.

Bang Bang Affair

It was bang bang pushing battle between Tamanoumi and Mayedayama as they stood up, both attacking with their two hands. Mayedayama outpushed his opponent and slipped in his left for a hold on Tamanoumi's girdle. Tamanoumi resorted to a hold on Mayedayama's girdle with his right arm from the top, and then started pushing. Mayedayama grasped the front portion of Tamanoumi's girdle with his right arm and shoved Tamanoumi back. Suddenly, Tamanoumi attempted to lift Mayedayama but the latter beat him to it with a body throw and down went Tamanoumi.

The results of the bouts after the intermission follow:

Futabayama defeated Kasagiyama.
Banjaku defeated Kagamiiwa.
Mayedayama defeated Tamanoumi.
Nayoroiwa defeated Taikyuzan.
Haguroyama defeated Ryogoku.
Asahigawa defeated Kyushuzan.
Ayanobori defeated Tatekabuto.
Dewanohana defeated Oshio.
Kinkazan defeated Tomoegata.
Shachinosato defeated Itsutsushima.

Wakashima defeated Toshuzan.
Kaikozan defeated Tachiwaka.
Akinoumi defeated Kaneminato.
Takanobori defeated Kojimagawa.
Tsukubamine defeated Onami.
Aobayama defeated Komanosato.
Ayanishiki defeated Hatasegawa.
Orochigata defeated Banshinzan.
Katsuragawa defeated Ayawaka.
Kashimanada defeated Tsurugamine.
Oyashima defeated Imizugawa.
Fujigatake defeated Yamatonishiki.

Judge Gets 'Hot Seat'

SACRAMENTO, Cal. Dec.—(INS)—Municipal Judge Clarence Terry of San Diego is on the lookout for a practical joker who gave him the "hot seat."

The joker smeared the cushion of his judicial throne with oil of mustard causing his honor no end of discomfort. Terry first noticed the burning sensation as local citizens filed past him in answer to traffic citations.

Finally he could not stand it (or sit) no longer and investigated.

"I guess someone was trying to put me on the 'hot seat,'" Terry mused.

Will He Stop Futabayama Today?

Tamanishiki, dean of the four "yokozuna" or grand champions, going through the rites of the "dohyo-iri" or formal entrance of a grand champion into the ring. This afternoon, he was scheduled to take on Grand Champion Futabayama in the climaxing bout of the tourney, the only wrestler remaining to stop Futabayama's winning streak of four seasons.

Canadiens Tied 2-2 By Rangers On New York Ice

By JOSEPH C. NICHOLS

N.Y. Times

NEW YORK, Dec. 20—Alex Shibicky's lightning drive in the dying minutes of the third period saved the New York Rangers from being defeated by the Canadiens of Montreal at Madison Square Garden last night. Shibicky's shot flew true into the Canadien cage and brought about a 2-to-2 deadlock that remained unbroken through the 10-minute overtime period.

The Blue Shirts were first to score, thanks to a goal by Cecil Dillon in 3:49 of the opening period. They kept this lead until Toe Blake counted for the visitors in 6:58 of the middle chapter. Pete Lepine, the Habitants' venerable center, put the visitors ahead in 3:01 of the third, and as time wore on the crowd of 13,500 fans were resigned to a Montreal victory.

This possibility grew stronger as the end approached, and the Ranger offensive drives were turned back regularly. Nevertheless, the New Yorkers persisted in charging, gambling everything for a chance to score.

Shot Beats Cude

And their chance came at last when, with only 1 minute and 40 seconds left to play, Shibicky received the rubber after an advance by Mac Colville and Dillon and let fly. The rubber flew so fast that Wilfie Cude in the Canadien cage never had a chance to get his stick on it as it whizzed into the cords.

The draw put the Montreal team in a tie with the Toronto Leafs for the lead in the International Division of the National Hockey League.

At the same time the tie snapped the five-game winning streak of the Rangers, who are now in second place in the American group.

As is generally the case when the Canadiens face the Rangers, the game was fast and bristling, one in which clever stickwork and passing maneuvers abounded. Time and again the spectators were moved to cheers for the scintillating performances given by the wily Aurell Joliat, Lepine and George Mantha of the visitors and Neil Colville, Mac Colville and Art Coulter of the Blue Shirts.

Early Advantage to Invaders

Through the regulation three periods the Northerners had a territorial advantage, despite the Patrickmen's bitter rushing. In the overtime, however, it was evident that the Canadiens were willing to settle for a tie. The Rangers, on the other hand, were out to win and they peppered their rivals' cage desperately, if futilely, through the extra session.

Shortly after the game began the Rangers were rendered short-handed through a penalty called on Shibicky. Montreal tried with all at its command to turn this advantage to profit but Davey Kerr refused to let anything get into his cage.

With the sides even, the Blue Shirts seized the aggressive and struck quickly for a score. Clint Smith made a fine dash down the center alley and passed to Dillon just outside the Canadien crease. Dillon received the puck and shot with the same motion to register his goal.

The Habitants fought back and carried their attack over to the middle frame. They were frustrated repeatedly, but finally their efforts succeeded when Blake capitalized on a rush by Lepine and Red Lorrain to beat Kerr with a short shot.

Five-Man Attacks Tried

An advance by Blake and Walter Buswell set up the puck for Lepine's goal in the third frame. From that point on the Blue Shirts decided to abandon all caution and charged time after time with five skaters.

The Canadiens held them off commendably, though, and seemed on the threshold of a triumph when the Rangers made their last daring attack. Dillon and Mac Colville skilfully carried the rubber over Montreal's Blue line while Shibicky skated with them in the center alley. Deep in Canadien ice Mac sent a precise pass to Shibicky twenty feet in front of the goal, and Shibicky, in a twinkling, got off the shot that kept the Rangers from losing.

Klingeberg To Inspect Olympic Village Sites

Due to the abandonment of the site at Kinutamura for the Olympic Village for the 12th Olympic Games in 1940 for certain reasons, Werner Klingeberg, technican advisor to the Tokyo Olympic Organizing Committee, has been instructed to inspect the other mentioned sites at Todoriki Komazawa and Shimotakaido, all in the outskirts of Tokyo. Mr. Klingeberg is expected to start on Thursday.

Takashi Go, chairman of the athletic committee of the O. O. C., has been appointed to fill the duties of Dr. Matsuzo Nagai, secretary-general of the O. O. C. during his attendance of the meeting of the International Olympic Committee scheduled to open at Cairo on March 10.

Five-Man Line Old Gag In New Era Of Football

NEW YORK, Dec. 16—The five-man line, hailed as football's most startling innovation since early days, really is nothing more than an old dodge decked out in a fancy name.

That may come as a shock to a lot of people who have been wondering over what will be done about it. But the coaches—and they're the ones who should know—are authority for the fact that the five-man line is no newer than knobs on doors. it as new.

In the Southwest Conference they claim to have used it 20 years ago. Tatum Gressette of the Citadel in South Carolina is hailed as its southern sponsor, with the date of origin six years ago. Mal Stevens of N. Y. U. recalls that Pop Warner employed it at Stanford long before Pop came East to Temple in 1933.

"Why, say," says Lou Little of Columbia, "I've heard of teams using the five-man line as far back as 1904 and 1905. We used it in pro ball when I was playing in 1919 and 1920, and I even coached it at Georgetown in 1924.

"Only in those days no one bothered to label it. We just played a six-man line and dropped one man out of the middle when we were expecting a pass. The reason everybody's talking about it now as if it were something new is because it's had such a spread in the last two years."

Even Steve Owen, whose New York Giants tossed quite a bombshell into national football league circles this season by breaking out the "new" defensive maneuver, makes no claims as an inventor.

Stout Steve splits the credit between John Dagrosa, Temple assistant coach in the pre-Warner days, and the fact that this year he had two converted centers, Kayo Lunday and Johnny Del Isola, playing at guard and able to drop out of the line.

"Dagrosa had experimented with the formation for several years before he gave it to us," Owen explains.

"The first time we tried it was against the Chicago Bears three or four years ago. Hank Reese was with us then, and I used him to back up the middle of the line. The Bears' first play was a line buck by Bronko Nagurski. Hank came up to meet the 238-pound Bronk, was knocked flat and trampled on. Nagurski went for nine yards, Reese went out of the game, and from then until this year I didn't have any men who were willing or able to back up the five-man line.

The formation's greatest asset, in the opinion of some of its chief sponsors—Little, Owen, Hooks Mylin, of all-winning Lafayette, and Frank Thomas, of Alabama's Rose-Bowlers, is that it confuses offensive linemen on their blocking assignments.

As to the five-man line's future possibilities, they are convinced they lie in its use as a defensive variation rather than a set play.

"You can't play a five-man line straight through a ball game and expect to get anywhere," Little says. "The offense will know what to expect and alter its blocking assignments accordingly. But if you have variations on it—shift into a six or seven-man line, or use a five-man with six-man spacing and a six-man with seven-man spacing—you have the offense bewildered and not knowing what to do."

Mathieson Aids Norway To Win Skating Meet

By The Domei Tsushin Sha

OSLO, Jan. 23—Led by Charles Mathieson, Norway's outstanding contribution to the 1938 European Speed Skating Championships, Norwegian entries today took the major individual honors at the close of the two-day contests here. Amassing a total of 199.273 points, Mathieson won the European Men's Amateur title, while his teammates Haraldsen and Ivar Ballangrud, 1936 title holder, placed second and third, respectively.

Favored by a bright sunshine, which was not any too good for the ice, more than 20,000 spectators crowded the field to watch the closing events.

Mathieson was easily the star of the day. After placing third in the 5,000-meter race, he came back strong to take first in the 1,500-meter championships in 2 minutes and 27.4 seconds. He was followed by Balangrud and Haraldsen. Norwegian entries dominated most of the events.

East Holds West To Scoreless Tie At San Francisco

N.Y. Times

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 1—East and West locked grips today in a football struggle that ended in a scoreless tie to the cheers of 58,000 fans.

The thirteenth annual classic, bringing together the cream of the country's gridiron talent for charity, was more even than any since the game was established in 1925.

It was a battle of ground power, exemplified by the Eastern all-stars, and a brilliant aerial attack which saw the Westerners complete fourteen of thirty-two passes for a total of 151 yards.

A decided shortender, the West's squad, actually held an edge on the offensive side.

East Drives 41 Yards

The Westerners tried and missed two field goals, one being short and the other blocked, but the scoring attempts constituted the difference between the rival elevens. The only important threat by the Easteners was an opening period drive that saw them march 41 yards to the West's 29.

George Karamatic, stocky little fullback from Gonzaga University, made the field goal tries. One, a real toe-testing feat, was from his own 49-yard line in the second period. The ball fell short.

He had an easier chance in the first period. After the West had advanced 50 yards to the East's 6, mainly on passes from Dwight Sloan of Arkansas, Karamatic came back into the game to try his luck again from the 14. The kick was straight but lanky Ralph Wolf, center from Ohio State, smashed through to block the ball.

Isbell Shares Passing

The East, relying mainly on ground plays, nevertheless produced a strong passing attack, with Cecil Isbell, Purdue halfback, and John Micheosen, Pittsburgh quarterback, handling the bulk of the tosses.

All of the forty-four players making up the two squads saw some service. They turned in fine performances but outstanding were Isbell, Elmore Hackney of Duke, Don Heap of Northwestern, Michelosen and Corby Davis of Indiana in the Eastern backfield and the line play of three Fordham linemen, Alexander Wojciechowicz, Al Babartsky and Ed Franco, an all-America tackle.

The Western backfield aces were Sloan, a great marksman in firing aerials; Karamatic, for consistent punting and Milton Popovich, halfback from the University of Montana who excelled in broken field running.

Elmer Dohrmann, the West's left end from Nebraska, just about stole the show by his amazing ability to snatch the ball out of the air. He caught seven passes for varying gains.

The game was played in crisp, clear weather.

The squads, hand-picked from thirty colleges and universities in twenty-one states, practiced ten days for the thirteenth annual contest, proceeds from which will go to the Shriners Hospital for Crippled Children. The West gained seven victories and the East five in the dozen previous games.

Eastern Coaches Bernie Bierman of Minnesota and Andy Kerr of Colgate assembled one of the strongest squads in years, twenty-two players from fifteen universities of nine States.

Western Coaches Major Lawrence (Biff) Jones of Nebraska and Orin (Babe) Hollingbery of Washington State College mustered less renowned but highly talented boys from a dozen States.

Farr's Rise Was Big Event For British Boxing In '37

LONDON, Dec. 26—Beyond question, the most important event in British boxing during 1937 was the astounding rise of Tommy Farr from comparative obscurity to a high place among contenders for the Championship of the World. Poor as heavyweight contests may be, and usually are, there is something about the heavyweight championship of the world which distinguishes it from anything else. There are no questions as to weight, race or color. The man who wins it is held to be the best man in the world. Having regard to the many qualities of strength, balance, quickness of eye and hand, courage and endurance necessary in boxing, public opinion is probably right. Wrestlers may be stronger, runners faster, the players of ball games may have better coordination, and channel swimmers more endurance, but no sport or game demands so high a standard in all these qualities as does boxing. Until Farr met Louis no British boxer had been matched for the World Championship since Gunner Moir fought Burns in 1907. Tom Heeney, the New Zealander, lost to Tunney in 1928, but Heeney had been beaten by Phil Scott and had little chance of winning.

Of fifteen champions since gloves were used, twelve have been Americans; one, Fitzsimmons, was born in England, but a naturalized American; one German, and an Italian. Farr, who is both British and Empire champion, but by no means in a class by himself over here, went the full fifteen rounds with Joe Louis, the world champion, losing on points, but never being in any danger of being knocked out. It is doubtful whether any white American can beat Farr. Yet so lately as last February Zeeman, a very second-rate American, lasted eight rounds against Farr; and when Farr outpointed Foord in March to win the British and Empire championship, after a poor contest, many were dissatisfied with the decision. Farr followed this up, however, by easily outpointing Baer and stopping Neusel in three rounds. It is doubtful whether Farr would have got a match with Louis had it not been for the political influences working against Schmeling, but he did so well when he got his chance that it seems likely he will get another opportunity to win the championship. He is said to be matched with Braddock, whom he ought to beat without much difficulty, but reports are so contradictory that nothing is certain. So much interest, however, would be taken in a return contest between Louis and Farr that it is probable the Welshman will not be given any opponent who is likely to beat him and spoil the big match.

It is, I am sorry to say, typical of the British Boxing Board of Control that they should declare the heavyweight championship of the world to be vacant, a pronouncement that probably is accepted by no one in this country outside the handful of men who made it.

Aspirants in Plenty

Schmeling, until a week or two ago, had not fought since he knocked out Louis, and cannot be improving at his age; but he showed in his contest with Thomas, a tough American heavyweight whom he knocked out in eight rounds, that he had kept his heavy right-hand punch. It is stated that he is returning to Germany to meet Foord and Neusel. It seems clear that, in addition to Farr, we have in Philips, Harvey, and London British born heavyweights who can make a fight of it with anyone in the world, as well as the Dominion boxers, Foord, Strickland, and Gains, and that very doubtful quantity, Jack Doyle. Compare the present position with that in 1907, when the only men we could put up against Burns were Moir, Palmer, and Roche!

Of the world champions at other weights Benny Lynch, the flyweight, by beating Montana has attained an undisputed title. Escobar has lost his bantam title to Jeffra and Sarron to Armstrong. Ambers and Ross retain the light-and welter-weight championships, but outside France there is general agreement that Thil has at last lost his middleweight championship, although there is some dispute in the United States as to whether Steele, whom Americans previously recognized as champion, or Apostoli, who beat Thil, is now the title holder. John Henry Lewis continues to hold the light-heavyweight championship. Of the world champions three, Louis, Lewis, and Armstrong, are negroes.

Of the champions of Great Britain Foord has lost his heavyweight title to Farr, and McAvoy beat Philips for the light heavyweight championship, which he now holds as well as the middleweight. These are the only changes. Of our present champions three are Scots and one is Welsh, and none comes from further south than Chester. Promising young boxers at most weights are numerous, the only exception being the middleweight division, which at present seems languishing. George James, the young Welsh heavyweight, and Beddington, a northern light-heavy, are perhaps the most likely to become prominent, but competition is not so keen as among the lighter men. James is a sound boxer, has height and reach and is fairly fast. His future will depend on whether he can acquire the muscular strength which is essential for a heavyweight who hopes to reach the first class, unless he possesses the punch of a Fitzsimmons or a Carpentier. It was sheer physical strength that enabled Neusel to beat Petersen, and that has enabled Harvey to hold his own with much heavier men. James will probably meet Wilde for the Welsh championship vacated by Farr, and should beat him without much difficulty.

Control Board and Rivalry

The Boxing Board of Control has made little headway during the year. Its system of eliminating contests may have been helpful to promoters, but it has enabled several champions, who are probably not our best men, to hold on to their titles. It will be interesting to see what attitude it will take up with regard to Farr's championships of Great Britain and the Empire. The National Union of Boxers, which has recently changed its name to the National Boxing Association, has included in its membership a large number of "supporters," and obviously has hopes of becoming a rival power. Unless the Board of Control becomes more representative it is likely to lose what prestige it has, but it must be admitted that it is difficult to see what can be done to achieve this end.

Boxing has attracted some very large "gates" during 1937, but there is a limited number of boxers who can attract them, and some promoters must have lost a good deal of money. Booing the referee's decision by spectators who know little of boxing, and care less, has been an unpleasant feature of several big contests, and it has been encouraged by some sporting journalists who, at any rate, ought to know better. It is, perhaps, doubtful whether there is so much more money in boxing in these days as compared with the past as is generally supposed. Hazlitt, in "The Fight," written in 1822, refers to Hickman having lost £3,000 which had been promised him by various backers if he had won against Bill Neate. Yet the fight between Hickman and Neate was not a championship battle, and Neate was beaten fairly easily by Tom Spring about twelve months after his fight with Hickman.

On the whole it has been a good year for British boxing. Our standard seems at last to be higher than that of the Continent, and reasonably equal to that of America, having regard to the vastly greater population of the United States, including numbers of negro boxers.

Dartmouth Skiers Take Team Prize At Lake Placid

By FRANK ELKINS
N.Y. Times

LAKE PLACID, N. Y., Jan. 1—Dartmouth's brilliant band of skiers, whose supremacy in intercollegiate circles for the past three years has not met with a serious challenge, continued to add to its imposing record today when the Indians captured the team prize as the seventeenth annual college invitation meet sponsored by the Lake Placid Club Sno Birds ended.

After working for hours to determine the exact team standings according to the complicated scoring system of the Intercollegiate Ski Union, the judges announced tonight that the Indians from Hanover had rolled up perfect counts in both the ski jump and combined Langlauf and jump, the final two events to retain the President Harding Trophy.

Williams Places Second

The victors placed four men among the first eight in the jump and made a sweep of the first three positions in the combined event to give them an imposing total of 500 points for the five events contested. As a unit, the Hanover outfit amassed perfect scores in all of the contests, while its members garnered premier individual laurels in all but the jump, which went to the Bowdoin ace, Robert W. Laffin.

Enjoying a revival in the sport, Williams made a whirlwind finish to catapult from fourth place to runner-up in the final team standings. The Massachusetts skiers made 421.24 points, while Harvard was close behind with 420.13. Yale, which scored 410.35, was fourth.

Ed Meservey, a senior who skis with a drive, made Dartmouth's team victory a certainty by placing second in the jump and winning the two-event prize, the handsome Stanley Rumbough Trophy. Winner of the cross-country two days ago, the Hanover boy set the pace for two of his colleagues in the combined competition. Percy Rideout placing as runner-up and Roy (Tiger) Chamberlin being third.

Besides these honors, Meservey gained the distinction of being the most proficient and versatile skier of the three-day meet, receiving for his achievements the "ski-meister" medal, awarded for the first time this year. He won the combined event with 443 points. Rideout, former Cushing Academy ace and the youngest member of the Green squad, accumulated 406.7 and Chamberlin 398.3.

Third place in the ski jump went to Brenton Brown of Williams, who scored 202.4 points, while Richard Whittemore of Harvard was fourth with 199.7. The former had lengths of 105 feet on each of his two leaps and the latter negotiated 102 and 104 feet.

Laffin's Best Effort

By carrying off the jumping prize, Laffin recorded the best performance in his skiing career.

Meservey, another entrant unknown in the jumping world but whose prowess in the downhill and slalom phases of the sport have earned him wide recognition in amateur circles, captured the slalom at the last tournament two years ago. The Dartmouth senior turned in his second surprising showing, having defeated a strong field in the cross-country.

A beautiful flight of 115 feet on his second effort gave Laffin first place. Up to this time, Meservey was ahead on both distance and form, for in the first round the stocky Green "rider," nicknamed "Rabbit" because of his style of skiing, showed better control of his body and hickory wings in soaring 106 feet, one foot better than his rival's leap. But the Bowdoin star clinched the issue on his next jump, a superb flight of 115 feet, the longest of the day.

At the conclusion of the collegiate event, the spectators watched several prominent ski riders in action on the adjoining sixty-meter hill, where the 1932 Olympic jumping was held. Erling Strom, Nils Eie, the world and Norwegian intercollegiate all-around champion, Cresby Smith and Arthuh Devlin of the Sno Birds and Ferris Campbell of New York gave exhibitions of long-distance jumping.

The three-game holiday hockey series between Clarkson and Queens University resulted in a deadlock when the two sextets struggle to a 2-all tie in their concluding game tonight at the Olympic Arena.

After Paul Pilon, sharp-shooting defense man, had converted a penalty shot in 11:25 to tie the issue for Clarkson in the last period, play went into overtime. No scoring occurred in this ten-minute session and the series was ended. Clarkson took the first game, 2-0, and the Kingston (Ontario) six won last night's test by 5-0.

Nichols Sextet Bows

Exeter's powerful sextet carried off the honors in the second annual Northwood School invitation prep school hockey tournament by sweeping to a 4-1 victory over Nichols School of Buffalo in the final at the Olympic arena.

After holding Exeter in check for the first two periods, the losers could not cope with the Red and Gray offense in the third session, when Coach Percy C. Rogers' lads registered all their tallies within about three minutes.

Bill Saunders started the New Hampshire rally by counting in 5:41. Nine seconds later, James Sloane took a relay from Charley Thompson and tallied. Thompson and Daniel K. Stuckey sent the puck past Coley, the Nichols goalie, in 6:52 and 8:29 before Ross Thompson accounted for the losers' only tally in 9:28.

Nichols, which played a 1-1 tie with Northwood last night, engaged in two overtime sessions of eight minutes each with the host sextet this morning and reached the final when Winston Croucher dented the net after 4:05 of the second extra session.

Victors Shared 1936 Laurels

This is the second time that Exeter has won laurels in this tourney, as it finished in a deadlock with Albany last year, five overtime periods failing to break the 1-all tie.

The first consolation prize in the competition was won by Albany, which blanked Williston, 5-0. Northwood topped Choate, 3-2, and Morristown subdued Andover, 1-0, on Capt. Arthur Watson's side shot in 8:46 of the second session in the other consolation matches.

No Wonder He Is Happy

This smiling "o-sumo-san," wrestler, is 24-year-old Mayedayama, who was elevated to the rank of "ohseki" or rank immediately below grand champion at a meeting of the moguls of the Japan Sumo Association Wednesday, because of his impressive record (11 victories and 2 defeats) in the 13-day tournament which ended Tuesday.

Japan Wins, 5-0 From Hungary At Table Tennis

Japan defeated Hungary by 3 matches to 2 in the third and final international table tennis meets Wednesday night at the Asahi Kaikan at Osaka. Hungary won the first, 5-0, and Japan, the second, 4-1, both at the Hibiya Public Hall auditorium on January 16 and 18 respectively.

Takashi Kon of Waseda, national collegiate champion, took on Stefan Kelen in the first match of the evening and defeated him in three sets, 21-11, 21-9 and 21-13.

Kawakami scored another point for Japan by vanquishing Miklos Szabades in the second singles match by 21-19, 17-21, 24-22 and 23-21. It was a battle royal all the way and the match took 50 minutes.

Watanabe and Kon then came through with a spectacular performance to down the world famous Hungarians in the doubles match, 21-15, 21-11 and 21-13.

The other two singles matches went to the Hungarians. Kelen played steadily to return the smashes of Nakagawa and beat him in three sets, 21-15, 21-14 and 21-15. Szabados tumbled Watanabe in three sets, 21-16, 22-20 and 21-16.

Waseda, Rikkyo In Final Of Ice Hockey Tourney

Waseda and Rikkyo entered the final of the ice hockey competition of the 9th Meiji Shrine games Wednesday night at the Shibaura arena and are slated to clash at 7 tonight on the same ice for the championship.

Waseda, national champions for the current season, eliminated the Nikko Furukawa team by 4 goals to 2 through a third period rally that netted the two winning goals.

Rikkyo won the other contest on the semi-finals by scoring a one-sided victory of 8 goals to 3 over Meiji.

In the figure skating competition Toshiichi Katayama of Kwansei Gakuin and Miss Etsuko Inada of the Osaka Skating Club led easily after the first day's school figures.

The scores were:

Men's skating: 1. Toshiichi Katayama (Kwansei Gakuin), 74.30 points; 2. Takasuke Arisaka (Meiji), 64.80 points; 3. Fujimaru Shojishima (Kwansei Gakuin), 63.50 points; 4. Tatsuo Kobayashi (Meiji), 51.10 points; 5. Yorio Iga (Kwansei Gakulin), 39.60 points.

Women's skating: 1. Etsuko Inada (Kansai), 76 points; 2. Reiko Yoshioka (Kansai), 57.50 points; 3. Misako Suzuki (Kanto), 55.80 points; 4. Michiko Yano (Kanto), 44.30 points.

Miss Cranz Cops Combined Event In Ski Meet

By The Domei Tsushin Sha

GARMISCH - PARTENKIRCHEN, Jan. 26—Miss Christel Cranz, German holder of the 1936 Olympic women's ski title, today led a field of 25 competitors to capture first place in the combined downhill slalom which was run as the opening event of the International Ski Meet here this morning. Her time for the 4-kilomete course was 4 minutes 35.8 seconds.

She was followed by Miss Liza Resch̄ger, also of Germany, and Miss Willie Steuris, of Switzerland. Fourth place winner was Miss Katie Grasegger of Berlin. Their respective times were: 4 minutes 44.4 seconds, 4 minutes 50.4 seconds, and 5 minutes 5.2 seconds.

More than a thousand spectators were present to see the races. Six nations are participating in the meet.

Austrians Lead

By The Domei Tsushin Sha

GARMISCH - PARTENKIRCHEN, Jan. 25—Austrian and German entries took the lead in the men's combined downhill-slalom which was run over the same course as the 1936 winter Olympic Games as the International Winter Games got under way here this morning. Woerndle, of Germany, and Kneissl, of Austria, took first and second places respectively with the times of 4 minutes 22.4 seconds and 4 minutes 27 seconds.

Gantner, of Germany, Schwabl, of Austria and Kemser, of Germany, took third, fourth and fifth places respectively, while the 1936 Olympic champion for the event, Franz Pfnuer, of Germany, took tenth.

Tamotsu Tsugui, one of the many entries from Japan, finished his run in six minutes 25.2 seconds.

Filipino Fighters Poor In Debut; 2 Beaten, 1 Gets Draw

The three loudly ballyhooed fighters from Manila proved a big disappointment in their debut Wednesday night at the Kokugikan bowl at Ryogoku, the scene up to Tuesday evening of the 13-day professional sumo tournament. Two were defeated and one got a draw with somewhat mediocre fighters of the Fuji Boxing Club which promoted the show. It was a mistake to have the three bouts slated for 10 rounders.

Fighting Guzman, who had been expected to make a most impressive appearance, led in points at the beginning with a good right uppercut and lefts and rights to the body, but he was in poor physical condition and he became foot-weary. Tadatsune Tsuruta came from behind to earn a draw. Guzman weighed in at 120 pounds and Tsuruta at 117.5 pounds.

Motoshige Murata, 147 pounds, scored a technical knockout over Johnny Well, a Negro, 141 pounds in the third round.

Toshiro Aoki, 124.5 pounds, decisioned Terrible Reyes, 128 pounds, in the other 10-rounder.

"BELIEVE IT OR NOT"---by Ripley

Built An Auto Before He Saw One

The first automobile built in Alaska was constructed by Robert E. Sheldon in 1905 at Skagway. Mr. Sheldon went to Alaska in 1898 at the age of 14—before he had ever seen a "horse-less carriage." A few years later he saw advertisements of autos in magazines, and from the general descriptions he read and studied, he formed his own idea of a motor carriage. He took an old single cylinder auto-marine engine of 3½ H.P. and placed it crosswise between the front wheels, powering the rear wheels by means of two bicycle chains and sprockets. He steered it by a long handle—as were most autos of that time—instead of the conventional steering wheel.

This unique car is now in the University of Alaska Museum in Fairbanks, and Mr. Sheldon is United States Postmaster in the same city.

Major League Baseball Appears Headed For Another Big Season

By RUD RENNIE

N.Y. Herald Tribune

NEW YORK, Jan. 2—Major league baseball enjoyed one of its best years. A close race sustained interest in the National League. The dominant power of the Yankees compelled interest in the American League. All told, the two major leagues played to approximately 10,000,000 persons.

Whether the two leagues do as well this year depends on general economic conditions. If conditions grow worse, the major leagues will reflect the difference not so much in attendance figures as in receipts. The fans will continue to go to ball games, but they will buy cheaper seats.

If general economic conditions are no worse than they were last year, the major leagues are likely to do even better than they did in 1937. Three possible developments would help tremendously.

A close race in the American League would be a great help. A good team in Brooklyn would benefit every club in the National League financially. And another national idol, like Babe Ruth, would create that extra interest which fills ball parks.

Fans Hope for Close Race

There has not been a photo-finish in the American League since 1922, when the Yankees finished first, one game ahead of the St. Louis Browns. Always, fans are hoping for a close race in the American League, but one club or another usually runs away with the pennant.

Lately the Yankees have taken a strangle-hold on baseball in general. They not only romp off with all the honors in their own league they wallop the pick of the National League almost single-handed in the All-Star game, and beat the daylights out of the National League's champion in the World Series.

Listening to the hue and cry, one would think the Yankees were a menace.

The Yankees have won two pennants and two world championships in succession. They are favored to win again this year, but even those who think they will win are hoping the Detroit Tigers or the Cleveland Indians, or some one, will battle them right up to the wire.

The Yankees may lack pitching. They also may have a weakness at second base. Tony Lazzeri is no longer on the team and the job will be handled by a rookie, Joe Gordon, from Newark.

Yankees Sure of Power

After magnifying the Yankees' possible weaknesses, one must acknowledge that Lou Gehrig probably will be as good as he was last year and that Joe DiMaggio will be better, and the team will probably bristle again with power.

So, the only hope for a close race in the American League lies not in the weakening of the Yankees, but in the improvement of the Tigers and the Indians.

With Gehringer, York and Greenberg, the Tigers have a power team. And they may have a fine pitching staff if Schoolboy Rowe stages a comeback and the youngsters, Poffenberger, Wade, Gill and George Coffman come through as expected.

The Indians, under the management of Oscar Vitt, may snap out of it. They may have a really great pitching staff if Bob Feller's arm is all right and Johnny Allen pitches anywhere near as well as he did last season when he won fifteen games in succession before losing one, the last game of the year.

The Tigers and the Indians are the only teams that can be seen from this distance that are likely to give the Yankees a tussle.

Close Race Foreseen

In the other league, there is almost sure to be another close race. The Giants, like the Yankees, have won two pennants in succession, much to their own surprise. Twice they have picked themselves up off the floor and come on to pass the leaders and win. Maybe they can do it again this year.

It is virtually the same team with Mel Ott due for his first full season as a third baseman.

The Chicago Cubs, the St. Louis Cardinals and the Pittsburgh Pirates figure to be the teams the Giants will have to beat. A lot will depend on how the great Dizzy Dean feels about pitching again for the Cardinals and on whether the Cubs succeed in ransoming Van Lingle Mungo, the fire-ball hurler, from the Dodgers.

The chances of Brooklyn having a winning team are rather remote. But any improvement would be appreciated by the fans and reflected at the gate. Even last year, when the Dodgers' fortunes were low, they drew only 7,000 less than in 1936.

And the growth of a national idol is quite likely if Bob Feller goes through a full season pitching with the amazing ability of which he is capable, or if DiMaggio were to threaten Ruth's home-run record.

National Ball Deadened

There will be a new and slightly deader ball in use in the National League this year. It is supposed to be helpful to the pitchers, but, when hit solidly, it will travel almost as far as the old ball still in use in the American League.

One thing is noticeable in the preparations of the major league clubs for the coming season: there have been remarkably few player deals among major league teams. Fewer major league trades have been made this winter than ever before. In close contrast, the influx of high class rookies from the minor leagues is greater than ever.

The reason for this is simple. The development and growth of the chain-store system has brought about a different procedure in team building. No longer do owners and managers depend heavily on their luck and ability as traders to improve their teams. They develop their own players on their farms.

In this business of developing young players, the Yankees again are far in front. Everywhere you go you've got to beat the Yankees.

Intramural Card Is Popular With Iowa State Men

Christian Science Monitor

AMES, Iowa, Dec. 24—More than half of the male students at Iowa State College competed in one or another form of intramural athletics during the fall quarter, statistics compiled by Harry Schmidt, intramural director, reveal.

The total participants in the 11 fall sports reached the 2,000 mark to assure a successful year for the all-inclusive Cyclone sport program. The male enrollment is 3,800 this fall.

Touch football, played with nine-man teams, proved to be the most popular with Iowa State men. A total of 876 men participated in round-robin leagues staged for fraternity upperclassmen, fraternity freshmen, dormitories and wards (organizations of men living in boarding houses and private homes).

Table tennis, the only other sport open this fall to all four competitive divisions, attracted 640, while golf putting drew 130 competitors. Other fall sports included in the program were horseshoes, tumbling, bowling, water polo, handball, track, tennis and swimming.

A colorful 11-event program is booked for the winter quarter. Nearly 1,250 will compete in basketball alone. The competitors will represent more than 130 teams who will play regularly scheduled games with teams of their own classification and relative ability.

By the end of the school year, Coach Schmidt predicts that the athletic program will have reached more than 75 per cent of the male enrollment.

Katayama, Inada Are Winners In Figure Skating

The figure skating championships of the ninth Meiji Shrine games went to Toshiichi Katayama of Kwansei Gakuin and Miss Etsuko Inada of the Osaka Skating Club as expected Thursday afternoon as the closing free skating competition was held at the Shibaura rink.

The ice hockey championship was captured by the Rikkyo University stick wielders, who displayed an excellent passing attack to turn the tables over Waseda, the national champions, by three goals to nil.

Miss Inada Shines

The performance of Miss Inada, who as the youngest contestant captured tenth place in the women's figure skating in the Fourth Winter Olympic Games at Garmisch-Partenkirchen in 1936, drew an overflowing crowd. The place was a sellout at 5:30. She showed tremendous improvement over her last appearance.

Scores were:

Men's Skating: won by Toshiichi Katayama (Kwansei Gakuin), place number, 3; school, 74.3 points, free, 63.2 points, total 137.5 points; second, Takasuke Arizaka (Meiji), 6; 64.6 points, 53.2 points, total 117.8 points; third, Fujimaru Shojishima (Nihon University), 9; 63.5 points, 45.6 points, total 109.1 points; fourth, Tatsuo Kobayashi (Meiji), 12; 51.1 points, 39.2 points, total 90.3 points; fifth, Yorio Iga (All-Kansai), 15; 39.6 points, 40.8 points, total 80.4 points.

Women's Skating: won by Etsuko Inada (Osaka Skating Club), 3; 75 points, 67.2 points, total 143.2 points; second, Misako Suzuki (Kanto), 7; 55.8 points, 37.8 points, total 93.6 points; third, Reiko Yorioka (Kobe Skating Club), 8; 57.5 points, 36.8 points, total 94.3 points; fourth, Michiko Yano (Tokyo Skating Club), 12; 44.3 points, 38.4 points, total 82.7 points.

Rikkyo Gets Revenge

Victory was sweet to the Rikkyo University sextet as it had been defeated by the same Waseda combination in both the finals of the collegiate and national championships.

Both teams were unable to get going in the first period and it ended scoreless. Rikkyo registered the first goal after 13 minutes of play in the second period. With a scrimmage going on in Waseda territory, Sunada maneuvered himself into position to a point about 2 yards to the left of the goal. Then taking a beautiful pass from Center Forward Koyanagi, Sunada did excellent feinting with his stick. Goalie Nakazawa left his position tricked, and Sunada promptly pushed the puck into the goal. Forward Tanaka scored the other goal for Rikkyo in the same period on a pass from Koyanagi.

Sunada registered the final Rikkyo goal in the third period on another brilliant pass from Koyanagi.

The great defensive play of Goalie Nakazawa of Waseda was one of the highlights of the game.

The line-ups follow:

Rikkyo: Tanaka, Saito, Sumida, Omura, Koyanagi and Goto, forwards; Tani and Ohashi, defense; Miyake, goalie.

Waseda: Nakagawa, Yoshijima, Onikura, Soda, Kosuda, Shichida, and Morimoto, forwards; Ichikawa and Yasuda, defense; Nakazawa, goalie.

Auburn Defeats Michigan State At Miami, 6-0

N.Y. Herald Tribune

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 1—Auburn gave the South its first victory in the four-year history of Orange Bowl football by smashing out a 6-to-0 triumph today over Michigan State before a holiday crowd of 19,000.

Auburn bottled up the Spartans' vaunted Johnny Pingel, who received all-American mention, and kept Michigan State on the defensive throughout the afternoon.

Auburn, sparked by Jimmy Fenton, who finished his football career in a blaze of glory, and Spec Kelly, a sophomore who gave promise of greatness today, pushed over its touchdown in the second period after a thirty-six-yard downfield drive.

O'Gwynne Goes Over

A short punt by Gene Ciolek early in the second period gave Auburn the ball on the Spartan 36-yard line. Pel Sietz started the winning drive with a five-yard gain. George Kenmore then flipped a twenty-nine-yard aerial to Ralph O'Gwynne, who stepped over the goal line three plays later.

Michigan State held desperately for two plays but O'Gwynne, fast stepping youngter, streaked wide around Michigan State's right end. Ed Pearce hit O'Gwynne, but the Auburn husky fell over the line. Garth Thorpe's attempt for the extra point was wide.

Pingel, Michigan State's star, never could get started. Auburn's linesmen ganged him early in the game and he was unable to get away for more than three or four yards at a time. The Spartans were unable to click with Pingel out of the picture.

The Auburn offensive got under way early in the game. A twenty-five-yard jaunt by Fenton in the first quarter put the ball on the Spartan 12-yard line. But Auburn lost the ball on downs and Pingel punted out of bounds on the Plainsmen's 37.

Kelly's Pass Intercepted

Kelly then started the second Auburn drive downfield by reeling off seventeen yards on a split buck. Kelly and Dutch Heath picked up another first down. But Auburn's efforts went for naught when Tom McShannock intercepted a pass by Kelly.

They played their best in the third period. They kept Auburn at midfield until late in the frame when a break gave Auburn the ball on Michigan State's 34. A pass from Pingel intended for Ernie Bremer was tipped into Heath's outstretched arms and the Plainsmen were off again.

Kenmore connected with a seventeen-yard heave to Heath, putting Auburn inside Michigan State's 20-yard line for the fourth time of the afternoon. But the drive died aborning when Kenmore passed over the goal incomplete.

Waseda Drew Largest Gate Of 'Big Six' Nines During Seasons Of 1937

As in former years, Waseda University's baseball team drew the largest gate during the spring and fall seasons of the Tokyo Six University in 1937, and accordingly was given the largest share of the net receipts, it was learned at the annual meeting of the league at the Seiyoken restaurant in the Marunouchi Building.

Hence, Waseda's share was ¥55,058.79. Next came Meiji, champions of the two seasons, with ¥48,547.36. The other allotments were: Keio, 48,388.91; Hosei, ¥45,254.41; Tokyo Imperial, ¥42,870.82; and Rikkyo, ¥42,364.55.

Gross receipts for the whole year totaled ¥412,160.95, principal items of which follow:

Sale of reserved seats—¥133,060, divided as follows: behind the net—¥95,160; first base bleachers—¥13,950; third base bleachers—¥13,950.

General admission tickets—¥261,503.40; as follows: students tickets—¥20,249.40; "A" class infield tickets ¥57,892; "B" class infield tickets—¥47,174; outfield tickets—¥136,188.

Disbursements for the year totaled ¥396,921.72, which including the above mentioned allotments to member institutions include the following principal items:

Contribution to national defense fund—¥14,443.77 to the Army; ¥14,443.77 to the Navy, or a total of ¥28,887.54.

Rental for use of the Meiji Shrine stadium ¥39,511.28.

Miscellaneous expenditures on days of games—¥13,983.30.

Contribution to fund of ninth Meiji Shrine games—¥1,393.64.

Expenditures of the league headquarters—¥30,661.12.

The league will enter the 1938 season with a surplus of ¥23,239.23.

Saturday, April 16, was decided by the league directors as the opening date for the spring season. It was believed that the past practice of selecting the second Saturday in April was a bit too early.

It was agreed that the league should push the movement for the inclusion of baseball as an official event of the 12th Olympic Games to be staged in Tokyo in 1940. In this connection, directors of the baseball divisions of the six member teams of the league are expected to call on the Tokyo Olympic Organizing Committee in the near future and request its cooperation. Support of the United States Olympic Association will also be requested in presenting the matter to the meeting of the International Olympic Committee scheduled to open at Cairo on March 10.

Canada Davis Cup Challenger After Three Years' Lapse

NEW YORK, Jan. 3—Canada, which has not competed for the Davis Cup for three years, has returned as a 1938 challenger while eight European nations also have filed their entries, the United States Lawn Tennis Association has announced.

Entries for the 1938 Davis Cup play do not close until Jan. 31, and officials considered the big early list an indication that there would be a large number of challenges this year. Under Davis Cup regulations any nation with an official tennis governing body (there are 42) is eligible. Last year there were 24 challengers for the trophy then held by Great Britain.

So far Canada is the only nation to challenge in the North American zone which, like the European zone, is open to all nations. The deadline for South American zone entries closed last September with no challengers and none has been received yet in the Pacific section.

In Europe the eight nations which already have challenged, in the order in which their entries were received, are: Great Britain, Switzerland, India, Yugoslavia, Austria, Rumania, Greece and Czechoslovakia. Germany, beaten by the United States in the inter-zone final last year, and France are almost certain entries in the European zone. Australia is likely to compete in the American zone although in past years the Australians have competed both here and in Europe.

Waner Declares Medwick Will Be Greatest Hitter

SARASOTA, Fla., Dec. 24—Paul Waner, a past master himself at the art of getting base hits, expressed belief today that Joe Medwick will become the greatest righthand batter in baseball's history.

The Pirate outfielder, who lost the National League batting crown to Medwick of the St. Louis Cardinals last season, said even the loop's new "dead ball" won't stop Ducky.

"I saw Rogers Hornsby play several seasons and always figured he was the greatest batter that ever lived," commented Waner.

"That is, until Medwick came along. Right now, I believe he is Hornsby's equal and with many years to go should surpass the 'Rajah.'"

"How about Joe Di Maggio?" Waner was asked.

"I've seen the Yankee sensation only in All-Star and exhibition games and really don't know so much about him, but I think Medwick is a far better hitter," he replied.

In fielding, Waner conceded an edge to Di Maggio over the Cardinals' slugger.

Waner, whose batting average for 12 seasons in the majors is .349, said he believed the new ball would pull down hitting percentages in general, but wouldn't eliminate fluke hits.

"Fluke hits," he added, "are just as much a part of the game as home runs. No matter what they do to the ball they won't eliminate them."

Waner's "cure" for a less lively ball is a lighter bat. He has ordered four dozen 33- and 34-ounce sticks for use next year. Last season he swung a 37-ounce bludgeon.

Italians Score Sweep In 18 Km. Ski Event

By The Domei Tsushin Sha

GARMISCH - PARTENKIRCHEN, Jan. 28—A sensational Italian triumph today marked the opening of the third day of the International Ski Championships here as five out of the six first places in the 18-kilometer race run off this morning went to athletes wearing Fascist colors.

Iversen, of Norway, was the only non-Italian to place in the event, taking third behind Gerardi and Demez while fourth, fifth and sixth places also went to the Italians. Gerardi's winning time was 1 hour 9 minutes and 53 seconds.

Tomizo Kikuchi, Japanese entry in the event, finished far behind the leaders.

Heggen, of Norway, meanwhile, captured the combination race with a time of 1 hour 14 minutes and 30 seconds. He was followed by Hieble, of Germany, Burk, of Germany, Lian, of Norway, and Poppa, of Germany.

Stanford Defeats New York Cagers Before 18,000

By ARTHUR J. DALEY

N.Y. Times

NEW YORK, Dec. 28—The first sell-out of the new basketball season greeted Madison Square Garden last night as 18,000 spectators stormed the arena for a double-header, bringing together Minnesota and Long Island University in one game, and Stanford and City College in the other. The ticket supply was exhausted yesterday noon.

The first game saw the Midwesterners outclass the Blackbirds, 56 to 41. It was the worst defeat in recent seasons for an L. I. U. team.

The Indians from Stanford took the second part of the double bill from City College, 45 to 42. Sanford led at half time, 20 to 14. It was the first setback this season for the Lavender. City College made a desperate rally late in the game.

The Gophers gave a dazzling display early in their contest with the Blackbirds and rolled up a 34-21 lead at half time. The Garden had not seen such shooting in many a moon.

Minnesota made good on short shots and long ones with equal facility. In ball-handling they were one of the best combinations ever to appear in New York, and their shooting had never been equaled.

Fast Pace Set

The midwesterners ripped off the starting mark, rolled up a huge lead, were overhauled, and then the two teams waged a nip-and-tuck battle. Twice the score was tied, and three times the lead changed hands.

But then Minnesota put on pressure in a score-fest. Four baskets were tallied in a single minute. Toward the latter stages of the half the Gophers began to unlimber their long-range guns.

Gordon Spear, a substitute, entered the line-up, took three shots from midcourt and never even touched the rim once as all three swished through the net. Such superb shooting left the Blackbirds out-distanced and they could not make serious inroads on Minnesota's margin.

In the beginning L. I. U. neither followed up its own shots nor picked the ball off its basket. But as soon as the Blackbirds began to improve their tactics, the tide turned and L. I. U. started to climb.

Ten in Row for Gophers

The New Yorkers made 10 points in a row to go into the lead for the first time. Then Minnesota drew up to 13—13. That was moved up to 15-all, and then the Gophers began to go. They had terrific speed and plenty of ability. It was too much for Long Island.

The second half opened with Kundla dropping in a foul but Kaplowitz slammed in a set shot and Torgoff curled the ball in from underneath. Newman popped in a long shot and Hillhouse added a charity toss. Addington broke this string with a steal, a dribble and a basket but then departed from the game on personal fouls. Minnesota led, 37 to 28, with twelve minutes to go.

Sewitch made two fouls but Maki matched them with a bat-in of a follow shot. Dick whirled underneath for a fast lay-up toss but Kaplowitz sank a set shot. Dick made good on a free throw, then Maki and Spear scored on long efforts, and Minnesota was ahead, 46 to 32.

Torgoff Comes Through

Maki connected with a foul and Spear on a lay-up shot after a pass from Kundla. Then Kundla tallied on a steal and tacked on a foul. Torgok pitched in a one-hander, but Nash came back with a foul. Torgoff made good on a foul before curling in a lay-up on a sleeper play. What happened afterward hardly mattered.

City College scored first in the second game as Goldstein pitched in a field goal in the first few seconds. He added a foul but Luisetti matched that and Stoefen's set shot made the count 3—all. Fliegel broke the deadlock with charity toss.

Stanford popped into the lead when Luisetti hooked in a short toss and Stoefen pitched in a one-hander on a pass from Luisetti. Stoefen scored from the corner, and Phil Zonne with a one-hander on a feed from Luisetti. The Indians led, 11 to 4, after ten minutes.

Score on Luisetti's Passes

Stoefen clicked with a foul and Katz with a long shot. Paris made good on a follow and added a free throw. But Phil Zonne tossed in a one-hander on a pass from Luisetti and so did Lee, the Californians taking a 16-to-9 lead.

U.S. Or European Zone In Davis Cup Play Considered

Upon Germany's decision will depend Japan's entry in the European or American zone of this year's Davis Cup competition.

Whether or not to compete in the American zone as last year is being seriously considered at present by the Japan Lawn Tennis Association. Entries will close on January 31.

If Germany elects to enter the American zone, it would be to the advantage of the Japanese Davis Cuppers to return to the European zone, it is said, for the reason that they would have little chance of success in the American zone, facing such powerful opposition from the German and Australian teams. Competition in the American zone is preferred for the Japanese players because entry in the European zone means an early departure from Japan, long travel and a larger number of contests which tend to affect their condition.

Cramm Favored U.S.

Indications are strong that Germany will enter the American zone. When Baron Gottfried von Cramm was here last November with his Davis Cup team-mate, Henner Henkel, he intimated a preference for competition in the American zone. He explained that the long series of contests in the European zone to get to the inter-zone finals is too tiring on the players. He expressed confidence at the time that the Reich team would be able to defeat the Australians and take on the United States in the challenge round.

Two members of the Davis Cup team will be selected at a meeting of the Association on February 6. Jiro Yamagishi and Fumiteru Nakano, last year's players, are expected to be named without a dissenting vote. Two other candidates are Yasumine Kuramitsu of Kansai University, who recently was ranked No. 1 for the 1937 season, and Reizo Murakami of Keio University.

The schedule of play in the American and European zones and the challenge round of this Davis Cup competition follows:

American zone: first round, August 4 and the two days following or the three days beginning July 8.

European zone: first round must be finished before May 10; second round: must be played by May 20; semi-finals, the three days beginning July 22; finals, the three days beginning July 29.

Inter-zone finals—end of August.

Challenge round—September 3, 4 and 5.

As the start of its activities of the second year of its five-year plan for winning of the Davis Cup, the Japan Lawn Tennis Association will hold a meeting of the Davis Cuppers, Yamagishi and Nakano, and the first 20 ranking players in the singles on the afternoon of January 31, and stage a workout at the Denyen courts on February 1.

Japanese Win Again From Hungarians At Table Tennis By 3-2

The All-Japan contingent defeated the visiting world-famous Hungarian table tennis experts, Miklos Szabados and Stefan Kelen, for the third straight time in a match at the Asahi Kaikan at Nagoya Friday night. The score was 3 matches to 2.

Kawakami, Kon and Watanabe won for Japan by winning their respective singles matches. They were:

Kawakami defeated Kelen, 21-14, 21-18, 21-18; Kon defeated Szabados, 21-13, 21-16, 21-11; Watanabe defeated Szabados, 18-21, 21-13, 21-17, 21-7.

The Hungarians took the doubles match, beating Nakagawa and Kawakami, 21-17, 21-16, 15-21, 21-19.

Kelen scored the other point for Hungary by taking the measure of Ishibashi, 21-18, 21-15 and 22-20.

Penn Wrestling Coach Sees East Challenging West

Christian Science Monitor

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 24—The Southwest and the Middle West, long the stronghold of intercollegiate wrestling, will find its path to national honors blocked in the very near future by an aroused East, in the opinion of Austin Bishop, coach of wrestling at the University of Pennsylvania.

An intercollegiate champion during his undergraduate days at Franklin and Marshall and the victor in 123 bouts out of 125 during his competitive career, Bishop is one of the best informed wrestling authorities in the country. In 1932 and again in 1936 he was an Olympic referee and as a result had occasion not only to study American methods but those of other countries as well.

East Improving

"The East is bound to have better teams from now on for one most important reason and that is the interest being displayed in the sport in the high and prep schools," said Bishop. "Schools in all parts of the East that heretofore regarded wrestling as beyond the pale for schoolboys, have come to realize its value as a competitive sport and as a developer of young bodies."

"This year for the first time, the Pennsylvania Interscholastic Athletic Association plans to hold a series of meets which will culminate in a championship. New Jersey has had a title meet for some years and on Long Island there has been a district championship meet in recent years.

"The increase in interest among the schools is the result of college wrestlers entering the teaching profession after graduation and introducing the sport in their schools. As a result of this procedure, college coaches now have among the candidates for their teams individuals who have had some instruction in wrestling.

"Pennsylvania as well as Lehigh, Princeton, Cornell, Franklin and Marshall, to name only a few in the East, are feeling the effects of the influx among their student bodies of wrestling candidates who do not have to be taught from the ground up. You know that most college wrestlers without prior instruction, do not become really adept in the sport until their senior year.

"Oklahoma and other southwestern states and many in the middle and far west, have had wrestling in the schools for many years with the natural result that the colleges in those sections have had strong teams yearly. It will be that way in the East before very long."

Increased Interest

As proof of the increased interest in the sport at Pennsylvania, Bishop pointed out that this year for the first time in the history of the sport that started in 1905 at the Red and Blue institution, more than a hundred candidates have reported for the various teams.

To take care of such a large number, a schedule has been arranged that will include varsity, junior varsity and freshman competition. The junior varsity team is the first Pennsylvania has had.

With a veteran team that last year, his first as a coach, demonstrated its possibilities, Pennsylvania should enjoy this year, its best wrestling season in many years. From Bob Allman, who reached the Intercollegiate finals last year, to George Becker, the heavyweight, the team is studded with veterans.

In addition to Allman and Becker, Bishop has available the following veterans: Herb Brenner, 126 pounds; Bill McKee, 135 pounds; Bud Scott, 145 pounds; Bud Hill, 155 pounds; Ben Ruggiero, 165 pounds; and Phil Voorhees, 175 pounds. Six members of last year's freshman team are giving the veterans a keen fight for positions on the team.

America Plans To Use Movies To Spur Tennis

NEW YORK—The United States Lawn Tennis Association, sitting powerful and octopus-like on lower Broadway, has embraced the motion picture as the most forceful medium of popularizing tennis over the country and laying the foundation for an everlasting Davis Cup supremacy.

Both producer and booking agent, the association is preparing to exhibit throughout the nation a full-length, two-hour film showing the past and present greats of the game in action. Already more than 300 clubs and individuals have applied for the film.

In order that the film may have the widest possible showing, it is being prepared for the 16 millimeter projector, or about half the professional size. Thousands are owned by clubs and individuals, and they are easily set up and operated. The association will charge only $10 rental on the film and expects only to break even financially.

Purpose Twofold

The purpose of the film, an official explained, is twofold: (1) to make the youngsters, who haven't yet adopted any particular sport, tennis conscious, and (2) to teach the fine points of the game to those who are playing only patch-work tennis.

"We have the Davis Cup now, but if we are to keep it we must have a continuous flow of fresh talent," he explained. "The cup was away 10 years the last time, and that's entirely too long. If this picture wins over only one boy who become a world star, it will have served its purpose."

The film shows portions of all the principal matches in the last championships at Forest Hills, with plenty of slow-motion of such stars as Donald Budge, Gottfried Frhr. von Cramm and Bobby Riggs. The women stars, Anita Lizana, Jadwiga Jedrzejowska and Alice Marble, also take up their share of footage.

What might prove the most popular part of the picture, though, are action shots of famous matches of as far back as a decade ago, between Bill Tilden and Henri Cochet, Tilden and Rene Lacoste, and Tilden and "Little Bill" Johnston. Helen Wills also is seen in several of her outstanding triumphs.

Big Surprise Coming

"I'm afraid a lot of the young folks who think real tennis history began with Ellsworth Vines, Fred Perry and Don Budge are due to get a terrific surprise when they see what Bill Tilden was like in his prime," chuckled a U. S. L. T. A. bigwig, who thought it best to remain nameless.

"And the ones who think the modern crop of women players are about tops, wait until they get a glimpse of Helen Wills back when she wore her pig tails. It's going to be funny."

Critics who have gone over the film carefully agree that it won't do much toward teaching the beginner how to make all his strokes properly. The trouble is that no two of the greats wallop the ball the same way. Each has his own peculiarity—Don Budge his backhand, Fred Perry his wrist-action forehand, and so on.

Vincent Richards is recognized as one of the finest volleyers the game ever knew, yet in the picture he is seen to get his legs into such grotesque positions at the net that the previewers howled. The tennis champion is born apparently, never made.

Clock Clogged By Fish

Atop City Hall tower in Bay City, Michigan, 125 feet in the air and quite a distance from the river, is the old City Hall clock,—yet the clock used to become clogged with fish. Years ago the clock was operated by water power, piped from the basement of the building. This water supply was filled with little fishes, and occasionally the screening in the pipe intended to keep the fishes out would give way, and bucketsful of fishes would be pumped into the air and clog the clock. It is now operated by compressed air.

Mayedayama Wins In Special Sumo Tourney By Hochi

More than 30,000 rabid fans jammed the Kokugikan bowl at Ryogoku to witness the 16th annual sumo tournament sponsored by the Hochi Shimbun, featuring the leading professional wrestlers who participated recently in the spring season championships at the same bowl.

Yokozuna or Grand Champion Futabayama, who in the aforesaid tourney won his fourth straight championship without a defeat, took on five stalwarts in quick succession and defeated them all. His opponents were: Akinoumi, Kojimakawa, Tsurugamine, Tsukubamine and Oshio.

Then in the final day's exhibition match between two yokozuna, Futabayama once again vanquished the mighty Tamanishiki. Once again, it was cleverly executed throw that sent Tamanishiki's more than 300 pound body sailing through the air to land in a heap on the sand.

The up and coming 24-year old Mayedayama, who recently was promoted to ohseki or rank immediately below yokozuna, emerged victorious in the elimination bouts of leading members of the makunouchi or first ranking circle. The bouts were:

First round

Tomoegata defeated Kyushuzan.
Haguroyama defeated Aobayama.
Onami won by forfeit from Ayanobori.
Akinoumi defeated Tamanouumi.
Banjaku defeated Tatekabuto.
Nayoroiwa defeated Shachinosato.
Itsutsushima defeated Kaneminato.
Mayedayama defeated Kasagiyama.

Second round

Haguroyama defeated Tomoegata.
Akinoumi defeated Onami.
Nayoroiwa defeated Banjaku.
Mayedayama defeated Itsutsushima.

Semi-finals

Haguroyama defeated Akinoumi.
Mayedayama defeated Nayoroiwa.

Final

Mayedayama defeated Haguroyama.

Temple Conquers Stanford By 35-31

By FRANCIS J. O'RILEY
N.Y. Times

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 30—Stanford's splendid basketball team finally met defeat in the East as Temple gained revenge for last season's setback with a well-earned 35-to-31 victory over the visitors from the Coast in the second game of a doubleheader at Convention Hall tonight. In the first contest St. Joseph's defeated Mississippi State, 39 to 23.

The largest crowd that ever saw a basketball program in Philadelphia witnessed the twin bill, 11,793 jamming their way into the hall, and it was estimated that more than 5,000 were turned away. Lines of fans trying to gain standing room extended nearly two blocks.

Hank Luisetti and his mates fought hard and did not disappoint their many admirers, but in the Owls they met opponents who were more than their match. Temple combined splendid shooting with a clever defense and blocked the Stanford offense so effectively in the first half that the Cardinals were able to tally only 13 points while the victors made 21.

Temple Regains Stride

The Owls fought doggedly when Stanford threatened near the end and refused to be panic-stricken when the Coast team went into the lead with about five minutes remaining. Playing steadily they regained the lead with a rally of their own, and staved off the last desperate rush of the visitors.

In justice to the visitors it must be said that they showed the effects of their games early in the week. And they received an added blow when Luisetti was injured about a minute and a half before the game ended. Although he stayed in the game, he was plainly just playing on nerve.

Don Shields and Howard Black did most of the scoring for the Owls, Shields throwing in five field goals and two fouls, while Black had the same number of baskets. Black's last two came at an opportune time when Stanford was in front.

Luisetti played his usual fine game, doing most of the feeding and finding time to toss 11 points through the nets. Art Stoefen was finally held in check with Meyer Bloom, who guarded him during the time that Temple used a man-to-man defense, doing a splendid job.

Stanford took an early lead when Jack Calderwood dropped in a foul and a field goal and Luisetti a penalty goal, but it was the only time that the visitors led during the half. Temple tied it up on baskets by Eddie Boyle and Shiels; went ahead on a shot by Black, and held a 21-13 lead at the intermission.

Stanford Overhauls Rivals

In the second half Stanford started to cut down the Owls' margin and was several times within two points of the leaders and finally passed them at 28—27 on two fouls by Stoefen.

But Temple regained the lead on a long set shot by Don Henderson, brilliant sophomore, lost it again on Luisett's one-hander from the side and then went to the front for good at 31—30 on Black's heave. He added anotner and Shields dropped in a pair of fouls to give the victors a safe lead with a minute and a half left. Just before the whistle Stoefen dropped in the final Stanford point.

Boxer Armstrong Likely To Be Greatest Thrill Producer In U.S. Sports

By PAT ROBINSON

NEW YORK, Jan—(INS)—A thrill, the dictionaries tell us is an emotional reaction to anything that permeates our whole body.

If that be so, Henry Armstrong, the world's featherweight champion, probably will be the leading thrill producer in the world of sport through 1938.

The writer began wondering about sport thrills many years ago after failing to get a thrill out of what was one of the most thrilling fights of all time—the Firpo-Dempsey battle. I was interested, yes, but not thrilled, when Firpo knocked Dempsey over the ropes and even Dempsey's subsequent knockdowns and knockout of Firpo still left me cold.

I was puzzled about that because, before and since, I've had a real thrill out of far less interesting fights.

Right there I made note of the fact that it is necessary to be in the proper mood to get a thrill out of anything. And observation has since taught me that what will thrill one person or even one crowd will leave another person or another crowd cold. Ask any actor now differently two successive audiences will react to the same lines.

I have often noted that women and children are more easily thrilled than men, but because their emotions are closer to the surface and therefore more easily aroused.

That is why a rooting interest in any competitor or in any event is the first essential in putting you in the proper mood to obtain a thriller.

Go to the races some day without making a bet and note how little thrill you get. But put a few megs on some pony's nose and then note the difference. The chances are you'll get plenty of thrill especially if you happen to be rooting your horse home in a neck and neck finish.

That rooting interest needn't be confined to betting. It may take any form. It may consist by no more than pulling for the underdog to win or even dislike of one of the contestants, as for example, when half the crowd used to go to see Leach Cross fight in the hope of seeing him get licked.

The writer is often amused and sometimes amazed at the reaction of himself and others to sports events. I have often been stunned on Ladies Day at the Cubs' ball park listening to thousands of women cheering a pop foul back into the stands. Apparently the mere thud of bat on ball was enough to give them a thrill.

And the women around the ringside at fights in the Garden are a never ending source of wonder to me. Invariably if one fighter is receiving a terrible beating hundreds of men can be heard pleading with the referee to stop the fight. But not the women: Time and again I've watched them sitting forward, eyes shining, cheeks flushed, yelling for the winner to murder the other fellow.

One can find thrills in unexpected places. I can't recall being thrilled by any Army-Navy game but I never have failed to get a thrill out of watching the Middies and Kaydets march onto the field.

And I can vividly recall the thrill I got some years ago watching Keith Brown, whom I did not know, vault to a new record in the Garden. I don't know why a pole vault—of all things—should have given me such a thrill but I do recall that I rose right out of my seat trying to "pull" Brown over that bar.

Since then I've seen George Varoff and Bill Sefton, both of whom I know and like, break Brown's record but I never got the slightest thrill out of watching either of them. Perhaps that was because they looked so capable of breaking a record while Brown was in the position of an underdog with me because he seemed so frail and incapable of doing anything.

That reminds me that although the fight fans will get many a thrill watching Henry Armstrong knock out his opponents this year they will get a far greater thrill if some underdog happens to land one on Henry's whiskers and knock him out.

Anybody can get a nice, calm, pleasant enjoyment out of any sport, but for most of us, thrills—real thrills—come few and far between.

Parents Of Don Budge Will Urge Him To Enter Professional Tennis

NEW YORK, Dec. 22—Doubt that Donald Budge ever will turn professional was expressed today by Walter Pate, chairman of the United States Davis Cup committee during the past year.

Pate, who captained the victorious American team abroad and was for months closer to Budge than perhaps any other person, said he and the Californian many times had discussed the advisability of his turning pro.

"What his parents say is entirely correct," Pate agreed. "It's up to Don to figure out his own future, and nobody is going to blame him for a minute if he decides to play tennis for money.

"However, I have talked to him about it many times and I am inclined to doubt that he ever will give up his amateur standing. I did not advise him at all. But he told me he realized that in turning professional he would be giving up many things, that his standing would be changed completely.

"I know he hasn't yet made up his mind, despite all the stories to the contrary."

OAKLAND, Calif., Dec. 22—The parents of Don Budge, world tennis champion who wants to remain an amateur long enough to defend the Davis Cup, urged him to turn professional and "reap some material benefit from years of hard work."

This unusual advice emanated from the family kitchen, where Mrs. John Budge was doing dishes. It found the racket star on an exhibition tour of Australia.

"When Donny returns home, his father's going to give him a good talking to," Mrs. Budge told an interviewer. "We're going to try and convince him that the wise thing to do would be to turn professional and reap some material benefit from years of hard work he has put into his tennis.

"We've always kept our opinions in the background, but now we think it's time we spoke up."

Quickly Mrs. Budge added:

"We may talk ourselves blue in the face—but the final decision will be up to him."

That decision, sports prognosticators estimate, would make a difference of $100,000 in two seasons for his bank account. The red-headed won the Wimbledon and national championships this year and led the American team to recapture the Davis Cup for the first time in 10 years.

Budge, rated the nation's No. 1 athlete of 1937 in a poll of sports editors, so far has rejected professional offers.

But, said Mrs. Budge, whose husband is a printer:

"Neither Don nor we are any too well off, and there seems to be no sense to pass up such an opportunity."

Many sportsmen see Budge, who is 22, as the future traveling opponent of the winner of the coming season's professional tour between Ellsworth Vines and Fred Perry, who kept Budge from winning the national and Wimbledon titles in 1936.

Owens To Ask A.A.U. For Reinstatement

CHICAGO, Jan. 5—Jesse Owens, brilliant Negro track and field star who had a falling out with the A. A. U. after he had won four gold medals in the last Olympic Games, said today he would apply for reinstatement as an amateur.

The former Ohio State University speedster, holder of world running broad jump, sprint and hurdling records, made the decision today after a talk with J. Lyman Bingham, assistant to the president of the Amateur Athletic Union.

Owens went to Bingham's office to establish the amateur status of a Negro basketball team with which he is traveling and wound up by learning that A. A. U. rules gave him the right to ask removal of the ban placed when he refused to make a side trip to Sweden after the 1936 Olympic Games at Berlin.

"Mr. Bingham told me I could apply for reinstatement after I told him I never received any money above expenses for anything connected with sports and never received money for the use of my name for advertising purposes."

Owens said he planned to make formal application to have the suspension lifted when he returns to Cleveland next week. The application must be made through his home A.A.U. group, the Northeastern Ohio Association.

Bingham said he had read the rule to Owens and questioned the star concerning his activity since his suspension.

"Owens assured me he had received no money for sports appearances and I told him he might apply for reinstatement under the rules. I offered him no other encouragement The board of governors of the athletic union has the final say on such problems."

Yanks Again Rule As Overwhelming Favorites In A.L.

By LAWTON CARVER

NEW YORK, Jan.—(INS)—In a few short weeks the baseball people will be heading for the south and west again to train for another season, and, insofar as seven American league club-owners are concerned, this probably comes about as close to utter futility as anything you can find in sports.

The New York Yankees, currently world champions for the second straight year, admittedly could use a dash of pitching and second base may present a problem now that Tony Lazzeri has passed out of the league, but the Yanks still figure to outgallop the rest toward the pennant, in the mid-Winter forecasts.

Some of the baseball people would like it much better if the prospects were for a close race such as the National league generally puts on. That helps gate receipts during these times of what they call a recession, and any of three or four teams can wind up with the pennant. There is some doubt about the thing in the National.

The American couldn't be more thoroughly dominated by the Yankees if they owned the league, what with the records they break and the flags they win just any time after mid-season.

Just how much they will miss Lazzeri, now with the Chicago Cubs, will be interesting to watch as the Yankees belt their way along again. They are giving second base to Joe Gordon, a rookie from their Newark farm—but it may not be a permanent gift.

In the pitching department they still will present two of the top hands in Lefty Gomez and Red Ruffing. Joe DiMaggio is expected to continue toward a place among the all-time outfield greats, and Locomotive Lou Gehrig, of course, will go on and on. He finished last season with 1,965 straight games behind him, and probably will stretch that through another full season at first base.

They have a few other capable gents, too—Bill Dickey, Young Tom Henrich, Red Rolfe, Frankie Crosetti, George Selkirk, Myril Hoag, etc., etc., etc.

The Detroit Tigers and Cleveland Indians generally are looked upon as the class of the field behind the Yankees, the Tigers presenting, among others, Charlie Gehringer, the batting champion; clouting Hank Greenberg, and Rudy York, the catcher who turned out to be a tremendous hitter—if he can keep it up.

The Indians will be depending largely on two pitching aces, Bob Feller and Johnny Allen, and a brand new manager, Oscar Vitt, who moved to Cleveland out of the Yankee chain gang. He managed Newark last season.

The National league? The New York Giants really didn't figure to win either of the pennants they captured in the last two seasons, and do not look too hot again. The Chicago Cubs, St. Louis Cardinals and Pittsburgh Pirates will be in the battle, and anything may develop—except a run away for any one club.

The Yankees have a copyright on that, apparently, and also on the privilege of belting the National league around in the world series.

Conference Adopts Six Man Football

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., Jan.—(INS)—Six-man football—the kind played on the nation's sandlots by scrub teams of neighborhood youths—received an official standing in the sports world when it was adopted by the Wabash Valley High School Conference, here.

Orvel E. Strong, conference secretary, announced the adoption of six-man football by the loop which has 125 member schools in the Wabash Valley or both Indiana and Illinois.

So Warm!

For her birthday little Pat had been given a ring, but much to her disappointment, not one of the guests at tea noticed it. At last she could bear their indifference no longer. "Oh!" she exclaimed. "I'm so warm in my new ring."—Toronto Globe and Mail.

Up and Down

The examining lawyer was cross-questioning an Irishwoman in court with regard to the stairs in her house. "Now, my good woman, please tell the court how the stairs run in your house."

"How do the stairs run?" repeated the woman. "Shure, when I'm upstairs they run down, and when I'm downstairs they run up."

Miss Ejima Sets New Records In Speed Skating

Miss Yaeko Ejima of Manchuria gave speed skating experts a ray of hope in the Fifth Winter Olympic Games in 1940 by virtue of her brilliant performance in the winter sports competition of the ninth Meiji Shrine games which ended Sunday at the Lake Tade rink at Kamisuwa. She set two new national records in the two events she entered.

On Saturday, Miss Ejima negotiated the 500 meters event in 52.3 seconds, clipping .3 second off the mark set by Miss Minako Taki, also of Manchuria, at Osio in 1936. Then on Sunday, despite the unfavorable conditions of the ice, she won the 1,500 meters event in 2 minutes 45 seconds, shattering her own national record of 2 minutes 50 seconds.

Yushoku Cho of Meiji won the men's 5,000 meters event in 9 minute 0.1 second from a field of 11 contestants for a new meet record.

Ryushin Sai of Meiji won the men's 1,500 meters race in 2 minutes 26.6 second for the best time yet set in Japan. The record is held by Seifuchi Kin at 2 minutes 25 seconds set at the Fourth Winter Olympic Games in 1936 at Garmisch-Partenkirchen.

Meiji won the 2,000 meter relay in 3 minutes 7.8 seconds for a new meet record. The members were Izumiyama, F. Sai, Kyo and R. Sai.

19 Deaths In 1937 Laid To Football In United States

N.Y. Times

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 31—America's football coaches were told today that the fatality toll taken by the game this year was the lowest since official records were started in 1931.

Along with the report, which listed only nineteen deaths due to gridiron injuries, Floyd R. Eastwood, Associate Professor of Physical Education at Purdue University, offered a recommendation for closer supervision of play as an aid to a further decrease.

Dr. Eastwood's annual summation of football deaths was made to the American Football Coaches Association at its annual convention through William S. Langford, secretary of the Rules Committee.

Significant in the report, aside from the decrease of 42 per cent from the peak of 1931, was the drop of college deaths from 12.1 per cent on each 100,000 exposures in 1931 to no fatalities in 1937.

Record Found Encouraging

"This is the first year on record that no college deaths have occurred," said Dr. Eastwood. "This record is most encouraging. The high school record is also improved. Two less deaths occurred in high school this year than in 1936.

"It would seem to indicate that coaches in colleges and high schools are setting up more rigorous safety procedures. This drop is also probably due to school administrators providing better equipment, facilities and medical care."

"Most of the fatalities indirectly associated with football," he continued, "could have been eliminated by daily inspection of players for skin breaks. Infections are taking too heavy a toll of football players

"Closer supervision by parents of children playing sandlot football, as well as those players on high school teams, is recommended. Both groups are liable to come home after playing and fail to tell their parents of bruises, head injuries and the like."

Three States Suffer Most

Most of the fatalities of 1937 were of players between 16 and 18 years of age, the report said. Fifty per cent of the fatal injuries occurred in interschool or club games. A majority of the deaths was reported from Pennsylvania, New York and Illinois.

"Since 1906," Dr. Eastwood's report continued, "The Associated Press has kept records of football fatalities. It is interesting to note that a fairly steady rise in the number of deaths occurred from 1906 to 1931. Since that time there has been a very observable decline."

Dr. Eastwood compiled the following table showing the fatalities by position since 1931:

	ATHLETIC '31-'36	ATHLETIC '37	HIGH Sandlot '31-'36	HIGH Sandlot '37	HIGH Club '31-'36	HIGH Club 37	HIGH School '31-'36	HIGH School 37'	College 31-'36	College '37	Total '31-'36	Total '37
